of troops till 1856, he was in that year compelled to take leave on medical certificate in consequence of a severe attack of ophthalmia, contracted at the bedside of a brother officer. Returning the next year, after a short service in charge of the 1st Bengal Cavalry, Dr. Beatson was placed at the head of the European General Field Hospital at Allahabad, at the time considered the most onerous charge in the entire Presidency. Notwithstanding the trials of the mutiny, so well was this establishment managed that the general officer in a brigade order declared it to be "second to none in India," and Lord Sandhurst, then commander in chief, passed the following opinion in the matter:—"Though surrounded with great difficulties during the mutiny Dr. Beatson maintained the hospital in a state of the highest efficiency. The management by Dr. Beatson was admirable, winning the confidence of the sick by his skill and gaining their affections by his kindness." At Allahabad Dr. Beatson worked for ten years, and left only to take up an equally heavy charge as medical storekeeper and staff surgeon at Ambala. In this duty he continued till 1863, when he was appointed surgeon general of the Mirat Circle. The head of the Medical Department congratulated him, when leaving for England in 1874, on having crowned an "exceptionally conspicuous career as an executive officer by an equally brilliant one in the administrative grade;" and General Travers put on record his "warm admiration of his splendid and devoted services at a time when the entire population of cantonments was prostrated by dengue and cholera, and when he himself had but left his bed after a severe attack of the former," adding that "such an example could not fail to work most beneficially upon all ranks." Whilst in England Dr. Beatson was offered the succession to the surgeon generalship of the Indian Medical Department, an offer which he accepted, and, returning to India in July, 1875, at once took up his duties at Calcutta. During his tenure of this office there have occurred the two great calamities of the Madras famine and the Afghan war, and in connection with both these events Dr. Beatson has received the heartiest thanks of the Indian Government for his "energy, zeal, and intelligence." No fitter words could be found to convey in brief the leading characteristics of Dr. Beatson's work throughout life With Dr. Beatson's departure the new state of things is inaugurated by which the Military Medical Department in this country is put under the charge of the surgeon general British service.—Englishman.

MEETINGS OF COMPANIES.—At the general meeting of the Calcutta Jute Mills Company, held March 25, the report and accounts were passed, and it was resolved that the balance Rs.13,848-5-8 shown at debit of profit and loss account, being net loss on the last half-year's working, be debited to reserve fund.—At the general meeting of the Jokai (Assam) Tea Company, held March 29, the report and accounts were passed. The purchase of the Bokel garden for Rs.5,000 was confirmed, and that sum was transferred from the Momarie reserve fund.—At an extraordinary meeting of Watson's Patent Press Company, held March 29, the articles of association were amended as follows, by rescinding Clause 51 and substituting therefor the following:—"That the agents and secretaries of the company shall be entitled to and receive a commission of 3 per cent. on the gross earnings and no more, which commission shall include any salary or salaries connected with the management of the company and office rent, but not the salary or salaries of persons employed at the Press House Establishment." By rescinding Clauses 52 and 54, add thenceforward numbering the clauses of the said articles of association consecutively. By rescinding Clause 53 and substituting therefor the following:—"There shall be not less than two directors of the said company and not more than four." By rescinding Clause 56 and substituting therefor the following:—"The directors shall meet once a month for the transaction of the business of the company, and shall be paid a fee of Rs.16 for each attendance." By rescinding Clause 66 and substituting therefor the following:—"The office of director shall be vacated if he ceases to hold twenty-five shares in the company, or if he becomes bankrupt or insolvent."—At the general meeting of the Borsillah Tea Company, held March 30, the report and accounts were passed.—Englishman.

THE SITTANG VALLEY RAILWAY.—Every one in the province will be glad to hear that the Sittang Valley Railway is to be proceeded with, and Mr. Salmond, assistant engineer, will next month go out to complete the necessary surveys in connection with the same.—Rangoon Gazette.

THE NEW DISEASE.—The supplement to the Calcutta Gazette of March 30 contains a report on the "new disease," submitted by the health officer of Calcutta, on a requisition from the local Government. The report enables us to add but little to the particulars given in our columns some days ago. The disease is said to have prevailed in Midnapur in 1876; broke out in Garden Reach the following year, and has since progressed slowly, but steadily, northwards, affecting most severely the eastern suburbs of the town, while in the country it has during the same time penetrated as far as the Khasia Hills and Assam. At the time of the report, i.e., at the close of last month, it was on the wane, but this was probably only a seasonal diminution. The symptoms are described as swelling of the limbs, the lower always, sometimes the upper, and occasionally the body; fever sometimes before and sometimes after the swelling, and in some cases altogether absent; bowel complaint in many cases—diarrhœa most commonly, dysentery in a few; burning and pain in the affected limbs at the commencement; shortness of breathing and cough, and palpitation in all cases; great emaciation, exhaustion, and anæmia in severe cases, slighter but well marked in all. Its duration appears to average about two months, and in fatal cases there is a great disturbance of the respiration and circulation. As regards the mode of attack, Dr. M'Leod says:—"It has attacked houses in a village in a promiscuous way. The affected homesteads are mostly scattered throughout the locality, and not necessarily contiguous. The rule has been that several or all the members of a household have been seized, and single cases in a family are exceptional. Such seizures have taken place almost simultaneously or in rapid succession, as if from the operation of a common cause. The seizure of different houses in a village appears to have been simultaneous; indeed, the disease seems to have broken out all over the infected area about the same time." As regards causation he expresses no positive opinion, but believes it to be attributable to no special dietetic or hygienic conditions. As regards infectiousness, he pronounces the evidence conflicting. While admitting that the point is not definitely settled, he is inclined to endorse the opinion which identifies the disease with the beri beri of Madras and Ceylon. —Englishman.

DR. D. B. SMITH, late principal of the Medical College Hospital Calcutta, has received an address from the patients of that institution which must be very gratifying to his feelings. The memorialists wish Dr. Smith "farewell, and, D.V., safe journey, long life, and prosperity."

THE COMMISSARIAT FRAUDS IN RANGOON.—The investigation of the commissariat frauds in Rangoon has gone on for the last four months before a military court presided over by Colonel Weldon. It has now been decided to transfer the case to a civil tribunal. Mr. H. T. Tarrant, the Madras public prosecutor, has been sent to Rangoon to conduct the case against the defendants. The defendants, who are more than twenty in number, are said to include one commissioned officer and some sergeants.—Pioneer.

THE ALLEGED MORTALITY AT DEOGHUR.—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in an official letter to the commissioner of the Bhaugulpore Division, states that it is manifest from the reports and papers furnished on the case that the facts have been very grossly exaggerated to serve the purposes of the local pandas, who are agitating to procure the withdrawal from Deoghur of the Pilgrims' Lodging-house Act. The closest inquiry has only been able to discover seven cases of death, including among these even rumours of deaths. In four cases the evidence is very doubtful. The Deputy Commissioner was unable to satisfy himself that they really occurred. But even if they did occur, the whole mortality ascertained is far less than frequently occurs at such pilgrim gatherings when bad weather sets in. At such times the weak and sickly and ill-provided only too often die in the open, shelter being in any case only procurable on payment. The Lieutenant Governor considers that the local officers present took every possible means of mitigating the suffering necessarily caused by the sudden on-coming of bad weather. It is clearly proved that all available Government and other public buildings were thrown open to the pilgrims from an early hour on Monday morning, February 16, the rain having set in at 2 a.m. on that day. It is suggested, in explanation of the statement made by the Sirdar Ojha and other witnesses to the effect that no relief was given till Tuesday evening, that they refer to the actual suspension of the Act by beat of drum which took place on that evening. The Lieutenant Governor is satisfied that everything possible, short of the suspension of the Act, was done early on Monday. —Pioneer.

Prince Mirza Jahan Kadrer Bahadur was voted to the chair. Moulvies Abdoor Rowoof and Abdool Luteef and Hajee Noor Mahomed addressed the meeting, and a strong committee was appointed to carry out the resolutions adopted in furtherance of the objects of the meeting, with Prince Ruheemuddeen as its president, Princes Mirza Jahan Kuddur and Nusseeroodeen Hyder as vice-presidents, Moulvie Abdool Luteef as secretary, and the firm of Hajee Zakaria Mahomed and Company as treasurers.

DURBAR AT BELVEDERE.—At the investiture ceremony held recently at Belvedere the Hon. H. Cockerell, Political Secretary to the Government of Bengal, led the Maharaja of Cuch Behar before his Honour, who made over to him the sunud bestowing on him the title of "Maharaja Bahadur" and presented him with the khillut of a diamond ring, complimenting him on his high lineage and position. Raja Komul Krishna was next brought forward, and presented with the sunud "Maharaja" and also a diamond ring. His Honour spoke in high terms of the eminent services rendered to the Government by the Sobhabazar Raj family, and expressed a hope that the present recipient of the honour would inherit the position of his ancestor, the renowned Maharaja Nobokissen. Dr. Sourindro Mohun Tagore, C.I.E., was next presented with the sunud of "Raja," and a seirpaich, which the Hon. H. Cockerell immediately fastened on to his pugri. His Honour spoke in highly eulogistic terms of the reputation of Raja Sourindro Mohun both in India and abroad for his public services in connection with the art of music, and added that he present honour bestowed on him by the Government of India was one of the very many which the Raja had received from Europe and other countries. Babu Kristendro Nath Roy, of Bolihar, received the sunud of "Raja" and a pearl necklace, his Honour remarking that he owed the present distinction to his numerous works of public utility, such as the establishment of schools and dispensaries and the construction of roads, &c., in the zemindary. Attar and pan were then distributed to the four gentlemen, who had just then received their sunuds and khilluts by his Honour himself, who, after shaking hands with each of them, retired. Raja Sourindra Mohun Tagore, in graceful acknowledgment of the distinction he had received, fell, according to the Hindu custom, at the feet of his elder brother, the Hon. Maharaja Jotendro Mohun Tagore, C.S.I., for whom his respect is known to be unbounded. The bystanders were evidently struck at this manifestation of fraternal feeling on the part of the Raja, to whom sincere congratulations from friends (native and European) poured in from all sides.—Mirror.

BENGAL COMPULSORY VACCINATION ACT.—The Bengal Council will have under its consideration shortly the report of the select committee on the Compulsory Vaccination Bill. The main object of the bill is entirely laudable, and we are glad to believe that in Calcutta and its suburbs, where it becomes applicable at first, there is no serious opposition to it in the native community. But there is one provision in the bill which we believe is looked upon with great distavour, and perhaps it might be modified out of respect to the customs of the people without very seriously impairing the efficacy of the measure. We refer to section 3 of the bill, which provides that the parent or guardian of any unprotected child, whose age exceeds one year, but does not exceed fourteen years, shall cause the child to be vaccinated either by the public vaccinator or by some other medical practitioner. The age of fourteen is objected to as considerably too high in the case of girls, whom most native parents and guardians would be very reluctant to produce at that age before the public vaccinator. The point is one on which it will be for the native members of Council to represent the views of the community.—Statesman.

MADRAS.

MYSOR ADMINISTRATION REPORT, 1878-79.—There were 1,683¾ lakhs of rupees left for collection under the head of revenue during the year. One hundred and twenty-one had been got in, eight and a-half were written off, and there remained as balance outstanding on March 31 thirty-nine lakhs. Taking into consideration the fact of there being more than four millions of acres of cultivated ground and 66½ lakhs of rupees of assessment, the reduction during the year of assessment payable to Government by ryots is not extraordinary. The Customs, Stamps, Law and Justice, Public Works, and Miscellaneous Departments showed largely increased receipts, in the last named especially, owing to refund of unexpended balances of relief grants, and sale of proceeds of the materials of relief camps. The customs had benefited by increased exports of betel nut, when revived trade and rising markets began to emerge from the stagnation in which they had been long buried. The annual revenue had risen to the unprecedented sum of 121 lakhs of rupees, exceeding the estimate by Rs.6,30,000. The collection of it for land alone were Rs.20,83,000 better than the estimate. The necessity for retaining famine reliefs during three parts of the year, and of keeping open famine relief works, without reference to the budget provided for the year, together with the expenditure created by the Mysor State Railway, combined to swell the expenditure to nearly 128½ lakhs of rupees against grants to that purpose of 121 lakhs. A public loan was thus forced upon the province; and its public debts, which amounted to fifty lakhs in 1877-78, were increased by thirty more. The year under review, though happily free from any great epidemic, witnessed much suffering from fever. The hospitals and dispensaries, however, were equal to the occasion, and they treated more sick persons during it than they had done in 1877. The returns of births and deaths, though inaccurate, give 2·53 and 14·5 per mille calculated on the returns of the census for 1871. The changes lately introduced into the system of working this department will, it is hoped, "greatly improve the trustworthiness of future returns." A difficulty had occurred in another direction, too, that of schools; a new classification of them rendered it difficult to compare with any degree of accuracy their number and strength of pupils with those of 1877-78, but this one fact stands out in bold distinctness, that the total number of pupils had slightly decreased. The inspecting agency was modified to the extent of five native inspectors having been substituted for the two European officers who had hitherto carried on the work between them. Part II. of the report omits notice of the physical features and area of the province, both having been fully described in the report for 1872-73; it is for the same reason silent on the subject of its political geography, and proceeds with an account of the administration of the land.—Madras Times.

THE TOBACCO TRADE.—The tobacco trade of the Madras Presidency is looking up, as we find from the returns published by the collector of Madras that in the month of January 1,702lb. of tobacco and cigars, valued at Rs.1,568 were shipped to Great Britain, China, Ceylon, the Straits, &c. In the past month 1,342lb. were shipped to Shanghai, Calcutta, Ceylon and England. Cigars are now largely manufactured in Madras from tobacco procured from Trichinopoly and Madura.—Madras Standard.

RECRUITING IN THE MADRAS ARMY.—The difficulties of obtaining recruits in the Madras Presidency to complete the strength of native regiments are becoming more and more apparent. From time to time it has been deemed necessary to relax, alter, and amend the rules on this subject, and yet the difficulty cannot be said to have been altogether surmounted. About a year ago Colonel Douglas Grant, commandant 39th Regiment N.I., submitted to the Government a paper, showing the advantages natives obtain by enlisting as sepoys in the Madras army, but, for some reason or other, the plan proposed by him was not approved, and the matter was allowed to drop. The Afghan war revived the question, several regiments being found below the sanctioned establishments. So late as April last Sir Neville Chamberlain, among other things, recommended that the standard and height should be reduced from five feet six inches to five feet five inches, in order to facilitate the enlistment of recruits, and his recommendation was sanctioned by Government. The matter, however, did not end there. Sir Neville Chamberlain, who has always evinced the deepest interest in the efficiency of native corps, communicated with officers commanding divisions and districts to ascertain from them the reason why a larger number of men were not induced to recruit, and we now hear he has again addressed the Government, submitting the following recommendations as a means of removing, in some way, the difficulties which are felt in procuring a sufficiency of recruits :—1. To reduce the standard of height by another inch for the present and until the war pressure is over—viz., to five feet four inches, retaining the chest measurement. 2. To cause to be widely circulated in all district Gazettes the advantages a sepoy enjoys by admission to the army. 3. To call upon civil officials to put forth their best endeavours to help recruiting parties. 4. To obtain the services of some selected pensioned native officers to aid in enlisting recruits, giving head-money for each man finally passed into the service. 5. To form a depot at Trichinopoly and at Vizagapatam for the assembly of recruits for all Madras regiments serving in Bengal as a temporary measure while the war goes on. The Local Government, we hear, have approved of these suggestions, but await further information before finally sanctioning the proposals.—Madras Times.

DR. CORNISH has been appointed civil surgeon general of the Madras Presidency. Dr. Furnell succeeds Dr. Cornish as sanitary commissioner.

RECRUITING.—Sir Neville Chamberlain having represented to the Government of Madras the great scarcity of recruits and the difficulties to be met in obtaining them even after every endeavour had been made, the local Government, we hear, have sanctioned the formation of two recruiting depots for the Madras troops on field service in Afghanistan. One depot will be formed at Trichinopoly and another at Vizagapatam. The Government have also, to facilitate recruiting, reduced the standard height for native infantry recruits from five feet five inches to five feet four inches, but retaining the chest measurement at thirty-two inches above the nipple, and thirty-one below. Pensioned native officers will also recruit, and the civil authorities will render whatever aid they can to the military in seeking for recruits. The Government of India have, as we have already mentioned, published an order to facilitate the augmentation of the troops on service in Afghanistan.—Mail.

THE ANGLO-INDIAN SPINNING AND MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—The third ordinary general meeting of the Indian shareholders of the Anglo-Indian Spinning and Manufacturing Company (Limited) was held at the office of the company, 32, Elphinstone-circle, on March 24. The chairman, in submitting the accounts and directors' report for the year ending June 30, 1879, said that the profit for the whole year was Rs.6,451-3-6 inclusive of Rs.2,323-6-11 carried forward from previous year. The causes of the small profit were familiar to most of the shareholders, and were referred to as follows in the directors' report :—"The twelve months covered by the accounts have been most trying ones, and the mill industry in Bombay has been carried on under conditions of very great difficulty. A famine, exceeding in intensity almost any ever before known in India, caused much suffering and curtailed the demand for cotton goods. In addition, a widespread financial panic for a time destroyed confidence and caused the withdrawal of the unused facilities, not only from millowners, but also from the various native mediums through which the produce of the mills was usually distributed." The result of this state of affairs was that in the twelve months ending June, 1879, for the first seven months there was a loss, but in the remaining five months this was made up, and, in addition, the small profit of Rs.4,127-12-7, as shown in the balance-sheet. Leaving the accounts of the year ending June, 1879, he had the pleasure to say that the audit for the half-year ending December 31, 1879, having been completed, there was a marked improvement. The profit was Rs.21,448-11-6, which, added to the undisposed profit of Rs.6,457-3-6, gave Rs.27,899-15. The committee had recommended to the board the payment of an ad interim dividend, and they had agreed to declare one for the half-year of Rs.2½ on rupee shares and five shillings on sterling shares, being at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum; this would absorb Rs.15,000, leaving Rs.12,899-15 to be carried forward as a contribution to the depreciation fund.—Bombay Gazette.

THE ALLIANCE SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY.—The report of the directors for the year ending Dec. 31, 1879, shows goods results during the above period, both in the cotton and silk weaving departments. The total profits amount to Rs.55,798-12-4, —viz., from the cotton branch, Rs.45,919-10-4, and the silk branch, Rs.9,879-2; taking this with the net profit for the previous half-year 1879 it amounts to Rs.94,221-5-10, which is considered to be exceedingly satisfactory. The directors, after having set apart a sum of Rs.1,000 for insurance fund, in accordance with the term of the articles of association of the company, from the net profit of Rs.55,798-12-4, have on hand Rs.54,798-12-4 for distribution, and they recommend a dividend of Rs.65 per share for the half-year under report. The sixth ordinary general meeting was held on March 31. The report was adopted, and it was resolved that the tenth dividend for the half-year ended December, 1879, be declared at the rate of Rs.65 per share.—Ibid.

THE COORLA SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY (LIMITED).—At a meeting of the shareholders of this company, held at the registered office of the company in Elphinstone-circle, it was resolved "That the audited accounts and the report of the directors for the half-year ended Dec. 31 last be adopted." And "That this meeting approve of the action of the directors in not carrying out to its full extent the irregular resolution passed by the last general meeting about writing off and setting apart a certain percentage for deterioration of the buildings and machinery and insurance fund, and that, as recommended by the directors, a dividend at the rate of Rs.20 per share be declared payable on and after April 12 next to the shareholders whose names appear on the register of the company on March 15, 1880, and that Rs.5,000 be written off in reduction of machinery and building account."—Ibid.

THE SASSOON SPINNING AND WEAVING COMPANY.—The seventh ordinary general meeting was held on March 31. The company had for the year ending Dec. 31, 1879, made a net profit of Rs.67,271, and, after deducting therefrom the loss of last year, Rs.22,792, there remained a balance of Rs.44,478. The report and the audited balance-sheet and profit and loss account were adopted and approved. It was resolved that Rs.30,000 out of the net profit of Rs.44,478 be paid in reduction of loan, that Rs.10,000 be carried to the fire insurance account, and that the balance of Rs.4,478 be carried forward.—Ibid.

THE DEKKAN RYOTS RELIEF.—The rules regarding registration made under the Dekkan Agriculturists Relief Act, 1879, and published in the Government Gazette of Feb. 12, 1880, come into force in the four collectorates of Puna, Ahmednagar, Sholapur, and Sattara from May 1.—Ibid.

THE HURNAI ROUTE.—Mr. Molesworth, consulting engineer to Government, has been over the Hurnai route, as originally proposed by Col. Lindsay, chief engineer of the Sukkur-Dadur Railway, and has expressed himself satisfied that it is the best possible one. Thus far, then, it is certain that the line will run from Sibi up the Nari Gorge, past Hurnai and Darg, and through the Chapar Rift; thence it will pass near Brahiman, and down the Kakar-Lora Valley. There will be a station somewhere between Kasim Killa and Kuchlak, at a spot to be fixed hereafter, from which a branch line of, say, sixteen miles in length will run to Quetta. From this point the route will probably, I may almost say certainly, run past Hardazi, and, crossing the main Lora River at Sayad Hamid, reach Gulistan. The rail will run over the mountains by the Gwaja Pass (6,700ft.), and go as straight as possible over the comparatively easy country between their base and Kandahar. It will not be completed as far as Quetta for at least eighteen months. I have it on the best possible authority that there is no chance of the Bolan route being closed, for this year at least.—Correspondent Times of India.

MOVEMENTS OF TROOPS.—Owing, we believe, to a report from Brigadier General Burrows as to the disturbed state of affairs which exists on the lines of communication, a squadron of the 3rd Light Cavalry has been ordered from Jacobabad to the front. THE RESIGNATION OF DR. HUNTER.—The retirement of the Surgeon General has evoked a complimentary resolution of Government. It is as follows :—"In accepting the resignation of Surgeon General W. G. Hunter Government desires to express their regret at losing the services of so efficient an officer. Surgeon General W. G. Hunter's professional career has been varied and most successful. After having served in the Indian Army, in medical charge of troops in quarters, in several civil appointments (including the Professorship of Surgery, of Ophthalmic Surgery, of Medicine, and subsequently the Principalship of the Grant Medical College, and First Physician of Sir Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy Hospital) he was selected by Government as the most fitting officer to hold the responsible administrative office of Surgeon General of the Indian Medical Department. In that capacity Surgeon General Hunter has most satisfactorily proved that Government were fully warranted in the selection they made." At a meeting of members of the Subordinate Medical Department it was resolved to present Dr. Hunter with an address, and to strike a silver medal to be awarded to the best conducted student of the hospital apprentice class, Grant Medical College, to be styled the "Hunter Good Conduct Medal." A subscription list was opened, Surgeon Shaik Hyder Cassim being appointed honorary secretary of the fund. It was stated by the chairman, Surgeon Major Anderson, that the movement emanated entirely from the Subordinate Medical Department, and that the graduates and licentiates of the Grant Medical College intended to take separate steps with a view to commemorate Dr. Hunter's long services.—Times of India.

DEATH OF MR. SPENCER.—We are sorry to have to announce the death of an old and much respected resident of Bombay, Mr. Nathaniel Spencer, which took place on Monday at his residence, Middle Colaba. Mr. Spencer, who had reached his eightieth year, was formerly a member of the Municipal Corporation, and took an active share in the management of many of the local religious and charitable institutions, particularly those connected with the Scotch community. The Scottish Education Society and the Scottish Orphanage by his death lose a good friend. He was a justice of the peace and registrar of civil marriages.—Ibid.

THE MANCHESTER AND BOMBAY COMPANY.—The Hon. Morarjee Goculdas, C.I.E., has purchased the mill of the Manchester and Bombay Spinning and Manufacturing Company (Limited), now being wound up by order of the High Court of Chancery in England, for Rs.7,30,000, subject to the sale being confirmed in England. The mill, which is situated at Chinchpoogly, contains about 37,600 spindles, of which 20,800 are throstles and 16,800 mules, with preparation machinery, all of which are now working and in good order.—Times of India.

MAJOR C. MANT, R.E., and Mr. F. W. Stevens, C.E., have been appointed Government examiners of the School of Art for 1880.

DR. VANDYKE CARTER.—In the Bombay Government Gazette of April 8 the Hon. the Governor in Council places on record his appreciation of the scientific attainments of Dr. Vandyke Carter, who was recently allowed furlough. This eminent officer, we are told, has long been distinguished by his researches in the departments of anatomy, pathology, and medical diagnosis, and as a scientific investigator he added to our knowledge and has reflected credit on the medical service of the Bombay Presidency.

EDUCATION.—The statistical tables relating to education in the Bombay Presidency have just been published in a separate volume as an appendix to the educational report. The total amount spent on education during the official year 1878-79 seems to have been Rs.26,65,240, of which the Government contribution was apparently Rs.10,51,728, but the figures are not clear, and are difficult to reconcile. The two Government colleges—viz., the Elphinstone College and the Deccan College, educated 256 pupils between them; the Deccan College, at an average cost of Rs.742, of which Government contributed Rs.675, and the Elphinstone College at an average of Rs.605, the cost to Government being Rs.356. Hence the Government colleges in Bombay cost about as much per student as those in the North Western Provinces. The expenditure on engineering is, however, far cheaper than the monstrous charges of the Roorkee College, the Civil Engineering College at Puna educating 210 students at an average cost of Rs.301, the Government cost being Rs.272, and the Engineering School at Hyderabad having eighteen pupils at an average cost of Rs.191, the whole of this being paid by Government. The School of Art, Bombay, had 175 pupils at an average cost of Rs.232, Government paying Rs.160.—Pioneer.

THE CABUL COMMAND.

THAT irony of Fate, which so often confounds the calculations of mankind, and upsets Ministries and Monarchies, would appear to be threatening the military reputation of General Roberts in Afghanistan. Whatever else remained unsettled in that country one thing had long ago been accepted as "settled satisfactorily"—viz., that Sir Frederick Roberts was an eminent commander. When he was selected by Lord Lytton to be a leader of soldiers in the field the nomination caused considerable surprise even, it is said, to the Commander in Chief, who, according to rumour, was never consulted in the matter. India is a land of scepticism, and there were men there who doubted the wisdom of appointing to command in the field an officer whose practical knowledge of soldiers had been limited to the experience gained as a lieutenant of a battery of artillery many years ago. To these sceptics, who had little faith in the military capabilities, and none in the military experience, of the new commander, it was pointed out that great generals, like great poets, were born, not made, and that Napoleon I. had been a junior officer of artillery. Nevertheless, General Roberts was not sent to the front of the fray, but was despatched to the Kuram Valley, where it was thought that the difficulties likely to test the skill of an untried strategist would be less. Events, however, belied expectations. The forcing of the dreaded Khyber Pass turned out to be an easy effort of successful military blundering; the brunt of stubborn fighting fell upon the column which Roberts commanded. Glowing telegrams, which told of the capture of the Peiwar Kotal, were the convincing proofs of his genius as a general and of his tact as a diplomatist. "He not only knows how to win a battle but when" was the attribute of praise bestowed upon him by Lord Beaconsfield, and the aphorism embodied a political in a military triumph. From that time Roberts was the coming man, and, when the massacre at Cabul brought about the hour when a man to be trusted was wanted, the selection fell upon the favourite of fortune. His after triumphs are on record; telegrams and letters from special correspondents told of one success upon another. Lord Lytton, in periods of prose which had the eloquence of poetry, justified the selection which himself had made.

But let no man be called happy before he dies or obtains his peerage. Already the wind of popularity is shifting, and the summer sea of glory on which General Roberts has hitherto been borne threatens to ebb away and leave him to "the mercy of a rude stream." We are now being told that "there has been a growing feeling in India, and out of it, that, gallant soldier as Sir Frederick Roberts is universally acknowledged to be, he lacks the experience necessary for the successful working of the Cabul command." It is allowed that he extricated himself with credit from the difficulties of last December, but then "he blundered into them, and, by splitting up his army into several fragments, he offered Mahomed Jan an opening which that skilful general was not slow to avail himself of." But not only is the generalship called bad, the diplomacy is held to be worse. "The fanatical outbreak of December was caused in a large measure by the repressive measures inaugurated by General Roberts on his arrival in Cabul, and the hostile hosts were swelled by men from those villages which, for military or political reasons, he had deemed it wise to destroy." But misfortunes do not come singly to generals or diplomatists. The recall of General Massy and the censure cast upon him by the Commander in Chief is likely to force an investigation into matters in which the generalship of Sir Frederick Roberts will be put to a severe test, and it is now discovered that the Afghan leader who has lately attacked Sir Donald Stewart's force with such determined ferocity was a man whom General Roberts believed he had gained over, and whose friendly alliance he had lately purchased in hard cash. In addition to these troubles the general belief in India appears to be that the Afghan difficulty is as far from a speedy settlement as ever, and that General Roberts has not yet been able to untie or cut the knot.

The success of Sir Donald Stewart has turned upon him the anxious eyes of many who had become alarmed at the fresh outbreaks of hostility and the renewed proofs of the fierce hatred with which the people of Afghanistan regard the intrusion of an invader. It would be unjust to underrate the difficulties which General Roberts has had to contend with in his endeavours to make the hostile clans about Cabul come to some peaceable understanding amongst themselves and give credit to English assurances that there was no intention of annexation or further despoil. But the difficulties which surrounded Sir Donald Stewart at Kandahar were in reality not less because less was heard about them. Sir Donald, however, has had more experience of the Oriental character than Sir Frederick. He understands how to fight them as enemies and how to win them as friends. Quiet in manner and soft in speech, but of iron will, Donald Stewart is one of that old school of Indian officers, too rapidly passing away, which has given so many able soldiers and military administrators to India in troubled or dangerous time. He thoroughly understands the character of the natives, and they know that he does so. His administration at Kandahar has been eminently successful; sternly just it had to be of necessity; he established order and respect for English rule without having had to resort to any such measures of severity as those which were considered requisite at Cabul, and which occasioned so much adverse comment in many quarters. Firm, but conciliatory, he managed to win over the most hostile of the local sirdars, and Kandahar was quietly taken under British protection without outbreak or protest on the part of nobles or people. So far General Stewart has shown himself possessed of great political tact and administrative ability. He has shown himself not less able as a general in the field. He has fought the hardest battle of the campaign, and fought with a calm courage and skill which has won approbation from soldiers of all ranks. He may have yet to do more fighting, but, unless his movements are hampered by insufficiency of transport or by want of cavalry, he is not likely to give his enemy breathing time to recover. A quick succession of defeats soon causes the bravest of Oriental troops to lose heart. They will meet death with all the heroism of fatalism, but continued disaster breaks their faith in the future, and they hasten to accept the fate which appears against them. It is to be hoped that Sir Donald has been able to follow up his late successes rapidly enough to bring about this consummation, and that we shall soon learn that Northern Afghanistan promises to settle down as peacefully as Southern Afghanistan has done. There is much work yet for the politician to do, and the sword cannot soon perhaps be sheathed, but it is satisfactory to know that the carrying out of the policy which has been determined on with regard to Afghanistan will be entrusted to the strong and able hands of Sir Donald Stewart.

The amounts allotted were :—To Calcutta Rs.32,21,000, to Bombay Rs.7,19,000, and to Madras Rs.60,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 7 7/8d. will receive about 4 per cent. ; above that price in full. Compared with last week this price shows no alteration. The amount to be tendered for next Wednesday will be reduced to Rs.35,00,000.

SOUTH EAST WYNAAD ESTATES AND GOLD MINING COMPANY.—The second cargo of coffee from India belonging to the above company has been lost through the wreck of the Amelia The coffee, however, was fully insured. The first general meeting was held on Wednesday, when the chairman, Mr. H. Palmer Stone, gave the shareholders a very favourable account of the business of the company. Messrs. Turquand, Youngs, and Co. were elected auditors.

NARROW ESCAPE OF A STEAMER.—A telegram from Port Elizabeth states that the steamer Tromp has put into that place for repairs, having suffered severe damage in a hurricane on the 9th inst., in lat. 33 S. long. 35 E. The Tromp was on a voyage from Samarang to Holland with a valuable cargo of coffee, sugar, hides, and East Indian produce, and having been struck by the hurricane was thrown on her beam ends. The cargo shifted, and topgallant masts were carried away. In order to right the vessel it was found necessary to jettison the cargo, and coffee valued at £1,280, sugar to the value of £93, and hides to the value of £140 were thrown overboard. The vessel herself sustained the strain very well, and was making no water in Port Elizabeth harbour.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE REWARD.—The distinguished service reward, vacant by the appointment of Lieut. Gen. the Hon. Robert Rollo, C.B., to the colonelcy of the 93rd Highlanders, has been conferred on Col. Samuel Alexander Madden, C.B., commanding the Perth Brigade Depot. Col. Madden, who recently retired from the command of the 51st Light Infantry, entered the service as ensign, July 7, 1843, and was promoted colonel in the army July 24, 1874. He served with the 51st throughout the Burmese war of 1852-53, was on board the East India Company's steam sloop Sesostris during the naval action and destruction of the enemy's stockades on the Rangoon river, served during the succeeding three days' operations in the vicinity (including the storming of the White House Redoubt), and at the storm and capture of Rangoon, also at the assault and capture of Bassein, May 19, and the repulse of the night attack on Prome, Dec. 8, 1852 (medal with clasp for Pegu), also in the Umbeylah expedition of 1863, commanded the regiment in the Jowaki campaign in 1877 (mentioned in despatches, medal with clasp). Also commanded the 51st Regiment throughout the Afghan war of 1878-79, including the taking of Ali Musjid (mentioned in despatches, C.B., and medal with clasp).—Broad Arrow.

EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY.—Mr. C. W. Johnston, secretary of the Edinburgh University Conservative Association, has received a telegram from Lord Lytton consenting to allow himself to be nominated for the lord rectorship of Edinburgh University, which becomes vacant in November next, on the expiry of Lord Hartington's tenure of office. Sir William Harcourt is the Liberal candidate.

NAVAL NEWS.—The following information respecting the movements of her Majesty's ships is supplied by the Admiralty :—From the East Indies letters have been received from the Commander in Chief up to the 3rd inst. He proposed to sail in the Euryalus about the 20th inst. for Trincomalee, and about May 20, after consulting the Viceroy, would make a southern tour, visiting Mauritius, Bourbon, Zanzibar, Seychelles, and Colombo, returning to Trincomalee. Later on would visit Madras, Calcutta, and Rangoon. The Wild Swan was at Bombay, and on completion of repairs would go to East Coast of Africa. The Dryad was at Bombay, and would proceed to Rangoon, calling at Trincomalee. The Beacon was at Bombay, and would leave on the 3rd inst. for Muscat, for service on the Persian Gulf Division. The Seagull was at Aden, and would leave for Jeddah on March 30 to relieve the Hart. The Philomel left Aden on March 27 for Jeddah. The Dragon was at Zanzibar and ordered to proceed to Tamatave, Madagascar, on March 20. From Aden.—The Growler arrived on the 6th inst., and would leave for Suez on the 10th inst. From Simon's Town.—The Raleigh arrived on the 21st inst.

INSPECTRESS OF SCHOOLS IN MADRAS.—At the special request of the local Government, the Government of India have asked the Secretary of State to sanction the appointment of an inspectress of schools for Madras, and have further suggested that Mrs. James Brander should be chosen to fill the new office. This lady, who has been residing in Edinburgh for the last two years, was head mistress of the Government Normal School in Madras from 1870 to 1875, and, on resigning this position, she received a vote of thanks from the Governor in Council for the manner in which she had discharged its duties. We understand that she has just received official notice of her appointment, which was wholly unsolicited, and that she will proceed to Madras in the course of a fortnight. The novel nature of the appointment makes it a matter of great interest in India and at home.—Daily News.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The secretary of the East Indian Railway Company notified in last Friday's Gazette that £10,415 0s. 3d. had been invested in India Four per Cent. Stock, in terms of the East Indian Railway Purchase Act, 1879. That sum is the amount of the sinking fund deducted from the income of the "B" Annuities.

NEW COMPANIES. — The Lanka Plantations Company (Limited) has been formed with a capital of £150,000 in £10 shares, of which the directors and resident manager take one-tenth, to purchase and cultivate coffee, cinchona, and other estates in the Island of Ceylon. Subscriptions are invited for £180,000 of £1 shares by the Balcarres Gold Mining Company of Southern India (Limited), which has been formed to acquire and work certain mining properties situated in the South East Wynaad district of the Madras Presidency. The prospectus is accompanied by extracts from the report of Mr. Brough Smith referring to the estates to be purchased.

NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA.—The annual general meeting was held on April 22 at the City Terminus Hotel. Mr. R. O. Campbell, the chairman, presided, and in moving the adoption of the report, an abstract of which has appeared in our columns, said that happily circumstances had greatly changed since their last meeting. Panic had long given place to a feeling of confidence, and a hopeful feeling of a renewal of prosperity in trade had dissipated to a great extent the gloom which so long hung over them. His anticipation last year, that they would recover the whole of the £45,000 which they held in City of Glasgow Bank bills, had been realised ; and, in common with all their banking neighbours, with, perhaps, one or two exceptions, they accepted the offer of the liquidators to receive their claim in full, foregoing the interest. He might mention that the sacrifice made in this matter by them was very trifling, for at the time of the stoppage they held a considerable amount belonging to the drawers of the bills, which they retained, as they were entitled to, as a set-off. Their course since their last meeting had been comparatively smooth and uneventful. Their bad and doubtful debt account was recently very thoroughly overhauled by a committee of the board, and their report was exceedingly satisfactory. He then went through the accounts in detail, observing as to the amount due on current and fixed deposits that the increase was more apparent than real. Their actual fixed deposits might be taken roundly at £1,200,000, of which two-thirds consisted of fixed deposits and one-third of floating balances. About one-third was payable in gold and two-thirds in silver. The reserve fund of £35,000 would make, with their share capital, a total of somewhat over £500,000, which was liquid in all respects. The motion was seconded, and, in reply to a question, the chairman said that since their last meeting they had made a proposal to all annuitants receiving their annuities through the bank, and the effect of that was that the bank now received the annuities at the rate of 1s. 10½d., and paid them at the rate of 1s. 11½d., and that reduced the loss of the bank on this account to under £300 per annum. The report was adopted and the retiring directors and auditors were re-elected.

SOUTH-EAST WYNAAD ESTATES AND GOLD MINING COMPANY.

The first general meeting of the company was held at the Cannon-street Hotel, on Wednesday ; Mr. H. PALMER STONE in the chair.

The SECRETARY having read the notice convening the meeting,

The CHAIRMAN said : Gentlemen, I have much pleasure in meeting you here to-day. You are aware this meeting is the statutory meeting which we have to hold within four months of the registration of the company, and some of you may perhaps have wondered why we have called you together a month before that time. We have done so because, having completed all that is at present possible towards developing our properties, we thought it advisable to tell you what has happened since we allotted our shares, and enable you to judge for yourselves of the position and prospects of the company. First, then, we will take, as the title goes, the estate business. As stated in the prospectus we were going to do, we have engaged the services of Mr. Charles Royal Dawson, for many years resident in the district, and to whom (aided by our valued friends Messrs. Stanes, Watson, and Co.) we are mainly indebted for securing the properties, on what, compared with the prices now being asked for land in the South-East Wynaad, we are justified in saying are very moderate terms. Mr. Dawson has safely arrived at Madras, and will proceed directly to the estates, if indeed he has not already started. He will act as resident manager, continue the cultivation of coffee, tea, and cinchona, and will to some extent act in conjunction with and control the operations of the mining staff. Messrs. Stanes and Co., of Coonoor, Coimbatore, and Beypore, have accepted our agency, and, being near at hand, we shall benefit by their valuable advice. Messrs. Oakes and Co. will watch our interests at Madras. The crop of coffee which was included in our purchase has been duly harvested, the first portion off the Needlerock Estate having been sold yesterday at auction, realising favourable prices. Another parcel from this estate is on the road and will shortly be disposed of. From the Richmond property a quantity was shipped by the steamer Amelia, which vessel has been totally lost, but we are well covered by insurance. We can, I think, safely estimate on something like £5,000 for this crop. We shall increase the cultivation of tea and cinchona—of the latter we have 20,000 trees planted, and shall go on with some thousands more. These crops will go some way to improving dividends. Now gentlemen, as to gold mining. We are, I may say, in a favourable position, having secured properties with most valuable reefs on them, not merely mining rights on other people's land, and therefore we have no fear of differences of opinion with planters or other occupiers. Without troubling you with details or independent opinions, I should refer you to the report on the gold mines of the South Eastern portion of the Wynaad and Carcoor Ghet, printed by Eyre and Spottiswoode. This is a most perfect report on the whole district, and is written by Mr. Brough Smythe, who surveyed on behalf of the Government of India, who naturally take a very great interest in the matter. The report speaks most favourably on our properties, and you will find them mentioned on Pages 19 to 21, 22 to 23, and 37. We have only one difficulty, and that is all the reefs are equally auriferous and promising, and we hardly know which to begin with. In order, however, to settle this question, we, very fortunately for you, secured the services of Mr. Oliver Pegler as consulting engineer, and he left on the 17th of this month overland for the estates. This gentleman may fairly be ascribed as the pioneer of Indian gold mining, and has an intimate knowledge of the properties, indeed of the whole district. He threw himself with a real energy into the work, and, owing mainly to his energy and activity and knowledge of what was wanted, we succeeded in our plans being carried out so quickly. I must say we are indebted to him for the forward state of our preparations. Captain Roberts, a man of great experience in field work, and five picked Cornish men left also on the 17th inst., per steamer Almora, for India, and we shipped certain machinery on the same day. More is following immediately, so that the staff will commence operations shortly after their arrival. As to the question, which has often been asked, will the gold pay for producing, I can only say that we have every reason to believe it will, and that handsomely. Labour is cheap. We have skilled labour also in the tribe of Koumipas miners ; wood and water are plenty, and no transport difficulties, so that we are not to be compared with Australia in that respect, where wages are ten times what we expect to pay. In conclusion, gentlemen, I have only to say our last telegrams from India report the transfers of the properties joining railway at Madras. The deeds arrived all safely there, and we have been advised by our solicitors that the purchase money may now be wanted any day. This being the case I think I may congratulate you in being purchasers of valuable properties, some 1,500 acres in extent, in full working order as estates, and with prospects second to none for the gold mining, and the supply of quartz being enormous. We have not been idle, and I think I may ask for your favourable verdict to-day. We have ample means to develop our resources, and we trust that when we meet you next year we may have a good account to put before you. There are numerous companies in the field, but there is room for all, so we have no spirit of jealousy or rivalry. I have no more to add except to remind you that you have to appoint an auditor or two auditors as you may think best ; you may appoint them from amongst your own body or professionally, we have no choice in the matter. Any question you may ask I or my colleagues will be happy to answer.

In reply to questions, the CHAIRMAN said that the property was leasehold, but practically as good as freehold, as it was a lease renewable in perpetuity. They had the option of taking the mining rights within five years over the whole of the property. The price was already fixed for the mining rights if the company exercised their option. If it was the wish of the whole body of shareholders that the £2 shares should be converted into £1 shares, like other colonial companies, the board would be glad to take steps to make the alteration, but it would require some time to do, as it would be necessary to alter the articles of association.

The meeting then proceeded to elect an auditor, and, several names having been submitted to the meeting, the choice fell on Messrs. Turquand, Youngs, and Co. by a large majority.

The total subscription up to mail date towards the Irish famine Fund in Calcutta amounts to Rs.76,569-11-0. £3,000 have been remitted to the Duchess of Marlborough, and a similar amount to the Lord Mayor of Dublin. In Bombay Rs.54,169 have been subscribed to the fund.

Cholera of a severe type is reported to have broken out at Rangoon, and smallpox is said to be prevalent in Prome.

During the week ending March 21 flights of locusts have been observed hovering over many districts of the Punjab, but little damage has been caused.

The British Indian Association fund for the payment of Mr. Fawcett's election expenses has reached Rs.3,960.

According to Mr. King, of the Botanic Gardens, Calcutta, India is threatened with a new danger. Mr. King writes that the claim of the Chinese over the kingdom of Nepaul is no empty pretence, for in the course of some recent botanical investigations he has found the chiefs "in active political communication with the Government at Pekin and holding the belief that China, not Russia, is the Power which will next threaten English supremacy in India."

COINAGE.—Instructions have been issued to the master of the Calcutta Mint by the comptroller-general of accounts to coin small silver bits—viz., eight-anna, four-anna, and two-anna pieces, to the extent of twenty-five lakhs of rupees, to meet the requirements of the current official year.

THE ARTIFICER CORPS.—For years past there have been rumours of the disbandment of that fine body of men attached to the Gun Carriage Factory, and known as the Artificer Corps. The rumour has again been revived, and, now that the Government professes to be stirred with a spirit of economy, it is not unlikely that what has been only a threat heretofore may now be actually accomplished. It would be a pity, we think, to do away with an institution for teaching lads, generally Eurasians, a trade. Some are turned out carpenters, some wheelwrights, smiths, coopers, &c., and these men find these mechanical arts useful to them in after life. Government has largely utilised the services of these men in those departments where technical knowledge, with hardy constitutions, are requisite, as for instance in the Survey and Forest Departments. The abolition of the corps is sure to be regretted by and by.—South of India Observer.

Two of the most important works undertaken by the Agricultural Department of the North West Provinces have been the development of a plough calculated to meet the requirements of native cultivators, and the development of a cheap water lift for the same class of people.

Better late than never, says the Lahore paper, in observing that the War-office has at length actually commenced the issue of the war medal for the Perak expedition of 1875-76. The medal granted for the campaign is the same as that given for the North Western frontier of India. The regiments which took part in the campaign were the 3rd, 10th, and 80th, and 5th Goorkhas.

CARPET MANUFACTURE IN GAOLS.—One result of Dr. Birdwood's strictures on the carpets manufactured in the gaols in the Punjab appears to be that the local Government has decided that all designs for carpets are to be submitted for approval to the principal of the School of Arts. No less than sixty-four designs were therefore submitted and reported upon last year.

TEA TRAFFIC.—A move in the right direction has been made by the Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway Company in opening facilities for the carriage of tea to the several ports of India at cheap rates. For the Upper Provinces the port of Karachi offers greatly superior advantages in the point of cheapness, and if, as there is every reason to hope will be the case, a firm trade in tea is established with the Australian colonies, this route should attract large consignments of up-country teas. The saving in carriage will amount to R.1 per maund. It only remains for the Oudh and Rohilkund Railway and East Indian Railway to follow the good example set them, and thus assist in fostering an industry of which the future development will turn out to be one of the surest sources of prosperity to India.—Pioneer.

THE OPERATIONS AGAINST THE NAGAS.—Tuesday night's Gazette contains various despatches respecting the operations against the Naga village of Konoma on November 21, 1879. The following is given as the return of killed and wounded:—British Officers.—General Staff—Major C. R. Cock, D.A.A.G., mortally wounded; died on 23rd. 44th Native Infantry—Colonel J. M. Nuttall, C.B., slightly wounded. 44th Native Infantry—Lieutenant R. K. Ridgeway, severely wounded. 44th Native Infantry—Lieutenant H. H. Forbes, severely wounded. Native Officers—44th Native Infantry—Sub Major Nurbir Sai, killed; 44th Native Infantry—Subadar Mahaboola Khan, slightly wounded; 44th Native Infantry—Jemadar Rajman Rai, slightly wounded. Numerical Return of Rank and File—43rd Native Infantry—2 killed. Total 2; 44th Native Infantry—14 killed; 3 mortally, 15 severely, 7 slightly wounded. Total 39. Followers—1 killed 2 severely wounded. Total 3. Total 17 killed; 3 mortally wounded, 17 severely wounded, 7 slightly wounded. Total 44. Major General G. R. Greaves, C.B., Adjutant General in India, in a despatch to the Secretary to the Government of India, Military Department, says:—"I have the honour, by direction of the Commander in Chief, to forward, for submission to Government, the accompanying despatch and annexures from Brigadier General J. L. Nation, relating to the operations against the Naga village of Konoma on the 22nd Nov. 1879. "In submitting these reports, it is his Excellency's most pleasing duty to bring to the notice of Government the gallantry and devotion displayed by the officers and men engaged under the immediate command of Brigadier General Nation in the capture of this formidable stronghold. The casualties on our side were heavy, and in addition to the loss of Lieutenant Forbes, attached to the 44th Native Infantry, on probation for the Staff Corps, and so many brave men of the 43rd and 44th Native Infantry, the army has to deplore the death of a most gallant and excellent officer in Major Cock, Deputy Assistant Adjutant General; but while lamenting this loss, the Commander-in-Chief feels that the capture of Konoma is well worthy of a prominent place in the long list of gallant deeds performed by the native army of India. When the operations have been concluded it will be his Excellency's duty to bring before Government the names of those whom he considers should be rewarded for their conduct on this occasion. Meanwhile, Sir F. Haines has in separate communications submitted the recommendation of Brigadier General Nation that the Victoria Cross be bestowed upon Lieut. (now Capt.) Ridgeway, and that one native officer, one non commissioned officer, and three sepoys of the 44th Native Infantry should receive the Order of Merit for conspicuous gallantry during the attack."

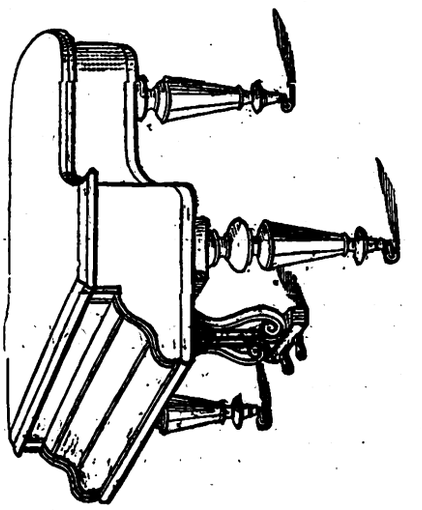
KIRKMAN AND SON,

ESTABLISHED NEARLY 150 YEARS.



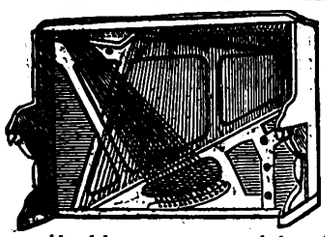
3 and 9, SOHO-SQUARE, LONDON, W.

KIRKMAN AND SON'S

PATENT STEEL FRAME

SHORT GRAND PIANOS,

SIX FEET LONG, IN ELEGANT ROSEWOOD OR WALNUT CASES,



Are considered by all who have heard them to combine a greater amount and resonance of tone, consistent with adaptability of size, shape, and elegance of appearance than those of any other manufacturer.

KIRKMAN AND SON'S

OVERSTRUNG

GRAND AND COTTAGE PIANOS.

Is being considered by some competent judges that the German method of over or cross-stringing Pianos is attended with great advantage, Messrs. Kirkman and Son are now manufacturing both Grand and Cottage Pianos on this principle, the latter having the plain Sticker Action, which is not the case with Pianos of this class manufactured by other makers; in fact, the extreme simplicity of the action used by Messrs. Kirkman and Son in all their Pianos render them eminently suitable for exportation to the Colonies, where skilled workmen are few and far between All useless checks and complications are carefully avoided, thus enabling any tuner, with however superficial a knowledge of the business, to regulate them or repair any damage they may sustain.

KIRKMAN AND SON

Have a reputation extending over nearly a Century and a Half.

There are now in the possession of the house Harpsichords and Virginals dated 1758 and 1778, manufactured by Jacobus and Abraham Kirckman.

The present members of the firm beg to call the attention of shipppers and exporters to the fact that in ordering of this house they are dealing with a firm who manufacture on principles derived from experience of this almost unprecedented length.

KIRKMAN AND SON

Have at present a Fine Selection at their Extensive Show Rooms in Soho-square.

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCING

PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators; also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.
Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates
Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."
SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.
SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.
For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

TUESDAY, MAY 4, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, April 17; Madras and Allahabad, April 15; Calcutta, April 14.

REPORTS on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending the 6th April, 1880, state that rain has fallen during the week in Madras, Bengal, Burma, and Assam, and has done good to the crops in Bengal; in the other provinces there has been little or no rain. The rabi harvest is progressing rapidly, and is yielding a satisfactory outturn. Agricultural prospects and public health continue good on the whole.

WE have received the following from the India-office:—

"FROM VICEROY, SIMLA, APRIL 29.—Messenger arrived, Cabul 28. Reports people of Wardak and Logar attacked General Ross on Sunday. Severe engagement; enemy completely dispersed, leaving 1,200 dead. Our loss not mentioned. Logaris have consequently returned home. Country thereabouts much disturbed and passage of letters difficult. Some excitement still in Kohistan."

"FROM VICEROY, APRIL 30.—Casualties in recent actions—Bright's, Stewart's, and Roberts's forces. Following killed:—Lieut. Edmund Palmer, Staff Corps; Sergeant J. M'Carthy, 51st Foot; Private F. Rutherford, 59th; Sergeant Cherson, Privates G. Ward and W. Crook 60th; Private Keane, 92nd. Major Waudby, 19th Bombay Infantry, killed at Dobrai, Southern Afghanistan. Following officers wounded:—Capts. Constantine Hamilton and Richard Corbett, Artillery; Col. Yorke, Lieut. Young, 19th Bengal Lancers; Lieut. Stuart, 2nd Punjab Cavalry; Capts. Nugent and Kennett, Lieut. Reid, 51st; Col. Lawson, Lieut. Watson, 59th. Following died of wounds:—Sergeant Smith, 92nd. Authentic accounts received show messenger's report transmitted yesterday of Ross's engagement and enemy's loss very much exaggerated."

THE Cabul correspondent of the Times telegraphed on Sunday that anxiety had been felt as to General Ross's force, which was dispelled on the 1st inst. by the letters announcing that General Stewart's force had reached Saidabad on the 28th ult., and the general had proceeded to Cabul to assume the command. It is reported that Musa Khan and Mahomed Jan have surrendered to the Governor of Ghuzni, and a mission has been despatched to meet Abdul Rahman Khan at Kundur. The Ghilzai chiefs have held a conference at Tezin, when a peaceful decision was arrived at. The Logar people offer all assistance and claim our protection.

THE Calcutta telegram says that, owing to the aspect of affairs in Afghanistan, a reserve division of Bombay troops is about to be mobilised and sent towards the Kandahar line as soon as the transport is available. The division will be composed as follows:—D Battery B Brigade of the Horse Artillery; F Battery 2nd Brigade of the Royal Artillery; the 1st Sind Horse; the 2nd and 3rd Light Cavalry; the 2nd Battalion of the 11th and 15th Foot; the 3rd, 9th, 23rd, and 24th Bombay Native Infantry; possibly, also the 8th Native Infantry. It is rumoured in Bombay that Brigadier Wood, now commanding the Deesa Brigade, will command the reserve division.

WE quote the following passages of interest from the telegrams of yesterday:—

"General Ross had had a partial action with some insurgent Afghans, who annoyed his camp, on the 25th ult., which ended in the dispersion of the enemy, who had fifty or sixty killed, with a trifling loss to our own troops. On the 29th ult. General Stewart sent a portion of his force to punish the local chief, Mollah Abdool Guffoor, of Langar, who has been the prime mover in the annoyance given to General Ross's force and in the interruption of the post between the camp and Cabul. This was satisfactorily accomplished. General Stewart's division remains for the moment at Syadabad, and then diverges into the Logar Valley and takes up its position, under Brigadier General Hughes, near the Baraki Rogan. This movement will probably make the resources of that fertile valley available for feeding our troops at Cabul, which have hitherto subsisted almost entirely upon the country about Cabul itself. General Hughes will probably open communication with General Watson in the Kuram Valley. Some surprise is felt here that General Stewart has left no portion of his division at Ghuzni, which is a place of considerable political, if not military, importance, and the possession of which gives a certain prestige, as has been lately seen, to any opposing fraction which may occupy it."

"General Stewart's division marched from Ghuzni on the 25th. The town was left intact, the fortifications being contemptible and in complete disrepair. Two guns which were said to have been left by the English at the last occupation were brought away, two nine-pounders and six three-pounders of Cabul manufacture being left in the fort. On the 23rd the division had a smart affair with some 6,000 men of the Ghilzai tribe, who had occupied a strong position at the village of Orzoo, eight miles from Ghuzni. The troops were moved out before dawn, and succeeded in surprising the Afghans and defeating them with a loss of 400 killed and wounded. The gates of the town of Ghuzni were closed, and the populace were kept under observation while the troops were absent from the camp. Our loss was two killed and eleven wounded. It was afterwards ascertained that this gathering formed an advanced guard of a much larger body who had assembled at the instigation of Mollah Mooshk-i-Alam in the Shilgur Valley, but who are believed to have dispersed to their homes in consequence of this defeat. Mooshk-i-Alam and his two sons have been very active in stirring the tribes against us, and the eldest son was present at the battle of the 19th. Musa Khan and many of the sirdars have, on the contrary, sent letters expressive of their intention to come to the British camp whenever the dispersion of the tribal gathering allows them to do so. It is expected that these and Mahomed Jan will pay their respects to General Stewart when he reaches Cabul. The Sirdar Tahir-Khan is now in the British camp, and is giving every assistance in the matter of supplies, &c. Previous to our leaving Ghuzni, Sirdar Alam-Khan, proprio motu, but with the sanction of General Stewart, assumed the provisional government of Ghuzni and the surrounding district until such time as the affairs of Afghanistan receive a final settlement. Some arrangement of this sort is absolutely necessary to rescue the district from a state of anarchy, and Sirdar Alam-Khan possesses the goodwill of the people, and has already been instrumental in restoring partial confidence to the Hazaris, who were greatly distressed at learning that the English did not intend to remain at Ghuzni. Musa-i-Khan will probably return to Ghuzni and remain under Mahomed Alam's charge, whose rule will acquire strength and prestige by this association.

"Orders have been issued to thatch over the tents of all the troops on the line for whom other accommodation is not available. The general health of the troops has been very good. Communication by telegraph has been established with Peshbolak. The Cabul River is rising rapidly, owing to the melting of the snows, and fears are entertained that the bridge at Jellalabad will not be able to withstand the torrent. If it is dismantled or carried away it will be difficult to procure supplies from the fertile valley of Besud, which hitherto have been coming in abundantly."

THE Times understands that Lord Lytton's resignation of the Viceroyalty of India was, by his Excellency's desire, tendered to her Majesty by Lord Beaconsfield simultaneously with his own resignation as Prime Minister.

THE Marquis of Hartington, Secretary of State for India in Council, has appointed Mr. Robert Henry Hobart and Mr. R. Baliol Brett, M.P., as his private secretaries. Mr. Maitland has been appointed an additional private secretary to Lord Hartington at the India-office.

THE Marquis of Ripon, who has accepted the office of Viceroy and Governor General of India, will leave England as early as arrangements can be completed to assume the functions of his exalted post. His departure is announced as likely to take place next week. The Marchioness of Ripon, it is said, will not go to India till the autumn.

SIR J. FERGUSSON arrived at Bombay on Wednesday, and was immediately sworn in as the Governor.

THE Times correspondent telegraphs that the mismanagement of affairs in Kashmir during the famine of last year attracted much attention in India, and would, probably, have been a subject of interference on the part of the Indian Government had it not had its hands full with the Afghan and Burmese matters. It was announced some time ago that the Viceroy, on his way to Simla, would receive the Maharaja of Kashmir in a durbar at Umballa, and it is generally believed that Lord Lytton would have spoken pretty strongly on the misgovernment of the Happy Valley. The durbar was, however, postponed at the last moment. The Pioneer now asserts that things are even in a worse state than it was supposed, and vaguely hints that a correspondence between the Maharaja and a foreign State has been discovered. The same paper goes on to say that had not an impending change in the Viceroyalty rendered it inexpedient to commit a new Government to any important measure the next few months might have witnessed an assumption by us of the direct administration of the country. Be this as it may, there can be no doubt of the fact that the Government of Kashmir is rotten to the core, and that the problem of reforming it will be one of the first subjects which will call for the attention of the new Viceroy. We quote elsewhere confirmation of this statement, which is by no means as strong as would be warranted by the facts known to many, and officially reported to the India-office.

RECENT telegrams state that the wounded in the late actions are doing well. Lieut. Young is said to be recovering. Dr. Atkinson (Royal Artillery) died on April 29 of pneumonia.

H.M.S. Euphrates, which arrived in Bombay on April 12, reported the sudden death of Surgeon William Moylan, A.M.D., a promising young officer, from an epileptic fit the day before the troopship arrived at Gibraltar. He was buried at sea next morning. His widow returned to England from Malta.

THE Maharaja of Ulwar has written to the Government offering to bear the entire cost of maintaining a native regiment in Afghanistan. He also volunteers to put his personal services at the Viceroy's disposal. Lord Lytton has, in reply, thanked him for his loyal offer, and said that it would be borne in mind. It will be remembered that when the Indian troops were sent to Malta this same chief expressed his readiness to furnish a contingent for service in or out of India.

THE leading vernacular paper of India describes the recent excitement among the natives as to the progress and result of the elections. Among the English-educated natives the excitement ran so high that instances were known of high words passing between the partisans of the Conservative or Liberal sides. The same paper hopes that the new Government will take up the Indian Salaries and Allowances Bill. The Amrita Bazaar Patrika advises the natives to lose no time in cultivating friendly feelings with the Home Rulers, and says that if ever the natives expect to find sincere friends in the House of Commons they will be found only in the ranks of the Irish party. It is a singular fact that, after hailing with almost frantic delight the return of the Liberals to power, most of the native editors now say that they "do not identify themselves with the Liberal party."

THE editor of the Som Prakash, the paper which stopped publication a year ago in consequence of being required to find security for good behaviour under the Vernacular Press Act, having expressed his regret at the publication of the obnoxious letter, the Viceroy, at the suggestion of the Lieutenant Governor, has, it is said, permitted the republication of the paper without the execution of the bond and deposit of security.

IN Saturday's Examiner it was announced that a letter from Shanghai, dated March 18, mentioned the sense of insecurity among the Europeans, and that British subjects had been quietly informed that they should be on their guard against an outbreak of the ever ready hatred of the Yang-jen. According to the Paris correspondent of the Observer, the Europe Diplomatique had also "received intelligence of an alarming character from Shanghai, stating that a very hostile feeling to all foreigners is prevalent in China. It is considered likely that there will be a complete change in the system of Government, and possibly a revolution in the coountry. All the members of the diplomatic body in Pekin have requested their respective Governments to send squadrons to Shanghai to protect the lives and property of their subjects."

COUNT BELA SZECHENYI's letter from Bathang enumerates the obstacles thrown in his way by the Chinese Government to prevent his penetrating to Lhassa. The Thibetans are described as more hostile than ever to the intrusion of foreigners. Dr. King discovered in the course of recent botanical tours in Nipal that the chiefs were looking to Pekin as the seat of the predominating power in Asia. Has our Resident at Khatmandu made any similar discovery? Botany, whether by Russian or English scientific men, is becoming a recognised branch of diplomacy in Asia.

SPEAKING at Lucknow, Sir George Couper, the Lieutenant Governor of the N.W. Provinces, said he confidently anticipated a most brilliant and glorious future for the newly constituted Indian Civil Service.

IT is announced in Bombay that the Earl of Derby, Mr. Bright, and Mr. Chamberlain have expressed sympathy with the movement for elevating the condition of the Eurasian population of India, and that help has been offered in urging the views of the Eurasian and Anglo Indian Association in Parliament.

THE Indian Railway Service Gazette says that drunkenness is a frequent offence amongst the engine drivers on the Indus Valley State Railway, and that the officials in authority do not often punish the offenders.

THE sale of salt in the third quarter of 1879-80 was 21,10,806 maunds, against 19,01,619 maunds in the corresponding quarter of 1878-79. The amount of duty was Rs.56,46,742, against Rs.50,37,902.

IN an article on the wheat production of India the Indian Agriculturist says:—"The area under wheat cultivation in India is about six times as great as that of England. The United States, France, and Russia take precedence of India in point of production. The Punjab, North Western Provinces and Oudh, Central Provinces, Bengal, and Bombay Presidency, including Sind, produce most wheat. And it is in the above order that the provinces stand in point of production. It is interesting to note that the further north wheat is cultivated the larger its yield in grain. In the Central Provinces, the North Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab, the accepted average yield per acre stands at 8 bushels, 11⅔ bushels, and 13¼ bushels respectively. There is very little wheat under canal irrigation in Bombay. About 4,957 acres out of a total of 24,536 acres.

THE question as to whether shortness of sight should be regarded as disqualifying candidates for the Forest Department in India is at present, we are informed, under the consideration of the Government of India. In the admission of officers to this service intellectual capacity, while allowed due weight, is not so much regarded as physical capability and the power of endurance under fatigue. The requirements under this latter head, however, are so severe (the walking test, for instance, which throws out many candidates otherwise well qualified), and are becoming so numerous, that the Englishman doubts if it will be possible eventually to find men qualified for the department at all.

THE Indian section of the Society of Arts on Friday next will discuss the subject of "Agriculture in Southern India." Mr. Robertson, the able superintendent of the Sydapett Model Farm, will read a paper on this subject.

THE Bombay journal hears that great dissatisfaction is expressed at the manner in which passages have been allotted in her Majesty's troopships for the wives and families of officers on service. Many ladies, to whom accommodation was allotted some time ago, have now been told it is not available. Considering that they have been kept waiting all this time their case is a very hard one. It would be almost better that the orders regarding passages should be rescinded; then no one would have a grievance. Last year the gentlemen grumbled; now it is the turn of the ladies.

THE Darjiling Tea and Cinchona Company has declared a dividend at the rate of 70 per cent. on the year's operations.

THERE is a good prospect of success open to the Horticultural Company, which yesterday opened business at Warwick House, Regent-street, with a miniature flower show. To bring flowers and fruits more within the reach of all, and to show that taste can be cultivated without extravagance, is an enterprise worthy of the well-known names that will direct "Wills and Co.;" nor, we should think, will the shareholders find the scheme an unprofitable one.

COLONEL H. F. M. BOISRAGON, commandant of the 4th Sikhs, and his brother, Colonel T. W. R. Boisragon, commandant of the 30th Native Infantry, are both about to retire from the service. Both have seen much service in India, as the following record of their war service will show. Boisragon, Col. H. F. M., served in Burmese war of 1852-55; present at relief of garrison of Pegu. Dec. 14, 1852; commanded a field force in Tharrawaddy District, Burma, against Rebel Chief Jong Gouneggie, in which operations several of his strongholds were destroyed and a quantity of stores and supplies were captured of various descriptions, medal and clasp; served in campaign in Hindustan of 1857-58; commanded a wing of Kumaon Goorkha Battalion at siege, storm, and capture of Delhi, Sept. 14, 1857, dangerously wounded, medal and clasp; commanded a force in Saharunpore District and on Jan. 10, 1858, encountered and beat back across the Ganges at Hurdwar upwards of 1,000 of the enemy, with four guns, destroying a quantity of them and capturing arms and ammunitions of war, medal and brevet majority.—Col. T. W. R. Boisragon engaged in operations in districts of Meerut, Saharunpore, and Mozuffurnuggur, during campaign in Hindustan of 1857-58; commanded in various affairs with a very small force against large masses of the enemy, defeating them invariably; commanded a portion of force of the Nusseree Goorkha Battalion at Hurdwar on Jan. 10, 1858, medal.

DURING the week ended April 3 there were 233 deaths in Calcutta, giving a death-rate of 28·3 per 1,000 per annum. In Madras the same week there were 315 deaths, giving a rate 41·2 per 1,000 per annum. During the week ending April 6 there were 543 deaths in Bombay, being a rate of 41·55 per 1,000 per annum.

THE DEATH OF COLONEL CLARKE.

MANY of our military readers in England will learn with regret of the death of Lieut. Col. Clarke, 72nd Highlanders. The deceased officer was obliged to leave his command at Cabul in consequence of serious illness, and it was his intention, we believe, to proceed to England. On the way down to Bombay his illness increased, and he was obliged to stop at Allahabad, where he died on the 7th ult. Sir Frederick Roberts, on hearing the sad news, issued the following divisional order:—"The lieutenant general commanding the Cabul Field Force announces, with deep regret, the death at Allahabad of Lieut. Col. Clarke, of the 72nd Highlanders, from illness contracted on service in the field. Both when in command of a wing of the 72nd in the Khost Valley expedition and the regiment itself at Charasiab and the operations of December last he rendered excellent service, and exhibited the same soldierly qualities which distinguished him in the 53rd Foot during the Mutiny. Sir Frederick Roberts is sure that he is but expressing the regret felt by all ranks of the army at the untimely death of this gallant officer."

THE LATE SIR PIERRE LOUIS NAPOLEON CAVAGNARI.

THE ecclesiastical registrar of the High Court of Bombay has granted letters of administration with the will annexed to the estate and effects of the late Sir Pierre Louis Napoleon Cavagnari, C.S.I., K.C.B., to Mr. Alfred Dann Saunders, a partner in the firm of Messrs. King, King, and Co. of Bombay. The property left by the deceased in Bombay and in the Punjab consisted of 2½ per cent. Government promissory notes of the value of about Rs.28,709, which are at present in the hands of Messrs. King, King, and Co., a house in the Punjab worth Rs.20,000, and furniture of Rs.1,291, making in all about Rs.50,000. The letters of administration were issued some time last month.—Times of India.

THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE DEFENCE FUND.

A RECENT circular, issued by the committee of the Indian Medical Service Defence Fund, says that had the later G.O. No. 150 been published simultaneously with that of Jan. 3 (No. 13) a great deal of anxiety among Indian medical officers would have been prevented, as well as an entire misconception of the intentions of the Government towards this branch of the public service. The provisions of the second order (No. 150) mitigate to so great an extent the injuries which appeared about to be inflicted on the members of the service by the former one, that the steps proposed to be taken by the committee are no longer necessary, but the very material advantages already derived from this organisation clearly demonstrate the propriety of continuing it until the Indian Medical Service is placed, at all events, on a par with the Army Medical Department. The committee, however, at a meeting on April 24, presided over by Dr. Irving, agreed that the chief grievances left appear to be the non-extension to the Indian Medical Service of the provisions of the Royal Warrant, dated November 27, 1879, especially as regards rank, pensions, and sick leave counting as service; the loss to the service of administrative appointments; the increase to the work and responsibilities of some administrative officers without additional pay. The committee therefore resolved to elicit the interest of members of Parliament to ventilate the subject in the House, and, if necessary, to themselves draw up and present a petition to Parliament on the subject. Those present at the meeting were of opinion that medical officers in the three Presidencies should represent their grievances, as above mentioned, in accordance with the rules of their respective services, and should, in addition, draw special attention to paragraph No. 6 of the new order (No. 150), which grants the rank and privileges of deputy surgeons general to one sanitary commissioner in Madras and in Bombay respectively, and to three in Bengal, after they attain twenty-six years' service. They should point out that this apparent and prospective boon does not make up for the loss entailed by the reduction of the permanent establishment in any Presidency, while officers in Madras and Bombay should represent that they, in addition to this, lose one deputy surgeon general permanently even if their sanitary commissioner should obtain the rank of deputy surgeon general. The office of the fund is at 8, Northumberland-street, W.C. All communications should be addressed to the secretary.

THE COOLIE EMIGRATION ACT.

A MEMORIAL was recently forwarded to H.E. the Viceroy of India by the Indian Tea Districts Association on the important subject of immigration into Assam, where an adequate supply of coolie labour is the great need. Pending a needful revision of Act VII. (B.C.) of 1873, the memorial states a few points of pressing importance which might be dealt with promptly, and which would afford considerable relief. These are:—First, the extension of the maximum period of contracts from three to five years; secondly, a simplification of the regulations and conditions attaching to recruitment in the labour districts, with instruction to the local officers to co-operate in a friendly spirit towards smoothing the difficulties which stand in the way, thus reducing the cost; thirdly, that the influence of the Government be exercised to induce the rulers and sirdars of the quasi-independent territories bordering the ordinary recruiting districts to remove the impediments which stand in the way of free emigration from such territories, under a guarantee that the emigrants shall receive the same degree of protection as those drawn from our own districts; fourthly, if the scale of diet and medical comforts prescribed for the immigrants while on board the river steamers in transit shall not have been simplified and reduced in cost, as the association understands was in contemplation by the Government, that such may be done.

THE TEMNOGRAPH.

THE temnograph is an instrument invented by Mr. A. M. Rymer Jones, M.A.T.C.E., and designed to plot a perfect section of the ground over which it is driven to a fixed scale. The scale in the machine exhibited being four chains to the inch horizontal, and 34·53 feet to the inch vertical measurment. The instrument is a tricycle, of which the two larger wheels turned in steel form the principal power. The modus operandi is as follows:—Whilst the machine is being dragged over the ground the larger wheels give motion to their common axle on which are two worm screws, one situated at the centre and the other at one end of the axle. The worm screw at the end of the axle, through a cogged-wheel gearing into it, drives a small pinion which communicates motion to a large circular vertical disc which gives motion to the cylinder that carries the paper. Now, as the delivery of the paper is as the distance travelled over, it is necessary to make some provision to compensate for the difference between the base and the hypothemum, as of course only the actual horizontal distance is to be recorded. This is provided for by a pendulous weight on the axle carrying the paper cylinder and vertical disc, which, as the instrument rises or falls, depresses by the little friction pinion, and consequently causes the paper cylinder to revolve more slowly than when the machine is travelling on a level, this movement being exactly as the angle up or down which the instrument is passing. Whilst the paper is thus being delivered the centre worm screw on the axle is by a cogged wheel giving motion to a horizontal friction plate in the centre of the machine, upon which is resting the vertical friction wheel, the position of which is governed by a heavy pendulous weight situated in front of the instrument, the rod which for the axis of the vertical friction wheel gearing into a system of cogged wheels which move backwards or forward a wand on which the pencil travels. When the machine is running on a level the vertical friction which remains in the centre of the moving horizontal wheel, and consequently has no motion; but when going up or down a grade the vertical or friction wheel is drawn forward or thrust back from the centre of the moving horizontal plate and from that obtains a motion proportionate to the angle, up or down, which it is travelling, which by the system of cogged wheels is communicated to the pencil. A fixed pencil describes the datum line. The instrument was constructed by Messrs. Houghton and Simms, and accurately described a section of the ground from Charlton over Shooter's Hill and back again to the same spot. A section can be taken at the rate of three miles per hour night or day.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

SNAKES.*

THE destruction of life in India has been from time to time brought before our readers by means of the annual statistics. This source of information, if that term can be applied to a blue book, arida nutrix is always open to those who care to undergo the toil of reference. An "Ex-Commissioner," however, has thought it advisable to gather up into a very neat and concise volume the facts attainable, and append thereto recommendations as to the conflict which is yearly waged between ophidians and our fellow-subjects in India. The work is somewhat too full of quotations and French and Latin phrases, to say nothing of attempts at smartness, which are rather wearisome. But there are valuable hints and startling discoveries contained, which render the work a needful adjunct to anyone who desires to be well informed on the subject. If 20,000 lives are annually, at the lowest computation, sacrificed, there is sufficient reason for a thoughtful canvassing of the possible preventive measures that may be brought forward by those whose experience qualifies them to deal with the topic. The Ex-Commissioner suggests that nothing would tend more to popularise a well-ordered system of snake killing than (he writes "as") rughtamania, or "Blood Iram," the meaning of which is a small grant of rent-free land to the heirs of those who died in defence of the village boundaries. This should be extended to snake killers in the Government service, to be given with restriction in districts where there exists strong, though covert, opposition. The latter words refer to the well-established fact that superstitious obstacles exist which deter the natives in many districts from destroying, even for reward, the fatal ophidians. This may be a survival of the ancient snake worship. There are those who argue that death by snake bite is a natural mode of provision for the superfluity of population, which is an increasing difficulty in India. Like our civil servants generally, an Ex-Commissioner is animated by the feeling which made Tom Thurnall naturally attack any form of suffering or disease. Even in despite of caste prejudice and religious scruples, our commissioners will not rest, even when emeriti, from labouring on behalf of the millions from whom they receive a return, rarely of love, but always of respect.

THE NATIONAL INDIAN ASSOCIATION.*

THIS month's number of the Association's Journal contains a continuation of the pleasant and graphic descriptions of "Life in India," which convey simple experiences without fine writing after the manner of specials. The report of the Conference on Industrial Enterprise in India amplifies the brief account already given in our columns. The problem of opening up new spheres of employment for that increase of population which results from the protective system of humanitarian rule that was never known before the British Empire took charge of Indian lives, is, we fear, beyond the powers of a conference to solve. The Parsis are an influential portion of the community in Western India, but they are not so important as they think, and the Journal has had too much of their wants and fancies. The association has not had time to report, even if they would, their pleasant soirée recently given for the benefit of the young Indian students in London. These efforts deserve more sympathy and encouragement. A paper on the results of Education, though brief, is telling, and is a good commentary on the results reported from Bengal.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE TRADE OF THE NORTH WESTERN PROVINCES.

PERHAPS the most interesting, though less important, portion of the review of the trade statistics in 1878-79 is that which deals with the trade of these provinces with Nepal and Thibet. This trade, says Mr. Fuller—who himself attended the Bagesar fair, in the Kumaon Hills, to verify its conditions by personal observation—"is one of the most primitive forms of commerce in which barter still performs the work of coined money; whilst sheep and goats are the means of conveyance along the steep hill-paths which form the only trade communications." The traders are a race of Bhooteas, hybrid between Thibetans and Hindus, who pass their time in travelling between British markets and the fairs in Thibetan territory, at which their attendance is welcomed by the otherwise exclusive Thibetan authorities. There are several classes of Bhooteas, named after the passes through which they trade, and the taxes they pay vary most capriciously. Thus the Joharis pay annually a cake of coarse sugar for every twelve families and a piece of coarse cloth equal in length to the breadth of every piece they export. The people of Darma have to pay the tenth part of all grain they take in barter. Other traders pay two timassis (a silver coin worth about six annas) when they cross the boundary. The imports from Thibet are borax, salt, wool, and woollen manufactures, gold-dust, turquoises, skins, sheep, and ponies; exports are cotton goods, grain, oils, sugar, and tobacco. We have previously noticed this depression in the Thibet borax trade owing to the competition of the American crystals, and there is but little hope of its reviving. The Thibetan salt is preferred in the hills to that imported from the plains, and is at present untaxed. There is reason to believe, however, that it will gradually give way to the taxed article. The wool trade is in as bad a way as that in borax and salt; and, indeed, there can hardly be said to be any regular trade in wool at all. Blankets of Thibetan wool sell, at Bagesar, for Rs.5 to Rs.8 a piece; but the Bhooteas generally wear stuffs made of a coarser wool made from their own sheep, and called bagiali. A sample of this wool was sent to London last year; but as the supply is not equal to the demand for local consumption there is at present little hope of an export trade in it. From Nepal our chief imports are drugs, fibres, grain, gums, hides, iron, ghee, and, above all, timber. Our exports are cotton cloth, hardware, salt, sugar, and tobacco. The import of Nepal iron is on the decrease, being gradually ousted by European imported iron; but that of copper would appear to be increasing. The policy of the Nepal durbar is opposed to extensive imports into Nepal from British territory, British silver offering greater attractions, with the protecton of all domestic industries. The trade will, therefore, gradually become more one-sided, and be confined to imports from Nepal territory.—Pioneer.

HOME RULE IN MYSOR.

THE Madras Mail has taken the lead in pointing out the advisability of postponing the change of administration in Mysor until the Maharaja is twenty-one years of age. The Mail grounds its suggestion upon the character of the prince, who, though amiable enough, has not shown signs of abilities of a commanding order. It certainly does seem reasonable to suppose that a young man of twenty-one would be better fitted than a youth of eighteen to enter upon such duties as will fall to be performed by the Maharaja. Under such circumstances, three years make a very great difference in the ripening of the judgment and in the acquisition of habits of work and habits of command. A native youth of eighteen, placed at the head of a carefully-organised administration, is almost certain to leave the real business of his position to those who are watching to relieve him of it. But in addition to this fact, which is recognised as the permanent danger in the way of youthful native princes, there is in Mysor the additional trouble of rival official parties. Power is desired by the Mysorians; it is actually likely to be exercised by Madrasis. Whatever may be Mr. J. D. Gordon's merits as an administrator, it will, we think, be conceded that his support of Madrasis, and his selection of them for the highest posts in the Mysor commission, have laid ready to hand as soon as the Maharaja shall have been installed, all the elements of an intrigue, which, if it produce nothing else, will certainly add to that worry, a certain amount of which is one of the privileges of the Viceroy. If we are not misinformed, this worry has already begun. The Foreign-office sees with a mild sort of despair quite a stream of Mysor cases setting its way, and feels itself being slowly, but surely, driven towards the judgment seat, where it will have to decide upon the conflicting claims of Mysorians v. Madrasis. This ought to have been avoided. It marks a want of judgment that a Mysor home rule question should have been forced upon the attention of the Government of India at this time. The ability of the Madrasis is beside the question. The Government of India is about to make over Mysor to native administration, and sets about preparing for the change by filling the commission with Madrasis and Malabaris, and by expelling Mysorians from office. A Madrasis in Mysor is as much a foreigner as a Lucknow man would be in Cooch Behar. Besides, as most of these Madrasis have been servants of the Indian Government, that Government is open to the charge, at the instance of the Mysorians, that it has only substituted one set of its servants for another and an inferior set; and that the rendition is practically only a nominal transfer after all. There is a difficulty in the way of settling this most inconvenient question. But it can only be settled in Mr. Gordon's way by the Government of India placing on record its conviction that, after long years of preparation, there is not a single Mysorian fit for high office, and only a few fitted for even the lowest posts in the administration. But such a decision as that would be simply absurd.—Ibid.

THE NEW RENT BILL.

WE are glad to see it authoritatively stated, on the part of the Government of India, that "the stability of occupancy rights is a fundamental principle of the North Western Provinces Rent Act." It is clear that the ryots have friends in the Legislative Council, and among them we are glad to notice the name of Mr. Colvin, which is attached to the declarations in the "statement of objects and reasons" of the new Rent Bill. But, on examination, it turns out that these are friends of the kind from whom we pray to be saved. The "fundamental principle" of the stability of the right of occupancy is used as a reason for curtailing and disturbing that right. It seems that in the North Western Provinces, as in Lower Bengal, there exists a practice of selling occupancy rights, at the instance of the landlord, to satisfy decrees for arrears of rent, and this custom has been pronounced legal by the local High Court. It is well known that Sir Ashley Eden wishes to confirm it by law in these provinces, to secure tenant right, and prevent the disappearance of occupancy tenures. When there is a decree for arrears of rent and the tenant cannot pay it, he must obviously lose his farm, and the choice is between evicting him without compensation, thus destroying the tenure altogether, and selling his good-will, whereby he will get the money value of his privilege, and the occupancy right will be preserved for the purchaser. All friends of tenant-right prefer the latter alternative; all its foes the former. The Government of India pursues a middle course, by giving the ryots the benefit of its words, while it attacks him by its acts. Cannot the Legislative Council leave a good decision of the High Court of Allahabad undisturbed?—Indian Daily News.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

RAILWAY TRANSPORT.—Col. J. G. Medley, R.E., consulting engineer to Government for guaranteed railways, is about to proceed to Sibi, to inspect the open line of the Sukkur-Kandahar Railway. Mr. David Ross, traffic manager of the S. P. and D. Railway, is also proceeding to Sibi on inspection duty. Mr. Ross, by the way, seems to have gradually developed into a sort of inspector general of State railway traffic, an honourable but (in spite of T. A. bills) an honorary one. Are there no C.B. or C.S.I.-ships available for a man who, without accident to life or limb, managed to convey for the campaigns up to date:—3,04,130 troops and followers; 82,140 horses, ponies, mules, and bullocks; 414 guns and artillery carriages; 4,897 bullock carts (for firewood); 2,223 camels; 22,356,143 maunds of commissariat and ordnance stores; 6,53,154 maunds of railway material, all in addition to a heavy ordinary traffic.—Civil and Military Gazette.

THE 13TH LANCERS.—The official report regarding the late fire in Kurram in the lines of the 13th Bengal Lancers states that forty horses, over 100 sets of saddlery, and much regimental property was consumed, in consequence of which the regiment, with the exception of four troops, will be quite unfit for the field probably till May next.—Ibid.

OPIUM SALES.—The following is the result of the opium sale, held at the Government sale room, 2, Bankshall-street, on April 5, 1880:—Behar, 2,350 chests; proceeds, Rs.32,92,095; Benares, 2,350 chests; proceeds, Rs.30,85,350.—Indian Daily News.

THE STATE OF KASHMIR.—A great many rumours are in circulation just now, regarding the purpose of the Kashmir Maharaja's coming interview with the Viceroy at Umballa. Some think that his Highness may probably be subjected to a mild paternal wigging by his Excellency on account of the misrule for which the recent depopulation of Kashmir is greatly, if not almost wholly, responsible. It is even hinted that direct English supervision may, to some extent, be soon exercised over the Government of Kashmir. In the Happy Valley, at least, this is fully anticipated; and the natives—not altogether of the ignorant class—expect to see a small body of Indian troops in their midst before long. We only give this particular rumour for what it is worth. There is no special reason why troops should be sent and English officers appointed to oversee affairs in Kashmir could get on just as well without troops as with them. Nor are all these rumours and guesses unworthy of notice, even if it be granted that the Maharaja's visit is merely formal, and that there is no immediate intention of intertering between the Kashmir durbaries and his Highness's subjects. The gossip clearly reveals what the public opinion of India is on the subject of native rule in Kashmir. No doubt the Kashmir durbaries regard the Afghan war as a godsend: "'Tis an ill wind that blows nobody any good;" and had it not been for the pre-occupation of campaigning, the Indian Government—let us charitably hope—would have seen fit to interfere for the good of a starving people, and prevent a race of official harpies from growing fat and rich at their expense.—Civil and Military Gazette.

MEETINGS OF COMPANIES.—At the general meeting of the Dehing Company, held April 2, a dividend of 2 per cent., on Rs.1.19 per share, was declared.—At the extraordinary meeting of the Balliaghatta Company, held April 5, it was resolved that the motion carried at the last meeting on the 20th ult., be passed, viz.—"That in view of the embarrassed position of the company it is advisable that facility should be afforded to the mortgagees for taking immediate possession, by their receiver and manager, of the property of the company, if they should desire to do so, and for this purpose the company hereby waive their right to insist that the mortgagees shall not appoint a receiver or manager until after expiry of the three months' notice provided for in the mortgage. Also that the managing agents of the company be empowered to join on behalf of the company with the mortgagees in selling the property of the company and conveying and assigning the same to the purchaser or purchasers thereof."—Englishman.

A MARK OF RESPECT.—We see that the British Indian Association fund for the payment of Mr. Fawcett's election expenses has now reached Rs.3,960. The Maharaja of Durbungha has subscribed Rs.500, and the Maharaja of Domraon Rs.200. The former, however, wishes it to be understood that he has subscribed out of respect for Mr. Fawcett, and not as in any way identifying himself with the Liberal party.—Englishman.

THE FREEMASONS.—The sum of £100 (subscribed by the Freemasons of Bengal) has been transmitted to England to the Duchess of Marlborough's Fund (Irish relief) through the District Grand Master, the Hon. H. T. Prinsep.—Times of India.

THE BISHOP ON TOUR.—According to present arrangements the metropolitan will leave Calcutta early in May for Darjiling, and in the course of the season will visit, on tour, the stations on and about the Northern Bengal Railway. At a later date he will visit the stations on the loop line of the East India Railway and will devote the autumn to a tour in Orissa and Chota Nagpore.—Ibid.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST A CIVILIAN.—Mr. Fleming, junior inspector in the Colattolat Thannah, is being charged with concealing and destroying evidence.—Ibid.

MR. H. LUSHINGTON, a district sessions judge of the North West Provinces, has been permitted to resign the Bengal Civil Service.

DR. LYNCH has been appointed health officer for the port of Calcutta. Lieut. Col. Beadon succeeds him as superintendent of the Alipore Gaol.

IT is officially announced that Sir Frederick Haines has appointed Brevet Col. H. C. Wilkinson to be his military secretary, in succession to Col. R. Preston, C.B., resigned. Major Goldie, who officiated for some time, has reverted to his appointment of assistant adjutant general, army headquarters.

MONUMENT TO BISHOP MILMAN.—The Indian Church Gazette reports that the painted window to be erected in the Calcutta Cathedral by the Government of India in memory of the late Bishop Milman has arrived in Calcutta at last, and is to be put in its place in the east gable without further delay. An inscription in English, Latin, and Bengali is to be placed on a brass beneath the window.—Times of India.

THE VOLUNTEERS.—The Ghazipur Opium Volunteer Rifle Corps have received Viceregal sanction to drop the "opium," and henceforth they will be known merely as the Ghazipur Volunteer Rifles. Sir George Couper has been appointed honorary commandant, and Mr. H. Rivett-Carnac, C.I.E., major commandant of the corps.—Times of India.

DISTURBANCES ON THE BHOOTAN FRONTIER. — The Englishman gives the following particulars of the recent raid by Bhooteas across the British frontier. Early in the morning of the 30th ult. information was brought to Colonel Allen, the officer commanding at Buxa, that the village of Chunbattee, situated somewhat less than a mile east of the cantonment, had been attacked by some Bhooteas from across the frontier, and that several persons had been wounded and some carried off. Lieut. Sage was at once (3 a.m.) despatched with a party to try to capture the raiders, but when he reached the village they had decamped. Some five houses were found to have been visited by the raiding party, three persons had been wounded, and five had been carried off into Bhootan. The commissioner of the Rajshahye and Cooch Behar Division (Lord Ulick Browne) has since visited Buna and has ascertained that the raid has no political importance. The Deb Raja appears to have had nothing whatever to do with the attack, and the five people who were carried off, as well as others who managed to escape from the village during the raid, were slaves or servants of the two leaders of the raiding party. audacious outrage as this, within a mile of the Buxa cantonment, of course calls for the severe punishment of the actual offenders, and it is to be hoped that they will be at once given up by the Deb. The leaders of the raid were, it is satisfactory to know, identified by the villagers of Chunbattee.—Pioneer.

RAILWAY EXTENSION.—The Nagpur and Chattisgarh State Railway has been opened for goods traffic as far as Tumsar, forming part of a system of provincial light railways which the Chief Commissioner has in view for the complete opening up of the Central Provinces. The present line, meantime, supplies the rich grain districts of the Central Provinces with much needed means of conveying their produce to the Nagpur and Tumsar markets.—Pioneer.

BIKANIR.—Captain Martelli, political officer for the Sujangurh agency, gives an account in a recent report of a strange thing which happened lately at the village of Mailoosar, in the State of Bikanir. In 1828 the village was bestowed on one of the Maharaja's friends, and was thereby exempted from the payment of revenue to the raj, except on account of such families as came into the village after the date of the sunnud, which is still to be seen engraved on a copper plate. According to the exception the village should have paid a small sum yearly on account of some Jats who had settled there. But payment was refused, and four years ago the village was nominally annexed to the raj. This measure failed to reduce the villagers to obedience; and the Jats, who, as a rule, in Bikanir, are more heavily taxed than any other class, and are, nevertheless, noted for being good-humoured and obliging, were now ordered to pay revenue to the durbar instead of to the Brahmans. The Brahmans retorted by turning the Jats out of the village, which, by way of severer punishment, was now bestowed on Thakur Sukt Sing, and Sukt Sing was ordered by the durbar to resettle the Jats and to admonish the Brahmans. Sukt Sing, therefore, sent his son and some forty men to arrange matters. As the party entered the village, they found all the Brahmans, thirty in number, including women and children, assembled, some on their house roofs, some in the enclosure in front. In the enclosure they had dug a pit and filled it with wood, which they set fire to; and as the Thakur's son came up they threatened, if his men entered the enclosure, to jump into the fire and thus destroy themselves. The Brahmans and Sukt Sing's men now began to abuse each other, and the latter, in the end, forced their way, sword in hand, into the enclosure and into the houses, cutting down all who came in their way. Eight Brahmins were killed and sixteen wounded; and their wives were despoiled of their jewellery. In past years, no doubt, the matter would have ended here; but the condition of the Rajput States has changed, and such outrages are not committed with impunity. Most of the offenders have been punished, and rewards of Rs.4,000 have been offered for Sukt Sing's son and sixteen others who escaped. The village has been restored to the Brahmans, and compensation has been given them for their losses. Nothing, however, is said about the Jats. The State of Bikanir, in which all this happened, has not been very flourishing of late years. Major Bradford Leslie reports that the council, as at present constituted, is decidedly a source of mischief; and the Maharaja is often influenced for evil by his father. Something is hoped, however, from the cordial relations which Capt. Martelli has established with the Maharaja. When Capt. Martelli first went to Bikanir—after the death of Capt. Burton—he found that the chief seldom went outside the walls of his fort. He could not go, he said, without a large escort. But now his Highness rides or drives with the political agent with hardly any following.—Pioneer.

A BRANCH RAILWAY.—On the 23rd August the Pondicherry Government appointed a commission to report upon the question whether it would be advisable to connect Karikal with the railway system of British India, as has been lately done in the case of Pondicherry. The commission in their report assert that, since Nagapatam became a railway station, Karikal, which is twelve miles to the north of that town, has lost much of the commercial importance it formerly enjoyed. The trade which once existed between Karikal and the districts in the rich delta of the Cavery is now turned to the profit of Nagapatam, as this town is in railway communication. Karikal, under the circumstances, the commission report, would, for trading purposes, be left in a disastrous state of isolation, and they propose that the line should run through the small towns of Mayaveram and Collimangum, and be linked with the South Indian Railway at the port of Nagapatam. In a letter, dated Dec. 22, to the Governor of Karikal, the agent of the South Indian Railway states that, in his opinion, before the line is sanctioned, it is essential to communicate with the Government of Madras, who will, if the proposed measure be deserving of encouragement, consult the wishes and views of the Government of M. Laugier. We believe the recent visit of his Excellency to Madras was not altogether unconnected with this subject, and, as the proposed measure appears to be not only a feasible one, but also one that will prove beneficial, we trust he has gone back with assurances from the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos that it will meet with favourable consideration when it comes before his Grace in Council.—Madras Times.

RAILWAY FROM SHORANUR TO COCHIN.—In September last the agent of the Madras Railway Company laid before Government certain papers on the subject of a line of railway from Shoranur to Cochin, and solicited an expression of the views of Government thereon on behalf of his board. The proposal, as then understood by Government, was that interest should be guaranteed on the company's capital for twelve years at 4 per cent., of which 1 per cent. was promised by each of the native States of Travancore and Cochin; and the promoters of the company hoped that the British Government would guarantee the remaining 2 per cent. In their proceedings, dated Oct. 13, 1879, the Government expressed their regret at being unable to recommend to the Government of India to undertake any fresh responsibility by way of guaranteed interest on a line of railway not absolutely required. In a memorial submitted to Government by Sir James Fergusson, Mr. R. B. Elwin, Sir William Cunninghame, and Sir Charles L. Young, the company's capital is set down at £550,000; and it is proposed that the British Government should accept the liabilities which the two native States have undertaken and guarantee the entire 4 per cent. Further, it is proposed that the period of twelve years should be extended to twenty years. These revised proposals increase considerably the responsibility which the British Government is requested to undertake. According to the original scheme that responsibility amounted to a maximum sum of £132,000, spread over twelve years. It now amounts to a maximum sum of £440,000, spread over twenty years. In their order on the memorial the Government regret that they are unable to regard favourably the proposals now before them. They cannot properly guarantee, out of provincial revenues, the interest on the company's capital for a line beyond the limits of the Presidency; and they do not see their way to recommend the proposed measure to the Government of India as a desirable financial arrangement. The suggestion that the British Government should guarantee the contributions promised by the native States appears inadmissible. While they regret that they are unable to assist the memorialists in the manner indicated, the Government fully recognise the value of their scheme to Southern India, and would be glad if any arrangement could be made, by unobjectionable means, to promote the construction of the proposed line of railway. They are of opinion that the object in view is deserving of encouragement, in the interests alike of the Travancore and Cochin States, whose prosperity would react on the other provinces of Southern India, and of the Madras Railway Company, whose traffic would doubtless be developed, and its returns benefited, by the construction of the branch.—Madras Times.

RAMPA REBELLION.—The Rampa rebellion, after dragging on its existence for about fourteen months, may now be considered as practically at an end. Several bands have lately been broken up and their leaders captured or killed. Very few remain in arms, and the villagers are helping to hunt out these few. A special session is being held for the trial of the rebels, and the fever-stricken troops are anxiously expecting an early recall.—Times Telegram.

MYSOR.—With the view of the handing over of the administration of Mysor to the Maharaja, which will take place at the beginning of next year, the Indian Government has lately been taking steps to substitute natives for Europeans in most official positions. Much discontent is said, however, to be caused by the fact that the majority of the officials are Madrassis and not natives of the province, and it is said, with every appearance of truth, that the Mysorans look forward with feelings of some dread to our withdrawal, and to their being handed over to a class of men who are almost as foreign to them as the English.—Times Telegram.

DEATH OF A MEDICAL OFFICER.—We regret to have to record the death in Rampa of Surgeon R. H. Robinson, who was in charge of the 39th Regiment M.N.I. Surgeon Robinson entered the service in 1877, and has fallen a victim to an attack of malarial fever contracted in that feverish district.—Madras Times.

GOLD MINING IN INDIA.—We may soon expect to find a gold mining mania in India as well as in London and other commercial centres at home. A highly respectable firm at Madras have just issued the preliminary prospectus of the proposed Madras Gold Mining Company (Limited), which is to be formed with a capital of ten lakhs of rupees, to acquire and work a mile of mining land in the district of Colar, Mysor, "which is known to contain auriferous quartz in very large quantities." The concessionaries of the land in question will transfer their right, title, and interest for five lakhs of rupees, a moiety of which it is proposed to pay in cash and the remainder in fully paid up shares. The value of these shares will be ten rupees each, and the company's registered offices are to be in Madras, where there will also be a board of directors. The promoters anticipate, however, that a considerable portion of the capital will be raised in London, where, as they say, similar enterprises are meeting with great favour.—Times of India.

THE total amount of subscriptions to the Irish Relief Fund acknowledged by the Madras committee is equivalent to £6,500.

THE strength of the 1st Madras Light Cavalry, proceeding to Jacobabad for service with the 2nd Bombay Division, is 8 officers 10 native officers, 269 men, 280 horses, 110 privates, and 470 public followers. This is at the rate of two followers for each sabre.

THE statue of Mr. E. B. Powell, C.S.I., late director of public instruction, put up by his old pupils at the Presideney College, Madras, was unveiled on April 13 by the Duke of Buckingham.

A NEW POST-OFFICE.—The Madras Chamber of Commerce have again, through the local Government urged upon the Government of India the erection of a new telegraph and post-office. The Chamber point out that the financial outlook of the country is now far more hopeful than was anticipated when the estimate for the buildings was struck out of the budget for the past official year.

COPPER IN SOUTHERN INDIA.—Though a good deal has recently been heard about gold mining in Southern India it is not at all unlikely that even the brilliant future that appears before those persons who are the fortunate possessors of land containing auriferous quartz may be eclipsed by others who are holders of land in which copper and other minerals have been found. In the Calastry and Vencatagherry districts there are large tracts of land containing copper, the assays of which prove it to be richer than most of the best mines existing. Samples that have been tested by an eminent firm at home give results showing 28¾ per cent. to 54 per cent. of pure copper, the average being 42½ per cent.; even ore picked up on the surface gave 8·1 per cent. When it is considered that Cornish ores yield only from 3 to 5 per cent. (though they contain small portions of richer metals) and that the Cape Copper ores contain only 20 to 30 per cent., it would seem that we have a fund of hidden wealth, too long unknown, but which should now give such a stimulus to the trade of this Presidency as nothing but the development of rich mineral wealth can impart to a country.—Mail.

THE WRECK OF THE "AMELIA."—From an account furnished to the Cochin Argus by Lloyd's agents it appears that this vessel, under the command of Captain Dixon, left Cochin bound for London on April 3. At nine o'clock on the night of the 4th the captain left the bridge after leaving orders to keep a good look out, and if land were sighted to call him at once. At 9.20 he came on deck and saw land on the starboard beam and breakers ahead. Orders were at once given to put the helm to starboard, and the engines to be reversed full speed, but the steamer's way was not stopped, and she had altered only two points when she ran right on the reef and began to strike and roll heavily, threatening to turn over. On sounding six feet of water were reported in the forehold, and the engine room began to fill fast. The captain wisely ordered the boats to be got ready and provisioned. At 11.30 p.m. the water was half way up the cylinder, and as there were six fathoms of water under the vessel's stern all hands were ordered into the boats to lie by till daylight. At 3.30 a.m. the vessel began to part at No. 2 hatch, and the cabin was also getting flooded. As the engine-room was full, and there were fourteen feet of water in the forehold, nothing could be done to save the vessel. At 5.30 a.m. natives from the neighbouring islands came alongside, and a diver reported the keel to be broken in two places. The foredeck soon began to break up, as also the after part at No. 4 hatch. At 9.30 the broadside burst open and the cargo began to be washed out. The stern was then one foot above water, and as the ship was breaking up fast, and nothing could be done, the captain resolved to stand for Cochin. As he passed the stern he noticed the main mast shaking. April 7, at noon on Wednesday he saw the chief officer's boat, 1 a.m., the second officer's. It is probable, adds the Argus, as they have not yet turned up, that they were picked up by a vessel that was in sight. The Amelia ran on what is known as the "Kalpeni" reef, and the captain ascribes the loss to a strong northerly current, which took the vessel 12·16 miles north of her course.

BARRACK ORDERS.—It has been ordered that the Bengal Barrack Regulations shall be followed in their entirety in the Bombay Presidency in supersession of all existing orders on the subject; but, as usual, we believe no one has been furnished with copies of the regulations which are to be followed.—Brigadier General Loch, commanding the Aden Brigade, has been allowed six months' furlough to Europe on medical certificate.—Major G. R. Goodfellow, Staff Corps, acts as political resident. The late superintendent of the Army Clothing Department, Colonel J Thacker, has been permitted to retire from the service. The appointment of his successor, Lieut. Colonel Sexton, is gazetted.—Times of India.

HIS Excellency the Viceroy has been pleased, upon the recommendation of the local Government, to confer upon Mr. Byramjee Dadabhoy, registrar of Bombay, the title of Khan Bahadur as a personal distinction.

THE BANK OF BOMBAY.—The Bank of Bombay have made several adjustments in their rates for discount and interest with a view of affording greater facilities to the trade. The difference between interest now charged on Government Paper and Port Trust Bonds and for loans on goods is only 1 per cent., instead of 2 or 3 per cent., as formerly. The directors of the bank are now prepared to advance on Port Trust warrants for both exports and imports. The interest charged for loans on Government Paper, bullion, and Port Trust Bonds, according to the new scale, is 7 per cent.; on loans on deposit of goods and metals in any godown or Port Trust warrants, 8 per cent.; and on cash credits a charge of 9 per cent. is made.—Times of India.

HYDERABAD.—Our Hyderabad correspondent writes:—In the following letter, which was addressed by the resident to H.E. Salar Jung prior to his departure from Aurungabad, Sir Richard Meade expresses his approval of what he saw during his visit to that city:—"Now that I understand we have finished all that your excellency wished me to see in connection with the affairs here, I think I may assure you in this way of the very great satisfaction that has been afforded me by this opportunity of observing their condition and working. The state of the buildings and the general character of the manner in which the work is carried on—so far as can be gathered from all that came before me—are in every respect excellent, and reflect much credit on the officials in whose hands the conduct of the same lies. The works and records of the Survey Department appeared to me to be admirable, and to leave nothing to be desired, and the care that has been bestowed on everything connected with this department was very striking. The settlement operations are of course quite distinct from the survey work, but I gathered that they are being conducted with equal care. I will only add that the state of the offices is worthy of the grand city in which they are located, and that it was a real pleasure to visit them." We understand that the Minister's diary of his tour, which has already appeared in Persian in the Hyderabad Government Gazette, is not unlikely to be published in English. It contains a detailed and most interesting account of his excellency's journey, and an instructive comparison between the various public offices as they are at present and as they used to be ten or twelve years since. The improvement in all respects is, we hear, most marked, and reflects the highest credit upon his Excellency's administration.—Times of India.

THE COTTON FRAUDS DEPARTMENT.—Instructions have been received from home to abolish the Cotton Frauds Department with as little delay as possible, and notice has been served on all the officers in the department, with the exception of Mr. Milne, that "their services will be dispensed with after May 31 next." The harshness of this summary way of disposing of gentlemen who have served for many years in the department is acknowledged in the very Government resolution that seals their fate:—"The Governor in Council regrets that he is obliged to adopt this course, but the instructions of the Secretary of State are peremptory and must be obeyed. The Commissioner of Customs, Opium, and Akbari, and the Commissioners of Divisions should do all that lies in their power to provide suitable employment for the subordinates of the department who under these orders will lose appointments.—Ibid.

THE MELBOURNE EXHIBITION.—We are glad to hear that, from the arrangements already made, it seems as if Bombay will be handsomely and fully represented at the forthcoming Melbourne Exhibition. The various sub committees are pushing matters forward, and the Hon. Magnus Mowatt has already sent in a considerable quantity of exhibits, collected by Mr. Heerjeebhoy Hormusjee Shroff, representing the following articles:—Cardamoms, gum ghatty, copra, wet dates, Cochin ginger, turmeric, tamarinds, madder root, coir yarn, hemp, Zanzibar cloves, cocoanut oil, caster oil, and pistachio nuts. Other members of the sub committee are busy collecting specimens of cotton, wheat, seeds, and myrabollams. The Hon. Morarjee Goculdas has got together some fine specimens of local manufactures, including goods from Surat. Mr. Jacomb has made a valuable collection of blackwood furniture and Kashmir work. Mr. Nanabhoy Byramjee Jeejeebhoy is looking after the Bombay pottery, and Mr. Terry has promised some of his best specimens. Altogether the collection promises to be good and representative, and likely, we hope, to lead to some substantial return in the way of trade between Bombay and Melbourne. But it is still a fight against time, and they will ontribute best who contribute quickly.—Times of India.

CEYLON.

WE take the following items from the Ceylon Times of April 12:—

WEATHER AND CROPS.—The burst of the little monsoon, although unusually mild, has nevertheless been accompanied by constant rainfall of more or less heaviness, and by an unusual amount of thunder and lightning; there has been very little wind, and the rain has consequently not made its way up country to any great extent; at the same time the smallest quantity of rainfall at this critical period is too apt to retard the formation of blossom, for which a continuance of bright hot weather is absolutely necessary. We are now far enough advanced in the month of April to render everyone anxious that the present doubtful weather should give place to bright skies and brilliant sunshine, for it is felt that unless this change takes place without delay disappointment must be the result. As we close there is every appearance of fine weather.

THE PEARL FISHERY.—Unsettled weather has a good deal interfered with the progress of the pearl fishery. The boats have been detained idly on shore for many days, but their work, so far as it has gone, has been satisfactory. Large quantities of oysters have been brought on shore at every fishery, and the competition at the sales has been active, the price having on some days reached Rs.10 the thousand. To the latest date, the 10th, there had been paid into the Government treasury nearly Rs.130,000.

COFFEE.—The present season's shipments of coffee will, after all, approach more nearly to 600,000cwt. than to the much-talked of half a million. The returns of exports by manifests show to the present date about 435,000cwt., including the coffee by the Navarino. There are, we believe, about 35,000cwt. now in Colombo stores in course of preparation for shipment, and if we add to this the ample crops from the Ouvah districts of Happotella, Badulla, and Madulsima, with some from Ouda Pusselava, without reckoning early shipments of Kandy grown coffee, there will assuredly be a grand total for the year ending Sept. 30 next equal to 575,000cwt.

DEATH OF MR. EDGE, C.C.S.—We regret to learn of the death of Mr. Edge, police magistrate, &c., of Puttalam and Kalpitiya. The deceased was some time laid up with fever, but he had recovered and attended to duties again regularly. On April 1 he proceeded to Kalpitiya and returned to Puttalam on Saturday last, and left again for Kalpitiya in a canoe, when, sad to say, an hour or so after he expired; he looked much depressed when he left. His remains were carried to Puttalam. A correspondent writes that Mr. Edge was hardly three months in the station, and was much liked as a painstaking, conscientious, and able magistrate, and very good natured.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

SANITARY WORK IN BENGAL.

(FROM THE PRESS COMMISSIONER.)

BY a recent mail the Secretary of State forwarded to the Government of India a memorandum by the Army Sanitary Commission on the Bengal Sanitary Report for 1878. The report, which is an able and interesting one, is written by Dr. Coates, the Sanitary Commissioner. It does not profess to contain much new matter. It shows what are the localising causes of cholera and fever in Bengal, and also that, although the difficulties of dealing with them are great, they are by no means insuperable; that the municipalities are doing good work and showing an intelligent interest in it, and that the present system of inspection, together with the guidance afforded to municipal officers, is being attended to with good results. What, however, is still considered the greatest of all evils is the insanitary state of the villages; but it is hoped that, by carefully considered legislative enactments fixing the responsibilities of village owners and occupiers, and suitable application of their provisions, they will in time be surmounted. Another result of Dr. Coate's report is to show the wisdom of the decision arrived at by the Government of India to introduce elementary public health teaching into all the public schools in addition to the present lectures on sanitary subjects in the medical college. The death returns were collected from 429 urban registration circles, and from 1,295 rural circles; but among these are included hospitals, dispensaries, gaols, outposts, &c., 951 in number. The urban population was 2,370,803, of which 1,242,503 were males and 1,128,300 females. The rural population consisted of 28,655,585 males and 28,972,047 females. The death registration was thus spread over an aggregate population of 59,998,435. The following were the deaths registered among this population in 1878:—

	Urban.	Rural.	Total.
Number of deaths...	83,306	980,810	1,064,116
Deaths per 1,000 ...	35·13	17·01	17·73

The figures show an increase in the urban registration of 2·64 per 1,000 over the results for 1877, thereby bringing the registered death-rate nearer the truth. The rural death-rate showed a decrease of 38 per 1,000 under 1877. But it cannot be said that either rate represents the rural mortality. The mean death-rate during the previous four years in Bengal was 12·10 per 1,000, showing considerable improvement in the registration, which, however, was chiefly in the towns. Among 22,990 deaths from injury are included 10,373 deaths from snake bite and wild beasts. The diseases classed as "fevers" gave rise to 74 per cent. of the year's deaths, and "fevers" were eight-fold more fatal than cholera. They were a third more fatal in towns than in the country, and cholera was more than twice as fatal in the towns as in the country. The cholera death-rate was 1 per 1,000 less in 1878 than in 1877, which was a great epidemic year. Cholera deaths were registered in all the districts of the Bengal province, and its general distribution is shown by the fact that out of 673 registering circles cholera deaths were registered in 626. The same striking fact took place in 1878 that has been observed in the distribution of the disease during previous years—viz., that the epidemic was made up of a limited number only of village outbreaks. On the subject of the relation between cholera and rainfall, the commission, referring to Dr. Coates's statistics on this point, observe that in the earlier months of the year, when cholera mortality was at its highest point, the very small rainfall shows probably increasing impurity of water sources. Thus in April, when the rainfall was 2·12 inches, the number of deaths from cholera was 21,128, while in August, when the rainfall was 14·07 inches, the number of deaths was 5,293. Dr. Coates's statistics show that a great increase of mortality followed in March, April, and May. From April onwards the rainfall increased until September, and from June to October the cholera mortality fell, but it rose in November and December concurrently with a great diminution of rain. Similar results have been observed all over India, and they were particularly remarkable during the famine year. The commission consider that the prima facie evidence is strong in behalf of the predisposing agency of impure culinary water. The remarks of Dr. Coates on this subject are worthy of attention. He says—"Much has been written and much discussion has taken place during the year regarding the connection between cholera and foul water. We have not yet discovered the poison of cholera nor even if there is one. To limit the cause of cholera to one factor and its entrance into the system to one mode only would be very unwise. Short of demonstration, the objections against such inferences must be great. Notwithstanding this, I confess that every year's observation in going from district to district, in hearing the various opinions of the local officers on the subject, and in reflecting on both, my conviction has become stronger and stronger that there is a connection between impure water and cholera, and the one, in Bengal at least, is the chief (I would not make it absolute or exclusive) exciting cause of the other. Wherever the drinking water has been most perfectly kept free from impurities, and especially fœcal ones, there cholera has prevailed the least." Dr. Coates then proceeds to show the difficulties in the way of protecting water sources, arising partly from the nature of the sources in use, and perhaps more from the filthy habits of the people themselves. But still he says, although the habits of the masses cannot be suddenly changed, "the improvements that have been effected are great, rapid, and encouraging." The commission are of opinion "that in the present state of our knowledge there is far more reason to expect advancing improvement by dealing with the question in this manner than by attempting to arrange the facts round any hypothesis, which may happen to be false, or only partially true, and in either case detrimental to real sanitary work, which, after all, must rest on observed fact and on theory." Some interesting statistics as to the seasonal prevalence of fever and its apparent relation to rainfall are given in the Sanitary Commissioner's report, in which the subject is discussed at some length. The commission think there is reason to believe that good may be done by limited local outlay on works intended to remove merely local drainage defects of villages." In concluding their remarks on the report the commission express their satisfaction with its practical character, and at the same time a hope "that all officers engaged on sanitary work may be induced to follow Dr. Coates's example in dealing directly with the facts before them, and leaving theories to be discussed by those who have no more serious work to do."

THE FOREIGN POLICY OF INDIA.

THE successful march of the Kandahar column to Ghuzni and Cabul has cleared away much of the difficulties that seemed a month ago to beset the settlement of the future of Afghanistan. The Viceroy, whose tenure of office has come to a close, may be congratulated on the victory that has, ere his actual departure, crowned the patient and laborious assertion of the interests of India and Great Britain on the North West Frontier. Still it cannot be said that the heritage of government passes to his successor free from incumbrance. Difficulties of internal administration have been encountered and gallantly overcome, and a greater difficulties of external relations have been bravely grappled with, and, if not solved, brought to a state admitting of what may be called easy solution. But there are other pressing questions of foreign policy the successful settlement of which will enable the successor of Lord Lytton to win a name among those vicegerents of India who are recorded as the consolidators, if not the enlargers, of the Indian Empire. The new Viceroy of India has during thirty years served the State in various capacities, to have been selected for which is in itself a proof of the esteem in which his talents and experience have been held by successive Administrations. All but twenty years have passed since, as Under Secretary for India, he first acquired a special knowledge of the administration of our great dependency, and in 1866 he was appointed Secretary of State for India. At that date, to quote Mr. Wheeler, "Afghanistan was thus distributed: Cabul and Afghan Turkistan were in the possession of Mahammad Afzal Khan. Kandahar remained in the hands of Shere Ali Khan, while his son, Yakoob Khan, held the government of Herat." Mr. Wheeler, in a brief comment, records his opinion, unchanged by recent events, that the fratricidal war which ended shortly before the removal of the Secretary of State to the dignified repose of the office of Lord President of the Council, ought to have been stopped by the partition of Afghanistan between two or more chiefs, whilst the British Government assumed the paramount power, and threatened to interfere unless the rival parties kept the peace. What should have been the Afghan policy then, may, by the turn of events, be the line laid down by the force of circumstances for the Marquis of Ripon to pursue as Governor General of India. That he has the courage of his opinions, and will fearlessly act upon them, uninfluenced by the coldness or the heat of any popularis aura, he has shown in his recent career. The strong determination, combined with thorough knowledge of the Asiatic character, possessed by General Stewart, will successfully carry out measures that will, it is to be hoped, be animated by corresponding gentle firmness. To undo that which has been accomplished would be an uselessly retrograde step. Whether we admit or not that, despite all the gallantry displayed, there has been a lack of tactical ability in the management of our army at Cabul, General Roberts has held his own, and the fierce fanaticism of the Afghan soldiery has been unable to achieve more than the temporary occupation of the abandoned city of Cabul. The advance of General Stewart's troops from Kandahar has taught a finally convincing lesson to the tribes. Ghuzni, the seat of ancient conquerors and rulers, has been occupied after a severe defeat of the bravest residuum of the broken army, led by the priestly or patriotic chiefs, who, according to the latest news, are now suing for peace. The succession of the young Musa Khan, although according to English ideas he may be accounted the heir apparent, is by no means necessary according to Mahomedan ideas, and the chief whose pretensions, as well as fitness, for the dignity of Ameer, not of Afghanistan, but of Cabul, are prominent, is the son of Dost Mahomed's eldest son. Abdul Rahman, whose movements have been the object of anxious interest, and the subject of confusing telegrams for weeks past, seems likely to recover the inheritance at least of Turkistan and Cabul, which he was obliged to surrender in 1868. The great objection is that, as a pensioner of Russia, and, if rumour states rightly, as assisted by Russian gold and accompanied by Russian officers, he can hardly be expected to present himself as a sincere aspirant to British friendship. The progress of events during the last two years may, however, be considered as having taught the Afghan chief that it is decidedly more to his advantage to govern Northern Afghanistan and Turkistan as a friend of the Indian Empire than to live as a pensioner of the Viceroy of Russian Turkistan. If Shere Ali had been enlightened in due time as to the suicidal folly of trying to play off Russian against British interests there would have been no opportunity for Abdul Rahman to present himself as a candidate for the throne which is commanded by the guns of Sherpur. The lessons of the past may have been learned on both sides. We need not seek to patch up a dismembered kingdom which has relapsed into its natural state of disunion. Still less need we revert to an impossible policy of indifference or over-confidence. There are other questions of foreign Indian policy which, though for the time they have been dwarfed by the pressing magnitude of the settlement of Afghanistan, will demand speedy solution. The relations with Burma have been discussed in our columns with sufficient fulness and frequency to call for no more than the remark that their unsatisfactory condition is helping to aggravate the difficulty of dealing with China. From Kashmir we hear growing complaints of the misgovernment of the Maharaja on the one hand and rumours of his disloyalty on the other. From Nepal come merest whispers of an inclination on the part of the chiefs to look to China as a power to be obeyed, not merely with nominal vassalage and perfunctory tribute, but with real awe, as the growing ruler of Central Asia.

From Thibet come additional instances of the unrelaxed jealousy with which our trade, or even intercourse, is interdicted. If we have been warring to establish a secure North Western frontier, it would seem that the vaster boundary of our Indian empire is fringed by a chain of States in which jealous, though covert, hostility prevails, and suspicious exclusiveness denies even the comity of commerce. The permitted or overlooked misrule of Kashmir, the polite mistrust of Nepal, lead on to the open insolence of Burma, up to the Chinese hostility, which, though finding threatening expression in the far distant ports of the extreme of that empire, animates the border guards of Thibet and the officials of Manwyne and Bhamo. There is in all this a wide field for the exercise of resolute diplomacy, the calm balancing of rights and wrongs, and unflinching determination to carry out the course decided on as best for the maintenance of the peace and prosperity of India as an integral portion of the British Empire.

IN the year 1879 the sum of Rs.12,569 was paid in rewards for the destruction of wild animals in the Central Provinces.

THE opinion generally prevalent in Karachi is, according to the Beacon, that it will be an exceedingly unhealthy season. A few cases of cholera are reported to have occurred in the Bagdadee lines. The heat is already getting exceedingly oppressive.

CENTRAL PROVINCES.—A correspondent at Saugor writes:—"On the 11th ult. Mr. Morris, C.S.I., Chief Commissioner, Centra Provinces, arrived here. The ceremony for his reception was imposing. Triumphal arches were erected, the usual guards of Madras cavalry and infantry attended, and the guns of the Royal Artillery fired the usual salute of thirteen guns. The Hit Sabha Association, of which the Chief Commissioner is a patron, presented him with an address at the Town-hall, in which, while expressing their grateful pleasure in welcoming him amongst them, they said they had no doubt that the condition of the agricultural classes would be vastly improved if punchayet courts were started on the same principle as those in the Bombay Presidency. Regarding the advisability of imparting education in agriculture, there was no subject that had a greater claim upon the attention of the Government, since three-fourths of the people of India were engaged in agricultural pursuits. The Sabha suggested that a portion of the local funds might be properly directed towards the establishment of agricultural schools. Industry, they said, had much declined among the working classes, owing to the want of energy, education, and enterprise ; and it was with satisfaction they observed that the Chief Commissioner was doing a great deal in the matter of communications which would not only materially promote the trade of the province but would be of great convenience to the public. Mr. Morris, in reply, said he was himself inclined to favour the institution of punchayet courts, but, as far as his experience went, he did not think they were popular with the natives, and especially those of the poorer classes. He would like to see the success of the experiment that was being tried in other parts. Regarding agricultural education, there was the model farm at Nagpore, which was an excellent means of such education ; but he regretted to say that the people had generally shown little inclination to take advantage of it ; regular instruction in some branches of the industrial arts was being imparted at the normal schools, and there was a successful workshop at Saugor, where Government would be prepared to guarantee suitable instruction if the Hit Shabka would only see that a sufficient number of pupils would attend. In respect of female education, Mr. Morris expressed his gratification with what had been already done in the Saugor district, and he would like to see gentlemen in the position of those of the members of the Sabha sending their daughters to school. Referring finally to improved communications, he said that about fifty miles of the railway was ready to be opened, and he hoped that within eighteen months it would be taken up as far as Nandgaon in the Raipur district. On the morning of the 12th upwards of fifteen hundred poor people were fed by the Sabha, and in the evening there was a display of fireworks. Mr. Morris remained in the district for three weeks and left on the 31st ultimo. — Times of India.

Lieut. Col. E. T. W. Purcell, Royal Artillery, to be colonel.

Capt. S. G. Fairtclough, Royal Artillery, to have the local rank of major whilst employed as an instructor at the Royal Military College at Kingston, in the Dominion of Canada.

THE Sealkote correspondent of the Delhi Gazette says that the rumour at Sealkote is that a permanent Resident is to be attached to the Court of the Maharaja of Kashmir, and that this change will be accompanied by the formation of the inevitable British cantonment.

THE Army and Navy Gazette says that Colonels Saunders and Greene, Royal Horse Artillery, being the two senior colonels on the roster for foreign service, have been placed under orders for India. Such an act of vigour on the part of the authorities is as gratifying as it is unexpected. No date has, however, been fixed for the embarkation of these officers, one of whom, we presume, will proceed to Bangalore.

THE Marine Survey Department at Calcutta, which was hitherto attached to the Civil Department, has been transferred to the Military Department under the Government of India from April 1, so that all payments on account of that establishment, involving a cost of about Rs.56,000 a year, will be made in future by the Presidency paymaster, instead of by the civil auditor.

INDIAN TEAS AT MELBOURNE.—The precise amount of the Government contribution to the Tea Syndicate has not as yet been fixed, but we (Indian Tea Gazette) have good reason for believing that it will not be much less than Rs.10,000. The operations of the Syndicate are necessarily to a considerable extent dependent upon the amount of the Government grant, and, therefore, at present, matters are somewhat in abeyance. However, there is ample time.

THE doubt which prevailed as to whether Eurasians and Anglo-Indians are eligible for direct appointments to the native Civil Service is set at rest by a letter from the Government in the Home Department, in which it is laid down that the terms of the Statute 33 Vic., cap. 3, Section 6, admit of the appointment of Eurasians and Anglo-Indiuns, as well as of pure natives, to the offices hitherto reserved for covenanted civilians. "And the claims," the letter goes on to say, "of such persons of this class as may be of conspicuous merit and ability will doubtless receive due consideration from the local Government."—Bombay Gazette.

ICE FOR INDIA.—We are glad to be able to state that the General Ice Factory Company (Limited), of London, will soon have their contracts completed for the erection of the three first factories they have undertaken to erect for the North West Provinces and Oudh Ice Company. The Allahabad factory buildings are completed and the machinery is being put up. The Lucknow and Agra factories are well advanced, and the machines are en route. The success which has attended the operations of the three large presidency factories erected by the London Company will, we anticipate, extend itself to the North West Company. We believe that three additional factories of ten ton capacity each per diem will be erected next cold weather at Benares, Cawnpore, and Delhi. The Bombay Company have now twenty tons of plant and machinery, also the Bengal Company the same amount; each capable of producing twenty tons of ice per diem. The capital for the Karachi Company has been subscribed for a five-ton factory, and another for Patna is in course of formation, so that we shall in future be well supplied with ice, at a price which will place it within the reach of all classes of the community.—Indian Herald.

IT will be no surprise, says the Civil and Military Gazette, to hear that the engineers of the Punjab Northern State Railway have moved the date for the opening of the line to Rawul Pindi another month forward. We have good authority for saying that the line will be running into that station by June 1, though possibly not open for public traffic. It is also probable that the line will have to be closed when the rains come on, on account of the inevitable sinking and consolidating of the earthwork. We ought not to lose sight of the fact that the work to be done on this line has been, and is, extremely heavy, and, indeed, quite out of the ordinary run of work that is usual on Indian railways. Orders have been received from Government that the line must be laid to Peshawur, and we believe Kohat, by November 1; this order, of course, not including the Indus bridges at Attock and Kushalgar. There is, however, an inability to carry out, though not to dictate, an impossibility; and for this trifling reason we are inclined to believe that the lines to Kohat and Peshawur will not be open for general traffic and in good working order before the end of next cold season.

DR. SMITH'S RESIGNATION.—The Englishman, in consequence of other versions having appeared, gives the following account of the circumstances which led to Dr. Smith's resignation:—"Dr. Smith wrote a letter to Dr. Payne as surgeon general, bringing to his notice certain facts which he considered to bear on the question of hospital diets. In reply to this letter Dr. Payne pointed out what appeared to him defects in Dr. Smith's argument, and suggested that, on reconsideration, he might wish to withdraw his letter, adding that, it required to forward it, he (Dr. Payne) would be compelled to adopt a certain specified line of criticism upon it. Dr. Smith appears to have resented this as an insult and a threat, and tendered his resignation in consequence. Thereupon Dr. Payne pointed out to Dr. Smith that he had misconstrued his meaning, and that no threat was intended, but Dr. Smith still considered himself insulted. He was, however, persuaded to consult his friends, and, on their advice, he consented to withdraw his resignation. Subsequently, for reasons which have not transpired, he altered his mind, and the resignation was not withdrawn. Dr. Payne was never ordered to apologise for anything, or to cancel the correspondence, as the Patriot alleges, but he, of his own accord, told Dr. Smith that he was willing to assure him that he had intended no insult, and expressed his regret that Dr. Smith should have formed so erroneous an opinion."

PERSIAN GULF.—The only daughter of his Highness Seyyid Toorkee died at Muscat, March 29, in childbirth. The lady was married to her cousin, Stareb bin Thorseynee, in 1877, and died at the early age of twenty-one. Over two thousand persons followed the lady's remains to their last resting-place, and the British Consulate flag was lowered half mast in respect to the memory of the deceased. An American barque, the Joseph A. Ropes, and a Frech schooner lying in port, paid similar marks of respect to the deceased lady. The Sultan, who appeared terribly grief-stricken, followed the bier on foot to the cemetery. Judging from the respect paid to his Highness whenever occasion offers, there cannot be much doubt that he is a popular ruler, and yet from the frequent attempts made to subvert his authority the inference likely to be drawn is that he is otherwise. I do not myself think the action of the turbulent Bedouins a gauge of public opinion, for it is not a change of rulers they seek but anarchy. That he is a weak ruler I will not gainsay, but this is, in a great measure, owing to circumstances. Treaty engagements with European Powers have much to do with this. Instead of strengthening his hold on the country they have helped to relax it. Active support will alone make the Sultan's authority respected and give the country peace. The famine-stricken fugitives from Mekran are flocking to the date plantations in Oman in search of employment. From the Semayel valley to Mullrah strings of emigrants are everywhere met with tramping along seeking food. At present it is only distress, but between distress and starvation with these poor creatures there is but one step. Prom the Island of Kishm we have news of the discovery of a new salt mine conveniently situate as regards carriage, and the quality of the yield is said to be superior to khakoo, the best production of the Persian Gulf mines at present. It is also said that a mineral oil, closely resembling kerosine, has been found in the same island. His Highness the Sultan of Muscat is stimulating his subjects to open up a trade in indiarubber, which yields his brother of Zanzibar a large revenue. Indiarubber is said to be a natural production of the country, and specimens of the gum have been sent to America.—Correspondent of Bombay Gazette.

HOME NEWS.

DEATH OF AN INDIAN VETERAN.—We have to record the death of Lieut. General Oliver Paget Bourke, which occurred on Wednesday last at Kingstown. The late general obtained his first commission in the army as ensign in December, 1835, and served with the 17th Regiment during the campaign of 1838-39 in Afghanistan and Beluchistan, including the storm and capture of Ghuznee and of Khelat, and various skirmishes. He also served in the Crimea at the siege of Sebastopol, in command of the regiment, from December, 1854, to February, 1855. He had received the medal for Ghuznee, medal with clasp for Sebastopol, the Turkish Medal, and the Fifth Class of the Order of the Medjidie. For some time the deceased General was an Exon of Yeomen of the Guard, her Majesty's Bodyguard. He was promoted to captain in November, 1844; became major in December, 1852; lieutenant colonel, September, 1855; colonel, August, 1860; major general, March, 1868; and lieutenant general, October 1, 1877.

CHANGE OF PARTNERSHIP.—Messrs. Cooverjee Bomonjee and Byramjee Nusserwanjee state that the partnership existing between them under the style of N. Nusserwanjee and Co. in Calcutta, Nowrojee and Co. in Hong Kong, and B. Nusserwanjee and Co. in London, having expired on March 31, 1880, by effluxion of time, Mr. Cooverjee Bomonjee Guzder will liquidate all the accounts of the firms. Mr. Byramjee Nusserwanjee, referring to the same, states that he will continue on his own account the English business both in Calcutta and London under the style of B. Nusserwanjee and Co.

BOMBAY GAS COMPANY.—The report states that the loss on exchange during the half-year was £2,714. This sum, with that previously standing at the debit of exchange equalisation account—viz., £2,609, makes a total of £5,524 to be provided for. Of this the directors have charged £2,200 to profit and loss account, and £3,124 to the reserve fund (equalisation dividend account), thus writing off the whole loss. The amount at the credit of profit and loss account for the half-year is £9,547, which, with the balance brought forward, £157, makes a total of £9,705. Out of this the directors recommend a dividend of 4 per cent. (making 7½ per cent. for the year), free of income-tax. This will absorb £9,600, leaving £105 to be carried forward to the next half-year.

TAMBRACHERRY COFFEE ESTATES COMPANY.—The report of the special committee contains the following:—The committee report that their representations have been met by Mr. Pasteur, on behalf of the vendors, by the following proposals:—1. That the 8,000 shares, constituting the present subscribed capital of the company, shall be divided into 5,000 A shares and 3,000 B shares. 2. That the B shares shall not be entitled to dividend until the A shares have received 5 per cent., but that the B shares shall take the surplus profits of any season up to 5 per cent. 3. That if in any season the profits shall be sufficient to pay more than 5 per cent. on each class the surplus profits shall be divided equally between them. 4. That in the event of a winding-up of the company both classes shall be entitled to rank equally in the distribution of assets."

THE SILVER MARKET.—The determination of the India Council to reduce the amount of drafts to be tendered for on Wednesday has, in completely changing the whole aspect of the silver market and its surroundings, created a much better demand and brought many more buyers to the front. On Friday a few thousand pounds' worth of refined bars realised 52¼d. per ounce standard, but any large business is at present out of the question, pending the arrival of further remittances. We do not, however, know that there is much silver on the way here. The consignment by the Royal Mail steamer, which arrived a few days ago, has already been thoroughly cleared, and there will be no further West Indian supplies for nearly another fortnight. Besides this, the monthly vessels from Chili do not now bring any large amounts. The remittances from the United States seem, to all appearances, to have ceased, while supplies from Germany are not at present to be thought of. Mexican dollars have likewise changed hands at 52¼d. per ounce, but here again supplies are exhausted with no immediate chance of any supplementary stocks. At the same time the China demand for the coins is, we understand, on a sufficiently large scale to absorb any amounts that may be brought to this market. The Indian rates for four months' sight bank bills on London are firm at 1s. 8¼d. The Hong Kong rate has advanced to 3s. 10¾d., and we heard that the Shanghai rate had again risen, although unable to obtain a higher quotation than 5s. 3⅜d. Rupee paper has further improved in demand and value, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. being quoted at the last at 85⅝ to 85⅞, and the Four per Cents. at 79¼ to 79¾.—Times.

MISSIONS TO SEAMEN.—The Earl of Aberdeen presided at a public meeting in Willis's Rooms, London, on Wednesday, to promote the extension of religious ministration on board the shipping around our shores and abroad, and the barges navigating our canals. The report of the Missions to Seamen, 11, Buckingham-street, Strand, London, W.C., showed that the income for 1879 was £1,159 over that of the previous year, being £15,237 7s. 6d. The sphere of the society's operations afloat has been very greatly enlarged since its formation in 1856. By the latest official returns—those for December 31, 1878—it appears that, though the total number of sailing and steam vessels of the mercantile marine registered as belonging to the United Kingdom is slightly less now than in 1856, the tonnage is one-half more, and the men navigating them one-third more. There are now 25,254 such vessels of 6,492,121 tons, manned by 267,616 men. The increase has been mainly in steam vessels, which are now three times as many, with six times as much tonnage as in 1856. The tonnage of the sailing ships belonging to the United Kingdom is 259,000 tons more than when this society was founded, though they are 3,200 less in actual number. When we add to those belonging to the United Kingdom the ships registered in our colonies, many of which come to our shores, and all of which demand special spiritual provision, it appears that there is a combined increase of 2,600 vessels, the tonnage and men increasing in the same ratio as for the United Kingdom only. The grand total of the merchant shipping registered in the British Empire is now 38,616 ships of 8,329,421 tons, manned by 358,158 men. None of these vessels carry chaplains.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY COMPANY.—The directors announce that they are prepared to receive tenders for conveyance by steamer from Liverpool or Birkenhead to Bombay, viâ Suez Canal, of 2,000 tons steel rails, &c., deliverable between the 12th instant and 10th proximo. Particulars and forms of tender may be obtained at the office of the company, 3, New Broad-street, E.C., or at the office of Messrs. H. N. Hughes and Co. of Harvey-buildings, Liverpool. Tenders must state the name of steamer and date of sailing, and must be lodged at the London office before noon on Friday next.

OUDE AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY COMPANY.—The board of directors give notice that they are prepared to renew, for a further period of seven years, the £615,300 debentures, bearing this interest guaranteed by the Secretary of State for India in Council, at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, which were issued on June 4, 1873, and which will fall due on the 4th proximo. The proprietors of these bonds who desire their renewal should communicate their wish, in writing, to the managing director, C. C. Johnston, at 29, Martin's-lane, Cannon-street, E.C., prior to Monday, the 17th instant, and they will subsequently be advised by letter when the bonds should be lodged for the purpose of endorsement. The proprietors of bonds who do not desire their renewal should also communicate with the office before the same date, in order that the necessary arrangements may be made for paying them off.

THE INDIAN RUPEE AND THE DEPRECIATION IN THE PRICE OF SILVER.—An association is in course of formation by Mr. E. J. Watherston, of Pall-mall East, the object of which is to obtain the abolition of the duty upon manufactured silver plate, in the interests of the Indian rupee. It is proposed that a deputation shall wait upon Lord Hartington, at the India-office, for the purpose of drawing the attention of the Government to the anomalous position of the silver market, and the inexpediency of maintaining a tax which has the effect of limiting the demand for the raw material for manufacturing purposes.

PERSONAL INTELLIGENCE.—The following gentlemen have satisfactorily passed their final examination (law of real and personal property, common law and equity), held at the Inns of Court in March:—Mr. Syud Abdur Rahman and Mr. Peary Lall Roy, of the Inner Temple; Mr. Mohammed Hussein Hakim and Mr. Krishna Nath Mitra, of Lincoln's-inn. Mr. W. C. Niblett (Benares), of the Inner Temple, has satisfactorily passed the examination in Roman Law. The following gentlemen were called to the bar on April 21:—Mr. Abul Fazl Mahomed Abdur Rahman (Calcutta), Mr. Peary Lall Roy (Barisal), Downing College, Cambridge, both of the Inner Temple; Mr. Abul Hassan Khan (Patna), Mr. Abdul Haleem (Mirzapore), Mr. Muhammad Serajuddin (Mirzapore), all of the Middle Temple; and Mr. Muhammad Hussein Hakim (Bombay), of Lincoln's-inn. Arrivals.—Mr. Lal Mohun Ghose, from Calcutta; Mr. J. B. Chatterjee and Mr. T. N. Chatterjee, also from Calcutta; Mr. M. P. Kharegat, to compete for the Indian Medical Service.—Journal National Indian Association.

DRURY LANE THEATRE.—Mr. Augustus Harris will produce on Saturday next at Drury Lane, on a very grand scale, a new ballet entitled "Les Sirènes." Nothing, we understand, will be spared in any department to make it worthy of the boards on which it is to be produced and of the reputation for spectacle which the present able management has already acquired.

Mr. FAWCETT AND INDIA.—We have received from the committee formed to promote Mr. Fawcett's election in Hackney the following address, which has been sent to them numerously signed by natives of all parts of India:—"To the Electors of Hackney.—Gentlemen, we, the undersigned inhabitants of different parts of British India, have learnt with great satisfaction that you have again returned Mr. Henry Fawcett as your representative in the British House of Commons. We felt not a little anxious when we heard it rumoured that a strong opposition would be offered to Mr. Fawcett's election, but the result of the elections has afforded a most welcome relief to all Indians who are familiar with the history of the arduous and unremitting labours of Mr. Fawcett for the advancement of the welfare of the people of this country. In the present political condition of India Parliament is the arbiter of the destinies of her myriad millions, but under the laws of the British Constitution she has no direct representation in Parliament. She must, therefore, look to the disinterested and philanthropic labours of the representatives of British constituencies for the advocacy of her cause, the conservation of her rights and interests, and the redress of her grievances. Owing, however, to her geographical position, to the peculiar character of her administrative organisation, and to differences arising from the diversities of the religions, languages, manners, and customs of her people, India labours under a serious disadvantage. Her wants, wishes, and sentiments cannot be readily brought to the notice of members of Parliament in such a vivid way as to enable them to realise the sacred responsibilities which devolve upon them as the representatives of the great British nation in respect of this distant dependency, the fate of which an All-wise Providence has linked with that of England, and the best interests of which are committed to their care, consideration, and control. Mr. Fawcett, by statutory law your representative, under the immutable laws of Divine justice the champion of the poor, the weak, and the oppressed throughout the British Empire, has been one of the few who have familiarised themselves with the condition of India, mastered the details of Indian administration, and been the foremost in lending their voice to the mute millions of India, in advocating their natural claims to just and good government, and in demonstrating that the true interests of India and England are identical. The services Mr. Fawcett has rendered to India are too numerous and too well known to require recapitulation. While we feel deeply thankful to him for his earnest and unceasing advocacy of our national cause, we are not the less beholden to you for putting him, before and now, in a position to give the benefit of his rare intellectual gifts, generous sympathies, and practical wisdom to the millions of this country by his presence in the Imperial Parliament of the United Kingdom. It is through your kindness India is enabled to look forward to continued assistance from Mr. Fawcett, and we therefore consider it our duty to convey to you this earnest expression of our sense of gratitude."—Times.

A SAD OCCURRENCE NEAR PUNA.—A sad occurrence took place on April 2 by which Private Brazier, of H.M.'s 78th Highlanders, lost his life. The unfortunate man obtained permission to go out shooting for a day. It is said that whilst hunting about the prickly pear hedges, his dog got entangled in the bushes, and as he was clearing off the hedges with the bill of his rifle, which was loaded, with the mouth of the barrel pointing to his chest, the gun went off and the shots lodged in his left side. Two Eurasian young men, who were passing at the time, saw Brazier helpless and bleeding. A country cart was procured and the wounded man was brought into Puna into the hospital barracks of her Majesty's 78th Highlanders, for medical treatment, where he died at eight o'clock on the morning of the 3rd.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.
CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.
CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.
CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.
CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.
CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manilla, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1864.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 13th July, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words, "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanies each bottle.

60,000 SHARES OF £1 EACH,

Part of the Registered Capital, at a premium of 5s per Share.

The Premium on this Issue of Shares will be specially carried to the "Reserve Fund" for the benefit of Shareholders.

CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS.
Captain Fortescue, J.P.

BANKERS.
The Capital and Counties Bank (Limited), Head Office, Threadneedle-street, London, and at the various Branches.

SECRETARY.
Mr. Joseph Wykes.

Since the first allotment of Shares the Directors have the pleasure to announce that the Company have secured the very valuable Freehold Estates of "Lackadie" and "Madutelia," in the Wynaad District of Southern India, the very heart of the Gold-bearing region, comprising an area of about 900 acres for a sum of £40 000, payable £20,000 in Cash and £20,000 in Shares, at the option of the Company.

As an instance of the daily increasing demand for Gold properties in Southern India, the Directors need only inform the Shareholders that, since the securing these Estates, a much larger price has been offered for them, which, taken with the restrictions placed upon the grant of the Leases by the Government, and the limitation to thirty acres, renders the acquisition of these Properties most advantageous.

Too much importance cannot be attached to the circumstance that the Property the Company has acquired is Freehold and without restrictions.

About 250 acres is under cultivation as a Coffee Plantation, and in the sale to the Company is included the Growing Crops, Buildings, Stock, &c. The Estates possess a plentiful supply of labour, water, and timber, and are easily accessible to the Imperial and district roads, and water carriage.

At the earliest opportunity the Directors purpose erecting sufficient machinery to crush 150 tons of quartz per day, which it is estimated will give the following result:—

150 tons of Quartz crushed per day for 300 working days, yielding 10dwt. of Gold per Ton, at the selling price of £3 15s. per oz.

Amounts to per annum	£84,375 0 0
Deduct—
Cost of Crushing 45,000 Tons, at 12s. 6d. per Ton	28,125 0 0
Other Expenses, say 5s. per Ton	11,250 0 0
	£39,375 0 0
Thus leaving a Net Profit per annum of	45,000 0 0

[Equal to a Dividend of over 40 per cent. on the entire capital of the Company.]

Corroborative evidence of the value of these Estates may be had in the Prospectus containing extracts from the recent report of Mr. Brough Smyth.

The Directors, in conclusion, have much pleasure and satisfaction in submitting the Investment to the public, and that in order to avoid disappointment to applicants for Shares they will allot the Shares strictly in accordance with the order in which they are received.

Applications will be received by the Bankers or Secretary of the Company as follows:—

5s. 0d. per Share on Application.
7s. 6d. ,, Allotment.
12s. 6d. ,, 15th June.

Prospectuses, Forms of Application, Government Notices, and Map, will be forwarded on application to the Secretary, at the Offices, 15, Finsbury-place South, London, E.C.

KIRKMAN AND SON'S

OVERSTRUNG

GRAND AND COTTAGE PIANOS.

Is being considered by some competent judges that the German method of over or cross-stringing Pianos is attended with great advantage, Messrs. Kirkman and Son are now manufacturing both Grand and Cottage Pianos on this principle, the latter having the plain Sticker Action, which is not the case with Pianos of this class manufactured by other makers; in fact, the extreme simplicity of the action used by Messrs. Kirkman and Son in all their Pianos render them eminently suitable for exportation to the Colonies, where skilled workmen are few and far between All useless checks and complications are carefully avoided, thus enabling any tuner, with however superficial a knowledge of the business, to regulate them or repair any damage they may sustain.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, April 24; Madras and Allahabad, April 22; Calcutta, April 21.

THE reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending April 13 state that rain fell during the week in Madras, Burma, Assam, Mysore, and Coorg. In the Bassein and Prome Districts of Burma the rain was very plentiful. There was slight rain also in some districts of Bombay and Bengal. In parts of the latter Province and of the Punjab the want of rain is felt. The harvest of the rabi crops is almost completed; the yield has been good, and preparations for the sowing of kharif crops are in progress. Agricultural prospects and public health remain generally good.

A SUMMARISED report of the public health for the same week is as follows:—Bombay: Small-pox in one district, and fever in three; public health otherwise good. Bengal: Small-pox still prevalent in Cooch Behar, Bhagalpur, Purneah, and Lohardugga; sporadic small-pox and cholera also in some other districts. North West Provinces and Oudh: Sporadic cholera reported from Benares, Gorakhpur, Allahabad, Lucknow, Fyzabad, and Partabgarh; slight small-pox in Allahabad and fever in Agra; otherwise health good. Punjab: Health good. British Burma: Small-pox still prevalent in Pegu division. Mysore: Fever prevalent in parts.

WE have received the following from the India-office:—

"FROM VICEROY, May 4.—General Stewart arrived in Cabul 2nd, and took command. His division occupies position in Logar Valley, near Charakh. Stewart reports Ghuzni quite incapable of resisting artillery. Walls in utter disrepair. He brought away two guns left by English after last occupation. Sirdar Mahammad Alam Khan, believed acceptable to both Hazaras and Afghans, appointed Governor by Stewart. Stewart wrote to Musa Khan, who was twenty miles distant, inviting him to return to Ghuzni. He replied, he would come directly state of country permitted. Tahir Khan accompanies Stewart to Ghuzni. Still a large gathering of tribes in Shilghur Valley, under Mushk-i-Alam, but spirit much shaken by recent defeat. Musa Khan has now returned to Ghuzni and is with the Governor. Kurram reports attempts being made to raise tribes for attack on force when advancing to Ali Kheyl. On morning, 22nd, attack made by Dami and Mahsud Waziri raiders on Chappri post, near Thal. A transport officer killed and eight men wounded. Enemy left two dead. Wali of Kandahar has destroyed village of leaders of attack on Dubrai post. A gathering in Arghastan intending attack on communications dispersed on Wali going out."

"FROM VICEROY, MAY 7.—Transport officer killed at Chapri, local Lieut. Oswald Wood, Bengal police. Cabul news 6th. All large bodies of Kohistanis in neighbourhood of Cabul have dispersed to their homes. Everything now quiet in Kohistan and Koh Daman. Sirdar Tahir Khan and Sarwar Khan have arrived at Cabul with their families. All quiet in Logar. From Kandahar, Wali Shere Ali Khan still in Arghastan District. All malcontents, except some of the Alizais of Mareef, have made their submission to him. Two or three of the attacking party on Dubrai have been seized, and Major Waudby's horse, sword, and gun recovered. Armed parties still reported in neighbourhood of Khelat-i-Ghilzai, but country generally quieting down. From Herat no news. All quiet in Zamindawar."

"FROM VICEROY, SIMLA, MAY 9.—General Roberts marched from Cabul 8th with strong force to the Logar Valley and Maidan, where he will halt to settle country and obtain supplies. Reports received from Kuram of large tribal gatherings at Zurmat and neighbourhood, probably with intention to dispute opening of our communications by Shutargardan. Excitement in Flogar (Logar?) subsided. Kohistan quiet. A party of our troops had successful skirmish with marauders near Khelat-i-Ghilzai. News confirmed of rising in Badakshan against Abdurrahman's authority. Shahzada Hassan, late Mir, was in Gilgit in April."

FROM Cabul there is little change reported. General Stewart has assumed chief command and control of political affairs. The Kandahar column is encamped in the Logar Valley, whither, on the 8th inst., Sir F. Roberts marched 8,000 men for a promenade through that and the Wardah country. The Ghilzai chiefs, except Asmatullah Khan, have decided to submit. The latter is supposed to have instigated a raid on the Government camels and sheep at Jellalabad. The chiefs generally seem to wait the decision of Abdurrahman. Three new Guide Corps, for service on the higher Kuram and Kandahar lines, are about to be raised, composed chiefly of Hazaras, each regiment having four European officers.

THE Kandahar telegrams state that the Wali, assisted by a small force, had subdued a refractory chief near Khelat-i-Ghilzai. Major Biscoe and Col. Tanner recovered some stores which had been looted, and defeated an attack by a party of fanatics. One party, consisting of about eighty men, made a stand on a precipitous hill, whence they were promptly dislodged by the Belooches, who stormed what is described as a very strong position in a gallant manner, losing only one man wounded, but killing fourteen of the Ghazis and taking eighty prisoners. Sir Robert Sandeman and General Phayre appear to have succeeded in restoring tranquillity along the projected line of railway, but it may not improbably be advisable to keep a larger force there than at first anticipated. Fortunately, excellent summer quarters have been found, affording equally good strategic positions.

THE correspondent of the Standard telegraphed yesterday from Hissark as follows:—

"General Hughes has encamped at Hissark with General Palliser's and General Lacy's brigades. He detached General Barter's brigade in order to watch the Altimor and Chardak Passes. These lead into the valleys which are held by armed bands. The passes have been fortified with the view of opposing our entry, which is not intended. The Jarmat gathering of the mixed clans is very considerable. Report says that the gathering has been raised at the instigation of Mahomed Jan, who has started for Ghazni, promising to return with assistance. General Roberts, flashing us from Charasiab, says that he has halted at Zargunshur. Military correspondence with the press has been prohibited."

THE appointment of General Massy to command the Rawul Pindi Brigade, which has been officially announced, is generally taken as an admission on the part of the Government that his recall from Cabul was a hasty and ill-considered measure.

A REUTER'S telegram received last week announced that the Indian Government has sent a despatch to the Secretary of State for India showing that the cost of the Afghan war will probably exceed the estimates by at least £4,000,000. An appended minute from the Member of Council for the Military Department and a memorandum from the Military Accountant General explain the manner in which the estimates were framed, and the reasons for which the Military Department believed them to be sufficient, and officially recommended the Finance Department to adopt them in the Indian Budget. The minute declares the Military Department to be entirely responsible for the estimates, and states the chief reasons which led to the increased expenditure, and which were unforeseen when the estimates were made. Among these are the necessary purchase, instead of merely the hire, of a great proportion of the means of transport required, the cost of transporting to the front supplies for six months, and the enormous increase in the price of grain and all other supplies, famine prices prevailing both at the base and in Afghanistan. Higher wages had to be paid to all camp followers on account of their dread of foreign service, and the minute points out the necessity that arose for constructing works for the maintenance of the positions gained and the protection of the troops in consequence of the prolongation of the war beyond the time anticipated. The exhaustion of the local resources, and the necessity for frequently renewing the means of transport, which had to be drawn from distant provinces of India at constantly increasing cost, are also dwelt upon. The despatch of the Indian Government declares that the condition of the Indian finances, apart from the war, continues to be thoroughly satisfactory, and that the estimates of revenue have been realised. The general financial position is good, as described in the Budget statement, and the despatch says that but for the war there would have been a surplus of £4,000,000 both in the past and present year.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times says that it is admitted that certain other items of the last financial statement must be revised, the land revenue, the excise, and the customs being better than anticipated, while the assessed taxes and those on salt, opium, and stamps are worse. The deficiency arising from the falling off in the last four items is, after allowing for the improvement in the other three, £81,997.

THE Marquis of Ripon, K.G., has made the following appointments to his staff:—Colonel C. Gordon, R.E., private secretary; Lieut. Eugene L. Brett, Scots Guards, Lieut. C. W. Muir, B.S.C., and Lord William Beresford, V.C., 9th Lancers, aides de camp; Captain Barrington Foote, R.A., and Captain the Hon. C. W. FitzWilliam, Royal Horse Guards, extra aides de camp; and Surgeon Major Anderson, surgeon major.

THE Marquis of Ripon has appointed Major George White, 92nd Highlanders, as his military secretary.

THE Marquis of Ripon has, says the Broad Arrow, on the recommendation of Colonel Gordon, appointed Major General Adeane Barlow to a responsible post under the Indian Government, for which his knowledge of Oriental languages and familiarity with the usages of the East render him specially qualified. Is he to be Press Commissioner?

IT is officially announced that Lord Lytton will await his successor's arrival, and will make over the charge of the Government at Simla early next month. He will remain in the hills till the setting in of the rains, which makes it possible to travel comfortably, and he will then start from Bombay about the end of June.

RECENT telegrams state that the Kuldja Treaty has been entirely rejected by the Chinese Government, which claims from Russia the unconditional retrocession of Ili, and has intimated that it will invade and occupy that district in the event of non-compliance with its demand. The Chinese Government has come to an amicable arrangement with Japan regarding the Loochoo question, and it is reported that, in the event of war between Russia and China, Japan will help the Chinese. Prince Li has authorised the engagement of foreigners for service in the Chinese army and navy.

WE regret to learn that Major General Cunningham, C.S.I., C.I.E., Director General of the Archæological Survey of India, has met with an accident by a fall from his elephant while at Roorkee. General Cunningham was by last reports at Simla, and was on the road to recovery.

THE Kandahar News of April 10 (No. 2 second series) contains the report of a meeting in the artillery lines in which it was resolved to form a station library, which, it is hoped, will be the foundation of a Kandahar club. The hon. secretary of the library will be glad to receive presents of books towards its formation.

THE Government of India have determined shortly to introduce into the Legislative Council a bill for consolidating and amending the law relating to Presidency towns Small Cause Courts.

THE Bishop of Lahore writes to the Allahabad journal that Lord Tankerville approves of his suggestion that a joint memorial be erected in the Punjab Cathedral to commemorate all the officers who have fallen in the Afghan war. This should be carried out by a general subscription, in which all those who desire to commemorate their lost friends are invited to join.

THE Madras correspondent of the Allahabad journal says that enterprise is likely to be checked in certain parts of the Wynaad in consequence of litigation. This has been anticipated for some little time. It was known that the right of ownership of certain blocks was challenged, and that the dispute was likely to culminate in legal hostilities. It is now currently reported that actions and cross-actions are pending. If this rumour prove true, work will, of course, be brought to a deplorable stand-still, and the general high opinion formed of the field at home will suffer. The best endeavours will no doubt be made to settle ground right disputes. This difficulty does not arise in the Kotal goldfield.

NOW that "the people of England have given Imperialism its deathblow," the Calcutta Statesman thinks that one of the earliest measures of a strong and beneficent foreign policy should be "the establishment in Upper Burma of a humane and capable Government." We might be justified in lending a hand to overthrow Theebaw if Providence has not removed him. The cause of humanity and British interests both seem to our converted contemporary to call for interposition.

THE Pioneer argues that the Bengal Medical Service has benefited instead of losing by the recent order in respect of emoluments. As to other complaints, "it has been said that, under the new arrangements, all the good stations have been assigned to deputy surgeon generals of the Army Medical Department. But here, again, the facts are very simple, and admit of easy comparision. The stations allotted to the Army Medical Department are Allahabad, Meerut, Lucknow, Rawal Pindi, Umballa, and Peshawur. The stations allotted to the Bengal service are Calcutta, Shillong, Lahore, Morar, and Abbotabad, but to these must be added the hill residencies of the local Governments, where the civil deputies may spend the summer—viz., Darjiling, Naini Tal, Pachmari, and Simla. Two out of the three sanitary commissioners also generally reside for a great part of the hot season and rains at one or other of these sanatoria. It does not require much acquaintance with India or with the relative advantages of the hills and plains to say which service has been most favoured in regard to stations. The Indian service has manifestly the advantage in this respect, not only over the Army Medical Department, but also over the distribution which existed before the new arrangements came into force. Moreover, it is not to be overlooked that, whereas the pecuniary value of the administrative appointments held by officers of the local service has been increased, as above shown, by Rs.2,700 a month, the value of such appointments in the Army Medical Department in Bengal has been reduced by Rs.2,800 a month.

THE annual report of the Anglo-Oriental Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade contained the remarkable statement that "from India there was nothing good to report; £2,000,000 more had been realised from the sale of opium than had been set down in the estimates." These excellent philanthropists would have exulted over a deficit caused by the failure of the crop or stoppage of the trade. The report also stated that some parts of British Burma had been completely demoralised by the facilities afforded by the Government for the consumption of opium. We commend this allegation to the authorities at Rangoon.

THE death is announced at Rangoon of Colonel Wigram Arthur Cheke, commanding the 22nd Madras N.I. He died suddenly, and a post mortem examination showed the cause of death to be aneurism of the aorta. Colonel Cheke, who was only forty-three years of age, obtained his first commission on August 7, 1855, was promoted to lieutenant on November 23, 1856, succeeded to his company August 7, 1867, promoted major January 1, 1874, and his lieutenant colonelcy on October 5 of the same year. He had also just a few days before obtained command of his regiment. As generous-hearted a man, says the Rangoon Gazette, as ever breathed, and a universal favourite, his sudden death has been a shock to his many friends there.

DURING the week ending April 10 there were 187 deaths in Calcutta, giving a death-rate of 22·7 per 1,000 per annum. In Madras the same week there were 297 deaths, giving a rate of 38·8 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay, during the week ending the 13th, the deaths numbered 466, being a rate of 36·39 per 1,000 per annum.

FROM the accounts of the trade and navigation of British India for the first eleven months of the last financial year, as compared with those of the corresponding period of 1878-79, we see that the value of merchandise imported was Rs.37,24,59,020, as against Rs.35,07,49,319, and that of merchandise exported Rs.59,41,75,631, as against Rs.54,09,16,136. The value of treasure imported was Rs.10,90,31,305, as against Rs.5,71,99,997, and that of treasure exported Rs.1,97,84,113, as against Rs.3,42,79,539. The gross amount of import duty collected was Rs.3,66,54,729, as against Rs.3,66,75,965, and of export duty Rs.49,40,562, as against Rs.49,19,421.

AMONG the presentations at the Levée on the 7th inst. were the following:—By the Secretary of State for India: Major J. S. Blaxland, Madras Army; Major General H. A. Dwyer; Mr. Robert A. Dalzell, on being made a C.S.I.; Major General J. A. Fuller, Royal (Bombay) Engineers, on promotion; Col. Faulknor, Bombay Army, on promotion; Mr. Abdul Hassan Khan; Mr. Thomas Ormiston, C.I.E.; Mr. Trevor C. Plowden, on appointment as Consul General at Bagdad; Major R. S. Roberts, deputy assistant quartermaster general Madras Army; Col. T. H. Sibley, Bengal Staff Corps; Lieut. C. W. Street, Madras Saff Corps; Major E. T. Thackeray V.C., R.E., on return from Afghanistan; Mr. George Thornhill, C.S.I., on being made C.S.I. By H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge: Major General Sir Henry Havelock-Allan, on change of name; Captain W. Forster, 60th Rifles, on return from Afghanistan; Lieut. C. E. Pollock, 10th Bengal (D.C.O.) Lancers, on return from Afghanistan; Major General Spurgin, C.B., C.S.I., on appointment to command a brigade at Aldershot. By the Secretary of State for the Colonies: Col. Sir George Pomeroy Colley, K.C.S.I., C.B., C.M.G., on appointment as Governor of Natal and High Commissioner South East Africa; Mr. William Edward Maxwell, Assistant Resident at Perak. By the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs: Mr. Harry Parkes M'Clatchie, her Majesty's Consul for Chefoo, China; Mr. Thomas Russell Hillier M'Clatchie, interpreter, her Majesty's Consular Service, Japan. By the Assistant Adjutant General, R.A.: Lient. E. C. Trollope, R.H.A., on return from Afghanistan; Capt. J. Younger, R.H.A., on return from Afghanittan; Mr. Edward A. Sassoon; Lord Lawrence, by the Duke of Aygyll; Mr. J. Scarlett Campbell, by the Right Hon. W. P. Adam, M.P.; Mr. Horace Walpole, on being made a C.B., by Lord Cranbrook.

THE Times of India expresses the relief of the military authorities at the departure of the last troopship of a busy season. That the friction has been of the slightest, owing to the able discharge of the executive duties of the Quartermaster General's Department by Majors Adam and Jopp. It seems, however, that there has been much trouble about special passages, aggravated by unnecessary questions. It is suggested that before next year it would be well to issue clear instructions as to special passages, especially to the fact of one refusal being final.

THE Times of India gives the following:—

OBITUARY OF THE WEEK.—Dr. Doolittle, Lieut. Col. W. A. Cheke (Madras), Mr. W. Norman, Mr. R. Hand, Col. W. H. Godfrey (Bombay), Major Waudby (Bombay), H. H. Rama Warmah, Prince of Cochin, Mr. E. S. Andrew, Mr. J. C. Crow.

THE Postmaster General will be able to benefit Anglo-Indians by regulating the transmission of Post-office orders from India, which appears at present to be somewhat uncertain. We have recently heard of a case in which two months' delay has occurred between the despatch of a Bombay order and the payment of the same by the General Post-office authorities. No imaginable cause can exist for such irregularities.

DEPARTURE OF THE INDIAN VICEROY.

THE Marquis of Ripon, the new Governor General of India, left Charing-cross by the South Eastern Railway tidal service train, at 10.45 this morning for India, viâ Folkestone and Boulogne, Paris, and Brindisi. His Excellency was accompanied by the following members of his suite:—Lieut. E. L. Brett, Scots Guards, Aide de Camp, Sir Andrew Clarke, Colonel Gordon, Captain Fitzwilliam, Captain Barrington Foote, Dr. Anderson, &c. The noble marquis was received at the station by the Right Hon. E. H. Knatchbull-Hugessen, deputy chairman of the South Eastern Railway, and by Mr. Myles-Fenton, general manager. A royal saloon was set apart for the accommodation of his Excellency, who was loudly cheered as the train moved out of the station. Among a distinguished company who were on the platform to bid the Marquis farewell were:—The Earl of Northbrook, the Marquis of Hartington, the Right Hon. Hugh Childers, M.P., Sir Digby Probyn, with Colonel Clarke and Colonel Ellis, equerries to the Prince of Wales.

SIR P. HAINES ON THE ARMY COMMISSION.

THE Commander-in-Chief's Memorandum on the Army Commission Report has been published. His Excellency begins by expressing regret that the sittings of the commission continued after the departure of four of its members for the front. Generals Phayre and O'Connell arrived late, and General Lumsden was fully occupied with other matters; so that there were few meetings at which all the members attended. After this preliminary protest, Sir F. Haines goes on to state at length his reasons for dissenting from most of the more important recommendations of the commission. He strongly objects to the proposal that the Commander-in-Chief should cease to be a member of the Council and should have no direct command of troops. This proposal would, he thinks, make the Commander-in-Chief a purely bureaucratic personage. Neither does he approve of the suggestions as to the Territorial Army Corps. He considers that the existence of three separate Governments and of three separate armies under them is a distinct source of safety and power such as could not be given by an army corps slightly connected with the local power. He sees no possible advantage to be derived from an amalgamated staff, and considers the appointment of a chief of the staff unnecessary for the ordinary administration of the army. The German system of army corps is, in Sir F. Haines's opinion, wholly unsuited for India, and he thinks that the localisation of troops in the districts to which they belong would be most mischievous and dangerous. He is averse from diminishing the cadres, which would necessitate the frequent division of regiments into detachments, thereby damaging their efficiency and discipline. The number of horse and field batteries ought, in his opinion, rather to be increased than diminished. He is especially opposed to the proposed reduction in the Madras Army. He believes that some of the proposals as to the abandonment of stations will have the effect of sacrificing a real and efficient control over the country with the view to a more compact and symmetrical distribution of troops. One of the few points on which he concurs with the commission is its condemnation of the Staff Corps system, which he regards as being in a great part the cause of the inordinate cost of the army in recent years.—Times Telegram.

THE NAGA HILLS FORCE.

THE Indian papers contain full details of the successful march through the Kuki and Nutcha villages which resulted in the occupation of Paplongmai and the final submission of the Konoma Nagas. The expedition, numbering about 150 sepoys and some police, was commanded by Capt. A. K. Abbott, 42nd N.I., who was accompanied by Mr. H. M. Hinde, political officer, Lieut. A. L. Barratt, 43rd N.I., and Surg. N. Campbell, A.M.D. The correspondent says that Capt. Abbott's party marched upwards of 300 miles through most difficult country for military operations, having to cut their way through jungle almost every day, besides repairing roads, bridging water-courses, and so forth. The men (Sikhs and Goorkhas) did their work most cheerfully, and behaved in the most soldier-like manner, although often on short rations, with spare clothing and in a trying climate. It is to be hoped that the Government will acknowledge the good services of the troops concerned, and make good the great losses in uniform, clothing, &c., suffered by both officers and men, by a grant of six months' batta.

DHARWAR COTTON.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—There appears to be some doubt in the mind of the Bombay Government whether Dharwar cotton should be shipped at Carwar or at Coomtah, thirty-five miles S.S.E., or at Goa, fifty miles N.N.W. of Carwar. The objection to Coomtah is that it is an open roadstead exposed to the fury of the south-west monsoon. Liverpool ships cannot take in cargoes there, and at certain seasons of the year it it is unsafe even for country vessels of light draught. Goa is in Portuguese territory, and the construction of a good railroad from Dharwar to Goa would be very expensive. Carwar, or Sadashevagurh, has for centuries been known as an excellent harbour. Professional officers have reported that it can now be made perfectly quiet and safe throughout the year, and as the depth of water varies from 14ft. to 34ft., it will be suitable for the accommodation of Liverpool ships. The Indian Government appears to be making up its mind to constructing a railway from Carwar to Bellary. In page 57 of the Annual Bluebook for 1877-78, published last month, I read :—"The survey of the Hubli and Belari line was completed, as was that of the Carwar and Hubli Railway." I presume that the delay of two years in commencing work must be attributed to the Afghan war; but if any line is likely to pay good interest on money expended on it, that line is from Carwar to Hubli. The agricultural produce of the Dharwar district is of immense value; one-third of the culturable land is believed to be under cotton tillage, and Dharwar cotton is the best in India. The black soil in the Bellary district also produces enormous quantities of excellent cotton. During the famine in Southern India in 1877, if there had been a railway to convey food from the west to Bellary, thousands of lives might have been saved. In the event of a rebellion, the military authorities will insist upon the construction of a line by which troops may be poured from the sea coast at Carwar to Goondacol Junction-station and Raichore. American cotton was grown most successfully in the Dharwar district in the year 1842. During a period of thirty-eight years all that Government has done to facilitate the transport of this excellent cotton to the sea coast has, I understand, been the construction of a cart road through Wuddigutta and Soonda to Coomtah. Some of the cart roads south of the Kristna river, in the Bellary, Mudgal, and Kaludgi districts, are useless; during the famine in 1877 grain to feed the starving had to be carried on men's heads.—Your obedient servant,

May 8. T.

Coomtah is not mentioned in Page 23 of the Official Tables of the Trade of British India for 1877-78, published last August. Honore, ten miles south of Coomtah, is the nearest official port; but Coomtah (at present considered the port for the export of Dharwar cotton) may be among the unmentioned ports where the total annual collection of customs duty does not exceed Rs.500, or £50 sterling. Bombay, evidently, does not wish that any other port within the Presidency should enjoy any foreign trade. Even at Honore the trade has lamentably decreased.

AGRICULTURE IN INDIA.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Mr. Robertson, in the interesting paper on agriculture in Southern India, which he read in the Society of Arts room on Friday, raised several questions, the importance of which can scarcely be overstated. India is essentially an agricultural country; the bulk of her population subsists by tillage, and her revenue is derived chiefly from land. Everything, therefore, that hinders the development of agriculture vitally affects the interests of the Government, as well as those of the people; and among the causes indicated by Mr. Robertson as operating in that direction the assessment of the land revenue is, perhaps, the most powerful.

Over the greater portion of the Madras Presidency the assessment of the land tax is, under the existing system, annually liable to enhancement at the option of the Government, and is actually enhanced wherever the productiveness of the land is found to have increased. The working of such a system necessitates the utmost caution lest the officers empowered periodically to readjust the land tax should so increase it as to leave too small a margin for the support of the cultivators, or to absorb the profits due to the expenditure of capital, and thereby discourage the application of capital to agriculture. During the last thirty years several causes have been at work, which afforded the greatest encouragement to agriculture in India. The construction of Indian railways with English capital not only opened new marts for Indian cultivators, but, by raising the price of labour and ameliorating the condition of the labouring classes, led to a larger consumption of agricultural produce. The Crimean War, moreover, by closing Russian ports, created an additional demand for Indian seeds and corn, and the Civil War in America gave an extraordinary impetus to the cultivation of Indian corn, jute, and other articles of Indian produce. These circumstances resulted in a rapid extension of cultivation throughout India, and the chairman of the meeting at the Society's room demonstrated, by statistical figures obtained at the India-office, the great increase in the area under tillage which occurred in the Madras Presidency during the period above mentioned. The authorities in India failed, however, to take into account the temporary nature of several of the causes which had led to this prosperity, and their belief that the cultivators, in their improved condition, could bear much heavier burdens than previously induced them to effect excessive enhancements in the demand upon land, amounting in some instances in the Bombay Presidency, where the revisions had not taken place for many years, to 100 per cent. of the existing tax, and, in some cases, to a greater proportion still. The restoration of peace in Europe and America, meanwhile, had brought down the price of Indian agricultural produce nearer to its former level, and the proceeds of the crops in India no longer enabled the cultivator to satisfy the enhanced demand of the Government. In his altered circumstances the ryot, in order to protect his field from attachment for arrears of revenue, had recourse first to the savings laid by in the years of prosperity, and, when these were exhausted, to the assistance of the money-lender, by means of a mortgage of his farm. With a continuation, however, of moderate prices, and with interest accruing on his debts, the ryot was ultimately, in numerous instances, unable to meet his increased liabilities, and his farm was put up for sale by the revenue authorities, subject to the enhanced rate of land tax, but free from the claim of the mortgagee, who thus lost the money he had advanced. Notwithstanding the last-named condition, which was favourable to buyers, many of the farms met with no purchasers at all, and thousands of acres of arable land, especially in the Bombay Presidency, were thus annually thrown out of cultivation between the years 1869 and 1876. The drought in the latter year found therefore the agricultural population in Madras and Bombay in greatly reduced circumstances; and when the crops in the following year likewise suffered from want of rain, many millions of human beings died of starvation or disease caused by insufficient food, and many millions sterling were lost to the State through deficient land revenue and famine relief expenditure. The immediate cause of all this misery to the people and of this heavy loss to the State was the impoverished and almost destitute condition in which the drought of 1876 found the peasantry and the landholders in general. Such destitution, however, would obviously not have occurred, looking at the remarkable prosperity which the same classes enjoyed at the close of the American war, had they been allowed to retain the savings effected under the prosperous circumstances of preceding years, and to continue applying them, as many had already done, to the sinking of irrigation wells and to other improvements in their farms. The primary cause of the evil must consequently be looked for in the excessive enhancement of the land tax in Bombay between 1869 and 1874, and in the maintenance of unduly oppressive rates in Madras, where the land tax is intentionally fixed at so high a figure that it is recoverable only after full crops, and leaves outstanding balances in other years, thus keeping the bulk of the cultivators in a permanent state of poverty and indebtedness. I am glad to observe in the report of the meeting a confirmation of the views expressed above, in the following sentence of Sir William Robinson's speech on the occasion :—"The land tax in India is a very heavy fiscal demand, amounting to one-half the net produce of the land, a proportion which in England would go a long way to arrest improvement." Mr. Robertson thought that a remedy would be found in the permanent limitation of the Government demand on land, as it would induce the application of capital to agriculture; and Sir Charles Trevelyan probably entertained the same thought when he said, on the same occasion, that "the burdens of taxation could be lightened by greater certainty."—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

Devonshire Club, May 10. J. DACOSTA.

THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—In explanation of the feelings of distrust and uneasiness which have given rise to the Indian Medical Service Defence Committee, will you kindly allow me to detail, in chronological order, a few of the steps taken by the Indian Government since the Mutiny to reorganise the Indian Medical Service, and to respond to the prayers of memorials from the service asking to have acknowledged grievances redressed? In 1859 the service memorialised the Secretary of State on its position as regarded rank, furlough, pay, pensions, and leave. In 1860 the Secretary of State replied, deferring the consideration of the subjects referred to in the memorials he had received until the reorganisation of the army was under consideration. In 1864 the Secretary of State, for the first time since 1860, took up the questions brought to his notice in 1859, and in a letter to the Government of India abolished staff salaries and introduced consolidated rates of pay, "employed" and "unemployed," granted rank equivalent to that in the A.M.D., but left the pension and leave rules almost unaltered. In applying the Secretary of State's order to the service all medical officers, except regimental, were held to be "unemployed," and therefore all medical officers in civil and staff employment, or, in other words, about three-fourths of the service, were excluded from the benefits of the Secretary of State's order. They were not, however, excluded from its disadvantages, as, in consequence of the increased rank given, they were compelled by Government to pay heavy donations and subscriptions to Military and Orphan Funds. Assistant surgeons, for instance, promoted to the relative rank of captain were compelled to pay to the funds donations of £46 each and subscriptions of £4 10s., instead of £2 12s., a month, though they were left on the pay they had previously received when ranking as lieutenants. In 1865, to appease the discontent caused by the financial manœuvres of 1864, Sir John Lawrence authorised medical officers in civil employment to be allowed the military pay of their rank in lieu of all other allowances, on the condition that they should be called upon to resign their appointments, and that it should be deemed inadvisable to accept their resignations. All medical officers to whom this order applied tendered their resignations at once, and were, as their services could not be dispensed with, placed on the employed military pay of their rank by the local Governments under which they served. In 1866 Sir John Lawrence notified that the pay he had intended to give medical officers in civil employment by his order of 1865 was the unemployed and not the employed rate of military pay (the former was in most, if not all, cases less than civil salaries with allowances), and he directed all sums paid in excess of unemployed pay to be at once recovered. Results—Local Governments replaced their medical officers on their former salaries and allowances, and the accountant general retrenched all sums paid in excess of unemployed pay, and left many officers without even subsistence allowance for months. The writer of this, under Sir John Lawrence's second order, received as pay only Rs.20, or less than £2, a month for three months. In 1866 the indignation of the service, excited by the treatment above recorded, was allayed by the publication of a letter from E. H. Lushington, secretary to the Government of India, who, after having given an outline of the scheme recommended for the revision of civil salaries, and pointed out that the scheme would of necessity be for some time under consideration, said "The decision on this recommendation will, however, be allowed retrospective effect." In 1867 the scheme adopted for the revision of civil salaries was published, but was preceded by a few days by a second letter from E. H. Lushington stating that, through a "clerical error," the word "not" was omitted from his first letter, which should be read, "Will not, however, be allowed retrospective effect." Result—The scheme was given effect to from the date of its publication only, and the service lost three years' back pay, as well as the large sums it had been compelled by Government to pay to the military and orphan funds, the assets of which, be it noted, Government shortly afterwards appropriated. In 1868 the new furlough rules were promulgated, the second paragraph of which guaranteed that furlough pay thenceforth would be calculated at the fixed rate of exchange of 2s. per rupee. This was the greatest boon the rules conferred. In 1871 the Duke of Argyll cancelled with retrospective effect paragraph 2 of the furlough rules of 1868, and ordered furlough pay to be paid at the rate of exchange of the day, which now causes all officers on furlough a loss of 25 per cent. on their pay. In 1875 the Duke of Argyll's breach of faith was brought to the notice of Parliament, and so much of his order as gave retrospective effect to the alterations he had made in the furlough rules was cancelled. In 1876 the Government of India ordered all civil surgeons to resign their appointments or to submit to reductions of their pay, in many cases exceeding £10 a month. The reductions ordered were enforced without notice, and were continued for about six months, when Government was compelled to cancel its arbitrary orders and to refund all sums retrenched. In 1880 the service was made subordinate to the A.M.D. The appointments of surgeon general and of six deputy surgeons general were abolished, and the individuality of the service was destroyed. Though a civil administrative staff has since been created, with its chief styled "surgeon general," the appointment has in reality ceased to exist. No successor has been appointed to Surg. Gen. Beatson, and the conferring the designation of "surgeon general" on the sanitary commissioner with the Government of India is a mere sham, but, nevertheless, a gross injustice to the service. The sanitary commissioner, now called "surgeon general," continues to discharge the same duties and to receive almost the same pay as he received as sanitary commissioner. He resigned all claims to promotion in 1877 to be able to continue in the enjoyment of his highly paid appointment, with a summer residence at Simla, which he has held since 1869. Under existing rules he would shortly be obliged to retire, but now, from being called "surgeon general," he has obtained a fresh lien on his appointment of sanitary commissioner, and will stop promotion for five years. The promotion of the superintendent of the Lunatic Asylum, Bengal, under almost precisely similar circumstances, is another equally palpable act of injustice perpetrated in violation of all the rules of the service, but to which I cannot further refer, as I have already trespassed too much upon your indulgence.—I remain, Sir, yours faithfully,

May 4. SURGEON GENERAL.

THE EURASIANS.

WHEN Lord Lytton leaves India one section of the community at any rate will have cause to regret his departure. We refer to the Eurasians, in whose welfare the present Viceroy has always evinced a friendly interest. In the third annual report of the Eurasian and Anglo-Indian Association, which has just reached us, the board or committee place on record their sense of the debt which the Eurasian community owe Lord Lytton, whose minute on the education of the Anglo-Indian children of the poorer classes is said to have gone to "the root of the evils which have eaten into the heart of the humbler grades of Christian society in India," and may be regarded as the charter of its hopes. With the assistance of Mr. D. Sutherland, of the Middle Temple, a sort of corresponding committee of the society has been formed in London, which will be incorporated as a sub-committee with the East India Association. We wish it success. Sympathy with the aims of the association has, we are told, been expressed by the Earl of Derby, Mr. Bright, Gen. Jacob, Mr. Chamberlain, and other men of position, and help has been offered in urging its views in Parliament. The association, however, have so much faith in Lord Lytton that they say it is doubtful whether it will be necessary for the London committee, during the present Viceroyalty at least, to do more than spread the objects of the association before the English public through the press. Much has happened since those lines were penned, and it may now be found advisable to send the deputation to the Secretary of State, as suggested by Capt. Palmer; and the association, we should imagine, may count upon the assistance of Lord Lytton at home should it be decided to take active steps to bring its aims and objects before Parliament. But they must first of all make it clear what those aims and objects are. Many persons, doubtless, would gladly help the society if they knew exactly what it wanted. This difficulty, we see, presented itself to the secretary of the Indian Association when waited upon by Mr. Sutherland. "Capt. Palmer," writes Mr. Sutherland, "questioned me very closely, and in all sorts of ways, as to what the grievances of the Eurasians and Anglo-Indians actually were. The impression on his mind seemed to me to be that these grievances were shadowy or sentimental; and I endeavoured (I hope successfully) to remove this erroneous impression by showing, as well as I could on the spur of the moment, how these grievances were real and tangible, socially and politically. With reference to his question as to the remedy I would propose, I replied promptly, 'at least an equality of rights and privileges with the Hindu and Mahomedan natives,' pointing out the difference now existing. The result was that Capt. Palmer pressed me to read a paper before the association, which I consented to do on his giving me an assurance that the reading of the paper would not end in nothing, but that the council of the association would take proper action in the matter thereafter." Mr. Sutherland, however, will not read his paper, having made way for another authority, the Rev. J. Long, late of Calcutta, who will, as was announced the other day, bring the subject of the position and prospects of the Eurasian community before the East India Association at an early date. As the board of the Eurasian and Anglo-Indian Association are anxious to obtain a footing in Bombay, they might find their efforts to establish a branch here greatly helped by the circulation of a concise statement of a kind which would convince the public that Eurasian grievances are not "shadowy or sentimental."

CHINA AS A MILITARY POWER.

UNHAPPILY for the peace of Asia—we have heard so much of the peace of Europe that it is surely time to talk of the peace of Asia!—the Government of China cannot maintain immense armaments without the usual consequences occurring, which are well known to the Emperors of Europe and their Chancellors. With great armaments come ideas of great wars, and the Chinese, who have for some years past been spending enormous sums on arsenals, and on military preparations of all kinds, have sown for themselves the seeds of a very promising war fever. The question is, whom will they attack, whom will they pick a quarrel with? Just at present Russia, a neighbour, and a hated one, offers the Chinese the most tempting opportunity of reprisals; but the Chinese are not particular, and there is a very large party in China, which entertains a most impartial and catholic hatred for all fanquis or foreign devils alike. Moreover, the Chinese Government is not without a prudence of its own. It will probably only fight at an advantage, and we daresay it would rather fight the English in Thibet than the Russians at Kuldja, if the odds were more in favour of victory in the one place than in the other.

Digitized by Google

It may seem ridiculous to talk of the Chinese fighting Englishmen anywhere, but in truth the presumption is somewhat graver than many think. There can be no doubt that Chinese diplomacy has been busy at Mandalay, for the chief commissioner of Burma vouches for the fact; and that it has also been actively employed in Nepal of late is a circumstance to which Mr. King bears witness. Now, though we do not think with the chiefs of Nepal "that China, not Russia, is the Power which will next threaten English supremacy in India" (Asia?), it is not at all improbable that we may some day have to fight the Chinese across our Burman or our northern frontiers. There is but one thing needed to make China a really formidable enemy in those quarters, and that is railways, which the Chinese are singularly slow in making, considering their importance to such a country and to such a people. The strength of the Chinese is in the vast population of China. The raw material of armies is in China of unlimited extent. If the Government of China was able to move rapidly the immense hosts which it could put in the field, that Government might indeed make itself a very formidable neighbour, as it is always a very unpleasant one. But at present the Chinese Government is perhaps content to assert its existence only in the outposts of its wide dominions. The Emperor of China claims to be suzerain of both Burma and Nepal, though his sovereignty is practically nil. It is not an indication of friendliness on his part to negotiate with King Theebaw, considering the terms on which the Government of India stands with that king, nor is it indicative of a good understanding between two of the great Asian Powers—namely, India and China—that the Chinese Government should be making its influence felt just now in Nepal. Of course the Chinese are jealous of Indian tea, which is finding its way into regions where they enjoyed the monopoly of the trade, and their desire to shut us out of Western China, and indeed out of all parts of China, except the old treaty ports, is well known, and may be accounted for; still, the conduct spoken of is none the less likely to precipitate a collision, and China should take care lest she quarrels with the Power which ought to be her natural ally, that is to say, with India.—Bombay Gazette.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

MEETINGS OF COMPANIES.—At an extraordinary general meeting of the Oriental Jute Manufacturing Company (Limited), held April 10, it was resolved that the company be wound up voluntarily, and that the following gentlemen be appointed liquidators—viz., Messrs. Samuel Bird, Paul Frederick Bird, and James Gordon Stewart. It was further resolved that the following scheme of reconstruction be and the same is hereby approved, namely:—That a new company be incorporated under the Indian Company's Act, 1866, as a company limited by shares, by the name of New Oriental Jute Mills Company (Limited), with a capital of Rs.6,65,000, divided into 6,650 shares of Rs.100 each, and having power to acquire and take over the business property and liabilities of this company, and that the said liquidators, or any of them, be and they are hereby authorised, pursuant to section 175 of the said Act, to sell to such new company, upon such terms and subject to such conditions as they shall think fit, all or any part of the property of this company, but so that the new company shall undertake all the liabilities of this company, shall pay the costs of winding it up, and provide the funds (if any) which may be required to purchase the interests of any dissentient members whose interests the liquidators may have to purchase, and that every member of this company shall, in respect of every ten shares therein held by him, be entitled to require the new company to allot to him one of its Rs.100 shares, with the sum of Rs.100 credited as paid up thereon, and that every member holding less than ten shares shall be entitled to require the new company to allot to him a stock certificate in a like proportion. And that the said liquidators, or any or either of them, be and they are hereby authorised to execute and do all such acts and assurances and things as may be necessary for carrying the said scheme into effect.—Englishman.

EXPORT OF TEA.—The quantity of tea exported from Calcutta in March last was 1,264,383lb., as compared with 1,349,958lb. in March, 1879, whilst from the beginning of the season in May last to the end of March the total quantity exported, including that lost in the Ava and Sea Gull, was 37,593,426lb., as compared with 32,619,971lb. exported in the corresponding period of last year.—Englishman.

A PROMISING CONVERT.—The Rev. T. Hughes, secretary to the C.M.S. Mission to the Afghans, in his fourteenth annual report of the mission gives an edifying account of a visit which was paid him by one of the Kunar chiefs. The man, before he came to the mission house, had never spoken to an Englishman before, and was surprised to find one so kind and amiable. He was also much pleased with a galvanic battery; and, after the experiments were over, stayed to listen to a discourse on the Christian religion. He had a religious mind, says Mr. Hughes, and seemed to appreciate the discussion of religious questions. Next day the chief called on Mr. Hughes, and requested a private interview, which was granted. "Sir," said the old man, whose pious expression of face, according to Mr. Hughes, was very captivating, "I want some poison which will not take effect until about a month after it is administered. I want it to kill my enemy with." The disappointed missionary tried to make his pious-looking visitor give up the idea; but apparently distrusted his own powers of persuasion, for he induced a Mahomedan priest to get the old chief to swear on the Koran that he would spare his enemy. Mr. Hughes afterwards learnt the history of the case, which was this. There was a blood-feud, and a neighbouring chief had sworn to take this one's life. At last, on a summer's night, an attempt was made to carry out the threat; but the murderer's dagger struck, not the intended victim's heart, but his favourite daughter's. The father pursued the murderer, who gave himself up and prayed for mercy. "In a moment of weakness," said the Kunar Chief, "I forgave the man. A sense of honour bids me keep my promise in the face of the people, but I should like to poison the villain;" and thus he had come to the missionary for poison. This Peshawur Mission, which is specially a mission to the Afghans, is doing good work, considering the difficulties that beset it, and deserves more support than it gets from people at home.—Pioneer.

FRONTIER DURBARS.—The Punjab Gazette gives some information, in an official shape, about the durbars recently held:—The Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab held a durbar at Kohat on March 15. Amongst the chiefs and native gentlemen of the Kohat District presented to his Honour on this occasion were—Shazada Sultan Jan (Saddozai), Nawab Sir Khwaja Muhammad Khan, K.C.S.I., chief of the Khattaks and Nawab Bahadur Shere Khan, chief of the Bangash. The following jirgas of independent tribes were also present:—Afridis.—Pass (Gallai), Jowaki, Kalla Khel, Hassan Khel, and Ashu Khel. Orakzai.—Utman Khel, Bizoti, Bar Muhammad Khel, Mani Khel, Abdul Aziz Khel, Sipaiah, Feroz Khel, Sturi Khel, Ali Khel, Akhel, and Ali Sherzai. Zaimushts, Waziris.—Cabul Khel. His Honour the Lieutenant Governor addressed the Darbaris as follows:—"Nawabs, Chiefs, and Maliks,—I have called you together in durbar to-day to thank you for the help you have given the Government during the military operations of the last eighteen months. The line of communication of the Kuram Force lies through this district, and you have cheerfully assisted the deputy commissioner, Major Plowden, in doing all that was required to facilitate the movements of the army. More especially I wish to thank Nawab Sir Khwaja Muhammad Khan, chief of the Western Khattaks, Muzaffar Khan, of Hangu, and Muhammad Amin Khan, of Hangu, for the assistance they have given. Their conduct on this occasion has added to the reputation they have previously gained, and shows that they appreciate the honourable estimation in which they are held by the Government. Maliks of the Zaimushts,—You have done well to submit to the British Government. So long as you abstain from those acts which caused your recent punishment you will be well treated, and will have no cause to regret your submission; but you may be assured that if you again break your engagements you will again be punished. Nawabs, Chiefs, and Maliks,—The services rendered during the military operations show your loyalty and goodwill to the British Government. But I wish also to impress upon you that, though such services are valuable and deserve acknowledgment, there are other duties of loyal subjects which must not be neglected. Acts of violence and illegality dim the brightness of the most distinguished services, and I expect you, as loyal subjects of her Majesty the Queen Empress of India, not only to abstain from such acts, but to give every assistance to the deputy commissioner in preventing such acts, and in bringing offenders to justice."

THE BIJNOUR AGRICULTURAL ASSOCIATION.—Juggut Singh, of Tajpore, in Bijnour, has published a prospectus, having for its object the establishment of a Bijnour Agricultural Institute or Association. He says it is put forward in the spirit disclosed in the following quotation:—"It has long been my wish to establish an agricultural institute or association, in the hope of starting earnest and continuous effort for the improvement of agriculture. The possibilities in this direction are practically unlimited; but until the large landed proprietors of India resolutely set themselves to the task no appreciable results are likely to be obtained." Juggut Singh does not, however, trust to mere words. He informs the gentry of his district that he has constructed a building for the proposed institute at Bijnour, and has arranged to invest Rs.15,000 in Government securities to cover present expenses. The inaugural meeting will probably be held sometime in May.—Indian Daily News.

THE ASSAM RAILWAY COMPANY.—Tea planters and others interested in Assam will be glad to learn, that the railway scheme of the Assam Railway Company, with the modifications in the shape of further concessions referred to some time since as having been applied for by the directors, has received the sanction of the Government of India. There can be no doubt, the Englishman thinks, that, with these new concessions (which relate to the terms of the Government guarantee and extend its currency from five to twenty years), the scheme will prove attractive as an investment; and there is every chance of the line turning out one of the most profitable in India. The railway will run from the steamer terminus on the bank of the Brahmaputra near Dibrugarh to the fifty-first mile on the Government road towards Sabiya, with a branch of twenty-four miles from Dum-buma to the Makum coalfield on the Dihing River. Besides the subsidy, the Government give the road and the necessary lands, free of cost, and timber for construction and maintenance free of royalty. The cost of the line was originally estimated at about £200,000, but some addition will now have to be made to this for the subsequent increase in the price of iron.—Englishman.

THE COMMISSARIAT FRAUDS.—All the officials of the Commissariat Department in Burma whose misdeeds have recently been brought to light are to be proceeded against under the Penal Code. They have, in the meantime, been released from the restraint in which they have been kept, but are not to be permitted to leave Rangoon.—Englishman.

THE directors of the Bank of Bengal, at their meeting on April 15, reduced their rate of interest and discount 1 per cent.

DISPUTES IN NATIVE STATES.—Boundary disputes are a source of perpetual annoyance to the Native States in close proximity with each other. The Maharaja of Jodhpore, it is said, is anxious to have his frontier defined as clearly as possiole. It appears that he has disputes extending over several hundreds of miles of frontier with Meywar, Jeysulmere, and Bikanir, and that these have, for many years, been a source of bitter feeling between the States concerned. The Maharaja has asked for a British officer to settle these disputes. As it requires great tact and judgment to settle such disputes, it is to be hoped that a thoroughly competent British officer will be deputed in compliance with the Maharaja's request.—Indian Mirror.

THE NEW TEAS.—The first sale of new season's tea took place in the week ending April 17, and although the quantity was small, and consisted entirely of Darjiling growths, the competition was fair. The teas were decidedly better than those of 1879 at this period, but advices from home were of so discouraging a nature that the prices realised were about the same. Advices from Darjiling and Kachar are said to be very very favourable, and to show a decided advance, as far as quantity is concerned, over last year.—Times of India.

HINDU LAW.—It is announced that Babu Shamachurn Sircar has completed his great digest of Hindu law as current in all the provinces of India except Bengal proper, the Vyavastha-Chundrica.—Ibid.

THE RANEEGUNGE COAL MINES.—A coal-pit belonging to the Raneegunge Company fell in a few nights ago, carrying with it the house of the manager, who, with his wife and children, had a miraculous escape. Several coolies who were in the mine at the time of the accident were buried in the ruins.—Ibid.

THE HOWRAH ENGINEERING COLLEGE.—The Lieutenant Governor of Bengal has sanctioned the following appointments in the Government Engineering College at Howrah:—Mr. S. F. Downing, professor, Presidency College, civil engineering department, to be principal; Mr. J. Slater, professor, Presidency College, civil engineering department, to be professor; Mr. J. H. Gilliland, professor, Presidency College, civil engineering department, to be professor.—Ibid.

A DECEASED PARENT BY POST.—A week or two ago a dak banghy parcel was lost between Khelat-i-Ghilzai and Kandahar. Complaint was made by the post-office to the political, whose very miscellaneous functions include that of providing carriage for the letters and parcels of the army. The postmaster was, in reply, requested to ascertain and report the value and contents of the missing package. His reply is as follows:—"I beg to state that the missing parcel, No. 137, posted at Khelat-i-Ghilzai, by Suk Ram Sing, and addressed to Bawani Sing, contained the relics of his deceased father, which were packed up in a small tin box. The value of the contents cannot, therefore, be fixed by the sender."—Pioneer.

CONVICTION FOR CHEATING.—Dr. Robert Hanham Collyer, who was arrested at Madras on a warrant from Calcutta, at the instance of a Delhi jeweller, for cheating and criminal misappropriation of several articles of jewellery valued at Rs.2,234, has been convicted in the magistrates' court of Calcutta and sentenced to nine months' imprisonment.—Bombay Gazette.

THE ADJUTANCY OF THE M.V. GUARDS.—As the time is fast approaching for Major Pigott, adjutant and instructor of musketry of the M.V. Guards, to leave the corps for his own regiment, the 44th, stationed at Burma, a meeting of the officers and non-commissioned officers is to be held shortly at the Volunteer Guards Club, Vepery, for the purpose of adopting measures for getting up a souvenir to mark the unremitting care and attention paid the guards during his stay for the past five years. It is said that the volunteers of the Madras Railway Company will likewise recognise his good doings. Capt. Sherman, of No. C. Company, it is said, will act as adjutant pro tem.—Madras Times.

THE GUNTUR MISSION.—The statistics of the mission for 1879 present some facts that deserve notice. At the close of the year there were three ordained foreign missionaries; two ordained native pastors; four catechists; thirty-four village preachers (itinerant teachers); two bible colporteurs; 411 congregations; 1,059 communicants; 5,032 baptised members, young and old; 615 candidates for baptism, young and old; thirty-eight vernacular Christian schools; forty teachers; 744 pupils, including 318 non-Christian pupils; three caste girls' schools; six teachers; 137 pupils; 100 Sunday schools; 2,000 pupils, old and young, including 200 non-Christian pupils; 161 villages where native Christians reside.—Correspondent of Madras Times.

GOVERNMENT ACQUIREMENT OF LANDED PROPERTY IN THE NEILGHERIES.—The Madras Government is developing quite a new principle in the acquisition of landed property for itself on these hills. The procedure adopted is on this wise. When it has set its heart on "Naboth's Vineyard," an offer of purchase is made, or a promise of exchange or compensations. Should the terms not be accepted by the owner, the Government, or its representative, knowing that "might is right," gives notice that the title for the land will be cancelled and withdrawn, in the hope that "Naboth" may be forced into acquiescence. Of course if the land were required for a public purpose, the procedure laid down in the Land Acquisition Act would have to be followed, and due respect shown for private rights. But this implies a possibility of defeat. Perhaps in the case to which we refer, by no means an hypothetical one, this possibility is believed to amount to a certainty, and therefore the Act is ignored, and unconstitutional powers assumed, in the hope that the victim of oppression may be unable to afford the expense of seeking redress in a court of law.—South of India Observer.

CHICKMUGALUR.—Chickmugalur, the land flowing with gold so called owing to its very rich soil, is daily increasing in importance as trade in indigenous produce develops. It is extensively cultivated, great facilities being afforded by the numerous streams proceeding from the neighbouring hills. Some of its produce are coffee, cardamom, rice, and other grains, cocoanut, black pepper, &c.; the minerals are clinckstone, corundum, the hardest of all known bodies except the diamond; it is used extensively for polishing steel and cutting glass, &c., and magnetic iron ore. The number of estates is 13.732, covering an area of 78,372 acres. The only estate held by Government is the cinchona plantation on the Kulbutty hills. The climate is mild, but has an unenviable notoriety for its fever, which is prevalent. The greatest mortality is from this disease; on an average from 300 to 500 succumb to it yearly. Doubtless it has its origin in malaria, and the most virulent forms appear either at the beginning of the rains or at the end; at the beginning when partial showers fall and are succeeded by hot sunny days. The hot weather is reckoned from January to May, the average temperature being 85 deg.; from June to September is the wet season, and the average fall during this period is 20in., temperature 75 deg.; and the cold weather reckons from October to the end of the year, when the temperature is 70 deg. The total average of rain for the year is 35in. From time immemorial slavery of an agrarian character has existed in the district. It is said to have been introduced by the Rajah of Annagoondi and has been countenanced by successive Governments, till the assumption of the province by the British, when the condition of the slaves was in a quaint measure improved, and means afforded them to secure their freedom. These slaves are chiefly Hobyahs, of the left hand caste named "Hoottuloo," divided into two classes—viz., the "Munalie" and "Honalu." The latter from "Hon," gold, are those whose forefathers were purchased with gold, and are the property of the "Yejman," or master. They are restricted to within the boundaries of the estates, and should any one, however, abscond, if caught, is taken back forcibly and punished; but an order passed by the Government on the matter permitted the slave to leave his master after giving six months' notice, but the time of his liberation was not to be fixed when his services were most needed.—Correspondent of Madras Times.

THE MADRAS STAFF CORPS.—The writer of "Military Jottings" in the Bombay Gazette says:—"The state of the Madras Staff Corps as it stood in the beginning of this year offers a little food for reflection. The following is the list of effective officers:—Lieutenant colonels, 173; majors 203; captains, 45; lieutenants, 55; that is to say, 421 field officers and captains to 55 subalterns. Truly an intolerable deal of sack to a ha'pennyworth of bread, as Prince Hal remarked; for subalterns (and captains, too, but particularly subalterns) ought to be the working men in each regiment, while the field officers are, so to speak, the ornaments of the corps, its pride and delight, but too precious for to be worked and bothered with parades and musketry. As these 55 subalterns have to find officers for four regiments of cavalry, the Governor's bodyguard, and forty regiments of native infantry, it must be owned they have their work cut out for them. One word more in regard to Madras regiments, which are certainly suffering a plethora of field officers. The 12th Madras N.I. has 1 colonel, 1 lieutenant colonel, 5 majors, no captains, and 1 lieutenant. The 26th N.I. has 1 colonel, 2 lieutenant colonels, 3 majors, 2 captains, and 1 lieutenant. The 12th N.I. has 1 colonel, 2 lieutenant colonels, 3 majors, 1 captain, and 1 lieutenant; and, finally, the 33rd N.I. has 1 colonel, 1 lieutenant colonel, 3 majors, 1 captain, and no subaltern at all. More and more does one's admiration increase for that almost perfect institution, the Staff Corps."

DEATH OF LIEUT. COL. CHEKE.—Lieut. Col. Wigram Arthur Cheke, 22nd Madras Native Infantry, died suddenly from heart disease while at breakfast at Rangoon a few days ago. He entered the service in 1855, was appointed second in command of his regiment about two years ago, and commandant the day before his death. He is said to have been one of the most popular officers in the province.—Times of India.

COMPENSATION.—The agent of the Madras Railway Company, "without in any way admitting the legal liability of the company," has been compensating some of the people who had the misfortune to suffer in the Chinnammapet accident. Sergeant Roberts for himself and wife gets Rs.5,000, Sergeant Price Rs.2,500, and Sergeant Terry Rs.1,500. The sum sanctioned to the families of the deceased Sappers and Miners is to be distributed to dependent relatives only. —Times of India.

END OF THE RAMPA TROUBLE.—We are glad to hear that the Rampa rebellion is played out; villagers are coming forward and giving information right and left, and within the last fortnight halt the proclaimed men have either surrendered, been captured, or killed. The only rebel of note out now is Zumum Dora, and he has gone clean away, and is never likely to return to Rampa, knowing well that notice would be given to the authorities of his whereabouts did he do so. Mr. Sweet, of the police, lately captured Devy Reddi of Edpur, as also the rebels who murdered his chokra last year, on which occasion Mr. Sweet lost Rs.800 in notes. He found the skeleton of the poor lad, as also some of the articles the boy was in charge of. Major Wroughton did good service a short time back in smashing a band, headed by a notorious murderer, and a man much feared. The troops, saturated with malaria, are anxiously looking for the time when they will be recalled from Rampa. They have suffered considerably, and probably will suffer for many a day to come. The fever itself is bad enough, for it is little less than regular jungle fever, and has been fatal in many cases; but what makes it worse is the after-effects on the liver, spleen, kidneys, and other organs. It will doubtless be a long time before we have another Rampa war; but in the meantime it is to be hoped some little interest will be taken in the welfare of these hill people, and that they may have no cause to rise in rebellion again. It is piping hot in Rajamundry just now. Colonel Buck and Major Wood have returned, having been away some time at Vizagapatam inspecting the 17th and 29th Regiments, and have now gone to inspect the 10th at Yelaisheram. Mr. Foster is holding a special sessions for the trial of Rampa rebels. There has just come in a reported rising of rebels in Golconda, and on the borders of the Jeypore country, but there have been so many false rumours of late that it is to be hoped this will prove one of them.—Times of India.

BOMBAY.

PROPOSED CENTRAL DEPOT FOR STAMPS.—The Indian Daily News is informed that the proposal for making the central depot at Bombay, for the supplies of stamps and stationery, to which it alluded some time ago, is to be re-considered, and the question is to be fully discussed when the Council meets at Simla. Probably the scheme will be abandoned and Calcutta continue to be the central office, as supplying more readily a larger area.—Bombay Gazette.

THE SHOLAPUR AND GADAG RAILWAY.—The Indu Prakash is informed that the Government of Bombay have received final orders not to proceed with the Sholapur and Gadag Railway, but hand over the embankments of the line in progress to the Local Funds Department of Sholapur.—Bombay Gazette.

ABOLITION OF THE COTTON FRAUDS DEPARTMENT.—The despatch on this subject received from the Secretary of State last month, in reply to that of the Governor General urging the repeal of the Cotton Frauds Act, admits that the wholesome change in the nature of the cotton trade and the present unequal pressure on the export trade of Bombay, which requires relief from all but necessary burdens, make the alteration of the law desirable. The Secretary of State, however, proceeds to say:—"But I am not prepared to concur in the inference that all special legislation against frauds in the cotton trade is unnecessary and mischievous. Special legislation on the subject, it must be remembered, has existed for over fifty years, and was, indeed, part of the original penal code of the Bombay Presidency enacted by the Government of the Hon. Mountstuart Elphinstone. It was approved, or objected to only as not sufficiently stringent, on many occasions, between 1838 and 1869, by the highest mercantile authorities both in England and in India. In consequence of such representations it was in 1851 extended to the island of Bombay, where it is acknowledged to have entirely stopped a system of gross fraud which had sprung up there (although this was long before the American war caused the extraordinary demand for Indian cotton, which alone is now alleged to have made special legislation necessary), and threatened the total destruction of the Bombay cotton trade. The more stringent legislation of 1863 was adopted after a careful inquiry by a commission, half of whose members were nominated by the Bombay Chamber of Commerce, who reported in the strongest terms that frauds in the cotton trade could be checked only by effective special legislation, and whose view was then almost universally approved by the mercantile community. The opinion that a change in the trade has done away with the need for special legislation, however weighty, is opinion merely and has not been brought to the test of experience, while other high authorities concur with the view of his Excellency the Governor of Bombay, that the withdrawal of all special safeguards against the frauds to which the cotton trade of Bombay is peculiarly liable would soon be followed by the revival of fraudulent practices to an intolerable extent. And, finally, it is believed that while there are greater facilities for adulteration in the Indian cotton trade than in that of America, it has been found desirable even in America to establish, though by the action of the trade itself, a system of supervision to guard against practices which might lower the character of the exported cotton. Till it has been found practicable to adopt some such system in Bombay, there seems to be reason for supplying its place by legislation. I cannot but fear that the entire abandonment of all special legislation against frauds in the Bombay cotton trade might be understood as an intimation that fraudulent practices may in future be carried on with impunity, and might have unfortunate results. It must also be remembered that an essential portion of the present law, as well as of the Act of 1863, embraces the provisions regarding licensing presses and press marks, which do not appear anywhere to be objected to, and are believed to work beneficially. What, therefore, should now be done is to revert to the system in force before the passing of the Act of 1863—that is, whilst dispensing with any special establishment, and with the tax on cotton required to pay it, to retain special penal provisions against fraud and adulteration, which might be set in motion either by the party injured or by the magisterial authorities, who would practically put the law in force only when fraudulent practices might become flagrant and notorious. I have, therefore, directed the Bombay Government to introduce a bill to repeal Act VII. Bombay, of 1878, and, at their discretion, either again to bring into operation Act IX. Bombay, of 1863, in which case the provisions of that law regarding the export fee and the establishment would be kept in abeyance, or to re-enact the substance of that law, with the omission of those provisions."

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.—At the usual weekly meeting of the Town Council on April 20 the report of the health officer for the fourth quarter of 1879 was presented. From the report it appears that 3,416 children were born, while only 2,069 were reported as having been vaccinated. Of course a number died young unvaccinated, but that would by no means meet the difference between the births and vaccinations. They were now supposed to be working a Compulsory Vaccination Act, and the municipality had given as much money as had been asked for, and paid fees to these people to get their children vaccinated. The corporation naturally expected corresponding results, and although it did not, of course, expect the working of the Act would be so complete that every child would be vaccinated, yet such a large percentage as 13 or 14 per cent., as shown in the report, should not be allowed to exist. The chairman thought it sufficient to draw the health officer's attention to the fact. A communication was forwarded by the Government of Bombay, with a despatch from the Secretary of State embodying his remarks, and a memorandum by the Army Sanitary Commission on the report of the Bombay Municipality of 1878, and another on the new drainage system of that city.—Times of India.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

THURSDAY, MAY 13, 1880.

THE FINANCIAL BLUNDER.

IT cannot be said that, in commenting on the astounding news which the telegraph made public last week, we are dealing with a matter which is, so to speak, sub judice. The Government of India took the unusual step, or at least one which, a year or two ago, would have seemed most unusual, of communicating to the Indian public the substance of a despatch to the Secretary of State admitting the existence of an error in the war accounts to the amount of four millions. It is worth while to recall the figures, both of arithmetic and speech, which the recent Budget statements contained on this subject. If our readers will refer to the tables of the Indian revenue and expenditure published in our issue of March 19 they will see that the army figured in the accounts for 1878-79 for £17,092,426. The Budget estimates calculated in March last the expenditure at £18,255,000, which the regular estimates subsequently raised to £21,067,000, showing an increase of £2,812,000. But in the Budget estimates for the current year this item of expenditure is put down at £20,293,000, calculating on a decrease. The actual expenditure is now stated to have been four millions in excess of the amount which had been estimated, and which had been taken as approximately accurate by all the members of the Viceregal Council. The Hon. E. C. Morgan, commenting, though not in an obstructive, certainly not in an approving, spirit on Sir John Strachey's statement, accepted the general truth of the calculation. He pointed out that it appeared from the figures before the Council that the amount expended during 1879-80 upon the war, directly and indirectly, had amounted to about £4,900,000. The amount which it was estimated would have to be spent, directly and indirectly, during the now current, then ensuing, year would be about £4,000,000. This included the expenditure on the frontier railways, which was rightly or wrongly charged to the account of the Afghan war, and treated on all hands as being a portion of the additional burden thrown upon the finances of India by that war. There were diverse opinions as to the throwing that burden either wholly or immediately upon the revenues of India, but there was no doubt expressed as to the sufficient accuracy of the estimates, whatever difference of opinion there existed in the Viceregal Council as to the financial measures proposed by Sir John Strachey. The Commander in Chief, who, we have just been informed, objects strongly to the disconnection of that high office from a place in the Viceregal Council, confined himself to criticism on the War Commission and a warning against unfounded expectations of economical reductions in the army expenditure. The only notice of a doubt, the single allusion to possible excess, was in the speech of the Viceroy, who replied to Mr. Gladstone's assertion that there was a widespread belief that the real cost of the Afghan war had not been made known to the country. Lord Lytton indignantly repudiated what he considered to be an allegation that his Government had falsified the military accounts in order to conceal the real cost of the Afghan war. His Excellency said that it was not then in the power of the Government of India to show on its accounts the actual and yet unascertained cost of the military operations. To quote his words, which are worth placing on future record in face of the insinuations still repeated:—"Our estimates, so far as it has hitherto been possible to verify them, have proved to be remarkably accurate, and for this we are greatly indebted to our able Accountant General in the Military Department, Major Newmarch. One fact, however, these estimates already place beyond question. So far from seeking to conceal the real cost of the Afghan War, we have not only included in our military accounts all stores and material, the amount and value of which it had been possible to ascertain, but we have also, under orders from the Secretary of State, actually charged as war expenditure the cost of the frontier railroads, lines of telegraph, postal communications, and other similar items of expenditure." In these words, spoken just two months ago, there is abundant response to any charge of holding back or minimising expenditure. There is no defence in them, whatever may be the palliatives found for the errors in estimate of expenditure, which have thrown the financial scheme into utter confusion and brought final discredit on the administration of Sir John Strachey. The fact, which is incontrovertible, that the Military Department, the Indian War-office, is really solely responsible, will not avail, as we see from the Calcutta opinions expressed in Sunday's telegrams, to divert from the Financial Minister the consequences of the inability of the War Department to take into account the probable, or rather certain, results of the rise in prices of fodder, the increased cost of transport, and the military operations between which this huge excess of expenditure over estimate is to be parcelled out. Sir John Strachey is unpopular because he has sought to bring into the class of contributories to the Imperial treasury large classes who before escaped untaxed. That his prosperous Budget, his hopeful outlook, has been completely marred by the bungling of a department, will afford matter of rejoicing to a large portion of the Indian public, and there seems good ground for expecting that this feeling will find a corresponding sympathy at home, and that a strong section of the majority will insist not only on the necessary consequences of such a blunder falling on the actually responsible officials, but on the recall of the financial member of the Viceregal Council. There seems to be a note of warning in the telegraphed statement that other items of the Budget must be revised, but the fact that the whole falling off, which is somewhat unaccountably attributable to opium and salt, assessed taxes and stamps, is only £81,000, shows the animus which inspired the statement. There are, of course, numerous prophets after the fact, who now parade their anticipations that the war would, in the long run, exceed the estimated cost, but it is going too far to require that the Finance Minister should have profited by the accounts of the first Afghan War to mistrust the estimates following on the actual accounts of expenditure which were presented to him. We are told by a contemporary, whose information is usually correct, that the finances of India are likely to form the subject of inquiry by a small commission, of which Sir Richard Temple will be a member. We wonder how far the opponents of Sir John Strachey, who is, they tell us, the worst Finance Minister India has known, will relish this appointment. That it will be to the credit of the Government, and especially as showing that Indian questions will be considered superior to party feelings, is to us as certain as that it will be to the advantage of India. As regards the immediate question of the derangement of the financial calculations by the error that has been committed, it is so far satisfactory to note that the Government of India is clear from hasty imputations of concealment, and that the same mastery of his subject, and lucid exposition of the facts which characterised the late Under Secretary's official statements, will be available when the occasion comes to place before the House of Commons and the public all that can be brought forward to elucidate, if not to extenuate, the miscalculation that has for the time being brought confusion not only on the financial authorities, but also on the general financial system of India.

HOME NEWS.

PROFESSOR VAMBERY AND HERAT.—Professor Vambery writes to a correspondent at Newcastle:—"You cannot give up Herat to the Persians, who, whilst seeking assistance from the English with the right hand, will stretch out their left for similar purposes to Russia, and who are certainly less reliable than the Afghans. Should it be necessary I will go over to England and lecture throughout the country against so detrimental a step."

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE REWARD.—The distinguished service reward, vacant by the death of Lieut. Gen. W. Armstrong, C.B., has been conferred on Lieut. Gen. John M'Neil Walter, C.B., late in command of a brigade of the Bengal Army. Lieut. Gen. Walter entered the service on July 31, 1835, and was promoted to his present rank on Dec. 21, 1878. He served throughout the Kaffir campaign of 1846-47, as adjutant of the 90th Light Infantry and field adjutant of the 1st division (medal). Served with the 53rd Regiment in the Punjab campaign in 1849, and was present at the battle of Guzerat (medal with clasp). Also in campaign of 1850-52, against the hill tribes on the Peshawur frontier. Served with the 35th Regiment in the Indian campaign of 1857-59. Commanded the Arrah Field Force in the actions of Sirthooa, &c., subsequently a column in the operations in Shahabad, including the actions before Nonoodhe (twice mentioned in despatches, C.B., and medal).

NEW STEAMERS FOR THE PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL COMPANY.—This enterprising concern have contracted with Messrs. Caird and Co., of Greenock, for the construction of two new steamers for the Eastern mail services, of very great size and power. Each will be of about 5,000 tons gross register, with engines of 850 horse-power nominal (5,250 effective), and will be capable of maintaining a speed of fifteen knots an hour. The company's new steam ship Ravenna arrived in the Thames on Sunday, having made the passage from the Clyde in 49½ hours, giving a speed of 14.6 knots per hour. This is by far the quickest passage on record, being about three hours less than that made by the Rotomahana last year. Both vessels are built and engined by the same firm, Messrs. Denny, of Dumbarton. The dimensions of the Ravenna are—length, 380ft.; breadth, 40ft.; and depth, 29ft. Tonnage, 3,340 gross; nominal horse-power, 700.

GOVERNMENT BILLS ON INDIA AND THE SILVER MARKET.—Tenders were received at the Bank of England on Wednesday, May 5, for Rs.35,00,000 in Council bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, Rs.24,23,000; and to Bombay Rs.10,77,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 8d. received about 17 per cent., and above in full.—Yesterday tenders were received for Rs.3,50,000, which were allotted as follows:—To Calcutta Rs.2,49,400, to Bombay Rs.99,8,000, and to Madras Rs.8,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 8 1-16d. will receive about 27 per cent. Compared with last week this price shows a rise of 1-16d. The same amount will be tendered for next Wednesday. The nearest quotation for bar silver, in the comparative absence of supplies, is 52 3-16d. per ounce, at which figure business has been done. A small parcel has been sold for forward delivery at 52¼d. under exceptional circumstances, and cannot, therefore, be taken as a fair index of value. Firmness in some measure has been imparted to the market by the improved rate at which the Indian bills were allotted.

INDIAN EXCHANGES.—The Indian four months' sight exchanges have again shown a hardening tendency, and are now quoted at from 1s. 8¼d. to 1s. 8 5-16d. The value of the tael in Shanghai has also improved to 5s. 3⅜d., while the Hong Kong dollar rate is steady at 3s. 10½d. The downward tendency of the value of rupee paper seems to have been arrested, but the market cannot yet be said to be by any means in a settled condition. This (Wednesday) evening, however, the Four-and-a-Half per Cents. were quoted at 84½ 84¾, and the Four per Cents. at 78¼ 78¾.—Times.

DISASTERS AT SEA.—Lloyd's agent at Algiers reported by telegraph last week that the British steamer Spearman, belonging to Mr. Jobling, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, bound from Bombay to London, with a cargo of general goods, and the French Government despatch steamer Forbin had been in collision. Both vessels, having received damage, put into Algiers, where temporary repairs can be effected. The Spearman has two plates above the water line stove in. The Spearman is an iron screw steamer, classed 100 A 1, 1,317 tons. The Forbin also is a screw vessel.—Intelligence has been received of the wreck of the Liverpool ship Gwalia in the China Seas. The vessel was built two years ago, and was 1,425 tons register. She sailed from Newcastle with a cargo of over 2,000 tons of coal for the Straits of Malacca, arriving off Karimala, in the China Sea, on March 2, where she was carried on to some coral reefs. In a quarter of an hour afterwards there was 17ft. of water in her hold. The vessel being kept from sinking beneath the surface of the water, the crew were enabled to remain on board for three days, when three of their boats were launched with a week's provisions on board, and they abandoned the wreck. There were thirty men, and for about forty hours they kept beating about endeavouring to make the nearest island. The weather fortunately remained calm, and the men were at last fallen in with by a Malay barque, which took them all to Sarawak. They went to several other places, and some of them were finally taken to London by the steamer Glengyle. The Gwalia belonged to the Arvon Shipping Company.

CONTINENTAL PASSENGER TRAFFIC.—On Saturday the Adelaide, a steel paddle steamer, intended for the Great Eastern Railway Company's Harwich route to the Continent, was successfully launched from the yard of the Barrow Shipbuilding Company. The christening ceremony was performed by Mrs. Simpson, the wife of Mr. Lightly Simpson, one of the directors of the Great Eastern Railway Company. The dimensions of the Adelaide are:—Length 260ft., beam 32ft., with a gross tonnage of 960 tons, and accommodation for nearly 200 passengers. She is fitted with compound oscillation surface condensing engines of 1,600 indicated horse power. She is expected to be running between Harwich and the Continent next month. The Lady Tyler, another addition to the company's fleet, built on the Tyne, is expected to commence running at the same time.—One of the new boats ordered by the South Eastern Railway Company was launched from Mr. Samuda's ship yard at Poplar on Monday, and was christened the Albert Victor by the Princess Mary. The new steamer is intended to run from Folkestone to Boulogne in an hour and a-quarter, a speed of twenty-one miles an hour.

THE INSTITUTION OF CIVIL ENGINEERS.—At the meeting on Tuesday, May 4—Mr. W. H. Barlow, F.R.S., president, in the chair—at the monthly ballot, Count Ferdinand de Lesseps, G.C.S.I., was elected an honorary member, in succession to General Morin, deceased, on account of the services rendered to engineering science and practice by the successful prosecution of the Suez Canal. Mr. Patrick Kennedy Hyndman, ex-engineer, P.W.D., India, was elected a member; and Messrs. William Palliser Costobadie, Stud. Inst. C.E., Vizianagram, India; Herbert Dent Johnston, Stud. Inst. C.E., resident engineer, Madras Railway; John Lyons, Bombay; Theophilus Michell, Stud. Inst. C.E., assistant engineer, P.W.D., India; Marmaduke John Monckton, Stud. Inst. C.E., assistant engineer, P.W.D., India; Gervaise Purcell, B.A., late Government Railways, Japan; and Frederick Sharp, Stud. Inst. C.E., assistant engineer, P.W.D., associate members.

MANCHESTER GOODS IN INDIA.—On this subject, as an important illustration of the way in which our Manchester friends injure themselves and the trade of this country with India, Mr. W. P. Andrew calls attention to the following extract from the last report of the traffic manager of the Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway Company:—"At a meeting I recently had with the leading merchants of Umritsur, which is the commercial capital of the Punjab, and the chief depot for supplying piece-goods to Afghanistan and Central Asia, they assured me that the demand for English piece-goods was falling off month by month, and that the local demand for the Punjab itself, as well as beyond our frontier, was principally for Indian manufactured cotton cloths. They graphically described the effects of a shower of rain on the English-made turbans and kummerbunds (waist cloths) as if their heads and loins were enveloped by layers of starch." The following statement shows the movements in these goods:—

The registered capital of the company is £100,000, of which the present issue forms a part. Since the first allotment two estates have been secured in the Wynaad district for £40,000.

THE VICTORIA CROSS.—The following notice has been issued from the War-office, May 8:—The Queen has been graciously pleased to signify her intention to confer the decoration of the Victoria Cross upon the undermentioned officer, whose claim to the same has been submitted for her Majesty's approval, for his gallant conduct at Konoma, on the eastern frontier of India, as recorded against his name, viz.:—Capt. Richard Kirby Ridgeway, of the Bengal Staff Corps, for conspicuous gallantry throughout the attack on Konoma, on November 2, 1879, more especially in the final assault, when, under a heavy fire from the enemy, he rushed up to a barricade and attempted to tear down the planking surrounding it to enable him to effect an entrance, in which act he received a very severe rifle-shot wound in the left shoulder.

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—In the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council the case of Grish Chunder Chuckerbutty and another v. Kallas Chunder Roy and another has been decided. This was an appeal from a judgment of the High Court of Calcutta of June 12, 1876, affirming a decree of the local tribunal at Mymensing, in the Bengal Presidency. Mr. Cowie, Q.C., and Mr. J. Graham were counsel for the appellants. This was a family dispute as to the right to succeed to certain property in India, and it possessed no interest except to the immediate parties. Their lordships affirmed the decision of the Indian Courts and dismissed the appeal. As the respondents were not represented no order as to costs was made.—The case of L. D. Naik v. R. Naik was an appeal from the Presidency of Bombay. The case was commenced on Thursday and was concluded on Tuesday. Mr. Leith, Q.C., and Mr. Doyne were for the appellant; Mr. Cowie, Q.C., and Mr. J. D. Mayne for the resrondent. The present suit was commeneed in 1872 to set aside a will made by the father of the litigants as illegal, as he had disinherited the respondent, his eldest son. Two courts in India decided that the will was invalid, and decreed the respondent one-half of the family property, which was considerable. In 1861 a bill was filed for a partition of the property, and there had been "great enmity" and criminal proceedings. Sir James Colville gave a lengthened judgment, and in the result the appeal was dismissed with costs. Their lordships suggested a settlement of further differences to save the ancestral property from destruction.

NERBUDDA COAL AND IRON COMPANY.—The annual general meeting was held on Tuesday, May 4, at the offices, Finsbury-circus; Mr. S. J. Wylde, the chairman, presided, and in moving the adoption of the report, said they had complained of the small output of coal for 1879 (13,401 tons) and of the large amount used (2,873 tons) apparently for colliery purposes; but in a letter they had received that morning the manager had explained the causes. The old story of the fire had troubled them, but he believed they had at length got at the origin of it—namely, an outbreak from the old original fire, which arose from their having left a large quantity of small coal or dust in the mine. The fire was supposed to be cut off, but all their coal seams were in a very distorted shape, and it took years to know how they worked. He thought they might now safely say that they would not hear much more about the fire. The output for the present year showed a very substantial increase. With regard to the Georgina pit, the shaft was down 68ft. according to the letter they had just received, and the manager estimated that he would complete it in a year and a-half from the time he commenced the work, which was last October. The call they had made had been very well met. The Bihrman copper mine they had quite closed now. At one time they thought something good would come out of it. The ore was very rich, but it seemed to be a pocket of ore. They had only lost £630 by it. Messrs. Waddell, the auditors, stated in their report:—"We have again to call attention to the want of detailed lists and valuations of the block and plant, buildings, tents, furniture, live stock, timber, and stock certified by the managers in India." Well, they had asked for it, and they ought to have received it. Then the auditors also stated:—"We are of opinion that a certain sum, to be ascertained, should be written off the above against revenue for depreciation." As to that, he had always urged that they should charge everything they possibly could to capital. He held, however, that it was not fair to charge depreciation to revenue, but from the formation of company they had expended £28,890 out of revenue which might fairly have been charged to capital. The motion having been seconded, the chairman, in reply to questions, said the call would be expended at the Georgina pit and consequently at the new winning. They had proved the coal at the new winning. Their relations with the great Indian Peninsula Railway Company were perfectly friendly. The report was adopted and the retiring directors and auditors were re-elected.

THE CHRISTIAN VERNACULAR SOCIETY.—The twenty-second anniversary meeting of the Christian Vernacular Education Society for India was held on Monday at Steinway-hall; the Earl of Shaftesbury, K.G., presiding. The secretary (Mr. Lockhart Gordon) read the report, which stated that teachers and books were still the great wants of India. The society had trained 650 teachers and had printed 7,773,611 copies of publications in sixteen languages. It was also giving Christian instruction to 7,000 children. The total receipts last year amounted to £9,803, and the expenditure to £10,604. The Bishop of Rangoon, in moving the adoption of the report, said the state of education in British Burma contrasted most favourably with that of all other parts of British India, the difference arising from the fact that the country was devoted to Buddhism, which was a religion totally distinct from Hindooism in all social manners and customs. The difference between Buddhism and Brahminism was that the latter was sacerdotal, and was a system which almost reduced its followers to a state of imbecility of mind and body. It also depended a great deal upon the influence of caste; and, society being thus broken up, the Brahmins themselves could govern the whole. Their subordinates had no independence of thought or action. It was also devoid of all those sympathetic tendencies found in Buddhism. It was a religion that separated the teachers from the people by a gulf almost impassable. Brahmins taught Brahmins, but a Brahmin was never found taking all castes into his consideration. Contrasting that with Buddhism, which was originated in the sixth century before Christ by Gautama, who sacrificed all his time and interest to teach the law of absolute freedom of conscience, it would be found that that was as much a breach on the part of Gautama with Brahminism as Luther's with the Roman Catholic Church. In fact, Gautama had often been called the Luther of the East. His religion so far resembled Christianity in that it enjoined social equality all the world over between man and man. Lord Balfour of Burleigh seconded the adoption of the report, which was carried. General Robert Maclagan, the Rev. R. C. Macdonald, M.A. (from Madras), the Rev. R. Stothert, M.A. (Bombay), and Mr. J. S. Haig (principal of the society's training institution at Ahmednuggur) also addressed the meeting.

EDUCATION IN INDIA.—On Friday, May 7, a deputation from the General Council on Education in India waited on the Marquis of Ripon, the Viceroy elect, in view of his proceeding to India. The object of the deputation was the presentation of a memorial, signed by twenty-five chairmen or secretaries of fourteen religious societies, and the deputation, which was a large one, was introduced by Lord Halifax, author of the Education Despatch of 1854. Among others present were the Earl of Shaftesbury, the Earl of Aberdeen, Lord Balfour of Burleigh, the Bishop of Rangoon, Mr. Alexander Matheson, M.P., Mr. H. M. Matheson, Sir George Malcolm, Sir William Hill, Mr. Donald Matheson, Mr. S. R. Scott, &c. Lord Halifax called attention to the unsatisfactory state of education prior to 1854, and the despatch drawn up by himself and Lord North, who was his private secretary, and adopted by the board of directors, and which has been accepted as the charter of education in India. It was a fundamental principle that Government abstain altogether from anything which could be construed into an attempt to proselytise or interfere with religious beliefs, much the same as was done in education in this country. It was intended that elementary schools should be maintained by the State for the masses of the population, in which the teaching was to be purely secular. That all schools maintained by voluntary societies, Christian, Mahomedan, or Hindoo, should be assisted by grants in aid, and that the education of a higher description for the richer classes should be maintained principally by themselves. His lordship referred to a saying of Lord Lawrence, to the effect that Christian truth taught in a Christian spirit would never give offence to a Hindoo. But he agreed with this same great authority that this teaching should be left entirely to missionaries and voluntary effort, and he was glad to see that the deputation agreed with him in this. In conclusion, he spoke of the great services rendered to education and civilisation by the efforts of missionary societies. The honorary secretary read the memorial, which expressed approval of the principles of the despatches on education in India of 1854 and 1859, and called attention to particulars in which their provisions had not been carried out, especially as regarded the want of primary education, the withdrawal or transference of the higher colleges, and the grant in aid system. The memorial concluded by pressing the importance of carrying out fully the principles and provisions of the education despatch of 1854, especially in the following particulars:—"The encouragement and control of the higher education by Government through the Universities, and by the system of grants in aid to affiliated colleges, as provided for in paragraphs 24, 25, 28, and 40 of the despatch. The gradual withdrawal by Government from direct teaching in colleges and high schools, wherever the desire for the higher education is so far developed as to give a reasonable guarantee that it will be maintained, with the assistance of grants in aid, including payment by results, and the independent efforts of the natives and others interested in their welfare, as laid down in paragraphs 52, 61, 62, and 86. The much greater extension of elementary education among the poorer classes, which was the grand design of the despatch, as expressed in a 'return' laid before Parliament in 1870:—'The main object of the despatch of 1854 is to divert the efforts of the Government from the education of the higher classes, upon whom up to that date they had been too exclusively directed, and to turn them to the wider diffusion of education among all classes of the people, and especially to the provision of primary instruction among the masses.' Also paragraphs 6, 10, and 39 of the despatch." The Marquis of Ripon, after eliciting information by questions, and expressing his great satisfaction at meeting with the deputation, said:—But we must bear in mind the peculiar circumstances of our rule in India. It is, if I may use the expression, one of the fundamental principles of the constitution of India that the British Government will in no way, direct or indirect, interfere with the religion of the native races, or do anything calculated to arouse the slightest suspicion of such interference in their minds. To this our faith is pledged, and by this pledge honour and wisdom alike require us to abide. There is scarcely any question with respect to which it is of more importance to keep this principle steadily in view than that of education, and I rejoice, therefore, to observe that you recognise this fact in the memorial which you have presented to me. I am also of opinion that it is the duty of the Government of India to observe entire impartiality in dealing with this subject between the various Christian bodies which exist in India, and by these two rules my conduct as Governor-General will be guided. I am very glad to find myself in entire concurrence with you in the approval which you have expressed of the great despatch of 1854 on education in India, with which the name of Lord Halifax will ever be connected. That despatch lays down clearly and forcibly the broad lines of the true educational policy for India, and upon those lines it will be my desire to work. It would be improper for me, and you will not, I am sure, expect me, to express now any opinions upon matters of detail. It will be my duty when I get out to India to examine all such matters carefully in the light of the information which will then be at my disposal; but I do not think that I shall be guilty of any indiscretion if I tell you even now how much I sympathise with your desire to promote the extension of elementary education among the poorer classes. That has been an especial object of interest to me for many years in England; it will not be less so in India. In conclusion, I have only to thank you very sincerely, gentlemen, for having thus made known your views to me. It is a great advantage to me to have this opportunity of learning the opinions of those who have laboured so long and so zealously in this noble field of work, and I am very grateful to you for having afforded it to me.

ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.—On Monday afternoon the Royal Asiatic Society held a special meeting at its rooms, 22, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly—Sir Edward Colebrooke, M.P., in the chair—for the purpose of receiving a paper from the eminent French Sinologue, M. Terrien de Lacouperie. Advantage was taken of this extra meeting for the election of the Chinese Ambassador, the Marquis Tsêng, as an honorary member of the society. M. Terrien de Lacouperie's paper was entitled "Sur l'histoire de la langue Chinoise et de quelques noms géographiques de l'Empire du Milieu." Its general nature and drift may be gathered from the remarks made upon it by Professor Douglas. The theory, he said, brought forward in M. Terrien de Lacouperie's paper was startling to those who had been accustomed to accept the assertions of the Chinese historians as to the extreme antiquity of their race in China and its total isolation from the rest of the world. But the evidence the author had been able to adduce was no less startling than his theory. The lecturer's discoveries with regard to the Yih King were those which would strike the imagination most. Here was a book the original text of which was attempted to be explained by Wan Wang and Chow Kung about B.C. 1200, again by Confucius, six or seven centuries afterwards, and subsequently by a host of commentators, and not one of them had been able to give a full and satisfactory explanation of its contents. Confucius had said, "If my life were prolonged I would give fifty years to the study of the Yih." At the time of the burning of the books under the Ts'in dynasty the Yih was saved from destruction, because it was held to be a work of divination. By the followers of Choo He, under the Sung dynasty, it was believed to contain the elements of all metaphysical knowledge, and to be the clue to all the secrets of nature and of being. To foreign students of Chinese it had been a perfect playground of theories, and it had, he felt fully convinced, been reserved for M. Terrien de Lacouperie to explain what thirty centuries of native scholarship had been unable to understand. It was earnestly to be hoped that he might be enabled to finish his translation of the Yih, and to collect such evidence as would lift his views out of the domain of theory into that of fact. After some remarks from Colonel Yule hearty thanks were voted to the reader for his valuable paper.

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCING

PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators; also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

H. LAMPLOUGH, Consulting Chemist, 113, HOLBORN, E.C.,

CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS.
Captain Fortescue, J.P.

BANKERS.
The Capital and Counties Bank (Limited), Head Office, Threadneedle-street, London, and at the various Branches.

Mr. Joseph Wykes.

Since the first allotment of Shares the Directors have the pleasure to announce that the Company have secured the very valuable Freehold Estates of "Lackadie" and "Madutelia," in the Wynaad District of Southern India, the very heart of the Gold-bearing region, comprising an area of about 900 acres for a sum of £40,000, payable £20,000 in Cash and £20,000 in Shares, at the option of the Company.

As an instance of the daily increasing demand for Gold properties in Southern India, the Directors need only inform the Shareholders that, since the securing these Estates, a much larger price has been offered for them, which, taken with the restrictions placed upon the grant of the Leases by the Government, and the limitation to thirty acres, renders the acquisition of these Properties most advantageous.

Too much importance cannot be attached to the circumstance that the Property the Company has acquired is Freehold and without restrictions.

About 250 acres is under cultivation as a Coffee Plantation, and in the sale to the Company is included the Growing Crops, Buildings, Stock, &c. The Estates possess a plentiful supply of labour, water, and timber, and are easily accessible to the Imperial and district roads, and water carriage.

At the earliest opportunity the Directors purpose erecting sufficient machinery to crush 150 tons of quartz per day, which it is estimated will give the following result:—

150 tons of Quartz crushed per day for 300 working days, yielding 10dwt. of Gold per Ton, at the selling price of £3 15s. per oz.

Amounts to per annum	£84,375 0 0
Deduct—
Cost of Crushing 45,000 Tons, at 12s. 6d. per Ton	28,125 0 0
Other Expenses, say 5s. per Ton ..	11,250 0 0
	£39,375 0 0
Thus leaving a Net Profit per annum of	45,000 0 0

[Equal to a Dividend of over 40 per cent on the entir capital of the Company.]

Corroborative evidence of the value of these Estates may be had in the Prospectus containing extracts from the recent report of Mr. Brough Smyth.

The Directors, in conclusion, have much pleasure and satisfaction in submitting the Investment to the public, and that in order to avoid disappointment to applicants for Shares they will allot the Shares strictly in accordance with the order in which they are received.

Applications will be received by the Bankers or Secretary of the Company as follows:—

5s. 0d. per Share on Application.
7s. 6d. ,, Allotment.
12s. 6d. ,, 15th June.

Prospectuses, Forms of Application, Government Notices, and Map, will be forwarded on application to the Secretary, at the Offices, 15, Finsbury-place South London, E.C.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, May 1; Madras and Allahabad, April 29; Calcutta, April 28.

THE reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending the 20th April state that general rain fell in the eastern portion of Bengal, in Assam, Burma, Madras, and Mysor; there was also slight rain in the Southern Mahratta Country, but none has fallen elsewhere. The threshing and winnowing of rabi crops is proceeding, the outturn is satisfactory; prices are falling. From Peshawur only is want of rain reported. Agricultural prospects and public health remain good on the whole.

THE following is the health report for the same week:—Bombay: Fever prevalent in Hyderabad, and some cholera; fever and small-pox in Karachi. Bengal: Cholera in Jangipur sub-division of Moorshedabad; fever in Rungpore; small-pox in Bhagalpur; public health of the whole good. North West Provinces and Oudh: Sporadic cholera continues in Benares, Allahabad, Fyzabad, and Partabgarh, and increasing in Gorakhpur; a few cases in Lucknow; small-pox prevalent in Gorakhpur, and slight fever in Agra and Jhansi; otherwise health generally good. Punjab: Health good. British Burma: Small-pox continues in Pegu; general health otherwise good. Assam: Public health good; but some cases of cholera. Mysore: Fever continues. Hyderabad: Fever continues in some places. Central India: Fever in Lushkur and Morar; fever and small-pox prevalent in Manipur; otherwise health good. Rajputana: Health good. Nepal: Cholera in Katmandu.

THE attack on Chappri post, in which Lieut. Wood was killed, is thus described in the Calcutta telegram:—

"The news from the Kuram Valley is again unsatisfactory. On the night of the 2nd inst. a band of Waziris attacked the Chappri post. They took the small garrison by surprise and scaled the low wall which surrounded the camp unobserved. Lieutenant Wood, one of the Bengal police officers, who was lately appointed to the Transport Department, was sleeping outside his tent, and was at once cut to pieces. Ten of our people were killed and sixteen wounded before the enemy were driven off, leaving two dead behind. Though similar outrages are now becoming matters of almost daily occurrence in Kuram, and although we have a large force lying idle in the valley, no serious attempt is being made to punish the refractory tribesmen. General Watson is not the man to lie voluntarily still in the cantonments while the enemy is murdering and robbing around him. His passive attitude is evidently due to orders from Simla, where the authorities display an apathy as to the affairs in Kuram which is quite inexplicable."

CAPTAIN GARNETT, of the transport train, was shot at and wounded severely in the arm on the 9th inst. by a band of robbers, or, more likely, fugitives from the Ghuzni fight. He is now doing well. All the villages in the vicinity have been heavily fined by the Wali.

THE telegrams from Kandahar state that his Highness the Wali returned from Arghastan on the 9th, after completely pacifying the disturbed districts. On the 11th inst. the formal presentation of the Viceroy's letter was made. It has hitherto been delayed by the non-arrival of the accompanying gifts. After the letter had been read aloud and presented, Colonel St. John stated that the Wali would have the right of having the Khutbeh read and the money coined in his own name. He also made a brief speech, in which he laid particular stress on the severance of Kandahar being no novelty, but merely a return to the original settlement of the country under the supremacy of the Barakzais. The Viceroy's presents consisted of a superb sword and belt, a diamond-studded watch and chain, a clock, some handsome silver-plate, and a variety of silks and velvets. General Primrose buckled the sword round the Wali's waist, and the battery fired a salute of twenty-one guns. The ceremony concluded with a speech from the Wali, expressing his gratitude to the British Government, and declaring his intention to abolish two unpopular imposts—namely, the poll-tax on all males not being Duranis, and the arbitrary calling in every two or three months of all the copper money at one-fourth of its nominal value and reissuing it the next day at the original rate.

IT is announced that the Rajas of Bulrampore and Rampore have each offered the Government a gift of a lakh of rupees for the benefit of the sick and wounded, and the offers will probably be accepted.

THE formation of the new Guide Corps, mentioned in our last issue, has been abandoned for the present from financial considerations.

NEWS has been received at Safet Sang from Tezin that the assembled Maliks had decided that, unless subsidised as during the Ameer's reign, they would give as much annoyance as possible. The tribes have been directed to place their families in safety. Sir Donald Stewart will have to assist at another conference, as the natives intend to appeal to the authorities at Cabul.

ACCORDING to a Reuter's telegram, a letter received at Teheran from Herat, dated the 18th April, states that the Cabulese regiments have joined Ayoub Khan, and that the latter, with 14,000 other troops, has left that place apparently with the intention of marching against Kandahar. The correspondent of the Daily News at Cabul telegraphs that deserters from Herat report that the city is in a state of anarchy, and that Eyoub Khan is virtually a prisoner. The troops are oppressing the people, and are mutinous. The Ghilzai chiefs at Tezin have offered an alliance with Abdurrhaman.

THE Kandahar News of April 14 contains the following announcement:—"Gentlemen interested in the noble game of cricket are requested to meet on Thursday next, at 5.30 p.m., in front of the R.A. Mess, and discuss the ways and means for instituting a cricket club. The paper-chase proposed for Thursday is given up on account of the crops."

A NOTIFICATION has been made that the Governor General of India in Council has, "in consequence of the increased cost of the war in Afghanistan, as now estimated," determined to borrow Rs.313,00,000, or somewhat more than £3,000,000, "for the construction of productive public works in 1880-81." Tenders for the whole or any part of the new issue will be received by the comptroller general until noon of Monday, June 14 next. If the tenderer is not resident in India letters of allotment will be issued to his agent there in case his tender be accepted, the rate at which each tender is made being specified in rupees, or rupees and annas. The loan will bear 4½ per cent. interest.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs that the news of the mistake in the budget caused a fall in Government securities. In the middle of last week there was a recovery but the announcement of the new loan has again had a depressing effect. The petition which the British Indian Association intend to present to Parliament has been published in Calcutta. The principal prayer of the verbose and lengthy petition is that a parliamentary inquiry should be held as to the feasibility of, first, introducing a representative non-official element into the Legislative Councils; secondly, of granting the power of the purse to these councils; thirdly, of extending the Bengal permanent settlement to the rest of India; fourthly, of establishing more efficient courts of intermediate appeal; fifthly, of removing the difficulties in the way of natives entering the Civil Service; and, sixthly, of repealing the Arms and Vernacular Press Acts.

A FURTHER return of patients treated at the Cabul Dispensary from March 11 to 17 shows a total number of former number were 656 males, 248 females, and 126 children; in the latter 190 males, 125 females, and seven children. The daily average number of outdoor patients treated during the above period was 142·28, and that of indoor patients 46·00.

HIS Excellency the Viceroy has, we learn, sanctioned the establishment of savings banks in connection with guaranteed railways upon the same principles as those for State railways; the amount subscribed by the companies in cases of lines not paying the guaranteed interest is to be ½ per cent., and an additional ½ per cent. if the concern has surplus profits after liquidation of the guaranteed interest. The maximum deposit within a year is to be Rs.5,000, and the rules are to apply to servants of railway companies up to a certain grade—not those of a higher standing.

THE Times of India announces the death of the youngest officer in the army who wore the Indian medal—Captain A. V. Chick, M.S.C., 1st Madras Light Cavalry. He was a student at the Martineau College when the mutiny broke out, and joined in the defence of Lucknow. His first commission was dated Sept. 9, 1864. Captain Chick was formerly in the 76th Regiment.

ACCORDING to the official order published in the Gazette of India, the grant of the Indian Medal of 1854, with clasp, inscribed "Perak, 1875-76," in the case of the troops which proceeded from India, is to be limited to the period between Nov. 27, 1875, and March 20, 1876. The Commander in Chief has been requested to adopt early measures for the submission of rolls of the officers and soldiers of corps who are entitled to these decorations.

THE Chinese Minister has caused it to be announced that he has no information whatever as to the telegram stating the readiness of the Chinese Government to admit Europeans to the naval and military services.

THE Vythery correspondent of the Madras Times says:—"The great gold question is causing much sensation in South Wynaad. There can be no doubt that gold exists in considerable quantities in the district, and I hear rumours of a company being formed to work some of the most likely reefs. I fancy that very likely the new dynamite explosive, which was exhibited at Beypore a short time ago, will be largely employed for boring the reefs and blasting the larger boulders. South East Wynaad seems to be in high feather over its future gold prospects, but it is quite lately that we in the south have taken seriously to the idea."

IN connection with the National Indian Association, a subscription list has been opened in Bombay for defraying the cost of forming an organisation for the purpose of supplying information and assistance to native gentlemen desirous of educating their sons in England and of exercising a general control over native students in England whose supervision the association might undertake.

A CURIOUS fact is noticed by the Rev. Mr. Ayerst in a paper in the last Indian Antiquary on the Garo Hill tribes, which is that they have included Queen Victoria "the mother of the Feringhis," amongst their goddesses, and worship her as they do Mahadeva.

IN the month of February 1,745 emigrants left the port of Calcutta for the West India Islands.

DURING the week ending April 17 there were 182 deaths in Calcutta, being a death rate of 22·1 per 1,000 per annum. In the same week in Madras there were 279 deaths, being a death rate of 37·1 per 1,000 per annum. During the week ending April 20 the deaths in Bombay numbered 449, being a death rate of 34·69 per 1,000 per annum.

A CORRESPONDENT of a contemporary calls attention to the fact that, although the Zaimusht expedition took place in December last no despatches describing the operations have as yet been published. Considering with what skill the expedition was conducted, it seems strange that the Indian Government should not have published the despatches of the late General Tytler, whose ability as a general was so much admired, and whose death has been so universally regretted.

THE Bombay Gazette of May 1 prophetically remarks:—"Not the least perplexing of the difficulties connected with the Afghan question is the cost of the war. There seems every prospect of the somewhat moderate estimates set forth in the House of Commons being largely exceeded, and there is every prospect of the Liberal successor to the India-office portfolio having his eyes opened by the magnitude of the bill for Afghan expenses which the country will be called upon to pay. It may not be generally known that since November or December last the expenditure under the heading of transport and supply has been quite £1,000,000 sterling per month. Add to this the other general expenses of the army and the total sum will be something enormous."

MAJOR WAUDBY'S gallant defence of the Dubrai post excited universal admiration of all villagers around. The enemy confess to a loss of twelve killed and eighteen wounded.

THE net amount of Indian sea and land customs revenue for the last financial year, exclusive of the salt revenue, was Rs.2,19,42,675, as compared with Rs.2,23,01,521 in the previous year.

THE Horse Guards have protested against the local rank of lieutenant generals being conferred on General Roberts without sanction from home in contravention of orders to the effect that such local rank is only given after royal sanction and approval.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Major R. G. T. Stevenson, Bombay; Capt. A. V. Chick, Madras; W. Murray; H. F. Owen; and A. M. Kernot.

THE assembling of a new Parliament has caused several new legislative guides and handbooks to spring into existence. A humorous travesty of the well-known companion is the "Popular Dod." Though sometimes justly described as impudent, its verbal caricatures are clever and amusing. There are two sketches of members for India that are very good.

THE purchase of the Lackadie and the Madutella coffee estates in South Wynaad has secured for the Gold Company of Southern India a valuable coffee property as well as a most promising section of the auriferous country, the development of which seems likely to bring back the golden age of Southern India. The Indian papers tell us every mail of the increasing competition for such properties. Well situated both for working and carriage, this area of nine hundred acres will afford a fine field for the gold mining operations, which, according to the reports of Mr. Brough Smyth, require only the judicious application of sufficient capital to yield a good return.

THE INDIAN MUSEUM.

THE expectations which had been entertained that her Majesty the Queen-Empress would inaugurate the opening of the new India Museum, or that in her absence the Prince of Wales would preside at the ceremony, have been disappointed. The Queen, however, has shown her warm interest in the newly-constituted Indian section by a prolonged private visit, and subsequently their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, with their children, and accompanied by the Duke of Edinburgh, inspected the new dispositions of the Indian Art Treasures. On Monday the Indian Section of the South Kensington Museum was thrown open to the public. The whole of the Indian fabrics possessed by the museum have not even had found space for exhibition, but there is enough to make the museum valuable from a far more important standpoint than that of the mere sightseer or curiosity hunter. Art has its commercial as well as its æsthetic importance, and Indian fictile and textile art, as well as Indian antiquities, will now practically for the first time be systematically exhibited in such a way as to instruct our own producers and manufacturers.

A thoroughly complete arrangement, by which the nomenclature, classification, and dates of each group of objects shall at once be shown, without the labour of searching a catalogue, will be according to South Kensington usage. The handbooks are valuable, and to a student indispensable, but the public need to be attracted by easy methods of understanding what they see.

THE EXPEDITION TO THE CHAPPAR MOUNTAIN.

THE correspondent of the Pioneer, writing from Harnai, says that with one party of the expedition which was sent to punish the Kahars for the murder of Captain Showell consisted of a detachment of 5th Native Light Infantry under Captain Hennell. With this party went Sir R. Sandeman, who, as he was in white, with a huge mushroom topi and a red kamarband, was, amongst the khaki-clad 5th, a pretty conspicuous mark. This party getting engaged with the enemy got drawn away further and further from the main rift, till they came to the one which ends in the Kujlak ravine, and then could get no farther, the Pathans firing from one side and we from the other. Here Sandeman was shot through the hat, and his chaprassi in the shoulder, no other man of ours being wounded. This party fired about 400 rounds, and, it is believed, killed four of the enemy. On the following day, Dr. Duke, with Captain Hennell and a party, visited the scene of Showers's murder. They found some of his papers lying about, and say that in that place he had no chance of escape. Strange to say, his little dog, though badly wounded with a sword-cut, made its way back to Harnai, and is now doing well. Also saw Showers's camel running loose, but too wild to be caught, and picked up the saddle of his sowar, who was killed with him. Showers's body was dreadfully mutilated, only his head and arms being taken to Quetta, and the face so disfigured that nobody could have known it. The Gwal column passed the place where Lieutenant Fuller, R.E., was attacked, and found the wreck of his camp—broken instruments, torn plans, and letters all over the place. Major Wace picked up the parchment certificates of Sergeant Grant, R.E., who was with Fuller.

THE FIELD TELEGRAPH.

THE work done by the field telegraph during the present campaign has been far more noticeable than on any other occasion in trans-Indus campaigns; and it is worth while noticing the number of interruptions which occurred in the Afghan campaign of 1878-79 and that of 1879-80, as from the figures one is able to judge how far we have succeeded in pacifying the country passed through. In the last campaign the wire was constantly cut by the tribesmen between Jumrood and Dakka, and so unruly were the tribes on our frontier line, hat even between Peshawur and Jumrood the line was broken down four times. Now all is changed: between Peshawur and Dakka there has not been an inch of wire interfered with during the present campaign—a fact which reflects the highest credit upon Mr. Merk and the other political officers in charge of that section. From a table of interruptions compiled by Mr. Luke, C.S.I., in principal charge of the Peshawur Cabul line, it appears the interruptions have been reduced 75 per cent., while the length of wire stolen is only one-fifth of what it was in the last campaign. The following interruptions which have occurred between Peshawur and Cabul from 1st November to 31st March, 1880:—

	Times cut.	Length.
Jumrood to Ali Musjid	... 1	Nil.
Dakka to Basaule ...	... 4	880 yards.
Basaule to Barikab ...	... 21	9 miles 1,020 yards.
Barikab to Jellalabad	... 6	1 mile 690 yards.
Pezwan to Cabul ...	... 1	50 miles.

In the month of February the line was not cut at all, and in March no interruption occurred west of Jellalabad.—Correspondent Pioneer.

THE TRADE OF BRITISH BURMA.

THE opening of the Suez Canal has done a good deal for Burma. Rice now goes home in large quantities by steamer instead of the old sailing tub, and is about one quarter the time on the voyage. Shipments, it is said, will shortly be made of clean, white rice instead of the mixture of unhusked and husked grain known as "cargo rice" in the trade. Under the old conditions clean rice would not keep, but with the length of voyage so considerably shortened it is hoped that there will be no danger of its becoming steamed or heated in the five or six weeks necessary to take a shipment from any of our ports to London or Liverpool. To residents here, looking forward to a few months' holiday in their native country, passages by the rice steamers are often available at from £20 to £30, showing that if they wish to encourage a large passenger trade the regular steam lines, although their fares are considerably reduced of late, might come down still further with advantage to themselves and the public. Then, again, competition between the B.I.S.N. Company and the Asiatic Steam Navigation Company has reduced rates both for freight and passage very considerably between this and Calcutta. We used to be charged Rs.20 per ton for goods shipped on this three days' trip. Now we get our cargo down at Rs.5 per ton, and they seem very glad to get it too. Life in this province for the European is not now the utter isolation it was considered ten or fifteen years ago.—Englishman.

THE SOUTH TRAVANCORE MEDICAL MISSION.

FROM the report of this mission which has reached our hands, we learn that as many as 21,049 new cases were treated during the past year. This seems an enormous amount of work for one European doctor and some half dozen dressers to accomplish. And in addition to these cases, 3,000 patients were treated by itinerant dressers among the coffee estates of the Ashambu hills. The surgical and medical cases embrace almost all the ills that flesh is heir to. Fifty-one serious cases of midwifery requiring the use of instruments are reported. "There were 4,464 cases of malarious fever, in which we found the hypodermic injection of quinine in severe cases, and the Government cinchona febrifuge, seldom fail to effect cure; and of the 1,300 cases of splenic enlargement much additional benefit was obtained by the cold douche to the part." Several cases of suffocation from swallowing, or attempting to swallow, fish-bones are recorded. That the work of Dr. Thomson and his assistants is highly appreciated, is shown by the deep interest taken in it by the Maha Raja and his Dewan. The Raja has presented the misssion with a hospital building at Neyoor and another at Littuvilli, and gives a large annual subscription besides. A total of Rs.2,625 by subscriptions in India, and other sources of income did not, however, meet the expenditure during 1879, and yet we are not a little astonished to find that these twenty-one thousand and odd cases were treated at a total cost of not more than Rs.4,648-11-0, or, say roughly, three and a half annas per head! We doubt if any Government hospital or dispensary throughout the Empire can show such a result. We cannot find from the report, or from the statistics appended thereto, how the patients fared as to recovery or otherwise. Too many figures bewilder the reader, but we think it would have been an improvement to add a column stating the numbers that were cured. The number of patients in 1879 was greater than in any previous year. Attached to the mission is a training class for dressers. During 1879, the five students "have been studying anatomy and physiology, and have twice gone through Huxley's physiology and Gray's Anatomy as far as muscles." A midwifery class also exists. Fifteen attended the class, "ten of whom were women, chiefly Bible-women. . . . Such information I trust, (says Dr. Thomson) will be useful to them in their work: for the only armamenta of a native midwife in a case of difficulty is a rusty nail." It is abundantly manifest that much good is being done by this mission, both to the present generation and to others yet to come.—Madras Times.

THE RUMPA REBELLION

A CORRESPONDENT writes that, while efforts were made to deal the final blow to this rebellion, intimation was received of a disturbance at Hill Madugula and Hill Pauchipenta. A body of rebels attacked the police station of Padern and took possession of it, and two policemen were made prisoners. On this being known, Captain Scott, of the Jeypore Police, marched towards Padern with some policemen, and on the road at Dukgaon met a villager, who reported to him the movements of the rebels, and led him up to them. The police fired a volley, which wounded three rebels, and they also made one man prisoner. On the following day about thirteen armed men, on their way to join the rebels, mistaking Captain Scott's camp for that of the rebels, entered it, and were made prisoners. Captain Scott and his party, after this, continued the march forward and re-occupied Padern. Having many prisoners and very few policemen, he went down the ghat for military aid, after leaving a small party in charge of Padern, and on his way met Mr. Clogstoun and Major Harris with a company of the 29th N.I. The whole of them then went up to Padern. They visited the village of Gutterpudien, and on arriving there the head-man, the ringleader of the disturbance, effected his escape, but his property was found concealed in a cave, and amongst the things were some gunpowder, lead, and percussion caps. These things were taken possession of and the villlage destroyed. About the same time intimation was received that the police station of Draku was attacked by thirty armed men; the police, assisted by the villagers, having beaten off the rebels, killing four of them. These rebels, when retreating, were met by Mr. Tremenheere, accompanied by Inspector Letang and some policemen; four of the rebels were here secured. The Government agent reports all in the neighbourhood are quiet, coolies, supplies, and information readily furnished. There are thirty-seven prisoners in the lock-up at Draken. None of the principals implicated in the murder of the constable has yet been caught, but a man who is supposed to be the murderer of one Dandasi has been captured. Tegulu Pentadu, a proclaimed offender, has been at lest caught and sent to Koosumroy. The other leaders are said to be hiding in Rumpa, and Major de Lousada has been out to Nedlur and the surrounding villages to get at Nedlur Ram Reddi.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

INDIA, PAST AND PRESENT.*

A BOOK on India, written by a native gentleman in excellent English, and replete with much interesting information and original thought, is a volume to be welcomed. The Dutt family is one of the most ancient and respected in Calcutta, and the author of the present work well deserved the title of Rái Báhádúr which his abilities and enlightenment helped to gain for him. He has written several essays and some poems of more than ordinary merit, and a paper on Taxation in India, which he contributed some years ago to Fraser's Magazine, dealt with that difficult subject in an exhaustive and masterly manner. The earlier chapters in the work before us are devoted to the discussion of the origin and development of the Bráhman race, Vedism, Buddhism, Pouránism, and Vedantism, showing the results of these various religious struggles and the changes they introduced. A sketch of the principal features of the Mahomedan rule is given with as impartial a touch as could be expected from a Hindu who lives to mourn the decay of Hindu nationality, learning, and energy under even English rule, but the most interesting portion of Shoshee Chunder Dutt's literary labour will perhaps be considered to be that portion of it which he gives to the description of home life in Bengal, and to the condition, character, and education of Hindu women. No people in the world are more attached to home and more constant in the practice of the domestic virtues than the Bengalis, and it is satisfactory to learn that in the author's opinion the grafting of Western social ideas upon the Hindu notions of Young Bengal has not yet brought discord or defilement within the family circle. Anglo-Indians regard with something harsher than cynicism that new product of civilisation known as young Bengal. They are apt to look upon him as the living embodiment of the truth of Pope's adage that "a little learning is a dangerous thing." According to their experience the veneer of education which the generosity of the English Government has put upon it has given a sort of sham smartness to his intellect without hiding any of the defects of it. A smattering of learning has enabled him to pass certain educational tests; he laughs at the gods of his childhood's idolatry, but remains superstitious without being religious; he accepts as few of the virtues and as many of the vices of civilisation as he finds convenient, and becomes a conceited prig or a hopeless debauchee. This is of course an extreme view, but the fact remains that between the Englishman in Calcutta and the representative of Young Bengal there is to-day a great social gulf which all efforts have failed to bridge. Shoshee Chunder Dutt, however, sees only light and sweetness in the character which the Englishman despises. He is of opinion that Young Bengal has become a power in the State by his own exertions, and that he will elevate his country in a short time to a much higher position than she has ever held. He attributes the dislike of Englishmen to him to jealousy. "Why is it," he asks, "that Young Bengal is disliked by that very people to whom he owes all his virtues? Why do the rulers of India receive him with coldness and reserve? Would it be wrong if we said that the Englishman now feels that he is everywhere jostled by that very body whom he was before so anxious to patronise; that he calls the native vain, empty-headed, and half educated only because he feels his close pressure to be exceedingly inconvenient?" This assurance will produce a smile when read by Englishmen in India, but they will perhaps be ready to endorse the statement which immediately follows, that "the Englishman has no business in India if he finds the Hindu to be in his way." Shoshee Chunder Dutt would have Young Bengal jostling the Englishman, "not at the desk only, but at the factory, the anvil, and the mill." But, unfortunately for the elevation of India, which Young Bengal is supposed to have at heart, work in the factory, at the anvil, or in the mill is just the very work that he thinks beneath him and declines to put his hands to. The chapters on the condition and character of Hindu women will amply repay perusal. They are written in a liberal spirit, and with an evident desire to see his countrywomen raised to a higher social and intellectual position. He owns that the condition of women in India is not an enviable one. "The excellence of woman, unmarried, married, or widowed, throughout the country—among great and small—is rated only by the scale of servile fear and capacity for endurance and toil." Yet, the author would not have the women of India educated upon a European model. "The education of European females is as a rule too flimsy to be of any real value, and, though harmless in its results in the cold climates of the north, would make woman a wild animal beneath the burning sun of the tropics; and Young India is too wide awake not to understand this."

This at least is candid, although experience may happily prove that there is no foundation for the fear. Shoshee Chunder Dutt professes to be neither a sceptic nor a Christian, but only an earnest seeker after truth. His work, even with all its crudities, will not be without good effect upon others of his countrymen who, like himself, are striving to solve the complex problems of past and present social life in India.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE OPERATIONS IN THE NAGA HILLS.

WE have received from a correspondent with the force the following brief but interesting account of the march of the column commanded by Captain Abbott, operating in the Kutcha Naga Hills, from February 7 to March 9, the dates of departure from Kohima and arrival at Paplongmai:—

"After the assault on the Konoma position on November 22, 1879, which was beaten off with severe loss to the troops engaged, the Nagas evacuated the position and took up another very strong one higher up the ridge; here it was not desirable to follow them, and a sort of blockade was instituted on the Zubza side. Ten troops occupied the lower position of Konoma, with supports at Suchema; but the enemy had free access to Nozema, and the valley of the Zupva immediately in rear of their position. Kutcha Naga villages are situated down this valley, and these have hitherto been looked upon by both the Konoma men and ourselves as ryots, and of course have had a bad time of it, having to serve two masters, the Konoma men being on the spot, and being, of course, all powerful. From these villages and Munipur the Konoma men were drawing provisions and ammunition, which enabled them to hold out and treat with contempt the imaginary blockade. It was hoped that the Konoma men were starving and dying by hundreds, instead of which they were enjoying the sport immensely, organising raiding parties, which molested in different directions. They finally sent a party of forty men down the Barak River into Cachar and destroyed the Baladhan tea estate, plundered the building and then returned in triumph with trophies in the shape of heads of the unfortunate manager and several coolies, sola topies, guns, ammunition, &c., without suffering themselves in the least. At length, the fine weather having been allowed to pass without any active measures being taken against the enemy, the latter, becoming impatient of the continued occupation of their village and land (as it was high time to think of cultivating), amused themselves by sending insolent messages, which at last woke up the local authorities, civil and military, to the unpleasant fact that, far from the Konoma men surrendering, there was every prospect of this policy of inactivity going on for months. An expedition composed of 150 bayonets 42nd and 43rd N.I., and fifty Kohima Nagas, arrived with spears and muskets, all under the command of Capt. Abbott, 42nd N.I., started on Feb. 7 for the Kutcha Naga Hills via Piphima, Zama stockade, Tehema, Chama, Lakema, &c. The objects of the expedition were to visit the Kutcha Naga villages, reassure the inhabitants, drive the Konoma men from them, raise a Kuki levy at Jampi, where the Kuki Raja resides, then turning northwards work up the Zupvo Valley, driving the Konoma men ahead, and finally seize and occupy Paplongmai, a village of the greatest importance to the Konoma Nagas, as in it they had located their families, and by its position it commands the valleys of the Zulla and Zupvo. All this was effected except raising the Kuki levy. . . The troops had run short of provisions, and found themselves in an awkward position, being entirely isolated and cut off from the only sources of supply, viz., Konoma to the north-east and Zumha to the north. The enemy took full advantage of this, occupied the roads leading to Konoma and Tehema, through which the road passes Zumha, and thus fairly cut off the party at Paplongmai. A futile effort was made on March 10, by Lieut. Henderson, with 75 bayonets, to bring supplies from Konoma. The Nagas attacked the party most obstinately when above half way and compelled them to retire. The garrison at Paplongmai were told that no further efforts could be made to send provisions to Konoma and they must do the best for themselves, but that it was of the utmost importance that Paplongmai should not be evacuated. A remedy was soon at hand; by the judicious laying out of a few rupees a hundred villagers started off for the Zumha, going by paths known only to themselves and wild beasts. In a little over forty-eight hours they returned with ten days' rations, having evaded the vigilance of the Konoma picquets. Thus the Konoma men, seeing that it was useless to attempt forcing the position, and that the jungles were daily scouted by sepoys and their supplies were completely stopped, sent in to treat and have surrendered. This expedition traversed close on 300 miles of the wildest and most difficult country conceivable, had to force their way through virgin paths, constantly repairing paths, cutting steps on the steep and slippery hill sides, ever on the look out for ambuscades and sudden attacks, and after attacking and destroying four refractory villages, Inkao, Dupima, Ridima, and Nakama, and reducing all to abject submission, finally occupied and now holds the strong position of Paplongmai. The losses were only one sepoy, died of exhaustion, and one wounded. Skirmishes in the jungle were frequent.

"Camp Paplongmai, April 6.—P.S.—We hope to march into Konoma in a few days as soon as all the terms demanded have been complied with, and expect to have to remain at Konoma during the rains."

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE RAMPA REBELLION.

Now that the Rampa rebellion has been stamped out the Government might, with profit, take stock of the cost, the worry, the trouble of the very inglorious conflict it has been carrying on for the past year, and more with petty hill tribes irritated into defiance by want of tact and consideration on the part of its officials in administrating the disturbed district. In March last, when news was received that Chendriah had begun to beard the authorities, it was thought that he would be speedily brought to justice, and the district restored to order and peace in a short time. But it soon turned out that the police of the district were unable to put down what was considered to be a very petty disturbance, and then came the sending of a regiment of sepoys, and what gave a somewhat comical aspect to an awkward business, the despatch to the scene of war of the Governor's Body Guard—horsemen pitched against hillmen. There was, of course, very little chance or hope of winning reputation at the cannon's mouth, and the indecision shown by Government, the somewhat spasmodic energy of the police and military at times, the seeming bewilderment of the civil authorities in the district, the difficult nature of the country, its unhealthy climate, the prevalence of a malignant type of fever, the connivance of whole villages at the acts of the rebels, either through timidity or malice prepense, dragged this Rampa revolt to a dreary, wearisome length, and all those who took part in putting it down must heartily rejoice that it is over. But what has been the actual cost to Government, in money and lives, of this Rampa business? That is a question to which the public would like to get an answer. And again, can the Government conscientiously say that this cost and these lives might have been saved if from the first the action of the Government towards the naked, ill-equipped followers of Chendriah were marked by greater vigour, energy, and determination? This Rampa rebellion, and the tardy way in which it has been suppressed, will shed anything but a ray of glory on the present Administration. The actual causes that led to this pettiest of wars—if we may call it a war—must also be thoroughly searched into. It must be ascertained whether or not these hill tribes, who stand in awe of the Sirkar, have not been goaded and maddened into so dangerous a game as rebellion by the operation of unwise laws, of taxes that fell on them as burdens too grievous to bear, and of tyrannous, high-handed irritating acts of petty officials, who are apt to be led away by the temptation of playing—with the authority, but without the knowledge of the Sirkar—the rôle of the oppressor of the weak, the ignorant and the credulous. The disturbed district should at once be placed under the control of some energetic officials of the stamp of those who, under the East India Company, "entamed the spirits" of the wildest tribes, and taught them to live loyal and peaceful lives. In the case of the people of the Rampa district, no mild-mannered, soft-headed official, stimulated by the best and kindliest intentions, would do; what is wanted is a man who will combine tact with firmness. The men who have succeeded in civilising and bringing under the curb of law and discipline wild and intractable tribes in the hill districts in the Mofussil have combined in admirable proportions the suaviter in modo and the fortiter in re. And it is worth mentioning that most of such men have been found not among civil but military officers. A short rule of the Rampa district by such a man will prove of the utmost advantage to that part of the Presidency.—Madras Times.

THE TRADE OF INDIA.

THE official returns of the foreign trade of India for the eleven months of the financial year show that the country is recovering from the effects of the famine. The imports of merchandise amount to Rs.36,00,44,000 against Rs.33,95,81,000 for the corresponding eleven months of 1878-79. The exports amount to Rs.59,38,50,000 against Rs.54,05,16,000 for the preceding year, while the net customs revenue, irrespective of salt, amounted to Rs.1,91,30,911 against Rs.1,97,03,084, showing a loss of only Rs.5,72,173 in spite of the abolition of the duty on cotton goods. The Budget of 1879-80 anticipated a loss of customs revenue for the year of Rs.19,20,000; the loss for eleven months shows only 5¾ lakhs, so there will be about 13 lakhs to the good on this item of revenue; this is a saving of which there is no mention in the revised estimates of 1879-80 given in the Budget of 1880-81. We are quite aware that there are some people who deny that increased foreign trade is an undoubted sign of increased prosperity of a country; but when this is accompanied, as it has lately been in India, by a large extension of industrial enterprises and the export of fresh products, the growth of its foreign trade must, we think, be admitted to signify the growth of what constitutes real prosperity. It is satisfactory to notice that Bombay is sharing in the marked improvement in business which is showing itself not only in this country, but apparently throughout the world. For the first three months of this year, January to March, we exported 258,000 bales of cotton against 160,000 in the same months of 1879; of wool 124,400 bales against 50,500; of linseed 210,700cwts. against 115,900; of gingelly seed 339,200cwts. against 292,500; of rape and mustard seed 32,988cwts. against 15,975; of coffee 54,130 against 41,230; of wheat 73,232cwts. against nothing in the first three months of last year. In our imports we have received, in the three months of this year, of grey shirtings and longcloths 1,366,900 pieces against 797,870 pieces for the first three months of 1879; of grey jacconets 360,000 pieces against 209,060; of white jacconets, 315,000 pieces against 292,800; of grey madapollams 297,000 against 209,300; of iron we have received 13,027 tons against 10,651. The only important article which has fallen off is coal, of which only 80,000 tons have come in the three months of this year, while 148,000 tons came in the same months of 1879. With regard to the large increase in imports of piece goods, it must be remembered further that last year we had a dozen of our mills closed, and many of the others were working on short time, while this year all are at work and on full time. It is true that increased trade at times arises from an abnormally speculative spirit, but this does not appear to be the case at present, as every symptom is that of legitimate business, the naturally heavy growth of the ground which has been lying fallow through famine causes. In this part of India our cotton crop has this year returned to something like its old proportions, and its quality is most excellent; while the crops of wheat and seed have probably never been equalled. Of course this must result in increased purchasing power on the part of the millions who till the soil, and who in large portions of the country during the past three or four years have hardly been able to get enough to maintain life. And we understand that mercantile business is not being conducted at a loss, but is fairly profitable to our merchants, whether in the home or foreign trade.—Bombay Gazette.

THE QUESTION IN AFGHANISTAN.

THERE is only one way to secure order in Afghanistan; only one way to guarantee peace, and that is—to take up the work ourselves. The promotion of this chief and the other chief are but silly expedients for endeavouring to avoid the inevitable; but which practically amount to the sowing of new enemies. We raise hopes it will be impossible to gratify, and invent claims we cannot satisfy. We, in fact, go about and invent false princes and false principalities, for there can be no disguising the fact that English bayonets, in a country like Afghanistan, must always be the only guarantee against such another misfortune as that of Sept. 3, 1879. This being so, and as the necessities of our position require us to be prepared without delay for new political convulsions in Europe—convulsions which will be sure to extend to Asia—we ought to make a clear and decided avowal of the determination to substitute law and order for anarchy, and an English Governor for the Ameer, and to annex the country which has fallen to us, not so much by right of conquest as by the impossibility of any Afghan chief, or family, forming within it a stable government. And as a proof that it will not retire, and that it will see no interests involved but the interests of India, the Government should issue orders to fortify Kandahar and to select a position close to Cabul where a fortress may be constructed which would overawe the city, dominate the country, and prevent that distribution of force which now, at Sherpur, amounts to a standing blunder. The line, Kandahar to Cabul, is, however, only an interior strategical line. If that line be held in strength and properly fortified its possession will decide far larger questions than that of the maintenance of order in Afghanistan. Every fortress on the line would become a point from which trade and order would radiate, and from which the Government of India would issue orders that no Afghan would be found brave enough to disobey. The only danger would be in the temptation to enlist Afghans in our armies. But that temptation, if carefully and steadily avoided for a generation, would convert the whole of the tribes into wealthy agriculturists and enterprising and pushing traders. Still, beyond the frontier held in force for strategical purposes, we should have to seek the ethnological parting we spoke of in a previous article. That parting runs from the Seistan Lake past Herat, Maimanah, and Sheberghan to the Oxus. We might either hold it ourselves, or we might guarantee Herat and Turkestan to certain chiefs we might select. The simplest way and the best would be to hold it ourselves by an army recruited from all races except the Afghans. This, too, is necessary in order to enable us to dominate Badakhshan. Badakhshan is, in point of fact, a weaker point, and yet a harder nut to crack than even Cabul itself. Whether or no, it must be made clear that India regards Herat on the West, and the Oxus on the North, as defining lines she will defend against all comers, and if she is to do this effectually, and with a certainty of success, her first duty is to fortify that natural girdle, Kandahar to Cabul, which must make her mistress of Afghanistan.—Indian Daily News.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

MEETINGS OF COMPANIES.—At an extraordinary meeting of Watson's Patent Press Company, held April 15, the resolutions passed at the meeting of March 29 were confirmed.—At a general meeting of the Bengal Ironworks Company (in liquidation), held April 16, the liquidator's report was adopted.—At the general meeting of the Bowreah Cotton Mills Company, held April 19, the report and accounts for the half-year ending Feb. 29 were passed; the sum of Rs.7,561 unclaimed dividends was passed to credit of a reserve fund, and the amount standing at credit of profit and loss account—viz., Rs.87,644—was carried forward.—Englishman.

THE ANDAMAN ISLANDS.—The great Army Commission did not overlook the Andaman Islands. Regarding the penal settlement in the Bay of Bengal, with a desire to find an opening for a saving, the commission put it on record that only two companies of native infantry should be retained at Port Blair. If two companies would suffice for the native portion of the garrison a native garrison is not required at all, and consequently the order has been given that, after a few months, required to work a police force into proper trim, the native portion of the garrison of the Andamans will be withdrawn. The Andamans police will, however, receive a military stamp, and the superintendentship will be somewhat better paid than similar posts in Burma or Bengal. The Government should have withdrawn the European part of the garrison and kept the natives. The question, however, remains whether a partially military police is fitted to guard such a settlement as Port Blair better than the sepoys, who have the advantage of better training and a stricter discipline, not to speak of the other advantage of being drawn, as a rule, from better classes of men.—Indian Daily News.

THE STAMP REVENUE.—In the North West Provinces the Government of India should peruse the recently published report of the Board of Revenue of these provinces on the administration of the stamp revenue for the year ending March 31, 1879. Among other-tit bits it will be found that in the year 1878-79 there was a net increase of revenue, as compared with 1877-78, of Rs.3,59,149, and that "this large and satisfactory increase is practically confined to the receipts under the Court Fees Act," the cause being, according to the commissioner of stamps, "increased litigation, and especially to the number of objections preferred, under the License Tax Act."—Indian Herald.

STAMP FRAUDS.—In consequence of the recent increase of stamp frauds in the Mofussil the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, has deputed an experienced native officer on special duty of inspecting the judicial stamps used in several district courts, on a fixed travelling allowance of Rs.150 per mensem, in addition to the substantive pay of his office as a revenue officer.—Indian Daily News.

QUALIFICATIONS IN ENGLISH.—The Government of the North West Provinces have ruled that in future no person will be appointed deputy collector on the permanent establishment who is not qualified by sufficient knowledge of English to discharge all duties and correspondence connected with the charge of the treasury. Government reserves to itself the power of relaxing this rule in favour of tahsildars, who, by acquired experience and intimate acquaintance with the details of revenue administration, are, in other respects than a knowledge of English, qualified to discharge the duties ordinarily devolving on deputy collectors.—Bombay Gazette.

LUNACY.—The report on the lunatic asylums in the North West Provinces and Oudh for the last year shows that there was a large increase in the number of inmates, from 816 in the previous year to 894. This is stated to be due to the impoverished condition of the people having compelled them to send their afflicted relatives to some place of refuge in order that they might be kept alive. In consequence the Lieutenant Governor has issued instructions that special care should be taken that the asylums are not converted into refuges whereby the relations of harmless lunatics may divest themselves of the responsibility of their watch and maintenance.—Bombay Gazette.

THE ATTOCK BRIDGE.—The military correspondent of the Times of India writes:—"All military men in India will be glad to learn that tenders have been accepted for the completion of the bridge over the Indus at Attock, but all work on that at Sukkur has been stopped. The Attock bridge will be similar, as far as its superstructure is concerned, to that over the Sutlej at Adamwahan, near Bhawulpore; but the piers, instead of being built of masonry, will consist of wrought iron box column. This innovation is accounted for owing to the frequency of earthquakes in the vicinity of Attock, which would render a bridge of masonry piers unsafe. The superstructure consists of steel lattice work girders, the railroad running at the top, the roadway below it; the latter will have a clear breadth of 15ft. and a height of 18ft., and the rails will have a gauge of 5ft. 6in. The bridge will consist of five spans, two of 300ft. and three of 250ft., resting on four iron piers, the base of the lattice work girder will be 110ft. above low water mark. This is even higher than the average height of Indian bridges, for floods on the Indus have been known to rise to a height of 102ft. above low water mark. The total weight of iron and steel in the body will amount to 3,300 tons, and the cost is expected to be under £160,000. The whole of the material has to be delivered at the dock in about six months, and it is confidently anticipated that the work will be finished by the close of 1881."

THE MURDERERS OF CAPTAIN MACDONALD.—The murderers of the late Captain Macdonald, at Michnee, have been for some months under arrest at Peshawur, and no orders have been passed with reference to them. It seems a pity that summary justice has not been administered in this case, and we may therefore draw the attention of Government to the fact.—Civil and Military Gazette.

THE INDIAN ASSOCIATION.—A meeting was held in Calcutta on Wednesday last under the auspices of another of the so-called native representative bodies, the Indian Association, which is chiefly composed of Bengali barristers, pleaders, and attorneys. Its object was to testify the rejoicings of the Indian community at the overthrow of the Conservative Ministry. There was, as always happens when Bengalis meet, an unending flow of what Americans would call "tall talk." One speaker said that India had long groaned under the Conservative yoke, but the time had now come when the Liberals would not give her cause to weep, but, on the other hand, the land would resound with rejoicings. The meeting resolved to petition Parliament to repeal the Arms Act; to proportion equally the cost of the Afghan war between England and India; to raise the maximum age for Civil Service candidates to twenty-five years; and to direct the holding of competitive examinations for the Civil Service in England and in India simultaneously. It may console the Conservative party at home to be told that the gentlemen who attended this meeting in no sense represent the people of India.—Times Telegram.

THE CROPS.—The North West Provinces have been blessed, in this year of grace, 1880, with a spring harvest, which, if not a bumper one, is almost everywhere equal to the full average standard. In some parts of the country the outturn has been considerably above the average, but the general average has been pulled down by short crops on unirrigated land. In districts where the fever of last autumn was so prevalent there was undoubtedly insufficient preparation of the ground for the cereals; sowings were late, and, instead of ten or twelve ploughings, the seed was put in in some places with no preparatory ploughing at all. The failure of the winter rains has resulted in a short crop, as we have said, in unirrigated land; and also in a short stalk generally. Lands that have been thoroughly cultivated have as usual given a magnificent outturn, and the specially favourable atmospheric influences on the ripened crops have secured the fulfilment of the promise held out to the cultivator. Prices have shown no very great fall, and, with good prices and an excellent crop, the long-suffering ryot should this year have a little spare cash in his pocket for a wedding or two. The excise revenue will probably show the result of an enhanced prosperity.—Pioneer.

AN APPEAL.—Mrs. Benyon, writing from the Residency, Jeypore, makes another appeal on behalf of the Soldiers' Families' Clothing Society. Last year the society was able to forward to the Deolalee depot 2,000 garments. The committee are now preparing for the next trooping season, and Mrs. Benyon says they need the same kind help they received last year. Mrs. Lawrence, of Agra, will gladly receive contributions.—Times of India.

"THE MOUNTAINEER."—Mr. F. Wilson, better known as "The Mountaineer," the well-known shikari, who has resided in the Himalaya for upwards of fifty years, is at last about to go with his two sons to England. The volunteers at Masuri gave him a farewell dinner on the 21st instant.—Englishman.

MUTTRA AND HATTRAS LIGHT RAILWAY.—The Government of the North West Provinces and Oudh, in a recent resolution, expresses its satisfaction with Mr. Henslow's management of the Muttra and Hattras Light Railway. The net profit for the half-year ending Dec. 31 last was at the rate of 4¼ per cent. per annum. When the Cawnpore Farukhabad Railway is opened, and the two lines are placed under one executive engineer, a saving is expected in the charges for maintenance and direction.—Pioneer.

LOSS OF THE I.G.S.N. COMPANY'S STEAMER "PROGRESS" AND FLAT "JUMNA."—We learn that a telegram has been received by the agents of the India General Steam Navigation Company announcing the destruction by fire of the company's steamer Progress, together with one of her flats, the Jumna, at Gauhati. The steamer was proceeding up country, and it appears that some straw and hay on her upper decks caught fire, and the Jumna, having grounded shortly before, and it being found impossible to cut her adrift in time, unfortunately took fire also, and both steamer and flat with all their cargo were burnt to the water's edge. The Gunga, the other flat attached to the steamer, was got clear and saved. The cause of the fire is unknown. The crew are reported to have behaved disgracefully, decamping on the first alarm. Four lives are supposed to have been lost. At the time of the despatch of the telegram water was still being pumped on to the burning wreck.—Englishman.

MR. J. A. CRAVEN has been appointed lieutenant and adjutant of the Darjiling Volunteer Rifles.

IMPORTANT TO TRAVELLERS.—The judgment recently delivered by Mr. Millett, first judge of the Calcutta Small Cause Court, in the suit brought by Mr. Mackillican against the Cie. Messageries Maritimes de France for the value of his luggage lost in the s.s. Meikong, is important to passengers. The court held that the company, under the Indian Contract Act, were liable to make good the loss sustained by the plaintiff through the negligence of their servants.—Times of India.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—At date of mail the disengaged tonnage in port stood at 38,279 tons. London via Canal.—The market closed strong at £3 2s. 6d. to £3 5s. for wheat and linseed; £2 17s. 6d. to £3 for jute, cotton, hides; £3 5s. to £3 7s. 6d. for rape; £3 7s. 6d. to £3 10s. for poppyseed. For London via Cape.—Rates closed steady at £2 2s. 6d. for saltpetre; £2 7s. 6d. for wheat; £2 12s. 6d. for linseed; £2 17s. 6d. for rape; £2 12s. 6d. for jute; £2 15s. for cotton, hides, &c.; and £2 17s. 6d. to £3 for poppyseed. For Liverpool via Suez Canal.—The Vega has booked saltpetre at 55s. and jute at £3 2s. 6d. There is not much offering. For Liverpool via Cape.—We quote rice or wheat £2 nominal; linseed, £2 7s. 6d. nominal; oil in cases, £2 10s.; cotton. £2 7s. 6d. nominal.—Englishman.

THE one-anna Inland Revenue stamp seems to be much favoured by the people of India as a kind of teeka or symbolic wafer to be stuck on every document of importance so as to avert the "evil eye" of the collector. It is cheap and conveniently adhesive, and to a great majority these qualities seem all-sufficing. Even sharp-witted Marwarees adhere to the one-anna faith, though their worship of this particular "ticket" (as the vulgar call it) is not above suspicion. A Nagpur sowcar recently produced in court a sarkhat bahi, in which, besides the usual Catherine-wheel daub of turmeric on the first and last sheet, there was a one-anna stamp at the top of each page, like a seal of indulgence covering a score of unstamped and "unannelled" acknowledgments below.—Pioneer.

THE HEALTH OF THE PUNJAB.—The following are the remarks by the Sanitary Commissioner, Punjab, on the general health of the province during the week ending March 27:—The total registered mortality from all causes in the province during the week under review was 6,972, against 7,736 in the previous week, giving an annual per mile death-rate of 20·7 and 23 on the census population of 1868. There were no deaths registered under the head of cholera during the week. But reports of isolated cases in the week ending 3rd April have been received. The civil surgeon, Lahore, also has reported death from cholera of a European child who had recently arrived from the Central Provinces. He also reports (April 20) that both measles and whooping-cough are somewhat prevalent; and that a case of choleraic diarrhœa is reported to have occurred at the railway station. From small-pox there were 214 deaths against 284. From fevers 4,607 against 5,138.—Civil and Military Gazette.

BENGAL DISTRICT POST SERVICE.—The Zemindari Dâk Establishment, which was formerly under the control of the district magistrates, and is supported by a cess, imposed on the Bengal zemindars by legislative enanctment, was transferred to the Postal Department a few years ago by Sir Richard Temple, the then Lieutenant Governor of Bengal. A charge of about Rs.1,800 a year was allowed to the postmaster general of Bengal for maintaining a small establishment for the management of the work connected with this dâk. Subsequent to this transfer, Behar and the Eastern Districts were made separate postal lines, and were detached and separated from the postmaster-generalship of Bengal. A deputy postmaster general was appointed to each of these lines. We now hear that the deputy postmaster general of Behar has submitted an application to Government for a separate establishment at a cost of about Rs.820 a year, for the management of the affairs of the zemindari dak in connection with the Behar postal line. The local Government, however, is said to have refused to sanction the application, on the ground that the Act does not authorise such an expenditure. A second application, strongly supported, we presume, by the officiating postmaster general, has just been submitted. If sanction is accorded to the proposed expenditure, a similar application is sure to come in shortly from the deputy postmaster general of the eastern districts. Why cannot the sum of Rs.150 per month, which is now allowed to the postmaster general of Bengal, be equally distributed between the three different postal lines—viz., Bengal, Behar, and the eastern districts—for the work of the zemindari dak? This would obviate the necessity for any additional expenditure.—Indian Daily News.

THE AFGHAN POLICY OF AURUNGZEBE.—The Afghan policy of the Moghul Emperor Aurungzebe is not without interest for the present generation. Cabul, in the days of Aurungzebe, belonged to the Moghul Empire only in name. The Viceroy of Cabul lived at Peshawur, and seldom trusted himself beyond the passes. About the year 1666 a Moghul army was collected on the north west frontier, in view of a threatened invasion by the Persian King, Shah Abbas; but the Viceroy of Peshawur, who was in command, remained stationary till Shah Abbas happened to die. The Viceroy then marched through the Khyber without meeting the enemy; and was only forced to retire by the scarcity of supplies. On the way back through the Khyber, however, his whole force was cut to pieces; and he himself was only able to escape to Peshawur in the disguise of an Afghan. Some six years later there was a strange outbreak at Cabul. A man came there and declared himself to be Aurungzebe's brother, who was supposed to have been killed in Arakan long before. The Afghans proclaimed him Padshah; and the revolt caused great alarm at Delhi. Aurungzebe took the field, and was fighting with the Afghans for the space of two years, but could do nothing. He returned to Delhi, and a new Viceroy was sent to Peshawur. The Afghan chiefs now found themselves treated with friendliness; and at last they came into Peshawur, at the Viceroy's invitation, to be present at a great feast. There were horse races, animal combats, wrestling matches, and, to wind up, a banquet in a great pavilion set up in the public square. While the feasting was at its height, the Viceroy left the pavillion; into which, by his orders, a murderous fire was straightway poured from the neighbouring houses. Every outlet was guarded by armed men, and the guests were all massacred. The story is shortly told in Mr. Wheeler's new "History of India."—Pioneer.

MADRAS.

WAR SERVICES.—The Secretary of State having called for statements of the staff and war services of officers of the Indian army, in view of the insertion of the same in a new official quarterly army list, which is being compiled at the War-office, the Commander in Chief notifies that every officer of the Madras Staff Corps and Indian army, combatant or non-combatant, is required to prepare and transmit to the Adjutant General, Fort St. George, as soon as possible, a statement of his staff service (i.e., service in appointments equivalent to appointments on the general staff of the army), and the campaigns, &c., in which he may have been engaged, the decorations and rewards he may have received, and any mention that may have been made concerning him in published despatches.—Madras Times.

PREPARATIONS FOR A CYCLONE.—May, the month of cyclones on this coast, is approaching, and, somehow this year, the natives are almost certain that a storm of a most terrific nature will be experienced in Madras. The authorities, taught by past experience, feel that it is best to be prepared for the worst. There has been a practice with rockets on the beach.—Madras Times.

NEGAPATAM BACKWATER.—We learn that a scheme for reclaiming the backwater at Negapatam, submitted by one Monsieur Tassot through the collector of Tanjore to the local Government, is viewed favourably by the authorities.—Madras Times.

NATIVE LIBERALITY.—Our fellow-countrymen in Madras, we are glad to observe, are earnestly determined on casting off the stigma of "benightedness" which has prescriptively been clinging to their native city. The Madras Times gives Hindus only partial credit when it says that they are "pre-eminently charitable, as taught by their religion." In point of fact, their charity is almost intuitive, or has grown so much into a habit that it has become as it were their second nature. It is hardly necessary to point to the numerous instances, which are to be daily seen of the practical sympathy which Hindus show to their less fortunate fellow-men. But instead of those various forms of charity, often, we believe, entirely misdirected, we should be glad to see some permanent institution calculated to afford relief to such as are really in want either of food, from absolute destitution, or of medical aid in times of sickness. A Hindu gentleman of Madras has set our own wealthy fellow-citizens a good example by building and endowing a lying-in hospital in the native quarter of the town, which is to be under the supervision of European surgeons. Mr. Ramaswami Mudeliar, besides deserving the blessings of the poor women, for whose benefit he had established this institution, is entitled to credit for the great enlightenment of spirit, which enabled him to overcome native prejudices in his wish to make his hospital as efficacious as possible for the humane purpose to which he has with so much munificence applied a part of his wealth. While the cities of Bombay and Madras are gradually being filled up with almshouses and other charitable establishments, it is a reproach to the millionaires of the city of palaces—the metropolis of the British Empire of India—that it can not boast of a single institution which even faintly represents the true spirit of Hindu charity.—Indian Mirror.

THE ADMINISTRATOR GENERAL'S REPORT.—The half-yearly schedules of estates in the hands of the administrator general appear in the Fort St. George Gazette. The balances in his hands on June 30, 1879, were Rs.5,09,900 in Government securities, and Rs.1,54,886 in cash. He received during the half-year ending Dec. 31 last securities for Rs.58,200, and in cash Rs.1,90,940, so that the total receipts up to Dec. 31 were in securities Rs.5,68,100, and cash Rs.33,319. The payments made during the six months were Rs.1,14,300 in securities, and Rs.2,05,457 in cash, and there were in his possession on Dec. 31 last Rs.4.53,800 in securities and Rs.132,799 in cash. None of the estates were very large; that of Mr. D. Mackie is represented by Rs.78,000 in securities and Rs.1,480 in cash. Payments to the extent of Rs.27,756 were made on account of the estate of Mr. T. S. Oakes, and a balance of Rs.20,316 still remains with the administrator general. A payment of Rs.14,998 was made on behalf of the estate of the late M. Kerakoose, and securities valued at Rs.78,800 were in hand. The late Surgeon Major Thomas Croudace's estate is set down at Rs.22,000, and Mrs. Currie's at Rs.13,300 in securities, and four Madras Bank shares. There are not many native names to be found in the list; T. Soobiah's estate is set down at Rs.15,000. The cash paid on account of the estate of the late Rev. Dr. Sayers was Rs.26,750 in cash, and Government securities worth Rs.9,700 are still with the administrator general. Securities valued at Rs.16,000 and cash for Rs.16,786 were paid away on behalf of the estate of Sub Conductor Richard Smith. Mrs. Louisa Wahab's estate was Rs.10,900 at credit in Government securities, and that of Miss C. Wilson Rs.13,200. There is also a schedule of administration whereof the final balances have been paid to the persons entitled to the same, specifying the amount of such balances and the persons to whom paid.—Madras Times.

ROLLING-STOCK, MADRAS RAILWAY.—The meeting was held on Friday, April 16, at Royapuram at which the officers of the consulting engineer's department, the locomotive superintendent, the chief engineer, the traffic manager, and the agent were present, when it was decided that fifteen new cattle trucks, six second class, and four first and second class composites should be constructed, and nine second class and nine third class carriages be altered to the newest patterns, without the least possible delay, in order to enable the traffic manager to deal satisfactorily with the demand for vehicles, of which there is a great paucity, owing to the numbers wrecked and destroyed at the late Chinnamapet and other accidents. —Madras Times.

THE GOVERNMENT SAVINGS BANK.—From Fort St. George Gazette we see that for the official year 1878-79 the number of accounts in the Government Savings Bank in this Presidency on March 31 was 11,472, and during the year 1,494 new accounts were opened. There were 1,226 accounts closed during the same period, so that the actual increase in numbers was 268. On March 31, 1878, the balances due to depositors amounted to Rs.22,96,546. There were received during the year deposits for Rs.806,687, while Rs.70,428 were credited to the various accounts as interest, besides Rs.4,309, the amount of interest credited to closed accounts. The withdrawals during the year amounted to Rs.10,49,544, and the interest paid thereon was Rs.4,309. On March 31, 1879, the balance due to depositors was Rs.21,24,114.—Madras Times.

MAJOR PICKANCE and Mr. Stevenson, two police officers here earned the special thanks of Government for the energy and devotion shown by them in ridding several districts of gangs of dacoits. A sum of Rs.385 has been sanctioned for rewards to several subordinates of the police who have rendered efficient aid.

MR. MALTBY.—Mr. Maltby, C.S., late assistant collector of Vizagapatam, was sent on board the steamer Stelvio in charge of Dr. Stanbrough, to England on April 22. Mr. Maltby will on arrival in England be made over to the authorities, who will deal with him as they think proper. It may be mentioned that there is a charge of culpable homicide against Mr. Maltby. Dr. Leapingwell, of the lunatic asylum, proceeded on board the steamer with the patient.—Standard.

THE LATE COL. GODFREY.—Another of the officers who obtained their commission, and served in the days of the Hon. E.I. Company, has passed away. Colonel W. H. Godfrey entered the army in 1828, has seen some service, and been wounded on two or three occasions. He was present at the capture of the town of Gotah; the engagement of the Panora Pass in 1835; and the capture of Runseehoor in 1837; also at the battles of Meanee and Hyderabad. In 1855 Colonel Godfrey, then Major Godfrey, received the thanks of Government for his gallant conduct in the field. Colonel Godfrey retired in 1861.—South of India Observer.

THE TRADE WITH AMERICA.—Of late a demand appears to have sprung up in the markets of New York for Madras skins and indigo, and as there is no direct steam communication between Southern India and the markets of the New World, shippers of goods enter into arrangements with the British India Steam Navigation Company to have their goods conveyed to London and thence to New York and Boston. In the month of February last goat and sheep skins to the value of Rs.1,10,481 were shipped from this port to New York and Boston; in the past month the value of skins sent to America was Rs.33,364, and indigo valued at Rs.47,633.—Madras Standard.

THE UNIVERSITY SENATE.—The annual meeting of the Senate of the Madras University was held at the Senate House on April 24, when the new Vice-Chancellor, Sir Charles Turner, took the chair. Colonel Macdonald moved—"That the Senate of the University desire to record their high appreciation of the valuable services rendered to the University by the retired Vice-Chancellor, the Hon. Mr. Justice Innes." The Hon. V. Ramiengar, C.S.I., seconded the resolution. The meeting then proceeded to consider the report of the Syndicate. The Rev. Mr. Rae, in proposing the adoption of the report, called attention to the fact that the Madras University is at length able to support itself. The Hon. Meer Humayun Jah Bahadur seconded the resolution. The meeting proceeded to assign to the new fellows suitable faculties, and elected by ballot the presidents of the different faculties, the only important change being the election of Colonel Shaw-Stewart, R.E., in the Engineering Faculty, in room of Colonel Rogers, R.E., who has proceeded to Europe. The election of the syndics for the new academical year was then proceeded with. In the Faculty of Arts the following gentlemen were ballotted for:—Colonel Macdonald, Mr. E. Thomson, the Hon. Mr. Muthusawmi Iyer, the Rev. W. Miller, and Mr. H. B. Grigg. In Law, the Hon. Mr. Kernan; in Medicine, Surgeon-General Cornish; in Civil Engineering, Colonel Shaw-Stewart. Colonel Macdonald proposed the addition of the following gentlemen as members of the different faculties:—Mr. F. B. Haunah, Mr. H. B. Grigg, Mr. E. P. Metcalfe, Dr. W. Wilson, Mr. Bashiem Iyengar, and the omission from the list of the names of Dr. Smith, Dr. Van Someran, and the Rev. George Hall.—Times of India.

BURNING OF THE RUNGMOOK TEA FACTORY.—The Rungmook tea factory below Hope Town has been destroyed by fire. It is believed that, as a strong breeze was blowing at the time, a spark of fire was blown upwards from one of the drying chulnies, and set fire to a bamboo machan on which the tea leaf was withered. The whole place was soon in a blaze, and, in spite of all efforts to save it, the building was completely gutted, and only the walls were left standing. The building was insured for Rs. 6,000, which represents about a third of the value of the property destroyed, without counting the loss and inconvenience which must result from manufacture during the remainder of the season, having necessarily to be carried on in a makeshift building, and without the very important assistance of machinery.—Darjiling News.

TROOPSHIPS FROM KARACHI.—It has been finally settled, it is stated, that from next cold season all troopships will go to and from Karachi, and no longer, as at present, to and from Bombay.—Bombay Gazette.

THE POOR OF KATTYWAR.—The Guzerat Mitra is distressed on account of the state of the poor in the province of Kattywar. The province has had three indifferent seasons, and the people are living on grass and leaves; if another bad season comes the province will be depopulated.—Ibid.

THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF GOA.—The tour of inspection from which the Governor General of Goa has lately returned to Pangim has resulted in his ordering the construction of a public road to Quepem and a daily delivery of postal correspondence in the provinces.—Bombay Gazette.

THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE" NEW PREMISES.—As our Bombay friends are aware, the offices of the Bombay Gazette have been removed from No. 42, Medows-street, to the new and spacious buildings just erected in Rampart-row, overlooking the Flora Fountain, and nearly opposite the Public Works, the Post, and the Telegraph offices—the most central position in the city, and one which our friends from the Mofussil will have no difficulty in finding. These offices, specially erected for the Bombay Gazette by Mr. J. P. Watson, from designs by Mr. D. Gostling, architect, are not perhaps altogether unworthy of comparison with the palatial buildings in which the London newspapers are now produced. And while following the example of the metropolitan journals in this respect we venture to set them an example in another. We have made arrangements with the Electric Light Company to light the whole of the premises with Joblochkoff's patent electric light, and the requisite machinery is now on the way from the company's head offices at Calcutta. The London Times last year lighted its machine room with the new invention, but so far as we are aware no journal has as yet lighted its composing rooms as well as its machine rooms with electricity. This innovation will be first tried by the Bombay Gazette.

LOCAL FUNDS DEPARTMENT, BERAR.—It is high time some restriction should have taken place anent the expenditure in the Local Funds Department in Berar. Hitherto the sanctioning authority for any sum was either the commissioner or his deputy. Happily a new state of affairs has been introduced into this department by Major Forbes, R.E., the superintending engineer and secretary to the resident in the Public Works Department. No expenditure can now be incurred unless proper estimates are sanctioned, and the work cannot be commenced although sanctioned until "a specific appropriation is provided for it." This will prevent the possibility of revised, and too often "supplementary," estimates being sent for sanction. The commissioner and superintending engineer, Public Works Department, can each sanction only Rs.500 for each work, while the deputy commissioner's assignment is Rs.200. All funds from current month are to be drawn from the executive engineers, Public Works Department, of their respective districts and all the accounts of the Local Funds Department are to be submitted to the examiner, Public Works Department, at Bolarum; who is also directed to examine the local fund office at least once a year. Owing to some shortcoming a few years ago on the part of certain local fund officials, "all payments over Rs.10 are to be made by cheques by civil officers"—i.e., the deputy or assistant commissioner, and it is ruled that the practice of giving large "imprests to subordinates should be discountenanced." The Local Funds Department, as I have always stated, is a most expensive department in Berar. One deputy commissioner said he could do all the work in his district with an overseer on Rs.80 to Rs.100 per mensem! and which he is doing now; while in three districts there are local fund engineers highly paid. In justice to the Berar revenue, could not the executive engineer's, Public Works Department, carry out the local funds works, thereby showing a saving of at least Rs.10,000 annually. Executive engineers are directed to approve of plans, &c., where there is no qualified local fund engineer.—Correspondent Bombay Gazette.

THE NEW GOVERNOR.—The new Governor of Bombay and its dependencies, whom we are all called upon by proclamation to obey, has arrived and been received with marked cordiality. It is worthy of remark that the news of the appointment of a new Viceroy was received in Bombay at the very same time that a salute was being fired in honour of the new Governor's arrival on these shores. The steamer which brought Sir James and his military secretary, Lieut. Col. Stracey, arrived early on the morning of April 28, so that comparatively few besides officials and military officers went down to the bunder to see him land. Two well-known Anglo-Indian officials returned to India by the same vessel—the Hon. James Gibbs, who comes out to join the Supreme Council, and Mr. Alexander Rogers, formerly a member of the Bombay Government, whose object in revisiting India is purely private, and will not, it is expected, keep him here long. Sir James Fergusson was sworn in at the Secretariat on the day of his arrival, and held a levée on April 30, which was most numerously attended. The Marquis of Ripon expects to reach Bombay about June 1, and the Earl of Lytton is preparing to leave as soon as possible. Sir James Fergusson will return to Bombay from Mahableshwar to receive the new Viceroy.—Times of India.

THE BOMBAY RESERVE.—In consequence of the unexpected change in Afghan affairs the Second (or reserve) Division of the Bombay troops are to be mobilised at once, and will be sent to the front as soon as transport is available. The Reserve Division is composed as follows:—D-B R.H.A., Karachi; F-2 R.A., Hyderabad; 1st Sind Horse, Jacobabad; 2nd Light Cavalry, en route to Jacobabad; 3rd Light Cavalry, Jacobabad, one squadron on service; 2-11th Foot, Bombay, Hyderabad; 2-15th Foot, Karachi; 3rd Regiment N.I., Karachi; 9th Regiment, N.I., Karachi, 1 company Sibi, 1 company Jacobabad; 23rd Regiment N.I., head quarters and wing Jacobabad, wing on service; 24th Regiment N.I., Hyderabad. We hear that there is a probability of the 8th N.I. being added to the force. It is believed that the staff will consist of the following officers:—Brigadier General Wood, commanding Deesa; Brigade Major A. Heyland; Captain Mellis, Quartermaster General's department. The appointment of the medical officer in charge is generally a sign that the other preparations are complete, and we now hear that Dr. Bruce of Puna has already been appointed principal medical officer to the division. Dr. Bruce will be succeeded at Puna by Dr. Jones of Surat.—Times of India.

THE TROOPS ON SERVICE.—The Bombay troops at present on service consist of one battery Royal Horse Artillery, one battery of Field Artillery, three batteries of Garrison Artillery, including the battery lately transformed into a mountain battery not yet despatched to the front, one battery of Native Artillery, four corps of Sappers and Miners, five regiments of Native Cavalry, two regiments of British Infantry, and eleven regiments of Native Infantry. These are exclusive of the troops forming the 2nd or Reserve Division.—Times of India.

GRASSCUTTERS AND LOOT.—We learn from a private source that on overhauling the baggage and equipment of troops prior to leaving Kelat, with the view of making reductions in the weights, it was found that the grasscutters' ponies had two pads on—one of which was stuffed with silks, jewellery, barrack and other cloths of the country—one pad contained 80lb. weight of odds and ends of this description.

KANDAHAR NEWS.—Dr. Barbour has been appointed medical inspector of seamen at Bombay in the place of the late Dr. Doolittle. Mr. James N. Graham, of the firm of Messrs. W. and A. Graham and Co., was on Tuesday elected chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, in place of Mr. Charles Macdonald, resigned. Mr. J. A. Baines, C.S., is to be deputy superintendent of Census Operations in the Bombay Presidency. He will occupy the position of an under secretary to Government. Captain Alexander M'Hinch has been appointed major of the Sind Volunteer Rifle Corps, Mr. R. Lambert being appointed captain, Mr. J. Howe lieutenant, and Mr. D. Morris second lieutenant.

THE PRINCE'S DOCK.—The British India Company claimed from Government Rs.5,769-12-0 for charges incurred in connection with the damage done to the Chanda while entering the Prince's Dock on the occasion of the opening ceremony on New Year's day, and Messrs. Ritchie, Steuart and Co., agents for the ship Lady Cairns, made a claim for Rs.841-3-4. The matter came before the Port Trustees the other day, when it was decided to meet the claims "owing to the very exceptional circumstances under which the accidents occurred," but they are "not to be regarded as establishing a precedent."—Times of India.

GENERAL BALLARD, C.B.—We deeply regret to hear by the mail of the death at Livadia of General Ballard, late mint master. General Ballard, who was born in 1829, arrived in India when he was twenty years of age, and joined the Public Works Department. While on sick furlough he served in Omar Pasha's campaign on the Danube, at the siege of Silistria, and battle of Giurgevo. Afterwards he served in the Crimea, being at the siege of Sebastopol, the battle of Eupatoria, and occupation of Kertch. Subsequently he went through Omar Pasha's campaign in Mingrelia, 1855-56. He is frequently mentioned by Oliphant in his book on that campaign for daring and gallantry. On returning to India he was appointed to serve in the Quartermaster-General's Department during the Persian Expedition, and was present at Reshire, Bushire, and Kooshab. He next saw service with the Rajputana Field Force in 1858-59, being at the siege and assault of Khotab, and in the engagements with the Gwalior mutineers. In one of these actions (or at Khotab), we are not quite sure which, it is said that probably thinking the men were a little flurried, General Ballard calmly took out his cheroot-case, and, seating himself on a wall, smoked his cigar under a heavy fire. At the end of 1861, or the beginning of 1862, he was appointed to a post in the Railway Department, and almost immediately afterwards became mint master. He was appointed commissioner of paper currency in February of the same year, and held that appointment for four years. From March, 1876, to August, 1877, he was acting master of the Calcutta Mint, and head commissioner of issue of paper currency In June, 1873, he was appointed chairman of the Port Trustees, and in June, 1876, acting senior mint master, in which appointment he was confirmed in January, 1878. He resigned the service (as our readers will find on reference to our columns) in February, 1879, and the Government of India issued a complimentary order. On receipt of the melancholy news of his death Colonel White, the present mint master, issued the following order:—"It is with deep regret that the mint master has to inform all members of the mint establishment of the sudden death of General Ballard. Great as a soldier and administrator, he was greater still in the eyes of all who knew him as a noble, disinterested, unselfish man, and the mint master is sure that his memory will be cherished by all who worked with him during the many years he was in charge of this Mint." As a man General Ballard cannot be spoken too highly of. Indifferent himself to ease and comfort, he was ever thoughtful of, and considerate to, the wants and claims of others; in his kindness and charity he was princely; in his ordinary life most unselfish; he was loved by all who knew him well, and amongst his friends his death will cause a gap that will not readily be filled up. He was a gallant soldier and a true gentleman.—Times of India.

IRISH RELIEF FUND.—The secretaries at Bombay on April 27 sent Rs.12,075 to the Duchess of Marlborough, and a similar sum of Rs.12,075 to the Lord Mayor of Dublin.—Times of India.

CEYLON.

WE take the following items from the Ceylon Times of April 27:

THE WEATHER AND THE CROPS.—Accounts are coming in from several directions telling of blossom making its appearance and setting well during the last few days. From the Rakwane district we have it on the best authority that there was a good general blossom on several estates in this district on Saturday last, which had set very well, weather very fine and quite dry. From Dolosbagie and Kaduganawa there are also good accounts and in the Kallibokke Valley another blossom had made its appearance. In higher districts, such as Rambodde, Upper Lindula, Bogawantalawa &c., the trees were still hanging back and need a fortnight more of the present hot dry weather to bring out blossoms.

THE GAZETTE.—The last Gazette contained the following notifications:—His Excellency the Governor has made the following appointments:—W. J. S. Boake, Esq., to be acting commissioner of requests, Colombo, during the absence of H. Nevill, Esq., on leave, with effect from the 22nd inst.; J. P. Lewis, Esq., to be a justice of the peace and additional coroner for the district of Galle, with effect from the 16th inst. It is notified that Mr. C. P. Ranesinghe has been elected to be an unofficial member of the Local Board of Health and Improvement of Gampola.

EXPORTS OF COFFEE.—The total exports of coffee to date are 459,244 cwts. as compared with 615,056 cwts. at the corresponding period of last year.

SHIPPING SEASON.—There is little of local news to place on record. The shipping season is fast approaching a very diminished stage, the only crops remaining for export being the Ouvah spring gatherings, which are on a tolerably good scale, and will help up the year's shipments to a better total than was at any one time expected.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—The Chamber of Commerce has held a special general meeting, at which resolutions were adopted in reference to improved telegraphic communications with India, the local pilot service, the breakwater, and the Ceylon Commissioner for the Melbourne Exhibition.

THE BISHOP OF COLOMBO.—We understand that the Bishop of Colombo, having completed his work at home to his complete satisfaction, has resolved to take a few weeks' rest, and will in all probability pass a portion of this time in the south of Europe, arriving in Ceylon at the latter end of June.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1880.

SOUTHERN AFGHANISTAN.

THERE is in the recent news from Cabul little to note except the growing impatience on the part of the force which lies, as it were, becalmed in that unpleasant roadstead of Cabul. Neither the excitement of the struggle with the elements, nor the progressing change of the voyage break a monotony from which are absent the comfort of a harbour and the welcome of the home-returning voyager. That our troops at Cabul, especially those of the native army, have had their endurance tried to the uttermost, there is little or no ground for doubting. Somehow or another the much-exercised commissariat, though, considering all things, they have done much, have not succeeded in keeping the forces at Sherpur duly supplied with clothing or supplies. It adds to the exasperation aroused in the minds of all who think of it that the expenditure, which has exceeded the calculating powers of Sir Edwin Johnson, and overthrown the Indian budget, has not, in its application, been successful in warding off hardship and causes for discontent from our brave and faithful sepoys. But the impatience of both officers and men to be released from their inactive action at Sherpur, and the plausible desire expressed in telegrams to relieve the finances of India from the burden of the military occupation of Cabul, scarcely constitute a sufficient argument for precipitate withdrawal. There is an old proverb about spoiling the ship for a halfpenny-worth of tar which may be usefully called to mind. The heavy expenditure of the war may easily be made worse than a disturbing element in Indian finances; it may be converted into wasted and useless outlay if the unfinished work, which seems at least to promise a successful fulfilment, be prematurely cut short. That this truth is felt strongly in India the correspondent of the Times affords abundant evidence. We do not anticipate an unwise reversal of policy, nor a futile attempt to recur to antiquated precedents of inactivity. But there is reason to apprehend a pressure being put on statesmen who are prudent enough to disapprove, but, it may be, not resolute enough to withstand, the pressure of those who seem inclined to urge a premature withdrawal of our forces. For the present it is plain that expectation is fixed upon the consent of Abdul Rahman to accept the sovereignty of Cabul on such conditions as may be imposed upon him. It is not by subsidies, paid in advance, that the faithful, and, it may be expressly added, the submissive, allegiance of this chieftain is to be secured. The rumours, or rather reports, of the discontented menaces of the Ghilzais show that, both to protect our interests against the coming Ameer, and to defend the newly-established régime against mutinous tribesmen, there will be need of strong and ready help. The too long delayed advance on Cabul, which might, if undertaken at an earlier period, have prevented the prolonged troubles that have arisen, must not be supplemented by a too hasty withdrawal. This, however, is more conditional and conjectural than another question which is being brought forward. All are agreed that it is not desirable to protract the stay of our troops in Cabul one day beyond the time when it may be considered safe to withdraw them. The arrangements to be completed with Abdul Rahman are things of the future. The constitution of the State of Kandahar is a matter of the past. In another place we quote the telegraphed account of the formal and ceremonious investiture of the Wali Shere Ali with the insignia of sovereignty and honour. It is surprising to find it even hinted by a contemporary that such a step was forced, or revocable. It is true that in reading the utterances of Printing House-square the bewilderment of Stephano, involuntarily suggests itself. The Indian mouth pleads ably and strongly for the absolute necessity of maintaining the order of things we have set up. The London organ feebly, yet clearly, suggests the opposite course of action. The occupation of Kandahar, or rather its annexation, has been ably urged as a politic step which would have been welcome to the great mass of the population of Southern Afghanistan. The settlement that has been preferred, and which we have always advocated, of establishing an independent but protected State, of which the capital is to be the ancient seat of Durani royalty, has been acceptable to the population, who have welcomed the stable and equable rule which superseded the oppression of the Cabuli Ameer. Judiciously and firmly wielded by Sir Donald Stewart, the chief power of Kandahar has been conferred, with all the sanction that ceremonial could lend, on a chief who has so far proved himself active and capable, and whose future interest is bound up with his loyalty to the Power which has given him his principality. It is said that the chief part of the financial blundering which has culminated in the budget fiasco has been the omission of the Kandahar expenditure. Whether Bengal ignored Bombay, or Simla thought that Sir Donald Stewart's success, because quiet and effectual, was therefore of no account, is not yet revealed, but it would be a blunder of infinitely greater magnitude to retreat from an assured post of vantage and undo a successfully finished work, whether regarded from a political or a military point of view, to reunite Southern Afghanistan to the State of Cabul. What the people think of the new order of things is shown by the unmistakable test of immigration. Commercially, as has been shown more than once in these columns, we must maintain our direct influence over the great trade route that extends from Kandahar via Herat to Central Asia. We have right to look for some compensating profit, which is not to our English and Indian merchants alone, but which, like an irrigating canal, will bestow its bounty on the country through which it passes. As we are reminded by the correspondent of the Times, the ideal plea on behalf of oppressed nationalities is for once in harmony with the real commercial and strategic requirements to support the maintenance of the status quo at Kandahar. These selfish interests must be consulted, for the first object is the maintenance of the peace and the augmentation of the prosperity of India. In consulting them it is, according to the evidence of the Indian Times, possible to gratify and protect a population that has welcomed us as deliverers, and would, if abandoned, curse us as deceivers. The prospect of being compelled to bear the burden of maintaining for some time to come a garrison at Kandahar is not one to weigh against the solid advantages to be gained by the establishment of a prosperous state of Southern Afghanistan. A certain class of home politicians are often ready to inveigh against quixotic love of prestige, and ridicule the antiquated adherence to national honour. Sometimes they rely upon arguments of economy or trade, sometimes on the supposed oppression of imaginary nationalities. Every argument they have ever adduced against a forward step in the extension or maintenance of the empire is combined to support the maintenance of the protected and friendly Government of Kandahar.

OBITUARY.—The late Major General Sir Benjamin Travell Phillips, formerly of the Indian Army, who died on the 10th inst. at Paris, was about seventy-six years of age. A son of the late Mr. Stephen Howell Phillips, of Harroldstone, Pembrokeshire, by his marriage with Mary, daughter of Mr. John Tappen, of Forest-hill, Sydenham, Kent, he was born in the year 1804, and entered the Bengal Cavalry in 1821, serving in India, with slight intervals, down to 1856, when he was promoted to the rank of major general. He raised and commanded the Bengal Cavalry depot at Cawnpore, and when with the 7th Regiment, in 1824, made a forced march of upwards of eighty miles to the relief of Jeypore. He also served through the Bheel campaign, and through the Sikh campaign of 1848-49, for which he received the medal. He was lieutenant of the Yeomen of the Guard from 1857 down to 1861, and received the honour of knighthood in 1858. Sir Benjamin married, in 1838, Mary Sophie, daughter of Major James Marrie, of Bretenham-park, Suffolk.

THE SCHOOL FOR OFFICERS' DAUGHTERS.—The Duke of Cambridge, K.G., presided at the annual general meeting of the Royal School for Daughters of Officers of the Army, which was held on the 14th inst. in the theatre of the Royal United Service Institution. Among those present were Lieut. General Sir Henry Lefroy, General Sir William Codrington, General Sir R. Dacres, General Sir Linnorn Simmons, Lieut. General Sir G. St. P. Lawrence, Major General Thomas W. Holland, Major General T. T. Boileau, R.E., &c. Mr. G. W. Forster (the secretary) read the report and balance-sheet, from which it appeared that an increasing debt, which a year ago amounted to £1,424 7s. 2d., had been cleared off, and the committee had also been enabled in addition to fund several hundred pounds out of the receipts of the year. That result was chiefly due to the success of the bazaar held at Brighton in November last, which realised for the school the sum of £2,085. Not only had there been an increase in the year's receipts, but, acting under the advice of the president of the institution, the Duke of Cambridge, to bring the current expenses within the income, a reduction had been effected of £622. The health of the children both at Roehamption and at Bath had been good, and at the end of 1879 there were seventy-one pupils in the Bath and fifty-two in the Roehampton School. Thirty had been admitted during the year, and among the number were a daughter of one gallant officer who fell at Isandlana and a daughter of another who fell at the Peiwar Kotal. The Duke of Cambridge, speaking with regard to the report, said that it showed that the condition of the charity was as good as they could possibly desire. The result of the year was that, instead of having a debt of £1,425, as last year, that had been paid off, and they had funded £1,200, and had also a considerable balance in hand for their daily and weekly requirements. Great praise was due to their excellent chairman of committee—General Lefroy—and also to the committee, for the way in which they had conducted the proceedings this year, and the result of which could not be otherwise than satisfactory to every well-wisher of the institution. A suggestion had been made as to the propriety of closing one of the establishments and amalgamating the two schools in the premises at Bath; and it was a matter well worthy of consideration. The results of the examination of the school at Bath were highly creditable, but at Roehampton they were not quite so satisfactory. The prospect of improvement at the latter was held out, and he hoped it would be realised. Not only had they done well financially as regarded their various means of obtaining assistance from without, but they had also managed very well in the establishment, for it would be observed that there had been a great diminution in the expenditure both at Roehampton and at Bath. If that improvement continued they would be able to add greatly to their power of doing good. That they required more means was evident from the large number of candidates who presented themselves. At the last election there were forty candidates. All those circumstances put together justified him in saying that he could place before the meeting a very hopeful position of affairs.—Times.

SOCIETY OF ARTS.—The paper on "China and the Chinese, their Early History aad Future Prospects," which it had been announced would be read at the meeting of the Indian section of the Society of Arts on Friday night, the 14th inst., was not delivered owing to the illness of the author, M. A. Terrien de Lacouperie. Professor Robert K. Douglas took the chair, and, in expressing regret at the unavoidable absence of M. Terrien de Lacouperie, said he believed that, as the result of a patient study of the history and languages of many of the people of ancient Asia, the learned author of the paper had been able to solve that historical enigma which was embodied in the isolation of China and the uniqueness of its language. He would have been able to prove a marked affinity between the traditions and arts of ancient China and of Babylonia. To fill the gap thus caused in the evening's proceedings, Colonel Yule, C.B., read a paper on the travels and life of Marco Polo. In the course of a discussion which ensued, Mr. Pfoundes and Captain Gill, R.E., took part, the latter giving instances, from his own experience in the course of his travels in China and Central Asia, of the remarkable accuracy and wonderful powers of observation of the great Venetian.—Times.

THE EAST INDIA RAILWAY COMPANY.—A general meeting of the shareholders of the East India Railway Company is called for to-morrow to sanction the appropriation of the company's surplus assets, amounting to a total of £108,480. Of this sum it is proposed to give to Mr. Crawford, the chairman of the company, £15,000, and £34,160 on account of the annuity to Sir R. M. Stephenson. The balance is proposed to be added to the moiety of surplus profits for the half-year ended Dec. 31, 1879, belonging to the company, and be divided amongst the proprietors of stock on the closed register of Nov. 1, 1879.

AGRICULTURE IN MADRAS.—This was the subject of a paper read at a meeting of the Indian Section of the Society of Arts on 7th inst. by Mr. W. Robertson, superintendent of the Government farms in Madras. After describing the varieties of the soil, he explained that the unequal distribution of the rainfall, rather than a deficiency, was what agriculture generally suffered from. It was a common experience for the country to suffer from drought and flood in the same month. There might be drought for twenty-nine days and a flood on the thirtieth. This necessitated the employment of storage tanks, but a large part of the country was still without them. In Madras a comparatively small area was under forest. In twenty-five years 8,000,000 acres of scrub jungle had been cleared and brought under the plough. Many rivers that formerly flowed for five months now flowed for only three or four. The gross revenue from land was four millions. Zemindari estates were held subject to the payment of a fixed sum to the State. Iran land was held subject to a nominal quit rent, having been granted in recognition of services to the State. The ryotwari tenure was the chief tenure of the presidency. Possession could be retained as long as the rent was paid; when it was not, the right of occupation could be sold to the highest bidder. The ryot could sell, lease, or mortgage his right of occupation. The rent, theoretically fixed for thirty years, was supposed to represent half the net value of the produce. The rent settlement department of the State cost £30,000 a year. The rent charged by the State was generally low, but sub-letting led to rack renting. As the right of occupation could be bought and sold, the interest on the purchase-money ought to be allowed for in fixing the rent. At present a man who farmed most highly paid most rent. A first standard of value ought to be fixed, and enterprise ought to be allowed its fair rewards, re-settlements being determined by the average prices of produce. The collection of the land revenue cost 22½ per cent., but the collectors discharged other civil duties. Many of the collectors began by knowing more of Greek plays than of agriculture. It would be well it they had to pass some examination in agriculture. Fully 80 per cent. of the occupied land was still unprotected by irrigation, and, as an increasing population had to depend largely on the land for their food, its prices increased and the people suffered. The ryots of a village may not pay for more than 200 acres, and yet in the course of years may temporarily exhaust many hundred acres. If each cultivator were obliged to keep to a given area, the exhausting character of the husbandry would render the soil unfit to yield the scanty produce obtained by the ryot. Shallow tillage prevailed over the south of India. The native plough seemed to do more work than it really did. Although it was light, owing to its bad shape, it had a great draught, and did proportionately less work. Each ryot would do well to sell some cattle and plough and purchase better cattle and a modern plough. The soil is not dressed with manures, although large quantities were available and wasted, and some of the most valuable was consumed as fuel. Measures could be taken to grow wood for fuel without lessening the food-producing area. All that was required was the proper application of labour, of which there was adundance. The cropping of the land was very exhausting, not so much from the crops grown being those that made great demands on the soil, but because nearly the whole were removed and not consumed by the stock of the farm. The ryot knows nothing about rotation in crops. Often he sows three or four kinds of crops together in order to secure one should the others fail. The lavish use of water in irrigating land did great injury to public health, and rendered the soil fit only for aquatic plants, such as the rice plant. Although irrigation works had not paid well, the country would derive great benefit from the extension of irrigation schemes wisely planned; but the authorities ought to regard the agricultural as well as the engineering aspects of the schemes submitted to them. Wells were usually sunk at the expense of the ryots. Large tracts were well suited for growing wheat and tobacco. The demand for reform was so urgent as to justify him in dwelling solely on the shortcomings of agriculture. The chairman, Sir W. Rose Robinson, K.C.S.I., while appreciating the admirable suggestiveness of the paper, believed there had been great improvement in Indian agriculture within the last twenty-five years. The area under dry cultivation had risen from twelve millions to twenty millions of acres, and the area of irrigated land had been increased by one million and a-half acres, or had doubled in extent. The water rent had quadrupled, so that the State had done its duty and reaped its reward, but not without benefiting the people. The land tax was a very heavy charge, but it had steadily diminished from 3s. to 2s. 2d. per acre for dry land. This was due partly to inferior land coming under cultivation. The assessment of wet land had steadily decreased from 14s. to 10s. an acre. The agricultural population of India, despite fiscal burdens and famines, was improving gradually and surely. There was no serfdom in India. The land was the property of the people, who were intensely attached to the soil. The owners of land exercised the same rights as in England. We had simply ratified the conditions of settlement which we found existing in India. Land passed without the intervention of the State, whether the owner was a zemindar or a ryot. It was a mistake to speak of revenue tenures, as if revenue had aught to do with title. To talk of the land tax as rent was mischievous, and the mistake was encouraging agrarian ideas. It would be disastrous for the State to take the place of a landlord. In case of bankruptcy the State was simply a first creditor. To talk of tenures in India as some did was almost like treating the water rent paper in London as a title to property. The land tax was a very heavy fiscal demand, amounting to one-half the net produce of the land—a proportion which in England would go a long way to arrest improvement. Colonel Rathborne disputed the chairman's view as to the rights of property that could be exercised by the occupiers. Sir C. Trevelyan thought the burdens of taxation could be lightened by greater certainty. A Hindoo gentleman, who spoke warmly on the importance of the subject, was understood to advocate equality for the ryots under zemindars with ryots under the State. The discussion then closed with the usual vote of thanks.

THE PROPOSED OXFORD MISSION TO CALCUTTA.—A largely-attended meeting was held on Monday week in the Sheldonian Theatre at Oxford in furtherance of the above mission, which has been planned in response to an appeal from the Bishop of Calcutta, and in friendly emulation of the Cambridge mission already established at Delhi. The Lord Bishop of Oxford, who presided, briefly introduced Sir Richard Temple, late Governor of Bombay, who said that he supported the Oxford mission to Calcutta as a real educational effort. The system of State education now rising in India, he said, is almost the greatest in the world. It all serves as a preparation for the purest of religions, though apart from the efforts of the Christian Church. It is sometimes said that Christian missionaries are not now effecting such results as have been achieved in the past. But this is not the case. Christian missions are producing excellent political effects and making a favourable impression upon the native mind. More good is done to India by the example of missionaries than by our skilful administration of the country. We have already many thousands of Christian converts even in the newly-acquired provinces, while in the older they are reckoned by hundreds of thousands. Great results have lately been obtained in certain parts of the country, but chiefly among the lower classes. It must be confessed that among the higher classes far less has been done. Yet in the great centres English education is shaking Hindoo faith to its foundations. The natives so influenced do not as a rule relapse into atheism and materialism. They retain their belief in the immortality of the soul and individual responsibility. The members of the sect called the Brahmin Somaj are almost Christians. At their meetings the teacher often takes for his text a verse from the New Testament. We must send them Christian men of culture, as the Oxford mission may be expected to do. If this is done we may expect great results. Many books on Sanscrit literature are now obtainable in England, and a man may learn enough before starting to enable him on his arrival to begin work at once, for in towns like Calcutta many of the young natives know English almost as well as ourselves. Missionaries from the great universities are likely to meet many old friends, members of the Civil Service, from whom they may obtain much help and support. They will find universities in many respects similar to those which send them forth. They can probably, if they choose, obtain spheres of work in those universities. Their object must be to prove that true science can be combined with positive religion, and so to counteract the indescribable harm now done to the natives by Englishmen who, as a result of scientific training, have cast off religion. The system of community life, on which the Oxford mission is planned, has already worked admirably in India. The Church of England may well be stirred to emulation by the example of other religious bodies, notably the Scotch Free Church and the Roman Catholics. The St. Xavier College of the latter at Calcutta, and the similar institution in Bombay, are among the best colleges in the country. It is absurd to talk of the Church of England in India being over-endowed. Other religious bodies there are endowed. Even Hindooism and Mahomedanism are largely indebted to State support. The efforts now being made by the Church of England prove her to be entirely deserving of all the help which she receives from the State. Professor Monier Williams dwelt upon the necessity of obtaining men of wide sympathies as missionaries, men able to respect their opponents. Such men Oxford ought to be able to supply. It was sad to feel that the present system of Government education only developed one side of the man. It destroyed the old faith without giving a new one in its place.

THUGGEE AND DACOITY.

AN interesting report has just been issued, on the working of the Thuggee and Dacoity Department for the year 1878, by Major P. D. Henderson, officiating general superintendent of Operations for the Suppression of Thuggee and Dacoity. As compared with the previous year, there has again been a slight decrease of dacoity in native states, 200 cases having been reported against 229 in 1877. The amount of property plundered and recovered has also proportionately decreased; but whilst the number of persons wounded is shown to have been less, there has been an increase of fifteen killed in these occurrences. A marked decrease of crime is shown in Hyderabad and Lower Rajputana, while Indore and Baroda show higher figures. The returns, however, except those furnished by the Baroda State, and other States under British management, are, in the opinion of Major Henderson, entirely misleading; their only value consisting in the fact that the necessity of furnishing such returns induces the States to pay some attention to the crime of the dacoity. The estimated value of the property plundered in regard to unreported cases of dacoity is Rs.1,10,284, of which the comparatively small sum of Rs.2,157 was recovered. Of 1,983 offenders concerned, eighty-four only are shown to have been arrested, of whom, again it is known that forty-one have been convicted, two released, and eleven escaped. Only one case of professional poisoning (from Indore) was reported, against five in the previous year. It is hard to believe, the writer of the report remarks, that native states enjoy such a complete immunity from a class of crime which prevails so widely in British territory. The true explanation, he thinks, is probably that when bodies are found under suspicious circumstances, enquiries are seldom made by the local authorities, nor is the fact reported by them. He doubts, even with the best information, whether the Thuggee and Dacoity Department is a fit organisation to cope with this class of crime. Poisoning is carried on by a single person, or sometimes by a confederacy of two or three persons, rarely more. There is no connection between any parties so engaged, nor any such widely-spread organisation as would afford a scope for working the approver system which is adopted in dealing with dacoits. Still it is a crime which should be watched by the department, in case of its assuming at any time a more dangerous phase. There had not been the same measure of success in the pursuit of registered criminals in the year under review as in the two previous years. The number of persons arrested or received by transfer during the year was 108, against 169 in the previous year. Major Henderson alludes in his report to the difficulty which arises from the frequent changes of officers, who are appointed, as must necessarily be the case, without regard to their departmental work, and whilst he adverts to the advantages which would accrue from a change in the method of working the department, he admits that financial considerations preclude the possibility of any such change at present. He trusts that the efficiency of the department will not be judged only by the number of criminals arrested; and remarks that perhaps the more solid, but less conspicuous, result, of the working of the department lies rather in the direction of the prevention of crime. This object is attained by steadily collecting, collating, and disseminating intelligence regarding members of the known criminal classes, and thus preventing to a great extent combination among them; and when news is received of a gang having been, or about to be, formed, by persistently following their movements and warning the authorities of all the States through which they may be expected to pass.

EDUCATION IN MYSOR.—From a very good summary of the annual report on education in Mysor for 1878-79, contained in the Government order thereon, we gather that that province had not altogether recovered from the effects of the famine which had told on the attendance in the lower classes of schools, and in the Chitaldroog district especially educational operations were much retarded by a severe form of fever which was generally prevalent throughout the year. The aggregate results for the whole province, however, show no falling off as compared with the previous year, either in regard to the number of schools maintained, or of the pupils attending them. There is an increase in the number of schools, which, however, is more apparent than real, being due to the change in the nomenclature and classification of the schools recently adopted under the orders of the Government of India. Under this arrangement the several departments in a school imparting different standards of instruction are numbered as so many separate schools. This plan is useful as showing the number of pupils under each grade of instruction, but it may be misleading in regard to the number of educational institutions maintained in the province. The number of schools of different grades, as above classified, with their attendance, are 1,055, and the number of pupils 34,378. There are 875 Government schools imparting instruction to 25 620 pupils, and 180 aided schools with an attendance of 8,758. In the latter are included twenty-seven schools with an attendance of 956, intended specially for the education of European and Eurasian youths at Bangalore. There are under instruction in all the schools 30,636 boys and 3,742 girls, composed of Hindus 28,279; Muhammadans, 3,577; Europeans and Eurasians, 1,302; native Christians 1,049; others 171, making a total of 34,378. The expenditure incurred on education during the year under notice was Rs.3,29,292. The provincial expenditure comprises grants made to aided institutions to the extent of Rs.48,059, or 20·4 per cent. The remaining expenditure under this head was incurred in the maintenance of the Government colleges and district and Taluk schools, as well as for direction inspection and other general charges of the department. The district funds are entirely devoted to the inspection and maintenance of the Hobli or primary schools; but it is under contemplation to give a wider sphere to the employment of these funds, so as to bring under them the Taluk, and, if possible, even the district schools, thereby proportionately relieving the provincial expenditure on education. The municipal contribution referred to consists of the grant made, in a solitary instance, by the municipality of Chikmugalur for the maintenance of an Anglo-Vernacular school in that town. Against the Government or provincial expenditure of Rs.2,35,020 must be set off the receipts from fees in Government schools amounting to Rs.14,493, and from the sale of books, Rs.14,082, which are both carried to the credit of Government. Besides the Government expenditure on education above shown, there are the charges of the aided institutions defrayed by their managers from sources other than Government grants. These are returned at Rs.93,658, of which Rs 36,960 are derived from school fees. The fees in the aided schools thus contribute 26 per cent. of their total cost, inclusive of the Government grants; and they compare favourably with those realised in Government schools, which amount to only Rs.14.493, as already mentioned. This is owing to the fact that education is free in all the Hobli schools, whilst a nominal fee of only one anna is levied in the Taluk schools. In the higher schools the fees fixed are for the present sufficient, but, says the Government order, "there seems to be some laxity in their collection, remissions being made in favour of poor boys. Any such artificial encouragement can scarcely any longer be required now that education is thoroughly established. Those who seek education, especially in the higher schools, ought in every case to pay for it. The cases of the few gifted boys of the poorer classes who deserve encouragement are sufficiently provided for by the scholarships allowed. The directors' attention is therefore drawn to the necessity of a stricter enforcement of the fees in the higher Government schools, and should also take into consideration the expediency of introducing a very light fee in the Hobli schools, and of somewhat raising the rate of fee now collected in the Taluk schools. It is true that these schools are maintained entirely from cesses contributed by the people, but the levy of a light additional fee from those actually under instruction cannot be in any way incompatible with this fact, and if judiciously managed it may serve to set a value on the education given." The aggregate expenditure on education in the province, inclusive of that contributed from private sources for the maintenance of aided schools, amounts to Rs.4,22,950.—Madras Times.

PORTABLE RATIONS.—Experience has shown that a vast amount of excellent food in the shape of Kopt's soups can be carried without difficulty—one mule can carry 2,800 of the little tin cylinders—and our men are already familiarised with the excellent pea-soup, which was greatly appreciated on the march up from Kushi and also during the siege here. But pea-soup palls upon the palate, and it would be an undeniable move in the right direction if large stores of other kinds of soup, say "hotchpotch" and "Scotch broth," were purchased by Government and sent up for our use. Pea-soup can be got ready in five minutes, the others require an hour's boiling; but as they contain all kinds of vegetable essences besides the meat element their value is proportionately great. They could also be used in a standing camp or for hospitals; and from personal experience I can vouch for the succulent soup they furnish. Given a tin of these soups and a good biscuit, a meal for a soldier can be got ready in a very short time; and where meat is scarce, and vegetables not to be got, no one would grumble at this ration. The outbreak of scurvy about Thull and Kuram last year might have been staved off if these vegetable broths had been in use.—Cabul Correspondent Pioneer.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.
CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.
CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.
CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa; and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.
CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.
CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manilla, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1864.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say, had been sworn to.—See Times, 13th July, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanies each bottle.

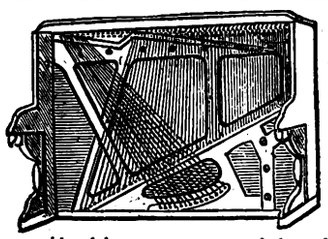
KIRKMAN AND SON'S

PATENT STEEL FRAME

SHORT GRAND PIANOS,

SIX FEET LONG, IN ELEGANT ROSEWOOD OR WALNUT CASES,



Are considered by all who have heard them to combine a greater amount and resonance of tone, consistent with adaptability of size, shape, and elegance of appearance than those of any other manufacturer.

KIRKMAN AND SON'S

OVERSTRUNG

GRAND AND COTTAGE PIANOS.

Is being considered by some competent judges that the German method of over or cross-stringing Pianos is attended with great advantage, Messrs. Kirkman and Son are now manufacturing both Grand and Cottage Pianos on this principle, the latter having the plain Sticker Action, which is not the case with Pianos of this class manufactured by other makers; in fact, the extreme simplicity of the action used by Messrs. Kirkman and Son in all their Pianos render them eminently suitable for exportation to the Colonies, where skilled workmen are few and far between All useless checks and complications are carefully avoided, thus enabling any tuner, with however superficial a knowledge of the business, to regulate them or repair any damage they may sustain.

KIRKMAN AND SON

Have a reputation extending over nearly a Century and a-Half.

There are now in the possession of the house Harpsichords and Virginals dated 1758 and 1778, manufactured by Jacobus and Abraham Kirckman.

The present members of the firm beg to call the attention of shipppers and exporters to the fact that in ordering of this house they are dealing with a firm who manufacture on principles derived from experience of this almost unprecedented length.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 26, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, May 8; Madras and Allahabad, May 6; Calcutta, May 5.

THE general reports on the season and prospects for the week ending April 27 are as follow:—Rain has continued in Bengal Proper, Orissa and Chota Nagpore, Assam, Burma, Madras, and the Southern Mahratta Country. The want of it is felt in parts of the Bengal Presidency, and in a few districts in the north of the Punjab. The outturn of the rabi harvest has been generally satisfactory; in Behar it is said to have been excellent. Preparations for kharif sowings are going on. Agricultural prospects and public health remain good.

THE health report for the same week is as follows:—Karachi: Small-pox in five and fever in six talukas; elsewhere public health good. Bengal: Cholera and small-pox in some places; fever in Rajshahye and Purneah, fatal. N.W.P. and Oudh: Slight fever prevails in Jhansi, Agra, Meerut, Bareilly; cholera in Benares, Gorakhpur, Lucknow, and Purtabghur, decreasing in Fyzabad; otherwise good. Punjab: Health good; but in Rawul Pindi fever prevails. Central Provinces: Fever in Nagpur, small-pox in Jubbulpore, Saugor, and Hushangabad. British Burma: Small-pox in Pegu; twenty-two deaths in Rangoon; otherwise health good. Assam: Cholera in Dibrugarh. Cachar: Health good. Central India: Good; but fever in Gwalior. Rajputana: Health good.

WE have received the following telegram for publication from the India-office:—

"FROM VICEROY, MAY 20.—Cabul news. Stewart reports all quiet in Kogar and Kohistan. Ghilzai chiefs lately in conference at Tezin have come to Cabul. General Roberts, whose force was at Hissarak on 18th, has destroyed Padshah Khan Ghilzai's forts. On 19th about two thousand Safis, making demonstration at Besud, were successfully cut off by force sent from Jellalabad. Enemy lost about fifty killed. Among British ten wounded only. From Kurrum reconnaissance to Ali Khel found roads, camping grounds, and buildings of last year in good order. Mirak Shah, who had been Governor of Hariob, being under influence of Padshah Khan, has been removed. Waziris gathered near our communications have been prevented coming within reach of our troops by frequent reconnaissances."

THE telegraphic news from Cabul reports that district is quiet. The Mustaufi Habibullah Khan, having been convicted of complicity with Mahomed Jan, has been arrested and deported to India. The Northern Ghilzais have proved moderate in their demands, requesting only the continuance of their revenue assignments. They profess themselves willing to submit to any Ameer, and undertake the responsibility for the Jellalabad main road. The mission Abdurrahman Khan was received with the greatest respect and attention in Turkestan. General Roberts' march through Logar has not been opposed. General Hills, late military governor of Cabul, has been appointed to the command of the Kandahar division.

THE Kandahar province is quiet, save for threatenings on the Ghilzai Kakar border. Some of the assailants of the Dubrai post have been hanged by the Wali. From Herat it has been reported that Ayoob Khan has recently terminated the quarrel between the Duranis and the Beloochees of Chakansur by marrying a daughter of their chief, Ibrahim Khan. He continues to declare his intention of attacking Kandahar. The harvest has commenced, and promises to be a good one throughout the irrigated districts.

A CABUL telegram says that "letters had been received there from the mission to the Sirdar Abdurrahman. The mission was received with every distinction. Three interviews have been held with the sirdar, and a report of what passed at them has reached the chief political officer in Cabul, but the formal letter in which the sirdar will reply to the communication of the British Government is still awaited. The sirdar's demeanour to the mission was frank and courteous, and he discusses business in a very sensible and practical way."

IT is stated that Lieutenant Cazalet, of the 1st Bengal Cavalry, who commanded the Chappri post on the occasion of its being surprised by the Waziris, has been placed under arrest. The local and temporary rank of major general has been conferred on Brigadier Watson while commanding the Kuram field force.

As a result of incendiary preaching by Mollahs, the tribes near Jellalabad recently manifested a spirit of active hostility. Several attempts at robbery were made. On the 19th the Mohmands had the temerity to enter the Besud plain, opposite Jellalabad, and were immediately attacked by 600 infantry of the 5th and 12th Foot, two mountain guns, and one squadron of the Central India Horse, and were routed with loss. As the cavalry cut them off from the hills, a few desperate men shut themselves in a bastion of a ruined fort, which was speedily carried by Captain Kilgour, of the 5th Fusiliers. Col. Rowland was slightly wounded, and three privates of the 5th and 12th Foot and three men of the Central India Horse severely. Quiet has now been completely restored. On the 20th a force under General Gib found a large body of insurgents from various neighbouring tribes, chiefly Shinwarris, in a strong position at Mazeena, a village sixteen miles south of Jellalabad. They were promptly attacked, and suffered heavy loss before they could reach the shelter of the spurs of Sufed-koh. Our casualties were Lieut. Porteous, of the Royal Artillery, severely wounded; Captain Noyes, of the 14th Foot, slightly wounded; also a bombardier R.A., and a sepoy of the 32nd Pioneers. This force has returned to Pesh-Bolak, and all is now quiet.

THE Times correspondent telegraphs that in Calcutta no further news has been received regarding King Theebaw's reported illness. The latest authentic information from Mandalay, dated about the end of April, represents the people as being in a state of consternation. The priests had told the King that, in order to shield him from his enemies, it was necessary to do homage to the genii by performing the ceremony of Tsate—that is, burying men alive at the angles of the city. Thereupon the King ordered his nobles and retainers to furnish the necessary victims, who were requested to be priests, women, children, goats, fowls, and pigs, and a few victims of royal blood, in certain fixed numerical proportions. These proceedings naturally produced a panic. A proclamation was made to quiet the people's minds, but without success, as several cases of kidnapping had occurred; but the town afterwards became quieter, and the people again began to attend the lottery office. Mandalay was, as usual, full of rumours that the King was determined to go to war with the English. Theebaw was presiding nightly at feasts in the Palace and distributing money to the soldiers. A two days' water festival had occurred, in which the populace took special delight in drenching Europeans. Mention is also made of a further slaughter of members of the Royal Family and officials. The King is said to be certainly suffering from some mysterious disease, with which, and with a fear of his enemies within and without the kingdom, he may be contented with a renewal of the executions and the adoration of the genii. It is impossible to gauge the accuracy of the intelligence received from a town in the state that Mandalay is at present; but the general concurrence of the reports received cannot be altogether disregarded, and there is no reason to suppose that the situation is misrepresented in prevailing colour or general outline.

THE reading of Major General Biddulph's paper on "The March of the Quetta Column from the Indus to the Helmund River and Back," announced by the Royal United Service Institution for the 28th inst., is unavoidably deferred until Wednesday, June 16.

THE Marquis of Ripon is expected to arrive at Bombay on June 1. He will remain there until the 5th, and will arrive at Simla about the 9th. Lord Lytton will then remove to Snowdon, General Roberts' house, and will remain there in privacy till the rains will have set in, probably leaving Bombay about the end of June.

A COMMUNICATION from the Press Commissioner, dated Simla, May 5, states that before the late general election his Excellency Lord Lytton made a request to Lord Beaconsfield that, in the event of the Ministry resigning office, his resignation of the Viceroyalty of India might be tendered to the Queen-Empress together with that of the Ministers then in office. Her Majesty has been graciously pleased to signify to the Earl of Lytton that she has accepted his resignation and has appointed the Marquis of Ripon to succeed him. The Secretary of State for India has further informed the Viceroy that the Queen wishes him to await the arrival of Lord Ripon, who will leave England on the 4th inst., arriving at Bombay by P. and O. steamer on June 1. His Excellency the Earl of Lytton will therefore receive the new Viceroy at Simla, probably about June 6 or 7, and, after transferring the Viceroyalty, will remain in the hills till the rains have broken in the plains. His lordship will then proceed with his family to Bombay, and embark for England in one of her Majesty's ships, which will be placed at his disposal by the Admiralty.

THE Standard says that it is understood that Sir John Strachey, the Finance Minister of India, is about to resign his post and return to England.

IT has transpired, says a Bombay journal, that the correspondence recently discovered in Cashmere emanated from Cabul, not from St. Petersburg. It commenced with a discussion as to the Gilghit.

MAJOR G. S. WHITE, 92nd Highlanders, who has been appointed Military Secretary to the Marquis of Ripon, is, it is stated, about to be promoted to a lieutenant colonelcy and created a Companion of the Bath in recognition of his distinguished services whilst employed with his regiment before Cabul, and more recently in organising the mounted infantry of Sir Francis Roberts' force.

THE Persian Consul at Djedda having insulted the British Consul at that place, Earl Granville (says a telegram from Constantinople) instructed Sir Henry Layard to inform Moshin Khan, the Persian Minister at that Court, that the British Government had made representations on the subject to the Government of the Shah, and that consequently the Persian Consul at Djedda had been suspended pending an inquiry into the circumstances by an Anglo-Persian Committee.

THE trade and navigation returns for 1879-80 show a decided improvement on the previous year. Excluding the Government and private transactions in treasure, there is an increase in merchandise of about nine millions and a half. Both the export and import trade and all the provinces share in the increase.

AT the Sydney Exhibition, Messrs. Watson and Co., of Bombay, received third degree of merit for native pottery; the Muir and Elgin Mills respectively a third and fourth degree of merit for cottons and drills; the Calcutta jute mills, a fourth degree; the Government of Madras two awards for mats; and the Government of the North West Provinces five prizes for carpets, shawls, and fabrics.

THE deaths in Calcutta during the week ending the 24th April numbered 170, giving a death rate of 20·6 per 1,000 per annum. The same week in Madras the number of deaths was 305, being a rate of 39·9 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay in the week ending the 27th April there were 505 deaths, a death rate of 39·05 per 1,000 per annum.

THE Allahabad correspondent of the Times of India states, on the authority of the Civil and Military Gazette, that £1,250,000 have disappeared from the balances of the Punjab treasury, and that there is no record whatever to show how the money has been spent. "Coming upon the heels of the announcement that Sir John Strachey had made an error of £3,000,000 in one item of expenditure, this is calculated to excite most uncomfortable feelings in the mind of every one at all interested in the welfare of India."

AMONG other extraordinary manifestations of pleasure manifested by Indian vernacular papers over the change of Government, the Brahmo Public Opinion came out with a red border, and the Amrita Bazaar Patriha says, "one at least burst into tears of joy and relief when he read that the Queen had been advised to send for Mr. Gladstone."

THE Brahmo Somaj organ, the Mirror, has an article about the new Viceroy, in which it seriously makes the following suggestions for the guidance of Lord Ripon:—"A domestic chaplain should always be with the Viceroy and try by daily ministrations to give him Christian counsel. 2. The meetings of the Governor General's Council should always open with prayer to be offered by the above chaplain. 3. No appointment, civil or military, should be made except with the sanction of the bishop of the diocese. 4. Claims to promotion should be regulated by periodical examinations, in which both ability and character should be tested. 5. The Sermon on the Mount should form one of the subjects of examination, and the examiners should be appointed by the bishop of the diocese. Christian England, wilt thou hesitate to adopt these suggestions? We pause for a reply." However well intentioned our contemporary's suggestions may be we are afraid Christian England will hesitate to adopt them.

AMONG the subscribers to the Lawrence Memorial Fund are the H.H. Maharaja Tiree, G.C.S.I., of Benares, who has contributed £100, Raja Shiva Pershad, and Raja Sheoraj Singh, C.S.I., of Kashupore. Sir W. Muir, referring to the expressions of admiration for Lord Lawrence, contained in letters accompanying the donations, observes that "it is gratifying to find that the noblemen of Upper India (unconnected with his old Province, the Punjab) retain so lively and grateful a remembrance of the great and good man whose name we all desire worthily to commemorate."

THE Duke of Cambridge sent a telegram to Sir Donald Stewart congratulating him on his victory of the 19th ultimo and the capture of Ghazni.

REFERRING to the report that the Horse Guards have protested against the rank of lieutenant general being conferred on Sir Frederick Roberts, in contravention of orders, such rank only being given after Royal sanction and approval, a contemporary says:—"On Nov. 11 last the Governor General in Council, by a special order, conferred on Major General Sir F. S. Roberts the local rank of lieutenant general. The reason at the time was presumed to be that public inconvenience was caused by the commands of Major Generals Roberts and Bright being independent of each other. One head was wanted, and the Viceroy did not wish Major General Bright to be that head, to which position he had a first claim, as he was senior as a major general to Roberts. It was also understood that the Viceroy opposed another solution of the difficulty, which was that proposed by General Sir F. Haines, that he himself should assume the command. The Viceroy, therefore, conferred local superior rank on Major General Roberts, and his power to do so is disputed by the Horse Guards. An important principle is involved, as, if the Viceroy has power to confer local rank in India, he can, at his discretion or indiscretion, supersede any officer appointed by her Majesty at home."

LETTERS from the Ghazni Field Force (says the Pioneer) amply confirm the impression already drawn from telegrams—that Sir Donald Stewart's action near Mushaki was the sharpest fight we had had with the enemy since the war began. The Ghazis, from their position on the low ridges in front, charged down with such determination and in such splendid style that it needed all the skill of our officers and the courage of our men to keep them off. What would have happened had Sir Donald Stewar been attacked by the whole body, of which the 9,000 were only an advanced guard, must be left to the imagination. The 2nd Sikh Infantry behaved splendidly, and after all was over Colonel Boswell was highly complimented by the general. Lieutenant Stuart, 2nd Punjab Cavalry, had a sword-cut in his wrist. Lieut. Young had six sword-cuts and two shot wounds. Captain Broome's horse was cut down by a sword-cut which pierced his head down to the brain.

THE Indian papers contain a long memorandum by Sir P. Haines on the report of the Army Commission, which will, says the Calcutta paper, go far to restore the public confidence in the ability and professional eminence of the Commander in Chief. His Excellency declares himself to be opposed to most of the general principles advocated in the report, and especially to the proposed mode of dealing with the Madras Army, which he considers the great reserve of India. He affirms that if every existing cadre were completed to the war strength suggested there would not be a man too many, and he does not anticipate the possibility of safely reducing the number of regiments. His Excellency points out that the increase in the cost of the army in the last ten years only amounts to £193,000, which sum astonishes by its smallness, and he deprecates further savings being sought for in a reduction of commands staffs.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Times of India notices the fact that the late General Ballard was the first mover in the attempt to remedy the condition of the factory operatives two or three years before the Factory Bill was drafted. He is dead. Mr. Hope returns to England, and the Act appears to be shelved. Another writer adds:—

"India and Italy are the only two countries where cotton factories exist in which there is not some sort of Act for the protection of the operatives. The hours now worked by the Bombay mills are from 5.20 a.m. to 6.40 p.m., with a half hour's rest in the middle of the day. To judge of the effect of such a long day's toil upon the operatives, you have only to see them leave the mill just before dark, to reach home, eat their food, obtain a few hours' sleep, to return to work next morning at daybreak. Compare their hours of work with those of the G.I.P. Railway fitters, who were out on strike a short time since, and you will at once see what the cotton mill operatives have to endure."

We hope that some of the members of both Houses who concern themselves with Indian affairs will push this reform on, which may interest them as much as Indian representation.

UNDER the heading "Then and Now" a Madras paper quotes the following from a minute addressed on Jan. 27, 1747, by the Court of Directors of the Hon. East India Company to the Governor in Council at Fort St. David:—

". . . We strictly forbid your suffering any Romish Church within our bounds, or any of their priests to dwell among you, or that religion to be openly professed; and in case any Papists have crept into places of trust in our service they must be immediately dismissed."

EXCITEMENT has been occasioned at Portsmouth by the receipt of intelligence that the Indian Army Commission have made a recommendation as to the conveyance of military reliefs between England and India which would involve the abolition of the troopship service. The proposal is to enter into contracts with large steam companies plying between England and Indian ports to convey troops to the nearest port to the locality in which they are to be quartered.

THE fifth annual exhibition of paintings on china by lady amateurs is now open. Messrs. Howell and James have had the honour of submitting to the Prince and Princess of Wales some of the prize works from among the beautiful ceramic pictures that are on exhibition.

THE amount of cash held in the Reserve Treasury of the Government of India on the 29th April, 1880, was Rs.59,16,314-8-1.

THE Association for the Reform and Codification of the Law of Nations, who have just issued the report of the valuable papers read at the conference held in London last August, announce that their next meeting will take place at Berne, on August 24, when international commercial questions, principally relating to negotiable securities and banking laws, will be considered.

THE Times of India contains the following obituary of the week:—Lieut. C. G. B. Saunders, 10th Hussars, Dr. Fennelly, R.E., Bishop of Madras, Capt. M'Hatten (Bengal).

FROM a comparative statement of the traffic on Indian railways, published by the Public Works Department, it appears that the total earnings of all railways during the year 1879 was £11,231,886. This is £784,195 more than the total earnings of 1878. Taking the average receipt per week per mile open as the test, the main line of the East Indian has done the best, and heads the list with £54·1; next—although £3·4 worse than last year—comes the Eastern Bengal with £46·2. The Sindia Southern section is last on the list with £1·6. Of the greater railways the Great Indian Peninsula has earned £4·3, the Oudh and Rohilkund £1·1, per mile less than last year. The Madras Railway has earned neither less nor more, while all the other railways have increased their earnings. The Sind-Punjab shows the greatest increase, being £6·2 per mile better than it was last year. This, of course, is due to the Afghan war. Among the State railways—as is to be expected—the Punjab Northern shows best. Its average receipts per week per mile had advanced from £17 in 1878 to £34·5 in 1879. The Indus Valley, too, shows a very marked increase, due to abnormal circumstances. The Wardha Valley Railway has done well, having advanced from £5·6 to £11. The Rangoon and Irrawaddy earned about the same as last year, while the Amraoti, Khamgaon, and Nizam's State Railways have each earned less in 1879 than 1878. The earnings during the first, second, and fourth quarters of the year are nearly equal, the first quarter being a shade better than the other two. The decrease of earnings in the third quarter of the year, when compared with others, is very marked.

AN important item of Oxford news is that, among various decrees which will be submitted to Convocation on June 1 is one for granting a site for the Indian Institute, the creation of which has been due to the exertions of Professor Monier Williams. The proposed site is on the south side of the Parks, opposite a projected road which is to be opened into Holywell-street.

THE Government of Ceylon, up to April 17, had realised Rs.153,000 by the pearl fishery off the island.

THE subscriptions in Calcutta towards the Irish Famine Fund by the last return are shown to be Rs.89,979-5-0. In Bombay the subscriptions have reached Rs.81,098.

THE Government of India has ordered that the proposed telegraph line from Kandahar to Khelat-i-Ghilzai is not to be constructed.

THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE DEFENCE FUND.

THE committee of the fund as now constituted consists of the following gentlemen:—James Cowan, Esq., M.P. for Edinburgh, 100, St. George's-square, S.W., President; Deputy Surgeon General J. Irving, 2, Culverden-colonnade, Tunbridge Wells; Surgeon General R. Cockburn, 42, Leamington-road-villas, Westbourne-park, W.; J. P. Irvine, Esq., M.D., physician, Charing-cross Hospital, London; Deputy Surgeon General J. Ewart, M.D., Montpelier Hall, Brighton; D. E. Seton, Esq., M.D., 12, Thurlow-place, South Kensington, S.W.; Surgeon Major S. B. Partridge, Thicket-lodge, Anerley, S.E.; Surgeon Major F. N. Macnamara, M.D., 12, Palace-gardens-terrace S.W.; Surgeon Major R. Moir, M.D., 62, South-street, St. Andrews, Fifeshire; F. Gordon Brown, Esq., surgeon, 16 Finsbury-circus, E.C. The formation of the committee has enabled Mr. Alexander Lawrie, who from the commencement of the movement acted as honorary treasurer, to resign his post. The secretary's letter, formally accepting his resignation, expresses the feeling of the committee in these words:—"I am further directed by the committee to say that they are greatly obliged to you for the trouble you have so kindly taken on their behalf in the preliminary organisation of the fund, and they have only to regret that circumstances obliged them to draw for so long a time on your good nature, as it was impossible for them to form a responsible committee before now." The balance-sheet shows receipts of £123 9s., exclusive of funds not yet remitted from the Indian branches of the Agra Bank, and the balance in hand is £68 15s. 11d.

LOYALTY OF A MAHARAJA.

THE Maharaja of Ulwar (who intends to visit England shortly) has given another illustration of his loyalty to the British Raj. Writing to the Foreign Secretary, he says :—

"My dear Mr. Lyall,—Considering the safety and peace we enjoy under the British Government, and having regard to the fact that the war in Afghanistan is undertaken only for the protection of the Empire, I believe we, native chiefs, as its feudatories, are bound to render such assistance as lies in our power. I have therefore ventured to telegraph to you again yesterday that I am willing to defray all the expenses of maintaining a regiment of native infantry of the British Indian army so long as this second war in Afghanistan lasts, and I trust you will kindly submit my proposal to his Excellency the Viceroy. To show my sincere loyalty and appreciation of the blessings we enjoy, I am further willing to volunteer my personal services should there be an occasion. Trusting you are enjoying good health.—I am, &c., "MANGUL SINGH."

Mr. Lyall replied as follows:—

"My dear Maharaja,—I have received your telegram and letter, in which you so loyally and liberally offered to defray the expenses of maintaining a regiment of native infantry during the present operations in Afghanistan, and I have taken the Viceroy's wishes on the subject. I am authorised to acknowledge cordially, on the part of the Government of India, this expression of your readiness and of your desire to co-operate with the army of the Indian Empire, and I am to say that your offer will be borne in mind. His Excellency the Viceroy appreciates very much your volunteering for personal services should the occasion arise."

In the first campaign of the Afghan war his Highness offered to place his troops and elephants and camels at the disposal of the British Government, who accepted the loan of 200 of his camels, since maintained at the front at the expense of the Maharaja. It will also be remembered that when the Indian contingent was ordered to be despatched to Malta the Maharaja offered a portion of his troops for service in or out of India, to be maintained there at his own cost.

CYPRUS.—A blue-book of 350 pages, just issued, contains the report on this island by her Majesty's High Commissioner for the year 1879. Major General Biddulph states that the currency has now been put on a satisfactory footing; and, owing to the measures taken, in a very short time it "will consist entirely of English pounds, shillings, and piastres, the two latter maintaining their standard value without difficulty." The military exemption tax has been extended to Mussulmans in lieu of the military service to which they were before liable; it has also been reduced in amount, and the limit of age has been fixed between eighteen and sixty, instead of fifteen and seventy. The tax is now 2s. 6d. a head, instead of being nominally 4s. 7d. and really more; and the High Commissioner reports that the reduced amount is cheerfully paid by both Mahomedans and Christians.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THOUGHTS OF A TOURIST.*

WE do not know if Mr. Falk will admit the appropriateness of this title, which expresses to our thinking the character of his little work. A tour through India, Burma, and the Straits condensed into seventy-two pages is at first sight a startling, not to say repellent, object. But without tormenting the reader with twaddle, Mr. Falk has given in a plain but easy style, which needs not the apology that, as a merchant, he is not a bookman, the shrewd opinions and the clear-cut impressions that he brought back with him from his tour. He thinks that the trip to Bombay not only could but ought to be done in fourteen days, and that it would be an immense advantage to England and India if the additional light let in by ocular demonstration could banish the quacks of Indian debate, who trade on mythical hearsay. Among them he makes no secret of including the pessimists, both as to the soil and wealth of India. He has very pronounced opinions as to the Mussulmans, the hereditary scourge of humanity; in his own words—"In India we hold them in check, but that is all; convert them to real habits of peace we never shall; and we shall never be able to relax our guard. The expense of these frontier wars is a necessary charge on the Indian revenue and it ought always to be borne in mind by the Finance Minister. To talk of exhaustion of resources and inability to bear further taxation is, in my humble opinion, betraying either great ignorance of the country or singular want of enterprise in the financiers who propound such doctrines." These are the words of the President of the Northwich Chamber of Commerce, who regarded the country with a hasty glance indeed, but with the glance of a man of business. He had a special purpose connected with his official capacity—viz., to study the question of salt in India, and the result of his observations are embodied in a report which forms an appendix to the tour itself and deserves careful study. It of course is written from the point of view of the English exporter, and hits the blot of the incidence of a pound sterling per ton in favour of Sambhur to the detriment of English salt, as effected by the last budget but one, and unaltered save by a vague promise in the recent financial statement. The whole report is almost too succinct and yet too full for notice in a review.

THE TURKISH GENDARMERIE.*

IN a pamphlet just published relating to this subject the grievances and wrongs of the English officers, to whom the task of organising an efficient gendarmerie was three years ago entrusted by the Sultan, are told with clearness and vigour by Col. Coope. The immediate motive which has induced the author to publish this unvarnished account is to defend his brother officers and himself against anonymous misrepresentation and misstatements which appeared in a recent article in a magazine of old and high standing. It is not in such pages that we should expect to have found a slur cast on the handful of able and experienced officers who have been striving to make bricks without straw, to build up the promised structure of internal Turkish reform. Among the various projects for the improvement of Turkey there were none that promised better, hardly any that have been rendered more abortive by the obstructionist party among the pashas. The English officers have been at once thwarted by official intrigues and opposition, and have also been unjustly charged with the non-accomplishment of work which the Turks themselves have rendered it impossible for them to do.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

WE have received a specimen copy of the precis of "Official Papers" about to be issued as a monthly publication by Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co. We have reason to know that the sample of the work has met with wide approval among journalists. As a handy work of reference, and a means of saving time and labour, it will be highly appreciated. The arrangement should include not only what is obviously certain to be supplied—viz., careful and copious indices of subjects, but also a means of referring rapidly to the general heads, as well as the special titles, under which Blue-books may be classified. We fear that a system of pagination, which would enable the various subjects, such as India, Turkey, Sanitary, Police, &c., to be bound in separate volumes, is utopian; although we have heard it suggested as the nearest approach to perfectibility which it is possible to hope for in a handy guide to Blue-books.

CORRESPONDENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—The East Indian Railway Company having been transferred to the Government the surplus assets of the company are about to be divided. Such surplus assets amount to the large sum of £108,480, arising from unclaimed dividends, interest on investment thereof, &c. Of this amount it is proposed to appropriate £34,160 to the late chairman in commutation of his annuity; £15,000 to the present chairman for extraordinary services; a portion thereof to the present proprietors; and a further portion towards charitable objects.

It seems only fair that before the final division of these surplus funds takes place every possible effort should be made to trace the representatives of deceased shareholders entitled to participate therein. When the Thames Tunnel Company was dissolved advertisements were inserted in the leading newspapers giving the names and addresses of the shareholders, and the amounts due to their representatives. The result was that more than two-thirds of such surplus assets was claimed.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, EDWARD PRESTON,

Author of "Unclaimed Money."

THE MYSOR COFFEE PLANTER.

THE Mysor coffee planter's position at the present moment is not altogether an enviable one. He is to be made over to the native raj without a permanent title to the land on which he has spent much time and capital. All planters, whether European or native, who have cultivated coffee on what has, unfortunately —for the name has undoubtedly given rise to erroneous ideas— been called the European system, are placed practically in a worse position than other agriculturists of Mysor. There is no doubt that, as a rule, Europeans only have adopted the European system. Here and there one sees an estate owned by a native worked on the higher system, but the number of such is very few. The nervous dread—sure sign of weak administration—of being charged with class partiality has been partly the cause why a class which contains a majority of Europeans has not had meted out to it that justice which its circumstances would warrant. The native and European system of growing coffee are radically different. Under the one system we have much capital sunk in preparing the garden, with a large yearly expenditure, giving employment to many hands. Under the other, neither the owner nor his neighbours profits by coffee, and yet the Government place both on an equal footing as to a lease. It is true that the greater number of estates were opened out by Europeans under the belief that, eventually, when the country became as everyone expected it would one day, British territory, the Mysor planters would get as good a title to his estate as other planters in other parts of the empire. Legally, the planters may have no claim to a better title than his neighbour. But it is a poor administration that views its duties in a legal light only. Ever since it was known that the decision of resuscitating the native raj had been arrived at the planters have agitated for a permanent title. As a general survey of Mysor was being made, it was considered more desirable to let the question stand over till the eastern face of the western ghats, where the coffee estates are situated, was, in the ordinary course of things, surveyed. Information as to the exact area and boundaries of each state would then be available. This has lately been done; but the planter finds he is to have no permanent title. In common with all ordinary ryots, he holds his estate at a fixed period of thirty years' annual rent. At the end of that time he is liable to have his rent enhanced. It is this uncertainty as to the future which not only depreciates the present value of the property, but is a strong bar to sinking money for permanent improvement of the land. While the country was under British administration the planter felt sure of fair play; and if the absence of a title-deed prevented his mortgaging his estate, why he could still borrow enough on the coming crop to carry on the war. But who can foretell what may happen under a native raj. In finally making over the country to the Maharaja, there would be nothing unseemly in our insisting that all coffee planters, who, by adopting the European system of cultivation had sunk capital in the land, should, by the granting of a permanent title-deed, be placed in a position of security. If the granting of a permanent title-deed in the neighbouring state of Coorg is good for both planter and State, it is difficult to understand why it is not considered equally beneficial in Mysor.—Pioneer.

THE TROOPSHIP SERVICE.

IT is believed that the members of the Indian Army Commission have made a most sensible suggestion as to the conveyance of troops to and from England to India in the ordinary course of relief. If the home authorities agree to it, it will involve the total abolition of the troopship service. The proposal is to enter into contracts with the large steam companies plying between England and the principal Indian ports for a term of years to convey the troops at a fixed rate per head to the nearest port to the locality in which the troops are to be quartered. Thus relief intended for the Madras Presidency would be landed at Madras, those for Burma at Rangoon, and troops intended for Sind, Kandahar, and Punjab, at Karachi. The average cost per soldier by H.M.'s troopships is about £20, and it is pretty certain that private companies would do the same work at a considerably cheaper rate. The present system of landing all troops at Bombay, hurrying them through this city to Deolalie, and then dispatching them by railway to all parts of India is necessarily an expensive, and, we might add, an absurd one. It is notorious that conveyance by water is infinitely cheaper than transport by railway, and as the railway and land journeys would, by the adoption of this proposal, be considerably shortened, it is obvious there must be a proportionately large saving of expenditure. Even if the first part of the commissioner's recommendations—namely, the abandonment of the present troopship service, be not adopted, it would seem to be a very sensible arrangement, if the reliefs and drafts for India could be so dispatched that only those intended for Sind, the Punjab, and Baluchistan could be sent by special steamers to Karachi, and those for Burma and Madras direct to the most convenient ports in those parts of the country. There can be no reason why the troops for Bengal and the North West Provinces and Central Provinces should be first sent out, and those intended for other parts of India dispatched in batches with special reference to the places to which they are intended to be forwarded. The abandonment of the H.M.'s troopships as a medium of transport will of course be very strongly resisted by the Admiralty, for the result would throw upon their hands a number of officers and men now employed on these troopships who will have to be provided for or placed upon half pay, and the abolition of what is considered a very popular service would naturally cause a good deal of heartburning and discontent in the Royal Navy.—Bombay Gazette.

BURMA.

THE loathsome proceedings of the King of Burma are measures of brutality for which the British Government of India cannot hold itself in any way responsible; and yet, when one hears of young women put to death as sacrifices because of the King's illness one cannot but remember how narrowly this Government missed the opportunity of imposing the rule of civilisation on the territory which, as events actually fell out, has been left in the power of its native savages. Since the withdrawal of the British Resident information from Mandalay is uncertain and irregular; but enough has been received to show that something like a panic reigns in parts of the country, on account of the seizure of girls considered appropriate for sacrifice. This might have been prevented if the Government of India had not been restrained from active intervention in Burma, at the time war seemed imminent, by the state of politics at home. Of course it may be argued that the barbarous state of Burma is no more our business than that of any other Asiatic State in a low condition of development; but we have had so much to do with Burma in one way and another that one cannot remain quite indifferent to public scandals of which that country is the scene. Perhaps the Government of India may have enough on its hands for the moment, but it certainly ought to be recognised that sooner or later the question of Burma should be seriously taken up. Meanwhile the embassy which the King sent forward, in the hope that it might be the instrument of re-establishing friendly relations with British India, still remains at our frontier town, Thayetmyo. It has been told to go, but it begs for a little longer toleration, pretending that it has further communications of interest to make, that it is expecting fresh instructions from Mandalay, and so on. All this is probably an empty pretence; but so far the embassy has not absolutely been kicked out of British territory, and thus holds on. Little or nothing is to be expected from its proposals; but its urgency and anxiety to negotiate is evidence of the King's nervousness in presence of the diplomatic isolation to which his misconduct has condemned his country. It would take very little, probably, to precipitate a revolution, though this would do no permanent good unless the British authorities were free to intervene in the next settlement of Burman politics with a very firm hand.—Pioneer.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE SHANS.—It would be interesting to know the real reason for the decline in Shan immigration from Bhamo. When steamers first ran to this distant spot they used to return always with thirty or forty Shan immigrants, and often over a hundred. The last steamer, the Okpho, seems to have brought down only eight deck passengers. Are the gambling attractions of Mandalay so great that the Shans make a halt there, or is the treatment they receive in this province not so good as they expected? The Shans are a hardworking race, and perhaps next to Chinese who, however, generally take to some trade in a town, the best settlers we could get in British Burma. More liberal grants of waste land, of which there are millions of acres of land available, would attract vast numbers of the inhabitants of Upper Burma, and give this province the population it so badly wants.—Rangoon Gazette.

MEMORANDUM BY THE HEALTH OFFICER OF CALCUTTA.—The number of births registered in March was 591 against 501 in the preceding month. It also exceeded the corresponding monthly figures of the preceding decade with the exception of that of 1878. This increase is observable in births amongst all classes of the community, and it is principally due to the detection and subsequent registration of many unregistered births on comparing the returns of the nuisance inspectors with those of the police thannahs. The average of the last ten years was 449. There were 1,042 deaths registered against 1,032 in the preceding month, giving a ratio of 29·1 against 28·8 per 1,000 of population per annum. Although the number exceeds the decennial average by 24, it is considerably less than the corresponding figures of the two preceding years—by 578 and 146 respectively. This marked diminition is observable amongst the first three principal causes of deaths, and is shared by all races except "other classes." With the exception of two years (1871 and 1872) of the past decade, cholera shows a considerable decline. It was fatal to ninety persons against 114 in the preceding month, and less by 109 than the decennial average.

From smallpox there were only thirty deaths against 287 and 212 of 1878 and 1879—less than half of the mean of the past decade. From fevers there were 324 deaths, a number considerably less than those of the corresponding months of the two preceding years, and also below that of the preceding month, but it exceeds the decennial average by three. The deaths caused by the "new disease" (acute œdema, or beri-beri) in the month under review were less than half the number registered in February. There were 112 deaths from bowel complaints. The number exceeds those in all the corresponding months of the decade, excepting those for 1876 and 1878, and is higher than the average by six. Deaths from "other causes" show a figure above those of the corresponding periods for the last ten years, and also exceed the decennial average by 173. The increase is attributable to the large proportion of infant deaths amongst all races. Infant mortality, reckoned on estimated births, was 344·6, against 294·2 in the preceding month per 1,000 of population per annum. Among the different races the rates were as follows:—Hindoos, 327·9; Mahomedans, 415·2; mixed races, 404; and "non-Asiatics," 59·2. There was no infant death amongst "other classes."—Indian Daily News.

CATTLE FAIR AT UMRITSUR.—The Umritsur cattle fair has been unusually successful. Of 52,415 animals presented for sale no less than 37,376 were disposed of for a sum of Rs.6,20,432. We give below the result:—

	Exhibited.	Sold.	Average price. Rs. A. P.
Bullocks	8,729	3,943	14 13 6
Cows	7,267	7,023	9 2 5
Male buffaloes	15,918	10,000	11 10 4
Female buffaloes ...	14,868	12,398	18 14 6
Loading camels ...	1,019	836	54 13 6
Horses	1,054	529	102 10 9
Ponies	1,013	944	19 2 3
Mules	367	221	75 13 5

The prices realised for cattle are less than the average prices obtaining in Bengal.—Ibid.

BETHUNE GIRLS' SCHOOL.—We hear that the Lieutenant Governor of Bengal has agreed with the director of public instruction in thinking that there would be no objection to the admission to the college classes of the Bethune girls' school of girls who are not Hindus by nationality, but that this should not be extended to the admission of such girls to the school classes. It has also been ruled that no girl should be admitted to the college classes who has not passed the entrance examination, and who is not prepared to read for the F.A. examination.—Ibid.

RECRUITS FOR THE POLICE FORCE.—Difficulties having recently been experienced in procuring recruits for the police force in certain districts in Bengal, in consequence of the rise in the rates of wages, the Government of Bengal has sanctioned an additional grant of Rs.10,000 a year, to increase the pay of constables in the districts of the 24-Pergunnahs, Howrah, Hooghly, and Midnapore, as recommended by the inspector general of police, Lower Provinces.—Ibid.

THE OLD MOUNTAINEER.—Mr. F. Wilson, of Mussoorie—mountaineer—with his two sons, proceeds to England. Mr. Wilson will be away for six months. Before leaving, Mr. C. Wilson presented a silver cup to be competed for by the Mussoorie Volunteers. The latter, not to be outdone, gave Mr. F. Wilson and his sons a dinner, which came off on April 21, and was followed by a dance.—Indian Daily News.

THE EMIGRATION RETURNS.—The emigration returns from Calcutta for the month of February show that 1,159 male and 586 female emigrants left the port for the following colonies:—

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Demerara	305	187	492
Jamaica	257	113	370
St. Vincent	139	74	213
French West India colonies ...	458	212	670

Of the total numbers, 1,021, consisting of 689 men and 332 women, were between 20 and 30 years of age; 35 boys and 33 girls were under 2, and there were 112 boys and 79 girls between the ages of 10 and 2. Above 10 and under 20, there were 255 youths and 124 girls. There were only 2 men above 40 years of age. There was one Christian emigrant. Divided according to religion, there were:—

	Males.	Females.	Totals.
Hindoos	938	431	1,369
Mahommedans	220	155	375
Christian...	1	—	1
Total	1,159	586	1,745

The proportion between the sexes was fairly kept up. Looking to the provinces which supplied the emigrants, we find the North West Provinces first, with 1,054; Behar second, with 394; and Oude third, with 185; Central India sent 51; Nepaul, 23; Madras and Bombay only contributed 12, and the Punjab 26; Western Bengal sent four emigrants, whilst Orissa and Central Bengal sent only two each, and Eastern Bengal only one man. If the North West Provinces and Oude be taken together, then the territories under Sir George Couper contributed a total of 1,230 emigrants out of the whole number of 1,745.—Indian Daily News.

THE NAGRI CHARACTER.—The question of the adoption of the Nagri and Kaithi character in the place of Persian in the courts and offices of Behar, which has been for many years under discussion, has at last been finally settled by the Lieutenant Governor. In a resolution lately published, his Honour directs that the Nagri or Kaithi character shall be exclusively used from the 1st January, 1881, throughout the Patna Division, and in such districts of the Bhagalpur Division as may hereafter be notified, and that the issue from the courts, or the reception by the courts, of any document in the Persian character, except as exhibits, shall be absolutely forbidden. Pending further inquiry, those orders will not for the present be enforced in the Chutia Nagpur Division. Police officers and amlah are also warned that, if they cannot read and write the Nagri character by the above date, they will have to make room for those who can.—Times of India.

THE RANGOON GARRISON.—We hear that the wing of her Majesty's 54th Regiment now in Rangoon has been ordered to embark for Calcutta, provided the major general in command of the division consents to its departure. It is no doubt prejudicial to the interests of a regiment to be split up into different detachments, to say nothing of the expense entailed thereby; but as the political horizon in Burma is still very hazy it would be scarcely wise to denude the European garrison, which is hardly more than at its nominal strength of 700 or 800 men, of the 200 or 300 which now composes, we believe, the effective strength of the 54th wing.—Statesman.

SUDDEN DEATH AT BARRACKPORE.—We learn that Hon. Captain M'Hatten, an old and much respected inhabitant of that station, when paying a visit to his neighbour, Mr. N. W. Mackenzie, of Calcutta, was in the middle of a conversation suddenly seized with a fit and fell forward insensible. He never recovered consciousness and succumbed during the night. The cause of death is supposed to have been heat apoplexy.—Ibid.

BENARES.—The absurd reports that cholera and other epidemics were "raging" in and about the city of Benares, which, we believe, prevented his Excellency the Viceroy paying the place a visit on his way to Simla, are, we are glad to hear, without foundation. Some cases of both cholera and small-pox have occurred, but no large and crowded Indian city like Benares could be totally exempt from them at this season of the year.—Indian Herald.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.—The Punjab Gazette contains Sir Robert Egerton's resolution on the future working of the civil medical department, under Dr. Townsend, the first of the new order of provincial surgeon general. Dr. Townsend is invested with the control of all hospitals, including the Mayo Hospital of Lahore; dispensaries; and lunatic asylum; as also with the supervision of the Lahore Medical School. The medical staff of the province, as also the deputy surgeon generalship of the frontier, are also placed under his direction; and he is to be the adviser of the Government upon all matters connected with civil medical administration.—Times of India.

FIRE AT GARDEN REACH.—On 30th April a fire broke out in the centre flat of the three-storied cotton spinning mill belonging to Messrs. Mackinnon, Mackenzie, and Company. This flat contained all the machinery, which was composed of several thousand spindles. These spindles appear to be lubricated, not with the ordinary sort of oil, but an inflammable mixture, the greater portion of which consists of kerosine oil. It appears that the machinery got clogged with this mixture, which ignited through friction, the result being the total destruction of fourteen sets of spindles. The whole building would undoubtedly have been gutted had it not been for the timely assistance rendered by the French mail steamer Meinam, lying, luckily, opposite the building, which, immediately on receiving the alarm, played on the burning mass with her force pumps. The property destroyed is valued at Rs.40,000.—Times of India.

SHARK-BITE.—Sharks have become a great nuisance to the natives of South Barrackpore. It was only the other day at Sookchar a lady died from shark-bite. Two more accidents from the same cause have been reported from Panihatty. The nephew of Baboo Umbica Churn Banerjee, while bathing in the river with several other boys, was so severely bitten by a shark that he died almost immediately; and shortly afterwards another person was reported to have been bitten, and Assistant Surgeons Brojonath Karfarma and Mahendranath Gangooly hastened to the spot and dressed the wound.—Englishman.

NEW RACE STAND.—On the recommendation of the Commander in Chief the Governor General in Council has granted permission to the Calcutta Turf Club to erect a new Race Stand on the south of the Racecourse and the Maidan, on an engagement by the stewards that the building shall be so constructed as to be capable of being taken to pieces, and altogether removed within a week, whenever so ordered; also to use the strip of land between the road and Tolly's Nullah for the erection of temporary training stables of mats and thatch, to be annually removed in February.—Times of India.

MADRAS.

REDUCTIONS IN THE MADRAS CAVALRY.—It has been already stated that under the provisions of the Army Commission Report, the strength of native cavalry regiments will be be increased to 609 natives of all ranks, and infantry battalions to 912 natives of all ranks. This arrangement naturally entails the disestablishment of some regiments, as it is not proposed that the total fighting strength of the native army shall be augmented. The Bengal army corps will thus lose six cadres of infantry; the Punjab army four; the Madras army corps fifteen; and the Bombay army corps five. In the cavalry, the existing twenty-six regiments of the force which will constitute the future Bengal and Punjab army corps will be reorganised as nineteen regiments of four squadrons each. Madras in the same way will lose two cavalry cadres, and Bombay one. It will be seen that the reduction in the number of cadres falls with extreme severity upon the Madras army, but this has appeared to the commission unavoidable, in view of the real requirements of each province and the economy of the whole force. It would only be possible to keep up the strength of the Madras army by employing it to garrison places out of the province to a greater extent even than is done at present; and at present the principle seems to have been adopted to excess. Every Madras regiment employed in Bengal costs about one lakh of rupees a year more than a Bengal regiment employed on the same duty. No doubt the reduction of cadres in the Madras army will enhance for the moment the embarrassments to which that army is already exposed, by reason of including an extravagantly excessive proportion of field officers. But the commission argue that in any case, for the time has now come at which it is imperatively necessary to abate this evil, and that while they are about it, Government may as well make arrangements to retire the field officers in sufficient numbers to put the army of the province on the new and sound basis proposed. At present there are 169 field officers employed on the regimental establishment of the Madras army, while there are only 118 captains and subalterns. There is hardly a regiment in the Madras service that has not four or five field officers attached to it, some doing the duty of captains and subalterns; while there is one regiment, the 20th, which contains two brevet colonels, one lieutenant colonel, three majors, and one sublieutenant. In the 38th and 33rd Regiments there are no subalterns at all; and but for one captain these two regiments would be entirely officered by majors and colonels.—Pioneer.

FRESH OUTBREAK IN RAMPA.—The miserable Rampa rebellion shows signs of breaking out afresh. As soon as the troops were withdrawn the insurgents began to collect and attacked some police posts. A special meeting of the Council was called at Ootacamund to consider what should be done. Col. Buck, commanding the district, has been directed to send troops into Malkanjiri Talook in order to follow up the rebels, and the Raja of Jeypore has been requested to supply provisions. Orders have also been telegraphed to Royapuram for the 56th Madras Native Infantry to hold itself ready to embark for Vizianagram. The bad system on which the Indian war accounts have been kept seems to have had the same result in Rampa as in Afghanistan, although, of course, on a much smaller scale. It is reported that various sums, amounting to some thousand rupees, cannot be accounted for, and that the Duke of Buckingham has ordered them to be written off to profit and loss. —Times Telegram.

THE "BANGALORE EXAMINER" LIBEL CASE.—In this case Mr. Richmond Hayes, Mr. A. M. Carner, and Mr. John Turnbull appealed against the conviction of Mr. Maltby, first class magistrate of Bangalore. It was admitted that the magistrate had jurisdiction to deal with the accused, but it was contended that his finding was wrong. The offence of which the accused were convicted was defamation in respect of an article that appeared in the Bangalore Examiner, and the first defendant was sentenced, as proprietor of the Bangalore Examiner, to pay a fine of Rs.300; the second defendant, as editor of the paper, to pay a fine of Rs.100; and the third defendant, as the printer, to pay a fine of Rs.1. The Chief Justice gave judgment, in which Mr. Justice Muthuswami Iyer concurred, that the fine of Rs.100 on the editor should remain unaffected, and also the fine on the printer, but that the fine of Rs.300 on the publisher, their lordships held, should be reduced to Rs.100, the same amount as that inflicted on the editor.—Madras Times.

CLOSURE OF THE GODAVERY AND KISTNA CANALS.—A report has been presented on this subject by Col. Mullins, the chief engineer for irrigation, upon which the Government have issued the following order:—"The closure of the canals in the Godavery Eastern and Western Deltas on the main line of communication is likely in the future to be infrequent and short. As regards the Kistna, where much has to be done to complete the canals on this route, where also clearances are much heavier than the Godavery, and where the river supply is materially less adequate in the dry months, the difficulties in the way of extending the period during which the canals can be kept open for navigation are great. The subject, however, is of considerable and growing importance, and his Grace the Governor in Council desires that the attention of the canal officers may be directed to the devising of means for reducing the period of closure as much as possible, and for obviating the necessity of annual closures merely for silt clearance of the canals on the line from Cocanada to Pedda Ganjam. For general clearances closures will, no doubt, still be required. But local sholas may be taken out by dredging, and all possible care should be taken to remove special causes of silting. In the meantime it is necessary that notice of closures should be given as early as possible, and not less than three months before the date fixed for them, so that boat-owners may be enabled to arrange for making the most of the time intervening between the harvest and the suspension of navigation."—Madras Times.

FRENCH INDIES.—Mons. Langier, the present Governor of the French settlements in India, who was the guest of the Duke of Buckingham two or three weeks ago, goes to Bourbon, vice M. Cuinier, who retires from the service. M. Godin succeeds M. Langier. M. Hoas, Chef de Service at Karical, has gone on leave to France, and should he not return (as it is expected) M. Ponaamby Pillai will succeed him.—South of India Observer.

THE NILGIRI PLANTERS' ASSOCIATION.—The report read at the annual meeting, held at Ootacamund on April 14, states that an answer has been received from the Supreme Government to the memorial forwarded by the Wynaad Planters' Association, on the subject of an improved Labour Ordinance and Contractors' Registration Act, and on the extension of the Coffee Stealing Act to the low country taluqs. With reference to the Labour and Contract Registration Act, no satisfaction was obtained. But the local Government was instructed to reconsider their refusal to extend the Coffee Stealing Act to the low country, when the experience of this coffee season could be used as further arguments by the associations. All planters are therefore requested to furnish the secretary with a history of any case of coffee robbery during this crop time, especially during carriage from estate to the cleaning works. Nothing further has been done about the Madras Forest Act of 1879, and there seems some hope that the consideration of this bill will be deferred indefinitely.—Waste Land Rules—The local Government have resolved that all natural trees and brushwood on the Nilgiris shall be reserved. The Government order has not been made public, and no resolution has been arrived at without reference to the planters and others interested in the hills, and in direct opposition to the expressed views of the commissioner of the Nilgiris.—Beypore Railway viâ Wynaad—A letter from the Supreme Government, acknowledging the association's memorial has been received, promising careful consideration to the arguments put forward; and this line seems just such a one as was contemplated to be opened under the License Act Famine Insurance Fund. There is some ground to anticipate favourable result. —Correspondence has been opened with the Indian Tea Districts Association, with a view of obtaining the assistance and co-operation of that powerful body. The Indian Tea Districts Association cordially accepts our offer of affiliation, and desire that a gentleman in London acquainted with this district should join their committee.—South of India Observer.

DISCOVERY OF COAL.—A coal seam has been discovered between Budrachellum and Kotapillee, on the left bank of the Godavery District. A party of sappers and miners has been detailed to sink a shaft and to conduct operations.—Mail.

RECRUITS.—On the recommendation of his Excellency the Commander in Chief the Government of Madras have ruled that the men of European extraction are not to be enlisted in native regiment bands. His Excellency is of opinion that Eurasians are better suited to lead the life of drummers and fifers than Europeans are, and their enlistment in native corps will give employment to many poor Eurasians.—Ibid.

THE CORONERSHIP.—Mr. Eardley Norton, a junior barrister of the High Court, has been appointed coroner for the town of Madras during Dr. Stanbrough's absence on leave. Mr. Norton is the son of the Hon. J. B. Norton, lately advocate general of this presidency.

BISHOP FENNELLY.—The Madras papers contain obituary notices of the late Dr. Fennelly, Roman Catholic Prelate of the Southern Diocese. He was born in Ireland on the 26th of December, 1816, and came out to India to join his brother, the late Dr. J. Fennelly, Vicar Apostolic of Madras, in 1844. He was appointed successor to his brother on 1st March, 1868, and was consecrated on the 4th of October following. He was greatly respected. The Mail says:—"On his return from his last pastoral visitation he was asked by one of the American Methodist clergymen at Nellore whether in the impaired state of his health (as was apparent then) he did not contemplate retiring for good to his native land, there to take his well-earned repose. He replied that when leaving Maynooth College, as a young missionary, to join his brother, he had taken India as the land of his adoption, that 'he loved the people of India,' that he 'came to labour for them,' and that it was his earnest wish to 'be buried amongst them.' It is not perhaps generally known that so great was the general respect for his qualities, that, on the occasion of his last visit to Ireland in 1875, he was offered the Bishopric of Cashel, his own native town and diocese, in succession to Bishop Leahy. But his answer to them was the same. He had spent a lifetime in India, and he wished to end his days in peace amongst those whom he called 'his own people.'"—Times of India.

BOMBAY.

THE BOMBAY VOLUNTEERS.—The second annual report discloses a fairly satisfactory condition of things in that corps. This whole question of volunteering in India was one of the subjects brought up for consideration before the Simla Army Commission, and although it has been decided not to increase the capitation grant, a recommendation has been made that the movement be encouraged. As the report of that Commission has not yet been promulgated, its views in regard to methods of encouraging the movement are still unknown, but it is something to know that a body of eminent millitary men such as composed the Simla Commission are highly favourable to the Volunteer movement in India. The report before us, which is for the season of 1879, informs us that the 584 names which appear on the strength of the regiment were all active members of the corps, and men who intended to continue in the service. Of these, 299 are classified as extra-efficients, 141 as efficients, and 146 as non-efficients. The proportion of non-efficients is certainly not large, considering that the corps had only been in existence for eighteen months when the report was framed. Another gratifying feature of the report is the number of officers and sergeants who have passed the prescribed examination, and obtained certificates of efficiency. This alone would account for the inspecting officer, General Aitchison, finding that the regiment in respect of drill had greatly improved since the previous inspection. Nothing tends to give zest to volunteering so much as the facilities it offers for rifle-shooting, and of this matter the Bombay corps is not neglectful. The Coorla range is certainly a considerable distance from Bombay, but the G.I.P.R. Company have now very much lessened the difficulty by running a train from Bori Bunder at a convenient hour in the morning. This will doubtless help towards improving members of the corps in rifle practice. For the year under report there were only ninety-five who had attained the first-class in firing, but out of these no less than seventy-one are marksmen. Altogether, the report shows a satisfactory condition of things, which is most creditable to the commandant and officers of the regiment.—Times of India.

TRADE IN ARMS WITH GOA.—The Viceroy has added a new rule to those framed under the Indian Arms Act, prohibiting the grant of licenses for the import from, or export to, Portuguese India of arms, ammunition, or military stores, except in the case of export; the articles exported are for the exclusive use of the Portuguese Government, or are covered by a special license signed by the Secretary to the Government of Portuguese India.—Indian Daily News.

THE ANGLO-PORTUGUESE TREATY.—None of the five stations promised by the Anglo-Portuguese Treaty for salting fish along the coast of Goa has yet been opened, and the injury to trade, especially to poor fishermen, who eke out their means of livelihood by this industry, has been very serious. It is argued that nothing better is to be expected from a contract between a lion and an ant.—Bombay Gazette.

APPLICATION FOR PROBATE.—Application has been made to the Ecclesiastical Registrar of the High Court by Messrs. Jacob Elias D. Sassoon, Edward Elias D. Sassoon, and Sassoon Jacob David, executors of the last will and testament of the late Mr. E. D. Sassoon, deceased, who died at Galle in March last. The deceased by his will, dated the 12th of last month, appointed the applicants as his executors, and the moveable and immoveable property left by the deceased consisted of the Alexandra Spinning and Weaving Mill, which he purchased for Rs.3,90,000, shares of the Bank of Bombay of the value of about Rs.1,00,000, Government papers worth about Rs.10,000, shares in other joint-stock companies, outstandings, and other landed estates, aggregating in all Rs.32,66,000. The probate will be granted and issued to the applicants some time next month, when Rs.65,320 will be paid as stamp duty on the probate as required by the Act.—Ibid.

THE NIZAM'S ARMY.—The only real army of Hyderabad consists of three batteries of artillery, four regiments of cavalry, and four of infantry under the command of a European officer of the rank of major. The commissioned regimental officers are mostly natives with a sprinkling of Europeans and Eurasians. The total strength of this corps d'armée is about 8,000 men. The reformed troops, as they are called, are fairly well drilled, but the arms provided for them are next to useless. The guns of the artillery, presented to the Nizam years and years ago by the British, as is too well known, are old and worn out, and are dangerous for firing blank charges, and the ball, we believe, is never allowed to be fired out of them. As regards the infantry, it will be sufficient to mention that during the Rampa rebellion, when a regiment was ordered for field service, the officer commanding represented that the muskets would probably do more harm to the men than to the rebels, and an application was made to the Resident for a supply of Enfield rifles, which was accordingly given from the Secunderabad Arsenal. We next refer to the Hyderabad Subsidiary Force. According to the treaty of 1880 this force for the security of the Nizam against foreign aggression was fixed at—Infantry, 8,000; cavalry, 1,000; artillery in proportion. Again, according to the treaty of 1853 the strength of the subsidiary force is stated as—Sepoy infantry, eight battalions; cavalry, two regiments; artillery in proportion. Since 1853 the strength of the subsidiary force has been decreasing, till in 1870 the strength of the force at Secunderabad was—Europeans of all arms, 2,423; natives of all arms, 2,747; total, 3,170; and at the present time the number of troops, European and native, at Secunderabad on the 1st April, 1880, was —Europeans, 2,433; natives, 2,404; total, 4,837.—Deccan Times.

INDIAN SALARIES AND ALLOWANCES.

THE following paragraphs of the late Secretary of State's despatch of the 12th February to the Government of India describe the changes which Lord Cranbrook determined to carry out at once in certain Indian salaries and outfit allowances:—

"I have had under my consideration in Council the propriety of effecting various reductions of Indian expenditure, especially in the charges borne on the Home accounts. As the subject of military expenditure is being minutely investigated, both in England and in India, by commissions appointed for the purpose, I directed that the present inquiry should be, in the first instance, addressed to other branches, and particularly to the question of the salaries and outfit allowances of persons appointed to office in India. It was brought to my notice that, in certain cases, it was not competent to her Majesty's Government, without an alteration of the law, to effect any reduction of such allowances, and I have accordingly determined to have a bill prepared for introduction into Parliament with the object of giving to the Government power to effect any changes of this kind which may from time to time be desirable. The following are the alterations which I have decided, subject to legislative sanction it needed, to carry into effect forthwith:—The salary of the Governors of Madras and Bombay, which is at present Rs.1,28,000 (the equivalent of sicca Rs.1,20,000), will be reduced to Government Rs.1,20,000, the Sicca rupee having long ceased to be a current coin. The salary of all members of your Excellency's Council will be reduced from Rs.80,000 to Rs.76,800, the amount now drawn by such members as are still in the Civil Service, and the deduction of 4 per cent. from the salaries of the latter will cease. The salary of members of Council at Madras and Bombay will, in future, be fixed at Rs.61,440, free of the deduction of 4 per cent., instead of at Rs.64,000, subject to such deduction. The alteration in this case is nominal. The salary of the Commander in Chief at Madras and Bombay will be reduced from Rs.70,000 to Rs.66,000, as I consider that while their salary should, so long as they retain their seats in Council, be somewhat above the civil members, it will fairly bear the reduction mentioned. In the case of the Commander in Chief in India I do not make any change. The pension of £800 provided for Archdeacons, under a construction of the two Acts of Parliament (Act 4, Geo. IV., Chap. 71, Sec. 2; and 53, Geo. III., Chap. 155, Sec. 54), has long ceased in practice to be granted; and the opportunity will be taken to repeal those provisions of the law. As regards passage and outfit allowances, I find that the allowance of £5,000 formerly granted to the Viceroy and Governor General on his nomination was reduced by upwards of £1,400 by the payment of stamp duty for an appointment. The repeal of the stamp duties and the reduction of the charges connected with equipment and voyage have practically led to a great increase in the outfit allowance in this and other cases, which was not intended. I have accordingly determined that the passage and outfit allowances granted to those resident in the United Kingdom at the time of their appointment shall be reduced as follows: To Viceroy, £3,500, instead of £5,000; to a Governor of Madras or Bombay, £1,500, instead of £2,500; to a member of the Council of the Governor General, £899, instead of £1,200; and that none shall be granted to members of Council at Madras and Bombay, as the appointment can only be given to on officer at the time in the Civil Service, and there is no reason for putting one who receives the appointment when on furlough in a better position than if he had been nominated in India. The passage and outfit allowance granted to the Commander in Chief in India, if resident in the United Kingdom at the time of appointment, will be reduced from £2,500 to £1,500; to the Commanders in Chief at Madras and Bombay, from £2,000 and £1,500, respectively, to £1,000 in each case; to the Bishop of Calcutta from £1,200 to £800; and to the Bishops of Madras and Bombay, from £500 to £400. The allowance of a Chief Justice ot Calcutta will remain at £1,000; but that of the three other Chief Justices will be reduced from £1,000 to £800; and that of all Puisne Judges from £800 to £500. The allowance of £500 for an Archdeacon will cease because the appointment can only be given to officers in the service, and there is no reason for placing one on furlough in a better condition than if he were in India. In the case of officers appointed to the Telegraph, Forest, Educational, and Ecclesiastical Departments, a free passage will be granted, but no outfit allowance; the small allowance of £20 granted to lads appointed to the Bengal Pilot Service will, however, be continued, in addition to a free passage. It is intended to discontinue the allowance of £150 granted in five half-yearly instalments to students for the Forest Department during their residence at Nancy, but the prizes, which are inexpensive, and which are only those allowed to French students in the same school, will be retained. The arrangements for selected candidates for the Civil Service have been so recently agreed upon that I have decided at present to make no alteration, except that the sum granted in prizes, which now are only allowed at the final examination, has been considerably reduced. The change in the salaries of Civilian Members of Council and the Judges, which is of a nominal character, should be effected from the end of the present official year. The other changes mentioned in this despatch will come into effect in regard to all future appointments provided that no legal difficulty remains."—Press Commissioner.

THE PARLIAMENTARY PROGRAMME.

ATTENTION is necessarily fixed at present not so much on the intelligence which may arrive from India as on the general indications which may be given of the plans and purposes of the Government with regard to Indian policy. The paragraph in the Royal Speech which alluded to Afghanistan was perforce vague. The common object of all concerned has been, and still is, to secure the pacification of Afghanistan, but there is no suggestion of retrograde measures in the phrases which announce that her Majesty's Government desire to secure the independence of the Afghans and to restore their friendly relations with the Indian Empire. The latter expression could not nowadays be interpreted to cover a hasty abandonment of what has been attained or an establishment of friendly relations on the old basis, which could be only described by the term in vogue in the Midland Counties, "civil but strange." The Secretary of State for India has taken especial care to remove from all minds any anxiety as to hasty or inconsiderate retirement of the troops. The qualifications as to the health of the troops, which certainly will not admit of an early return; and as to the needfulness of protecting the friendly tribes and chiefs which the Marquis of Hartington has added to the generally expressed desire of winding up Afghan affairs as soon as possible, are capable of great extension. But the well-chosen and deliberate expressions as to the necessity of maintaining engagements entered into which affect the question of retirement from Kandahar are a full and sufficient comment on the mistaken arguments and prophecies which pointed to a sacrifice of Southern Afghanistan. The gratifying intelligence of the goodwill shown by Abdul Rahman, concurs with the reassuring utterances of the Secretary of State. It is to be hoped that fussy members of Parliament will exercise some discretion, and cultivate a sensible abstinence from questions which can effect nothing for the good of India or England, however they may exalt the querist in the eyes of his constituents. There have been frequent complaints about government of India by telegram; it seems probable that to these may be added objections against administration by catechism. The voluble and half-informed orators of the Calcutta Indian Association and the Puna Sarvajanik Sabha will read with astonishment that the Government does not propose to commence its tenure of office by a reversal of the Indian policy pursued of late years, or a disowner of the acts of late Ministers of the Queen-Empress. They will be doubtless able to secure malcontent orators in the House of Commons to present verbose petitions which claim to emanate from the people of India, and really contain the crude desires of insignificant fractions of the population in their respective Presidencies. It is to be hoped that the earliest opportunity will be taken of disabusing both the petitioners and their possible representatives of the idea that their "tall talk" imposes on the Legislature. There is not much room for apprehending that their utterances will be regarded on the questions of foreign policy. But with regard to Indian Finance, and the questions as to the Vernacular Press and the Arms Act, they will undoubtedly make themselves heard. There is a strong belief that the advent of the Liberal Party to power must necessarily be marked by the repeal of the two restrictive Acts. We are well assured that, as it belongs to no party in English politics to impose undue restrictions or oppressive precautions, so it does not involve the maintenance or sacrifice of Liberal principles to continue the existence of legislative remedies which are inactive so long as the disease is dormant. Any changes in the Vernacular Press law, or in the Arms Act, that may be proposed will be rather in the form of relaxation than of abolition, and it is to be expected that the opinion of experienced Indian officials will prevail without reference to partisan support or opposition. This, at least, may be gathered from the very cautious reply to Mr. O'Donnell's question. The subject of Indian Finance, which includes the incidence of taxation, and especially of the License Act, is not to be disposed of by the Socratic method, and there is quite enough matter for grave and keen debate in the settlement of the Budget without starting a committee on the abstract question of Indian Finances, which could not possibly arrive at any satisfactory conclusion before the end of the session. There are two questions that may be considered as certain to occupy an early position on the parliamentary programme of Indian subjects, and it is to be hoped that both of them will be taken out of the hands of private members. They are both without the scope of Indian agitators. As to Burma, an omniscient weekly contemporary assures us that "Lord Ripon is authorised to deal with the Burmese difficulty, which appears to the new Indian Secretary one easy of solution." The most recent telegrams confirm the opinion expressed some time back in our columns, that the reports as to the reign of terror prevailing at Mandalay, the hideous outbreak of superstitious cruelty, necessarily contained some truth, even if the accounts were exaggerated. The proceedings of the envoy, who has been spending the last few months in diplomatic security at Thayetmyo, do not seem to promise a speedy settlement, except under strong pressure. It will be good news that a short and easy method of persuasion is to be tried to restore the reign of peace and common sense at Mandalay. The condition of Cashmere invites immediate attention: on the one hand, as our readers know, there have been constantly increasing accusations of maladministration, of oppression, and neglect. The once prosperous State is said to have grown poorer and poorer, and the people more miserable, while the ravages of famine have been intensified by the malpractices, as well as the callous indifference, of the officials, against whom even charges of wholesale murder have been brought; and, in addition to all this, imputations of treasonable intrigues have been made against the Maharaja. On the other hand, we understand that able authorities defend the ruler of Cashmere from these allegations, and aver that on all points there exists a sufficient answer. As yet there has not been made public sufficient official information on the subject, which is one of the greatest importance to the good name of the Government of India. It has been understood for some time that such full information was on its way home, and that there will be ample opportunity afforded for either refuting or establishing the statements as to the misgovernment and the disaffection of the Maharaja. It cannot be for the common weal of the Indian Empire that such assertions as have been current should lack official denial if untrue; or, if true, should not be promptly followed by an act of rigorous justice. It may be that in political matters the Maharaja has been misled; in domestic affairs has been grievously misrepresented. But if, on the other hand, one-half that has been rumoured be true, it is incumbent on the Government to interfere promptly. The exquisite products of Cashmerian looms that are yearly offered to the Queen-Empress must not be stained with the blood or tarnished by the tears of the suffering population.

HOME NEWS.

ROYAL MILITARY ACADEMY.—In the list of Woolwich cadets receiving commissions, No. 45 should have been Corporal Augustus T. Baker.

TROOPS FOR CHINA.—Detachments of Royal Marines have left Chatham to embark for passage to China for distribution amongst the vessels on that station. The greater portion of the party are for the Ruby corvette, which is to be paid off, and re-commissioned on that station, in view of the difficulties likely to arise between Russia and China. In connection with this matter the Himalaya went out of Keyham Dockyard on Tuesday, and left for Bombay to-day. She conveys Capt. C. E. Foot and 378 officers and men to recommission the Ruby for another three years' service upon the East Indies stations. About 200 supernumeraries also take passage by the Himalaya for disposal upon the stations. Time-expired men, invalids, the relieved crew of the Ruby, as well as Lord Lytton, family, and suite, will return in her, arriving in England about Aug. 25.

DEATH OF PROFESSOR ANSTED.—We have to record the death of an eminent naturalist and man of science, Professor Ansted, which happened on Thursday last, at the age of sixty-six years. David Thomas Ansted was a son of the late Mr. William Ansted, and was born in London in the year 1814. He graduated at Jesus College, Cambridge, as a wrangler in 1836, and was elected in due course a fellow of his college. In 1840 he was appointed to the professorship of geology in King's College, London. Five years later he became lecturer on geology at Addiscombe College, and also at the Civil Engineering College at Putney. About the same time he was made assistant secretary to the Geological Society, whose quarterly journal he edited for many years. From about 1850 down to a very recent date he was extensively engaged in the application of geology to the engineer's work, in mining, and in various other departments of industry. He has also been frequently employed as an examiner in physical geography under the officers of the Government Department of Science and Art. The list of his works is far too long to quote; but among them may be mentioned—besides his contributions to the transactions of learned and scientific societies—his "Application of Geology to the Arts and Manufactures," his "Physical Geography," his "Elementary Course of Geology and Mineralogy," and "The World we Live in." He was also an extensive contributor to the "Dictionary of Science, Literature, and Art."

A SINGAPORE NOTABILITY.—Singapore lost early in April one of its most notable personages by the death of the Chinese merchant Hoh-Ah-Kay-Whampoa, who was for several years Consul for Russia, China, and Japan. He succeeded in 1836 to the business of his uncle, and, thanks to his industry and ability, became one of the richest and most esteemed members of the Chinese colony in the Straits. For many years he was the regular purveyor for the ships both of the British and foreign navies, and in this way he became well known to the successive admirals and other naval officers on the station. His beautiful house and gardens were always at the service of every visitor of distinction. Among others he entertained the Duke of Edinburgh, the Grand Duke Alexis of Russia, the Prussian Princes, and the Duke of Genoa. He fully appreciated European customs, although faithfully adhering himself to his own national usages; and, while he sent his only son to be educated at Edinburgh, on his return he insisted firmly on his conforming to Chinese habits. He was a steadfast upholder of order and obedience to the authorities, and often rendered valuable service by the tact with which he influenced his fellow-countrymen. He was made a Member of Council in 1867, and a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1876.

She made a good passage, her arrival being four days before the expected time. Three deaths occurred on board during the voyage.

ARRIVAL OF THE "EUPHRATES."—The Indian troopship Euphrates, Captain Brownrigg, arrived at Portsmouth from Bombay on Saturday, having on board military invalids and time-expired men, a large proportion of whom had seen active service in Afghanistan. ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.—On Tuesday afternoon the 57th anniversary meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society was held at its Rooms, 22, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly; the president, Sir Henry Rawlinson, K.C.B., in the chair. Among those present were Lord Powys, Lord Stanley of Alderley, Sir Richard Temple (formerly Governor of Bombay), Mr. Lewin Bowring, Professor Naville (of Geneva), Mr. Arthur Grote, Mr. Terrien de Lacouperie (of Paris), Mr. W. S. W. Vaux, F.R.S., Mr. Stephen Austin, and Mr. R. N. Cust. The secretary, Mr. Vaux, presented the annual report. The finances were declared to be in a prosperous state, and the accessions by ballot to the society's ranks far exceeded its losses by death and otherwise. It had elected 22 against a loss of three paying resident members, and 26 non-residents against a loss of five paying non-resident members—in other words, there had been a clear gain of 40. Of the lives of deceased fellows—Lord Lawrence, Mr. S. H. Damant, Captain Forbes, Mr. A. D. Mordtmann, and General Low—interesting obituary notices were given, as well as a slight biographical sketch of the late Professor Anton Schiefner, of St. Petersburg, who was especially eminent as a Tibetan scholar, and for his profound knowledge of the Caucasian languages. Prominent among the works in Oriental archæology for which the year had been remarkable the first mentioned was Major General Cunningham's account of the archæology and architecture of the first erections of the early Buddhists. Next came Mr. Burgess's new and complete survey of the Caves of Ajanta. The last spoken of was the Babu Rajendra's exploration of the building known as Buddha Gaya, the original hermitage of Sakya Mouni, founder of the Buddhist religion. The chairman congratulated those present on the improvement in the society's funds and the growth of its number of members. They had been passing through a period of depression, owing in great measure to the foundation of several more or less kindred societies within the last few years, but they were getting over the crisis. On the motion of Mr. Lewin Bowring, seconded by Sir Richard Temple, the report was ordered to be printed. In the evening the members kept the anniversary festival at Willis's Rooms.

SAVING LIFE.—At a meeting of the Royal Humane Society, on the 18th inst., among the awards made for saving life from drowning was the bronze medal to Private Frederick Pike, 6th Carabiniers, for having gallantly saved another soldier from drowning whilst bathing in Cabul River, Afghanistan.

LORDS RIPON AND KENMARE.—A meeting of Liverpool Protestants was held on Monday night to protest against the appointments of Lord Ripon to the Indian Viceroyalty and Lord Kenmare to the Lord Chamberlainship. The meeting was held in Hope-hall, which was crowded with some 2,000 people, while large numbers had to go away disappointed through the want of accommodation. The chairman, Mr. James Halles, said he regarded the appointments in question as an insult to the Queen and the nation, and a reproach and scandal to the national religion. The appointment of Lord Ripon was calculated to do immense injury to all Protestant missions and to the spread of the Gospel in India. The appointments were a step towards the disestablishment of Protestantism in this country. It was the desire of many politicians to open the throne and every office to men of any religion, and he was sorry Mr. Gladstone appeared disposed to do anything of the kind. Mr. Walter Roughton moved:—"That with every feeling of personal respect for the noblemen in question, this meeting desires to record its earnest and solemn protest against the appointment of Lord Ripon to the Viceroyalty of India, and of Lord Kenmare as Lord Chamberlain, as inconsistent with the spirit of the Protestant Constitution of Great Britain, and consequently injurious to the welfare of the kingdom." It had been mentioned that it was likely, when Sir Garnet Wolseley came back to England, he would be sent as Commander in Chief to India. Sir Garnet was a Roman Catholic of the Roman Catholics, and then we should have the Viceroy of India a Roman Catholic and the Commander in Chief of India a Roman Catholic. The Rev. Dr. Taylor seconded the motion. After other speeches the resolution was adopted amid great cheering. In reference to the statement that Sir Garnet Wolseley is a Roman Catholic, the Rev. Canon Falloon, rector of Ackworth, a near relative of the general, writes to the Liverpool Courier as follows:—"The speaker was altogether mistaken in supposing that Sir Garnet is or ever was a Roman Catholic. He was born and brought up as a member of the Church of England, and has never, to my knowledge, renounced his faith. There are two branches of the Wolseley family—one Irish, the other English. The Irish branch have always been strictly Protestant and are so still. The English branch became perverted to Romanism in later times and continue so. Sir Garnet Wolseley belongs to the Irish branch."—Times.

DOST MAHOMED ALI KHAN.—In the Probate, Divorce, and Admiralty Division of the High Court of Justice on Tuesday, before the Right Hon. the President, a curious probate case was heard. Dost Mahomed Ali Khan, late Minister of Finance to the Shah of Persia, died at Teheran in March, 1873, possessed of money in this country deposited in the Bank of England. The law of Persia allows within certain limits the disposition of property by will, but it does not recognise the relation of administrator. It did not appear that the deceased had left a will, but by a decree of the Persian court it was declared that all the money deposited by him in the Bank of England, whatever the sum might be, was the special property of and belonged solely and entirely to his son, Dost Mahomed Khan, the son-in-law of the Shah. Dr. Deane, Q.C. (with whom was Mr. Gazdar), moved the court to grant administration (with the decree of the Persian court annexed) of the personal estate and effects of the deceased in this country to the attorney of Dost Mahomed Khan, as the person in whose favour the decree was made. The President pointed out that, according to the affidavit made by a so-called expert in Persian law and filed in the matter, the relation of personal representation was not recognised by that law, and asked on what ground or in what form a grant could be made by this court. He finally took time to consider his decision.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—A meeting of the deferred annuity holders and of the annuitants of both classes of the above company was held at the City Terminus Hotel on Thursday, May 20—Mr. R. W. Crawford in the chair—for the purpose of receiving from the board of directors a proposal, under section 43 of the East Indian Railway Company Purchase Act, 1879, as to the appropriation of the balance of the surplus assets; also a report of the special committee appointed on Jan. 2 last, and of considering, and, if so advised, sanctioning the recommendation contained in that report. The chairman stated that he only proposed to occupy the chair for the purpose of giving the meeting more details than could be given in the advertisement as to the surplus funds and assets of the company, after which he would retire, as matters personal to himself would come forward for discussion. On Jan. 2 the matter of the surplus funds was dealt with up to June 30, and in the course of the next few weeks the surplus up to Dec. 31 would have to be disposed of; and, seeing that they had 15,150 persons interested, the present meeting had been called in order that they might deal with the surplus assets at the same time. The capital of the company amounted to £26,200,000, and it took £13,100 to pay a dividend of only 1s. per share; and, looking at the great amount of work involved, it had been decided to deal with the surplus funds and assets both at the same time. Dealing first with the assets in England, they consisted of unclaimed interest and dividends on 31st December, 1879, £40,580, and interest and profit on investments £36,402—£76,982; and in India of the moiety of the valuation of Kurhurballee and Serampore Collieries, estimated at Rs.2,78,882·8 at 1s. 8d., £23,240; and the moiety of balance of fire insurance fund Rs.99,094.9·9 at 1s. 8d.; but a small matter was in dispute with the Indian Government which would bring them in a further £2,189, making the assets about £110,500. Mr. Freshfield, M.P., having taken the chair vacated by Mr. Crawford, proposed the adoption of the report, and the distribution of the funds as therein proposed. The assets amounted to, say £110,000, but of that they could not deal with £40,000, seeing that it represented unclaimed dividends which could not be touched; out of the balance £34,000 had to be paid to Sir M. Stephenson in commutation of his annuity, and of the sum then remaining it was proposed to appropriate £15,000 to Mr. R. W. Crawford, the chairman of the company, for the valuable and extraordinary services he had rendered the undertaking. After some little discussion the resolution was agreed to, only five hands being held up against it in a crowded meeting. A poll was demanded, but afterwards withdrawn.

BOMBAY GAS COMPANY.—The half-yearly general meeting was held on Thursday at the offices, Drapers'-gardens, Throgmorton-avenue; Mr. D. T. Evans presiding. The report stated that the loss on exchange in the half-year was £2,714, making a total of £5,324. Of this they had charged £2,200 to profit and loss account, and £3,124 to the reserve fund, thus writing off the whole loss. The amount at credit of profit and loss for the half-year was £9,548, which, with the balance brought forward, made a total of £9,705. Out of this they recommended a dividend of 4 per cent., making 7½ per cent. for the year, tax free. This would leave £105 to be carried forward. The profit and loss account showed that the total receipts for the half-year had been £23,778. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said, as he predicted at their last meeting, they had been able to maintain the dividend, but not without difficulty. In view of the depression of trade in Bombay, he thought it not unsatisfactory that there had been a small increase in the gas and meter rental. He hoped they would approve the manner in which the board had dealt with the subject of the exchanges. They hoped during the current year to build up the reserve fund to its former amount, and he believed they would do very much better in the half-year. The report was adopted, and the retiring directors and auditors were re-elected.

THE MADRAS IRRIGATION COMPANY.—The directors of the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company have issued a report for the past year containing copious extracts from its agents' reports. These go to show the progress that has been made in carrying out the purposes of the company, but the picture presented is, as might be anticipated, not a very bright one. According to the accounts the receipts for the year were—"from navigation account," £3,022; "from Madras Government on account of revenue," £3,028; and an item called "amount received in England, being establishment charges on navigation expenditure permitted from India," £2,300. It cannot be said, from looking at these items, whether the company has as yet got any proper revenue from its business; but, at all events, the Government of India had, as usual, to find the whole of the interest guaranteed to the company's capital. The capital expended to date on these profitless works has been £1,599,666. This, however, does not appear to include the amount due for guaranteed interest, which now is £49,983 per annum.—Times.

INDIA IN PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—THURSDAY.

The Royal speech contained the following paragraphs:—

"On the last occasion of my addressing you I expressed my hope that the measures adopted in Afghanistan would lead to a speedy settlement with that country. Since that period the gallantry of my troops has continued to be conspicuous, and the labours of my Government in India have been unremitting. But I have to lament that the end in view has not yet been attained. My efforts will, however, be unceasingly directed towards the pacification of Afghanistan, and towards the establishment of such institutions as may be found best fitted to secure the independence of its people, and to restore their friendly relations with my Indian Empire.

"The condition of Indian finance, as it has recently been made known to me, has required my special attention. I have directed that you shall be supplied with the fullest information upon this weighty subject."

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FRIDAY.

THE WAR IN AFGHANISTAN.

Mr. GOURLEY asked the Secretary of State for India what measures her Majesty's Government intended adopting for the purpose of bringing about a speedy termination of the war in Afghanistan. Further, if he would be good enough to inform the House what number of troops, British and native, were now engaged in the war; and also the approximate cost of the campaign down to the present time.

Lord HARTINGTON replied that the number of troops now employed in Afghanistan, generally speaking, including the reserves and also the garrison of Peshawur, which usually amounts to 5,000, the forces, British and native, number 60,000 men. The estimated cost of the whole military operations was as follow:—1878-79, actual accounts, £676,380; 1879-80, regular estimate—in India, £3,033,400; in England, £174,480—total, £3,207,880. In 1880-81, according to a telegram of April 20, the expenses incurred in India in February, not brought to account till 1880-81, was £750,000; March, not brought to account till 1880-81, was £750,000; April, £500,000; May, £500,000—total, £2,500,000; expenses incurred in England, £20,000—total, £2,520,000; therefore the total cost of military operations down to the present time is £6,404,260. The telegram of April 20 did not state whether the expenditure before February would fall into the new year's accounts. In a private letter the arrears had been estimated at £2,250,000, which would involve an addition of £750,000, making a total cost for the whole war of £7,154,260, of which that of the present campaign would be £4,477,880, exclusive of the outlay on the frontier railways, determined upon after the outbreak of September, 1879, which is estimated, for 1879-80, at £1,324,426, and for 1880-81 at £2,040,000—total, £3,364,426. With regard to the policy of the Government, Lord Ripon was fully aware of it, and negotiations were in progress with the sirdars to induce them and the people of Afghanistan to elect a competent ruler and to bring the warlike operations in Afghanistan to a close at the earliest possible moment. As soon as such a ruler could be found the military operations would terminate. It was the anxious desire of her Majesty's Government that the proceedings should be brought to a close as speedily as possible.

CYPRUS.

In answer to Mr. Rylands, Sir C. DILKE said Government had decided that a transfer of the administration should be made from the Foreign to the Colonial Office, probably before October.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.

Mr. LAING asked the Secretary of State for India whether, in view of the grave errors discovered in the financial statement of the Government of India, he proposed to state the actual financial position of that country. Mr. BAXTER had given notice of a similar question.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON, in reply to both hon. members, said that the Viceroy had telegraphed from India that the cost of the Afghan war had been seriously under-estimated, and that the charge for that war for the year 1880-81 would probably exceed the estimate by £4,000,000. The present monthly cost of the war is £500,000. The anticipated surplus of £417,000 would be turned into a deficit of nearly £3,600,000. The addition of £3,000,000 or £4,000,000 to the estimates was announced on April 20; but a telegram of March 23 led to the belief that the estimates would be exceeded, and another spoke of the cost of the war as very alarming. He expected on the 26th of this month a despatch of an explanatory character from the Indian Government, and then he would lay all the papers on the table of the House. He trusted that the House would wait for full information until the receipt of which no financial statement could be made.

THE MARQUIS OF RIPON.

Colonel BARNE asked the Secretary of State for India whether the Protestant bishops and clergy in India would have to take orders and directions from the Marquis of Ripon, who is a Roman Catholic.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON was not aware that it was the part of the Viceroy to give any orders to the bishops and clergy in India with respect to their spiritual functions. Certain orders might be given with respect to matters of administration, not by the Governor General, but by the Governor General in Council.

THE VERNACULAR PRESS ACT AND THE LICENCES TAX, INDIA.

In answer to Mr. O'Donnell, the Marquis of HARTINGTON said the repeal of the Vernacular Press Act, India, and of the Licences Tax, India, were two important questions which would be considered by Lord Ripon on his arrival in India. Until his lordship had had an opportunity of consulting his advisers and of reporting his own judgment on these matters he thought the Government ought not to come to any conclusion in regard to either of them. He felt certain, however, that these two subjects would receive the early consideration of Lord Ripon.

INDIAN TELEGRAMS.

Mr. A. BALFOUR asked the Secretary of State for India whether he could state the name of the official at the India-office who, "before the late Government had resigned," communicated to the right hon. gentleman the Postmaster General information as to the telegram from India received by Lord Cranbrook, and, if not, whether he would make inquiry into the matter.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON had ascertained that his right hon. friend did not receive any communication in regard to that telegram from India from any official in the India-office. The information he had on the matter was the subject of common conversation in society, and appeared to have been in the possession of many persons.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT IN INDIA.

Lord STANLEY of ALDERLEY asked the Under Secretary of State for India whether the Secretary of State for India would cause the Prisons Act (India) of 1870 to be revised in respect to the flogging of prisoners for trifling infractions of prison rules; and whether he would inquire into and caused to be revised the rules or procedure in the Punjab with regard to cases of insufficient evidence in murder cases.

The Marquis of LANSDOWNE replied that there was no reason to believe that the Act of 1870 stood in need of revision in respect of the clause which dealt with the infliction of corporal punishment. Up to 1870 punishment of that kind was inflicted either by the magistrates or the gaol superintendents, with the approval of the local government, and the decisions in that respect were not always in harmony with each other. The whole matter was considered and referred to a committee of the Council. It was the opinion of all experts in Indian administration that it would not be possible to maintain discipline in the Indian gaols without the infliction of corporal punishment. The gaols were large, some containing as many as 1,000 prisoners, and punishments could be inflicted in English prisons which could not be adopted in India, in consequence of the difference of the climate and of the character of the people. With regard to a case mentioned last year by his noble friend, his noble friend's statement having attracted the authorities in India, her Majesty's Government had received a memorandum from the Chief Commissioner, which pointed out that his noble friend had been misinformed as to the facts of the case. The prisoner had been convicted of a serious offence, and in prison it had been found necessary to frequently punish him for grave breaches of discipline. Since the passing of the Act of 1870 a committee had been appointed to inquire into the question of prison discipline. He had taken steps to have the report of that committee transmitted to this country, and if it touched on the point raised by his noble friend he would lay it on the table. His noble friend was misinformed as to a circular having been issued in which the judges directed or recommended that sentence of transportation should be inflicted in capital cases in which the evidence was insufficient. An inferior judge had passed a sentence of transportation in such a case; but the superior judges ruled that he was wrong in so doing, inasmuch as, if the evidence were insufficient to bring home the guilt of the person charged, no sentence should have been inflicted. A judge in Peshawur recommended that there should be transportation in such cases, but the superior judges overruled the recommendation.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

CONTROL OF INDIAN FINANCE.

Sir D. WEDDERBURN asked the Secretary of State for India whether it was the intention of the Government to move for the appointment of a select committee in order to inquire into the operation of the Government of India Act, 1858, and into the question of the inadequate control at present exercised over the expenditure of the revenues of India.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said that several questions connected with the subject had already attracted attention, but he had found greater difficulties than he anticipated. As at present advised, he should be disposed to move for a committee in the course of next session.

ZORYWARI HOLDINGS (MALABAR).

In answer to Mr. ROBERT FOWLER, who asked the Secretary of State for India if he would state to the House the reasons of the Indian Government for raising the amount of cess payable on Zorywari holdings in Malabar, from one anna to two annas, as stated in the statement exhibiting the moral and material progress and condition of India,

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said that the local cess in Malabar was raised from one to two annas per rupee of Government land assessment by Madras Act I of 1878. Owing to the peculiar tenures of land in Malabar the Government land assessment was extremely light, its incidence in proportion to the value of the land being less than half that of the assessment in other districts. The proceeds of the local cess, which is proportionate to the land assessment, were quite inadequate to the local wants of the district. The average yearly local expenditure was £57,000, while the local funds yielded only £25,000, and the difference had hitherto been made up by grants from provincial revenue. It was thought unjust that the local wants of the wealthy district of Malabar should thus be supplied from the taxation of other and more heavily burdened districts, the rate of the local cess was consequently doubled, and its amount was now really, though not nominally, equal to that paid by other districts.

THE AFGHAN WAR.

In reply to Mr. Cross, Mr. GLADSTONE said that owing to the want of certain information he could not make a very distinct statement as to the apportionment of the expenses of the Afghan War between the Treasuries of England and India. He hoped, however, in a reasonable time to be able to make known the views of the Government upon this question. But he was afraid that that time could not arrive until the Government should be in possession of the despatches alluded to on a previous occasion and should have had time to consider them carefully.

GUARANTEED INDIAN RAILWAYS.

Mr. NORWOOD asked the Secretary of State for India if he would lay upon the table of the House the report of the departmental committee on the engagement of freight for account of the guaranteed Indian railways, which was promised by the then Under Secretary in March of last year.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said that on March 10, 1879, the hon. member for Mid Lincoln stated that a small departmental committee would be appointed, whose report, he added, would be laid on the table when received. On Feb. 26 last, however, the hon. member informed the House that as he found no part of the evidence given could be obtained only on a promise of secrecy, it would be impossible to produce the report. Having seen the question of his hon. friend, he had referred the matter back to the members of the committee, asking them to point out to him which part of the evidence had been obtained under promise of secrecy, and whether they could suggest any means, by the omission of names or otherwise, which would make it possible to lay the report or any portion of it on the table.

PERAK EXPEDITION.

In answer to Col. North, Mr. CHILDERS said that the delay in issuing the medal granted by her Majesty on Sept. 1, 1879, to the officers and men of the army who took part in the Perak expedition arose from the rolls having been sent to India in February last for verification; they were expected back daily and on their arrival the distribution would be made immediately.

THE CHEFOO CONVENTION.

In reply to Alderman M'Arthur, Sir C. DILKE said: The remaining portion of Sir T. Wade's report on the Chefoo convention has not yet been received, and the recent correspondence upon the subject is of too incomplete a character to be presented to Parliament at present.

AFGHANISTAN.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON: I observe that different reports are given in different newspapers of an answer which I gave on Friday last on a very important subject. I think it therefore desirable to repeat what I said on that occasion, and I shall, with the permission of the House, add one or two words by way of explanation. I said, I think, in reply to my hon. friend the member for Hull, who asked me what measures the Government were going to take for the purpose of putting an end to the hostilities in Afghanistan, that Lord Ripon had gone out fully acquainted with the views of the Government and the policy which they desired to pursue, so far as they were able to form an opinion up to the present time. I added, I believe, that it was the desire of the Government to bring the military operations to a close, and to effect the retirement of the troops at the earliest possible moment from Afghan territory. That is, I need scarcely say, our anxious desire. The statement, however, is one which cannot be made without certain qualifications. There are considerations of great importance, with regard to the health of the troops, which must be taken into account in determining the time at which their retirement is possible. I may further state that, of course, regard must be had to any engagements which may have been entered into in the name of her Majesty, and to which the honour of the country is committed. How far such engagements have been made, and to what extent we are committed, we are not at present in a position definitely to decide, but I must say that from the knowledge we do possess it is not probable that it will be possible to effect so early a retirement from Kandahar as from Cabul and Eastern Afghanistan. I may further observe that whenever we may be able to effect this retirement regard must be paid to the protection of those chiefs and tribes who have rendered assistance to our troops. It is obvious that a great many of those might be placed in a position of very great danger if our troops were retired without due care, and I can only repeat that it is the wish of the Government to see the retirement of the troops effected at the earliest possible moment.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—TUESDAY.

Viscount BARRINGTON presented a petition from certain petitioners in Berkshire against the appointment of the Marquis of Ripon, a Roman Catholic, as Governor-General of India. The noble viscount said that in presenting the petition he did not feel in any way bound to concur in its prayer.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—At the half-yearly meeting to be held on the 4th prox. the report for the half-year ended March 31 last will be presented and an interim dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum will be recommended. For the corresponding period of last year the dividend recommended was at the rate of 3 per cent. The company have contracted with Messrs. W. Doxford and Sons, of Sunderland, for a steamer of about 3,500 tons and 600-horse power nominal (3,000 effective).

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.—A telegram was received from Malacca on May 13 to the effect that the Datu Perba or chief of Rambowe was to attack Tampin next day, and that Government had declined to interfere for the protection of British property. Tampin is a small district in Rambowe on the borders of Malacca, which was conferred by the British authorities on a chief named Syed Sabban, once chief of Rambowe, for his good services in the Naning War some fifty years ago. He bequeathed it, with another district, Kru, to his son Tunku Hamid, who had been in possession of it ever since. Why the Datu Perba should attack him, or why our Executive should permit any disturbance on our very borders in Malacca, is unknown here, our officials being unable, or unwilling to give any information on the subject. It is reported, indeed, that the Datu of Rambowe is acting with their sanction and at their instigation. The charge against Inche Awang Ibrahim, private secretary to Tunku Allum, son of the late Sultan Ali of Johore, of waging war against H.H. the Maharaja of Johore, the ally of her Majesty the Queen, for the possession of Muar territory, is still in course of investigation, and the prisoner is in gaol, bail being sternly refused for such a dangerous character. The general impression is that the authorities are in a quandary what to do in the matter, and that the Attorney General is at his wits' end how to get them out of the scrape, as it is feared, if the case goes before the Supreme Court, they may get no jury to convict, and that the result will be a ridiculous fiasco, of small credit to the British Government and no good to its pet, the Maharaja of Johore.—Straits Times.

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCING

PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators; also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

H. LAMPLOUGH, Consulting Chemist, 113, HOLBORN, E.C.,

Second door from Hatton-garden London, and of all respectable Chemists. In Bottles, 2s. 6d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 12s.

NORTON'S CAMOMILE PILLS are confidently recommended as a simple but certain REMEDY for INDIGESTION.

NORTON'S CAMOMILE PILLS are with justice called the "Natural Strengthener of the Human Stomach." Act as a powerful tonic and gentle aperient; are mild in their operation and safe under any circumstances.

NORTON'S CAMOMILE PILLS are borne testimony to by thousands who have derived benefits from their use, as they have been a never-failing Family Friend for upwards of 45 YEARS.

NORTON'S CAMOMILE PILLS are sold everywhere in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 11s. each. Be sure and ask for "NORTON'S PILLS" and do not be persuaded to purchase an imitation

The following may be specially mentioned:—Fish, Meat, Game, Poultry, Fruit, Flowers, Vegetables, Ice, General Dairy Produce, Forage, &c.

The expediency of this undertaking has been forcibly brought by many Shareholders to the notice of the Directors of the Army and Navy Co-operative Society, and they have in consequence consented to form its Board of Direction, and have subscribed the Memorandum of Association for 1,400 Shares.

The Directors have secured on reasonable terms the offer of an eligible plot of ground adjoining the present Stores in Victoria-street, on which site it is intended to erect forthwith a building containing facilities for the sale and delivery of the above-mentioned products.

This new West-end Club, which now numbers 1,500 members, is open in one of the best portions in the West-end, being at the corner of Pall-mall, opposite the Athenæum Club.

This Club is established to meet the wants of Gentlemen who, owing to the almost dead-lock existing among the leading West-end Clubs, are at present without the advantages of one.

The Club is intended for members of Town and Country Society, and one of its objects also is, as its name also denotes, to offer a place of resort for Men of Travel and other Gentlemen who have associated in various parts of the world.

The Entrance Fee at present is Ten Guineas, which will be raised when the strength of the Club is completed.

The annual subscription is Eight Guineas, but Members residing beyond a radius of fifty miles from London are admitted as Country Members at an annual subscription of Four Guineas.

The Subscription of Officers on Foreign Service is One Guinea, and other Gentlemen residing abroad Two Guineas.

This Club being strictly proprietary the Members incur no liability.

C. H. SHARP AND COMPANY, PATENT INLET PURE AIR VENTILATING WALL FILTER.

C. H. SHARP and COMPANY call special attention to their new Wall Inlet, which is admirably adapted for the Ventilation of Private Dwellings, Churches, Schools, Public Buildings, Hospitals, Stables, &c.

It is constructed upon sound scientific principles, and is superior to any other ventilator yet introduced.

ADVANTAGES.

1. It is simple in its construction.
2. It is sensitive in its operation.
3. It is not liable to get out of repair.
4. The air being pure the atmosphere is more healthy and agreeable, as all fog, smoke, dust, and other foreign particles in which the atmosphere of towns abound, are kept back by the Filter, which allows only a supply of pure air to pass through the regulating spaces in an upward direction into the room without causing a draught.

The supply of air can be regulated by partially opening or closing the valve. When closed it is flush with the inside wall, and can be papered or coloured to match the same, which renders it scarcely noticeable. Fixed at 6ft. 6in. from the floor, with an ordinary air brick on the outside size of Filter.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, May 15; Madras and Allahabad, May 13; Calcutta, May 12.

THE reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending May 4 state that rain has continued in the provinces from which it was reported last week, and has also fallen in the North Western Provinces and Oudh. There has been none in Berar and Hyderabad, the northern districts of Bombay, the Central Provinces, Central India States, Rajputana, and the Punjab. Preparations for the kharif sowings are in active progress. General prospects continue good.

THE health report for the same week is as follows:—Bombay: Health good except in Hyderabad, where fever and small-pox continue. Bengal: With the exception of some cholera and small-pox in places, health generally good. N.W.P. and Oudh: Cholera prevalent in Lucknow and Partabgarh, but decreasing in Benares, Gorakhpur, and Allahabad; fever prevails in Jhansi, Agra, and Lucknow; and small-pox in one tahsil of the Meerut district. Punjab: Health generally favourable. Central Provinces: Small-pox continues in Jubbulpore, Saugor, and Hushangabad. British Burma: Small-pox in Pegu, a few cases in Arakan, otherwise health good. Cachar: Health good. Mysore: Health good. Central India: Health good, but fever still in Gwalior. Rajputana: Health good.

WE have received the following telegrams from the India-office:—

"FROM VICEROY, JUNE 1.—From Cabul. No news of importance, except report of large gathering in Zurmat under Mahomed Jan. Mollahs are still stirring up Momands in Komah. A force has been ordered to cross the river to attack them. The Lughman governor has been driven from Tigri by insurgents. Roberts returned with troops to Cabul on Saturday, Ross relieving him at Maidan. All quiet in Kandahar. Distress among Ashakzai and Mairzai tribes owing to drought."

"FROM VICEROY, JUNE 1.—Burma reports rebellion broken out in Upper Burma, believed to be headed by Nyoungoke Prince, refugee, who had left Calcutta secretly. Rebels burned village Teuboungweh on Irrawaddy; were repulsed from Minhla, now encamped near British frontier. Measures taken to prevent persons on British side of the frontier taking part. Rebels, if driven into British frontier, to surrender arms as condition of asylum."

THE Times' Calcutta correspondent telegraphs that the apathetic indifference with which the Government have treated the raids of the Kuram Valley tribes appears to have the effect, which might have been expected, of encouraging the hillmen to fresh outrages. The Waziris are now reported to be threatening Mundoree and Thall. The 29th Punjab Native Infantry and detachments of the 95th Foot and 13th Bengal Lancers have been sent to reinforce the threatened posts. The 21st Punjab Native Infantry have moved to the Kuram fort, and the Deoli Irregular Corps and a battery of artillery have marched from Rawul Pindi to Thall.

THE agents sent to Abdul Rahman were received by him at Khanabad, 170 miles north of Cabul. They were entertained by him with all honour, and he will doubtless gladly promise general friendship. There are grave complaints of misgovernment from Turkestan; the soldiers, not having received their pay, are plundering traders.

AYOOB KHAN has proclaimed an expedition against Kandahar, and has ordered an advance of the Herati troops. Wali Shere Ali has left Kandahar for the frontier. The defeat of the Herati chief will be at last proved to be necessary to the settlement of Afghanistan.

A BOMBAY journal says that intimation has been received from Kandahar that, on the evening of May 7, when returning from Kokeran, Capts. Garrett, 66th Foot, and Leckie, transport train, were fired at from behind a wall by, it is supposed, men returned from Ghuzni. Capt. Garrett is severely wounded, and one of the escort, a Sind Horse trooper, slightly.

LIEUT. TWYNAM, 59th Regt., has been recommended for the Victoria Cross for his gallant attempt to save the life of a wounded soldier of the 60th Rifles at the battle of Ahmed Kheyl.

BOTH from the correspondent of the Daily News and rom the London agent of the Irrawaddy Flotilla Company news was received last week of the outbreak of an insurrection against King Theebaw. The Kandahar telegram says that it was at first rumoured that the Nyoungyan Prince, who has been a refugee in Calcutta for some time back, had put himself at the head of the insurgents. In point of fact, however, he has not left Calcutta; and, although a standard may have been raised on his behalf, the actual leader would appear to be his relative, the Nyoungoke Prince. The Rangoon correspondent, telegraphing on Saturday, says:—

"Last week a man in the dress of a Buddhist priest crossed the frontier near Allanmyo, from the British territory, with a small following. There was then no suspicion of any rising, and they were allowed to pass by the Burmese guard. At the first town they reached the priest announced himself to be Nyoungoke. A number of unarmed people joined him, and it is said that a band overcame the governor and guard of the place. They then marched towards the fortified town of Minhla, and took that place, killing the two principal officials. Later and more reliable reports say that the band is only fifteen miles from the frontier, and that the King's troops were marching to meet it. They represent the affair as a dacoity only. The general opinion is that the rising has no chance of success without Nyoungyan."

A Daily News telegram, dated Rangoon, Sunday, 6.5 p.m., says:—"The Governor of the Silloymyo Station, midway between the frontier and Mandalay, arrested the Flotilla mail steamer Yunnan on Wednesday, and detained her for twenty-four hours. On her arrival he summoned the captain, on the plea of the pilot's misconduct. The captain on attending the court found the pilot's story was a ruse, and was informed that the steamer's progress was stopped owing to war between the English and Burmese. The starting gear was taken from the steamer. The captain protested, and intimated that he would hold the Woon responsible for the detention of the vessel. Twenty armed men were stationed on the steamer ostensibly for her protection. The Woon prevented the shipment of cargo. Many passengers left scared. On the day following, the Governor's clerk, with a large retinue, informed the captain that he might leave when he pleased, and returned the gear. The vessel steamed straight to Prome and arrived on Saturday night, too late for the mail. The Flotilla Company has demanded an indemnity."

A REUTER'S telegram of yesterday says that intelligence received at Calcutta from Burma states that the number of the insurgents is increasing, and that the insurrectionary movement has now extended to Mandalay. The Burmese Embassy to the British Government will leave Thayetmyo on the 3rd inst.

THERE is little fresh news from Rampa, except that the preparations for the renewal of military operations are progressing. The police, who were attacked by the insurgents as soon as the troops left the district, seem to have suffered some loss. There is now every possibility of another tedious campaign in that fever-stricken district—a fact which is believed to be largely due to the half-hearted way in which the former rebellion was put down and to the constant and vexatious interference with the military authorities on the part of the Madras Government.

THE so-called commissariat scandal trials have commenced at Rangoon. A commissioned officer and some sergeants belonging to the Commissariat Department are charged with receiving illegal gratuities from a contractor.

THE Marquis of Ripon arrived at Bombay on Monday on board the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Ancona and landed shortly afterwards. His Excellency will proceed to Simla on June 3.

THE Earl of Northbrook, the First Lord of the Admiralty, has appointed Mr. E. G. Jenkinson, late Bengal Civil Service, private secretary for all business unconnected with naval matters.

THE appointment held by Admiral Bythesea, consulting naval officer to the Government of India, has been abolished. A telegram from the Secretary of State announces that it is to cease one month after the receipt of a despatch just posted. The Pi says that this step has been taken in direct opposition to the advice of the Government of India, and will probably prove very short-sighted economy.

ACCORDING to letters from India the report of Sir Frederick Haines's resignation of the chief military command in that country does not rest upon good foundation, and Sir Frederick proposes retaining the appointment till his five years' tenure expires on April 10 next. The statements regarding his successor may therefore be considered premature. It is also understood that Sir Neville Chamberlain, although not in satisfactory health, will retain the Madras command until next February, when his terms of office expires. As was stated some time back, Sir Donald Stewart, now commanding the British forces in Afghanistan, has been designated as Sir Neville's successor. The Bombay command will likewise probably be vacant in October of next year by the return home of Lieutenant General Warre.

THE Government have published, through the Press Commissioner's office, the following list of money offers made by the native chiefs in connection with military operations in Afghanistan:—The Maharaja and Maharanee of Baroda, Rs.10,000, for the support of the families of the Guides who died in defending the Cabul Residency last September; Maharaja Holkar, Rs.5,000, for the same purpose, or towards a memorial in honour of the defence; the Maharaja of Bulrampore, one lakh, to provide allowances for the families of the native soldiers killed in action and to be distributed in prizes among the sepoys distinguished for gallantry; the Nawab of Rampore, one lakh, in aid of the sick and wounded soldiers, British and native; Thakoor Pertub Rude Singh and Oude Taloombar, Rs.400, for the families of the killed. These donations have been accepted with cordial thanks. Besides the above, a subscription of Rs.2,888 was raised by the people of the Furruckabad district for the purchase of warm clothing for the troops. The Indian journals suggest the administration of the above funds by a special committee, and that they may form the nucleus of an Indian patriotic fund.

ACCORDING to the Indian Daily News, if all the rumours are to be believed with reference to the reductions proposed in the report of the Army Commission, considerable changes are likely to be effected in the Commissariat Department. It is said that all the executive commissariat offices are virtually to be abolished, and that a few account offices only, in charge of commissioned officers, will remain under the control of the Commissary General. All supplies are to be made by regimental arrangements under the direction of the commanding officers. There will be a director general of stores, who will indent European goods for army supply in India.

THE accounts of the Department of Issue of Paper Currency up to March 31 have been published. From these accounts we gather that the whole amount of notes in circulation was valued at Rs.12,35,77,270, against which there was the following reserve:—Coin, Rs.5,55,72,976; bullion, Rs.80,33,547; invested in Government Securities, Rs.5,99,70,747. Total, Rs.12,35,77,270.

IN its introductory address to the public the St. James's Gazette describes the probable elevation of Abdul Rahman to the dignity of Ameer as a "dubious settlement," and says that to "neither political party is it convenient to tell the whole truth about the outlook in Afghanistan. The Liberal journals are, of course, too interested in securing public approval for the Ministerial policy, and their Conservative rivals too much concerned to prove that the late Government made that policy possible and safe, for either party to dwell upon its risks, or to do common justice to the profound uncertainty in which its outcome is involved."

WE willingly invite the attention of our readers to the appeal that is being made anew for subscriptions to Viscountess Strangford's Fund for the relief of the three and a-half millions of people now suffering from famine in Kurdistan, Armenia, and Western Persia. The consular reports give the most harrowing details of the sufferings of the population, whose only hope of escaping extermination appears to lie in English charity. In the words of the appeal—"Whole villages and vast districts in those regions are utterly given over to the horrors of starvation. Men and women by thousands and tens of thousands are thankful if they are fortunate enough to get roots, or leaves, or earthworms to eat. Children are being sold for a morsel of food, or they are abandoned to perish. In many cases the dying are eating even the dead bodies of those who have succumbed to the unspeakable ravages of famine." The Rev. A. Gray Maitland, Woodford, Essex, is the secretary of the fund.

THE list of presentations to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales at the levee of Monday included the following names:—By the Secretary of State for India—Sir Alexander Arbuthnot, K.C.S.I and C.I.E., on his return from India; Mr. R. J. Bruce, political agent, Quetta, Khelat; Lieut. Col. J. G. Cloete, Madras Army; Mr. Elsmie, Bengal C.S.; Captain E. A. Fraser, Madras S.C.; Mr. W. H. Grimley, Bengal C.S.; Mr. Edward Hewetson, district superintendent of police, Mysor Provinces; Major E. S. Ludlow, Madras S.C.; Mr. Charles Edward Pitman, C.I.E.; Mr. James Peile, C.S.I., on being made a C.S.I; Syud Sharfuddin; Surg. G. T. Thomas, Madras M.S.; Lieut. Col. William Garrow Waterfield, C.S.I., commissioner of Peshawur; Mr. Charles W. Watts, Bengal C.S.; By the Adjutant General—Lieut. E. Bethune, 92nd Gordon Highlanders, on return from Afghanistan; Lieut. Charles H. Fergusson, 72nd Highlanders, on return from Afghanistan; Lieut. W. S. Stewart-Savile, 17th (Leicestershire) Regiment, on return from Afghanistan; Lieut. Col. Frederick Chenevix Trench, 20th Hussars, on promotion; Lieut. Col. O'Brien, on return from Mauritius, and on being made a C.M.G., by the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

IT is announced that among those to be honoured by the University of Oxford with the degree of D.C.L. will be Sir Richard Temple, Bart., G.C.S.I.

IN a convocation held yesterday afternoon at Oxford it was resolved, after considerable discussion and by the narrow majority of one, there voting 69 for and 68 against, that a site be granted in the University Park for the new Indian Institute, provided that £6,000 be invested in the name of the university before the building is commenced, as a maintenance and endowment fund. Also that not less than half of any sums contributed above £18,000 be added to this fund, and also provided that the plans for the building be submitted to convocation.

BY invitation of the authorities at the Royal Indian Engineering College, Cooper's-hill, Staines, Sir Joseph Taylor, K.C.S.I., M.D., F.R.S., recently delivered a lecture "On the Preservation of Health in India." The lecture was so thoroughly to the purpose that special request was made for its publication for the general benefit of all persons interested in our Indian Empire. It is now in the press, and will be issued in pamphlet form by Messrs. Kerby and Endean, of Oxford-street.

THE ARRIVAL OF THE MARQUIS OF RIPON AT BOMBAY.

THE correspondent of the Standard describes the reception of the Viceroy on his landing at Bombay as follows:—"The noble marquis landed at the Admiralty steps under a salute of thirty-one guns, and passed through a grand pavilion, which was splendidly decorated with flags and flowers, and filled with Europeans, Hindus, Parsees, and ladies, and the bright colours of the dresses made the scene very picturesque. There were also present large numbers of Portuguese Catholics, headed by Dr. Meurin, the Catholic Bishop of Bombay. Very few of the unofficial Europeans and fewer still English ladies were present, as they are absent just now at the hill stations. Having entered the Governor's carriage, amid the hearty cheers of a large native crowd, the Viceroy drove across the broad Maidan, which was lined with the garrison troops and the volunteers, and through the streets and native bazaars. The decorations were very general; but the reception was markedly unostentatious for such an occasion. The corporation, representing all castes, were seated on a dais upon one side of the pavilion. They had prepared an address expressing the hope that the new Viceroy will secure a lasting peace to Afghanistan, encourage public works, develop the resources of the country, and extend railway communication, which they presented yesterday at Government House. In reply, the Viceroy said:—"I have observed with great satisfaction the assurances you give of your loyalty and devotion to the Queen, the Empress of India. It is due, indeed, to the Royal lady, who has always taken a very deep interest in all that concerns the welfare of her Indian subjects. I am deeply sensible of the great responsibility which devolves upon me in respect of the great office with which her Majesty has been pleased to entrust me. We are told it does not become him who putteth on his armour to boast himself as the man who takes it off; and therefore I am not at all inclined upon this occasion to make to you, and through you to the community of India, any large promises, or to lay before you any extensive programme. I will only say this: my constant endeavour will be to devote earnestly and assiduously any powers I may possess faithfully to discharge my duty to my Sovereign and to the people of India. Past famines will prove to have been useful as teaching us to alleviate future misery." In respect to the war in Afghanistan the noble Marquis said:—"No one can think of that contest without feeling his heart beat quicker with honourable and just pride at the recollection of the gallant deeds which in this war, as on so many previous occasions, have been performed for our Queen, our Empress, and our country by her Majesty's troops, European and native alike; and we are proud to recollect that in these later times both these services have shown themselves fully able to maintain the great and glorious reputation which the armies of England have won, which the soldiers of England have won for her in every quarter of the globe. But, gentlemen, it will be my most earnest endeavour to bring that war, so far as lies in my province, to an early and honourable conclusion, in the hope that with returning peace the Government of India may again be able to devote its attention to those works of internal improvement to which you rightly alluded. I can assure you if my lot during my tenure of office may be to contribute in any degree to the development of the resources of this great country, agriculturally and industrially, and to promote to any extent the happiness and welfare of the people of India, of all races, creeds, and classes, and especially to increase the prosperity of the mass of the people, I shall esteem it the greatest honour in my political life." The address has created a most favourable impression.

THE OPERATIONS AT CHARASIAB.

ONE of the last acts of Sir F. Roberts before giving up the supreme command at Cabul was to convey the Commander in Chief's congratulations to General Macpherson and Colonel Jenkins. The following is the order issued by the Lieutenant General:—"It affords the Lieutenant General much pleasure to publish the following telegram from the Commander in Chief in India expressing his Excellency's satisfaction at the manner in which the operations on April 25 at Charasiab were conducted by Brigadier General Macpherson, C.B., V.C., and Colonel Jenkins, C.B., A.D.C. to the Queen. Colonel Jenkins's disposition on finding the numbers of the enemy increasing was most masterly, and the rapidity with which General Macpherson reinforced Colonel Jenkins and assisted that officer to drive off the enemy is deserving of all praise. Sir Frederick Roberts thoroughly appreciates the good work performed by the troops, and begs that they will all accept his hearty congratulations." This is the telegram referred to:—"Colonel Jenkins's action at Charasiab was admirably fought. Congratulate him and his troops on my behalf; also General Macpherson and his troops, who so promptly and effectually supported him."—Times of India.

MINING RIGHTS.

AN important correspondence between the Secretary of State and the Indian Government on the subject of mining rights is published in the official Gazette. It is now laid down, after consultation with the law officers—first, that the Crown has in British India no special prerogative of the gold and silver mines outside the Presidency towns. Secondly, that no general rule prevails applicable to all provinces, either that minerals found in proprietary lands belong to the Government or do not so belong; that when the question arises in each province it must be settled for that province alone; and that where no law or custom exists advantage should be taken of the opportunity to declare by legislation that the mines of such province are State property. Thirdly, that the mineral resources of the temporarily settled lands may be taken into account on the resettlement as assets on which land revenue demand may be assessed. It has also been determined to grant gold mining leases on liberal terms on the Government lands in Wynaad, and to levy no royalty on the produce of the mines, nor any tax on the industry beyond such as may be required to provide for the police and conservancy arrangements of the mining communities, the Government being of opinion that the indirect benefits likely to result from the development of the industry render it inexpedient to hamper it by royalties or vexatious restrictions.—Times Telegram.

THE BUDGET DEFICIT.

THE Indian papers contain the official explanations of the Budget deficit which have been sent to the Secretary of State, and will be, doubtless, laid before Parliament. The minor deficiency under "salt"—viz., £78,308—is due to an unexpected intermission of deliveries from the Sambhar Lake, and that under "opium," £97,440, to a temporary check in the trade in Malwa opium. The increase under land revenue, excise, and customs reduces the falling off to £81,997. As to the cost of the war, the Governor General in Council states that the estimates were submitted by the Accountant General on Jan. 19, were examined and transferred by the Military Department on Jan. 26 to the Financial Department, and it was even thought that the estimate was too high, but on Feb. 18 the Accountant General fully maintained it. The despatch continues as follows:—

"Before the middle of March, however, we became uneasy at the unexpectedly large demands upon our frontier treasuries; and, not being satisfied with the result of a summary investigation of the causes, we instituted a fresh inquiry into the cost of the war, which has brought to light the fact that the aggregate net disbursements from our treasuries to the Military Department since the beginning of the operations have so much exceeded the normal payments to that department as to suggest strong doubts of the correctness of its estimates of the cost of the war. No doubt the balances in the treasure chests, and with the military disbursers, are much in excess of the ordinary amount. Moreover, apart from the operations in Afghanistan, the disbursements on account of the Malta expedition, the Naga disturbances, and political events in Burma, have caused exceptional military drafts upon our treasuries; and there may be other abnormal transactions which may operate, eventually, in reduction of the obligations of the Military Department. Nevertheless, and taking the most sanguine view of the prospects of the termination of the war, we cannot now doubt that its cost will largely exceed the departmental estimates. There is, however, much still to be done before we can venture to estimate the cost of the war afresh with any precision. It has not yet been fully explained why the large outflow from our treasuries in excess of the military estimates did not show itself sooner in the diminution of our balances which we are now at last witnessing. Nor is the Accountant General in the Military Department, an officer in whose prudence and ability we place the greatest confidence, as yet able to reconcile the treasury figures with the estimates which reach him from the military controllers. Under ordinary circumstances we should have thought it desirable to wait until we could explain the facts better than is yet possible. But we are sensible of the inconvenience which must result from the failure of our war estimate, and deem it incumbent on us to substitute for that estimate at once the most correct forecast that we can make with our present data, however imperfect such may be. We hope that, before your lordship makes the yearly financial statement to Parliament, we may be in a position to telegraph more trustworthy estimates of the cost of the war than we can now make. Meanwhile, we consider that it will be necessary to add at least £4,000,000 to our estimate of the cost of the war in 1880-81. We can only speak, now, with much reserve of the total amount which the war, apart from the frontier railways, will ultimately cost. The responsible officers in the Military Department still confidently expect that its cost will not be nearly so much as £10,000,000; but we are unable, at present, to reconcile this expectation with the actual outgoings from our treasuries."

The official explanations include a minute by Sir E. Johnson and a memorandum by Major Newmarch. The former recapitulates the probable causes which have led to so great an excess of expenditure, but states that "until the result of the inquiries which have been ordered is received it is not possible to state either the extent to which the estimates have been exceeded nor the causes which have led to such excess." Major Newmarch, the accountant general, Military Department, in his minute explains the course followed in preparing the estimates of expenditure on account of the operations in Afghanistan, and proceeds :—"In submitting this estimate the following remarks were made in the transmitting memorandum :—For the Cabul charges it has not been considered necessary to do more than repeat last year's provision, Rs.2,00,00,000. But for the renewal of hostilities in September last that sum would probably have sufficed to meet the extra charges of the year. With an early settlement of affairs beyond the frontier the same amount may suffice to wind up the accounts of the campaign; should the operations be protracted, this figure will, no doubt, have to be increased hereafter in the revised estimate, as has been done this year." As regards the threatened inadequacy of the estimates, the undersigned proposes to defer any explanation on this head till the accounts for the year 1879-80 are completed, and the further information called for by the Military Department has been received. The completed accounts for January, 1880, have been received, with approximate figures for the remaining two months of the year; and there are grounds for supposing that, apart from the charges for frontier railways and telegraphs, the recorded charges of the year will not much exceed the estimate of 300 lakhs. There is, however, reason to fear that, owing to the largely increased expenditure of the last three months of the year—January, February, and March, 1880—considerably more than a hundred lakhs will be outstanding at the close of the year, and have to be adjusted in the accounts of 1880-81. At the same time this increased rate of expenditure shows no signs of diminution, and the war promises to be protracted considerably beyond the anticipation of the estimate, while the operations are more extended than they were, or than was foreseen when that estimate was prepared. It may also be noted that from various causes, which will no doubt be elucidated hereafter, the war expenditure has increased, beginning from January last, and is progressing at a rate far beyond any calculation that could have been made based on the past rate of expenditure and on the relative number of troops in the field at various periods. From these two causes, the expected increase in the outstandings from 1879-80 and in the cash expenditure in 1880-81, the Budget estimate of the year threatens to prove very inadequate. To what extent it will actually be found to be insufficient can only be determined on the receipt of the further information lately called for, and by the progress, extent, and duration of the campaign. On this point a further report will be submitted hereafter.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE CLIMATE AND DISEASES OF INDIA.*

THE Indian Medical Service has numbered among its officers many who have very materially advanced the service and practice of medicine by their remarks and discoveries in the field of disease. It cannot but be a matter of extreme regret that administrative changes should lead to any diminution of good works so well performed. Dr. Macnamara, however, speaks with little hope of a future, brilliant like the past, for the service he has done so much to make glorious. If the reforms introduced shall, as he seems to indicate they will, have the effect of curbing that free spirit of inquiry that has characterised the Indian Medical Service hitherto, then it will be a serious deprivation both to the Indian people who benefit by observations conducted on them and their illness, and to medicine, which has been largely enriched by contributions from her votaries in India.

Dr. Macnamara's work on the diseases of the Himalayan region deserves to be ranked among the most enduring monuments of medical research. It fulfils the two great requirements of a scientific work; it is completely exhaustive within its own limits; and it is eminently suggestive. Commencing with a general and particular description of Northern India, in as far as this will aid towards appreciating the influence of geological and physical peculiarities in the development and spread of disease, the author attacks the accepted theory of goitrous complaints prevalent in this country. By an elaborate series of tables he conclusively shows the fallacy of associating this class of evil with the existence of calcareous drinking water in the affected districts. The method of his demonstration is admirable; the result incontestable. Goitre is relegated to the heterogeneous class of malarious diseases, and the perfect way in which Dr. Macnamara has worked out the proofs of his conclusion is a wonderful example of the precision and exactitude that are distinctive of all true research. It is true the deductions contained in the work will not all be approved by every reader, but this does not detract from its merits as a whole. Dr. Macnamara insists on specific poisons with, we cannot but think, too determined a front. It is an open question, although true, how far the theory he advocates is provable by the results of observation; it might serve the better to utility, during the period that controversy is rife, to defer the determination of the origin of epidemics, and bestow the whole attention in discovering the order of the phenomena exhibited. The body of the work consists of a detailed history of the diseases and conditions favouring it of the provinces and regions of Northern India. We cannot speak too emphatically of the admirable way in which this has been executed. Dr. Macnamara has produced a lasting tribute to the excellence of a training which could fit him to do what he has done, and done so well. We cannot follow our author at any length, but we can earnestly commend his pages to the careful and diligent perusal of everyone interested either in the advance of medical science or in the condition of the people of India. Throughout the book is of wonderful interest, and, even to the non-medical reader, the stores of information and the easy attractive style in which it is conveyed will make it acceptable.

THE CHALLENGE OF BARLETTA.*

WRITING at a time when the unity of the kingdom was the absorbing object in the mind of every Italian, Massimo D'Azeglio strengthened the passion of the hour by reminding his country that, even at the worst stage of the internecine strife of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, when Italy was the prey in dispute between France and Spain, there were individuals who were patriots, and who, although constrained to ally themselves with, and take service under, the Spaniard, never forgot that their main endeavour was to promote the union of their race. With this political motive D'Azeglio had little difficulty in constructing out of the picturesque elements which lay ready to his hand in the camps of the great captain and the Duc de Nemours an historical novel of very striking interest; and Lady Louisa Magenis's admirable rendering of it places at the disposal of the English reader one of the best of modern Italian novels. The translation shows unequivocal marks of the care which the authoress has taken to bring the original before us in as complete a form as the imperative necessity of giving flow to the narrative admitted, and it appears to us that her efforts have been extremely happy and successful. Critics are fond of protesting that the historical novel has lost its charm, and this has been assumed to show a decline in the popular taste; but do the facts warrant this view? Has it not rather been that the historical novel has deteriorated since it reached its summit in the hands of Walter Scott, and that the reader resents spurious history being foisted upon him? The "Challenge of Barletta" is a romance of the highest class, and, while it fulfils all the necessary laws of an historical novel, possesses strong claims to the sympathy and approval of the great body of readers for its varied incidents and the sustained interest of its plot. Far from being dull the story is one of the most interesting it has been our fortune recently to read, and, although the end may be open to the charge of being abrupt, its very suddenness heightens the dramatic effect. Lady Louisa Magenis may be congratulated on this her first literary effort, and her bright and elegant version of an Italian classic cannot fail to find many readers in this country.

THE difficulties arising from the legal procedure which has been introduced by British rule into India and Ceylon are briefly but clearly set forth by Dr. Creighton, especially as they affect the villagers. He considers a recurrence to the punchayet would be a remedy for many abuses. The elder Niebuhr's account of Bombay a hundred and fifteen years ago is continued. CORRESPONDENCE.

THE CARWAR RAILWAY PROJECT.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—A correspondent in your paper of the 13th inst. advocates the construction of a railway from Carwar, on the Malabar coast, to Hubli, in the district of Dharwar, with the object of facilitating the exportation of cotton grown in that district. A similar scheme was urged some years ago, when it was carefully examined by the Indian Government, and was ultimately rejected in 1872 on the following grounds:—The projected line would have to traverse the rocky and barren hills which separate the seaboard from Dharwar, and its construction would therefore be very costly, while it would, from the same cause, command no local traffic for a great part of the distance. A computation of the quantity of produce likely to be conveyed on the line, and of the probable passenger traffic which it would secure, showed that the earnings would not cover interest on the capital outlay. On the other hand, it was found that the requisite facility for the exportation of Dharwar cotton could be more advantageously obtained by the construction of a railway from a central part of Dharwar to the nearest convenient point on the Madras and Bombay line. Such a railroad, running though a comparatively flat tract of land, would cost much less per mile than a railway to Carwar; while, traversing a fertile and populous country, it would enjoy a large local traffic in addition to its earnings from the transport of produce to the seaboard. Much money has been wasted in India upon public works which failed sufficiently to accomplish the objects for which they were undertaken; and such errors have resulted in additional burdens of taxation being imposed from time to time until the impoverished condition of the people has compelled the Government to stop almost indiscriminately all public works for a time, checking thereby the development of the natural resources of the country. Great care should therefore be taken to guard against the Indian Government embarking again upon speculative undertakings of a doubtful character. The Carwar Railway scheme has some prominent points of similarity with the project for a railway between Calcutta and the River Mutlah, which was urged on most plausible grounds some eighteen years ago, and which the Government of India were induced to adopt and carry out. Both schemes emanated from parties who, having acquired land and shipping privileges in the respective ports, were deeply interested in the proposed lines of railway being made, irrespective of what the financial results of the railways themselves might be. The money sunk in the Mutlah Railway has been a dead loss to the State, and what is now said in favour of the Carwar scheme offers no guarantee that the railway enterprise in this case will be less disastrous. If the experiment, therefore, is to be tried, let it be done at the risk of those who would be specially benefited by the undertaking; let them construct, by means of a company or otherwise, the railway they desire, the Government affording them facilities for acquiring the necessary land and securing to them the legitimate advantages which their enterprise might yield.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant, J. DACOSTA.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

KASHMIR.

THE future of Kashmir is a question to which the attention of the Marquis of Ripon will have to be closely directed immediately after his arrival in India. The misgovernment of the Happy Valley for the last few years has rendered its time-honoured epithet a bitter sarcasm. Lord Lytton had arranged to hold a durbar at Umballa to meet the Raja of Kashmir, and it has been known for some time in political circles that the opportunity would have been then taken to alter the relations between the Courts of Simla and Srinagar. The durbar has been postponed owing to Lord Lytton's sudden resignation, but it is evident that the authorities of the Indian Foreign-office are still bent on a change. The preliminary negotiations are being conducted with a certain amount of secrecy, but we are in possession of some important facts which have not hitherto transpired, and which are likely to create some interest in England as well as in India. In 1846 we sold the country of Kashmir to Golab Singh, the upstart Maharaja of Jummoo, for the sum of 75 lakhs of rupees, the whole of the territory thus parted with having come into the possession of the English Government under the treaty of Lahore. By this sale the Government certainly placed a Mahomedan population under the control of a Hindu aristocracy, for it is generally admitted that the rule of the present Maharaja, like that of his father, the ex-trooper, is only nominal, the whole country being really ruled by the pundits, whose influence for evil is scarcely questioned. There are other reasons, however, that were assumed to justify the present Government in interfering between the Maharaja of Kashmir and his unhappy subjects, such as the alleged correspondence with Russia and the miserable misgovernment which culminated in the fearful horrors of the famine, which during the last three years has swept away fully one-third of the population. The correspondence discovered at Srinagar emanated from Cabul, not from St. Petersburg, and has been protracted over a considerable period. It commenced with a discussion as to the acquisition of Gilghit, and is said, though here all caution should be used, to terminate in certain dangerous proposals. The Maharaja has, moreover, added to his offence by maintaining that he is in a different position to the other Indian princes, and entitled to conduct his own foreign relations. This must have been an afterthought, prompted when an excuse was needed, and, as the Maharaja always made the liveliest protestations of friendship, it may probably go hard with him, for the facts we have stated are, at all events, officially believed. The mismanagement of the famine is, on the other hand, a patent fact, not to be gainsaid, because additional horrors have been deliberately invented by the Court intriguants. The management of the country is thoroughly rotten, each pundit working for his own private ends, and forming a ring for the exaction of taxation and the sale of grain; and the miserable population are said to allege that the Government which executed the Treaty of Umritsur are bound to notice the ultimate results of the treaty. Lord Lytton's Government felt, we are told, the justice of this plea, but were interrupted, first by the rapid progress of European complications that only partially terminated with the execution of the Treaty of Berlin; and, secondly, by the Afghan war. The lull which followed the Treaty of Gandamak was, however, utilised to consider the affairs of Kashmir. A commission was sent into the country in connection with the late famine, and the report issued by the members seems to have convinced the authorities that the times were rife for a change and that the opportunity should not be neglected. The scheme then adopted is now revealed to the public under the proper mystery and ambiguity of official language. This scheme virtually insisted on the repurchase of Kashmir for 90 lakhs of rupees, being 15 lakhs more than the father of the present Maharaja gave for it. The country may or may not be worth the money, but only those who have had personal acquaintance with the horrors of the late famine can form an opinion as to the enthusiasm with which the impoverished and wretched inhabitants would welcome the change. Every traveller, without exception, tells us the same story of the hatred of the Mahomedan population towards their Hindu rulers, and of the piteous appeals made to every passing explorer to represent the true state of things in India. Nor, perhaps, would the Maharaja himself regard the sale of his country for a good equivalent as a heavy loss. Everything in the country itself, its physical characteristics, the sentiments and character of the people, and its productions, all seem to suggest that it might eventually be made a valuable acquisition that, unlike most of our outlying territory, should make a handsome return on the money expended on good government, and, perhaps, prove as profitable as the province of Pegu. This, however, is scarcely the question at present, and we are now concerned with the Afghan correspondence and the condition of the Maharaja's Court. The disgraceful misgovernment of Kashmir is not a thing of the past few years only, but an old and growing evil with which the Government of India have been long acquainted. Mr. Henvey, the present resident at Srinagar, could not speak more strongly on this point than Mr. Robert Thorpe spoke twelve years ago in a pamphlet exposing the terrible oppression then practised upon the people of the country with the passive consent of the Maharaja if not with his full support. Since then all the travellers have told the same story, and it is no exaggeration to say that during the late famine the roads throughout the Happy Valley were strewed again and again with the bodies of the miserable victims of a Government too inhuman to consult the happiness of its subjects, and too apathetic to guard their own interests by keeping the taxpayers alive. The new Viceroy cannot, at all events, afford to pigeon-hole the scheme which his predecessor was preparing to enforce. Our position with regard to Kashmir is entirely different to our position with regard to Burma. In the one case it would be Quixotic to interfere with what is no concern of ours; in the other we actually sold the country and forced a foreign ruler on the people, and thus cannot escape a direct responsibility for his actions. Opposed as we are to all annexation except on the ground of absolute necessity, and pledged, as we maintain the Government of India are, to respect treaty rights in their most sacred entirety, we can see that the Kashmir family has nothing in common with such princes as Gwalior, Jeypur, or Jodhpur. This family was originated by the Government of India for the distinct purpose of governing a country it was allowed to purchase. But if its governing powers have failed, and if the purchase money is returned with interest and willingly accepted, the bargain is simply cancelled on both sides, and no native prince need feel alarmed at a mere business transaction which can never be used as a precedent against his own rights and privileges. The province of Kashmir, again, would scarcely involve new responsibilities, while we certainly cannot afford to let Srinagar become a centre of Afghan intrigue. These are the different sides of the question that will present themselves to the Marquis of Ripon and Lord Hartington as soon as they commence their official correspondence, and as the Liberal Governn.ent are from their traditions presumably pledged against annexation of territory, whatever steps they may deem it necessary to take will be regarded by the people of India, with interest certainly, but without concern.—Times of India.

THE COMMAND IN AFGHANISTAN.

IT is well known that the relations between Lord Lytton and Sir Frederick Haines have been somewhat strained of late. The cause is as well known as the fact. In the Commander in Chief's memorandum on the army commission report, incidental to some remarks he has to offer regarding the appointment of a chief of the staff, Sir Frederick says that it never occurred to him that the operations in Afghanistan would be brought to a close without the Commander in Chief taking the field. Holding the view that, if the Commander in Chief takes the field, he should be at liberty to nomimate an officer as chief of the staff, Sir Frederick Haines recommended the appointment of General Lumsden to that post at the commencement of the Afghan campaign. This recommendation the Government declined to accept. From this incidental allusion to his being debarred from taking the field it is easy to guess what the Commander in Chief's feelings were when recently he was prohibited from transferring his headquarters to the frontier. He has thus been placed in an anomalous position throughout, for, although the whole operations are under his direction and supervision, he has not been permitted to carry out his plans according to his own notions of what is proper and expedient. The general belief was that the Government did not wish General Roberts to be interfered with in the supreme command in Afghanistan; but if this was the consideration which originally influenced Lord Lytton the war has long ago assumed proportions, and operations are being carried on over an area, which put it out of General Roberts's power to control the whole. For a long time he was cooped up at Sherpur with the force under his immediate command, and was practically only relieved by the advance of the Kandahar Field Force upon Ghuzni. Yet this was not done without General Roberts being superseded in the supreme command by General Stewart. It was ill-judged consideration for General Roberts, therefore, which made the Government tie the hands of the Commander in Chief of India, for although the actual fighting is done in Afghanistan, by no means the most inconsiderable part of the work is done in India and on the Indian frontier. We understand that Sir Frederick Haines's dissatisfaction at the treatment he has received will yet find fuller expression; and it is not unlikely that the Commander in Chief in India will play a more conspicuous part in bringing the Afghan war to a conclusion than the same functionary has hitherto done in the conduct of it. It will be noticed from our telegraphic news that Sir Garnet Wolseley is again spoken of as Sir Frederick Haines's successor.—Times of India.

THE BEHAR RAILWAYS.—The revenue statistics of the Tirhoot State Railway, for the half-year ending Dec. 31, 1879, show that the total number of passengers was 224,967, bringing a revenue of Rs.89,760, and the total quantity of goods 23,044 tons, bringing a revenue of Rs.59,622 from station to station. The principal commodities carried were coal, 255 tons, grain and pulses 1,675 tons, rice 3,394 tons, salt 4,017 tons, saltpetre 2,660 tons, seeds 3,390 tons, and tobacco 951 tons.—Indian Daily News.

THE THUGS AT JUBBULPORE.—In his lately-published report on the operations of the Thuggee and Dacoity Department, Major Henderson notes that Major Hughes-Hallett (superintendent of the School of Industry at Jubbulpore) had, in 1879, up to October last, arrested no less than twenty-nine dacoits, and has, moreover, brought to light a great evil which merits serious consideration. Major Henderson writes:—"The arrest of all these men within such a short time confirms the opinion previously held by me, that Jubbulpore is a centre of dacoity." The arrangements of the department by which a large number of approvers are kept at Jubbulpore are doubtless familiar to the reader. In the approvers' lines here are nearly 300 approvers. Their wives, children, and other members of their families live with them and are allowed to come and go as they like. Nor are the approvers subjected to any severe restrictions. It is not to be wondered at, therefore, that they are in constant communication with their relatives and fellow-tribesmen, many of whom are professional dacoits. When an approver dies his family is obliged to leave the lines; and colonies of such people have gradually been formed in different parts of the Central Provinces and in the native States. The members keep up their acquaintance with their old comradea at Jubbulpore, and the result is that Jubbulpore is the centre of a widespread and dangerous organisation. It is a curious fact that a regular caste of dacoity approvers is being formed. When an inhabitant of one of the colonies is asked what class he belongs to he will answer that he is a Goinda, which is the native word for an approver.—Pioneer.

THE PATNA AND GYA STATE RAILWAY.—The revenue statistics of the Patna and Gya State Railway show a total of 219,647 passengers with a revenue of Rs.1,43,917, and a total of 16,645 tons of goods with a revenue of Rs.41,852 from station to station. The principal commodities carried were, as in the case of the Tirhoot State Railway—coal 257 tons, grains and pulses 2,465 tons, rice 5,099 tons, salt 2,207 tons, sugar and jaggree 1,117 tons. A comparison of the statistics shows that, with more than ten times as many passengers, the Tirhoot State Railway shows a decrease of revenue to the extent of nearly Rs.30,000, while the receipts from the goods traffic is fairly proportional in the case of the two railways.—Behar Herald.

MEETINGS OF COMPANIES.—At a general meeting of the Bengal Ironworks Company, held May 4, it was resolved that the resignation of Messrs. E. C. Morgan and W. J. Berners of their office as liquidators of the company be accepted. That Mr. G. F. Mewburn and Mr. C. H. Moore be appointed liquidator or liquidators of the company, with power to either or both of the said liquidators to act alone or jointly, and to do either jointly or severally such of the several things provided for by the eight sub sections of Section 116 of the Indian Company's Act, 1866, as may be necessary for the winding up of the company, and also with power to take over the accounts of the late liquidators, and that the said liquidator or liquidators be remunerated by a commission of 2½ per cent. on the proceeds of the property of the company realised by the said liquidator or liquidators. THE USE OF THE NAGRI CHARACTER IN BEHAR.—The resolution of the Lieutenant Governor, directing that from Jan. 1, 1881, the Nagri shall be substituted for the Persian character in the courts and offices of Behar, is likely to be attended by beneficial results of great value. No one unacquainted with village life can form an adequate idea of the extent to which the use of the Persian character as the sole means of communication between the governors and the governed in Behar has fostered fraud and oppression. Given a village in which no one can read Persian, a magisterial order, or a judicial process written in that character, a serving officer who is not only not too honest to interpret it in a way which will help to fill his own pockets, but regards the process as a recognised and usual source of income, and listeners ready to believe anything, and the result may be imagined. Yet this is a fair description of the situation in three cases out of four in which orders or processes are served in the villages of Behar. In three cases out of four, moreover, the serving officer himself is unable to read the character in which the process he carries is written; and, however honest he might be, the people to whom it is addressed would depend on his memory for the means of ascertaining its contents—contents on an accurate knowledge of which the safety of their persons and property might largely depend.—Englishman.

TRAGEDY AT PESHAWUR.—We hear from Peshawur of a shocking tragedy that took place in the lines of the 1st Bengal Native Infantry about noon on the 4th May, when one of the men of that regiment shot dead one of his comrades and wounded three others, and providentially missed the colonel, who had repaired to the lines on hearing in his bungalow the above shots, and who on

To promote and improve agriculture. 2. To take steps for the improvement of cattle and the better supply of fodder. 3. To collect and distribute better seed among cultivators. 4. To hold exhibitions of agricultural stock, produce, and implements. 5. Protection from drought. 6. To communicate to Government the wants of landholders in connection with the improvement of agriculture. 7. To collect from the Agricultural Department, N.W.P., from the Agri-Horticultural Society of Calcutta and elsewhere, records and papers likely to conduce to improvement in agriculture. 8. To collect standard works in English on agriculture and to translate into the vernacular such of them as are adapted for the agricultural capabilities of India. 9. To publish the translations so made as well as, when possible, any agricultural journal, periodical, or magazine which may be calculated to improve agriculture and lead to the prosperity of the agricultural community.—Times of India.

A GROUNDLESS CHARGE.—At the recent Calcutta criminal sessions Mr. A. AN APPREHENDED FLOOD.—The following warning has been issued by Government from Simla to all the officials concerned:—"Shyok river in Kashmir obstructed, accumulation higher up and smaller than that which caused Indus flood in 1858." Mr. Johnson, the Wazir of Ladak, writing on the obstruction in the Shayok river, says that it is owing to a land or hill slip across the river. "The obstruction is about 110ft. high, 60ft. wide, and about 200ft. long. It is expected that the river water will flow over the bund in a day or so. A large lake has formed above the bund. At a rough estimate the lake is from six to seven miles long, 200 yards wide at the lower end, 600 yards at the upper end, with an average depth of 80ft. When visited a day or so back the hill was still falling and two more larger slips were expected at any moment. I have given warning down the Shyok to Iskardo and Gilghit in this part of the country. We are not certain yet if the bund will burst at once with the pressure, or remain with the water gradually flowing over it. Should it burst I am afraid Attock and Nowshera may suffer as before."—Pioneer.

COMBINED TELEGRAPH AND POST-OFFICE.—We are very pleased to learn that the Government of India have sanctioned a lakh of rupees for the current official year to be expended on this important building. CEARA RUBBER.—Colonel R. H. Beddome, the conservator of forests, in a letter to Government, dated Ootacamund, April 13, remarked:—"I have not yet been able to distribute any plants of Ceara rubber. It was my intention to have done so in accordance with Government order, No. 1,837, of Nov. 18 last, but the bulbs of the plants died off so rapidly that Mr. Ferguson was not able to spare any; and the few which survived, though they have grown tall and robust, have thrown out no primaries whatever from which propagation by cuttings could be attempted; it is hoped that seed will soon be available. Five healthy plants are available at the Government Gardens, Ootacamund; these make no growth in the glass-houses up at this elevation, and I would suggest that they should be sent to the Madras Horticultural Gardens; the bulk of the plants handed over by me to Mr. Jamieson have been permanently planted out at Barliyar and Kalhatti. I think it probable that the plant will succeed in the coast climate of Madras, though I much doubt from the experience we have already had if it would succeed in drier climates inland in the plains. It will be seen that Mr. Jamieson has not succeeded in propagating it from cuttings, though all the present stock (except one seedling raised at Nilambur) are cuttings rooted at Kew."—Ibid.

BIRTHS AND DEATHS IN THE MADRAS PRESIDENCY.—In anticipation of the submission of his annual report for 1879, Dr. Cornish, as sanitary commissioner of Madras, has submitted to Government a very interesting paper on the results of birth and death registration during the past year. The returns of a few zemindari estates had not been received when this paper was prepared. So far, however, as the returns before him showed, the birth and death registration was carried out amongst a native population of 28,671,463, taking the actual figures of the 1871 census. The population not included in these returns comprises the area of the hill tracts in Ganjam and Vizagapatam and the large zemindari estates of Ramnad and Sivaganga in Madura. We quote as follows from Dr. Cornish's paper—the figures given therein relate solely to the native population:—"The number of births registered was 476,307, or 127,650 in excess of the registrations in 1878. Of these 245,773 were males and 230,534 were females. The birth ratio to population was 16·6 per mille, the proportions varying in different districts from 42·1 per mille in the collectorate of Madras to 7·1 per mille in Kurnool. Practically, the birth registration shows an increase of 4·6 per mille over the results obtained in 1878, but the increase is much larger in some districts than in others. The aggregate number of deaths registered in 1879 was 548,158. Of these 282,975 were males and 265,183 were females. The death rate for the whole Presidency was (using the population figures of 1871) 19·1 per mille, the ratio of the five years before the famine being 18·1 per mile. There is, however, a considerable reduction in mortality as compared with 1877 and 1878, the ratios for those years calculated in the same way being 53·2 and 27·8 per mille respectively. The year 1879 has been a healthy season so far as epidemic diseases are concerned. Epidemic cholera prevailed to a considerable extent in the Godavari and Kistna districts, but Southern and Western India was very free of this pestilence. The total of deaths registered from this cause was 13,295, and of these 12,049 occurred in the fourn orthern districts. Tinnevelly, Kurnool, Bellary, North Arcot, Salem, Coimbatore, Nilgiris, and South Canara do not return a single death from cholera in 1879. Small-pox was prevalent chiefly in Ganjam, Godavari, Kistna, Madras, South Arcot, Tanjore, Tinnevelly, and Malabar. 17,676 deaths are registered under this head. The figures show a large diminution on the returns of 1877 and 1878. Malarious fevers, which had been in excess throughout the Presidency from the end of 1877, continued to prevail in 1879, and the mortality from this cause was higher than in the average of years before the famine. The fever mortality was in excess in nearly every district. 284,628 deaths are registered under the head of fevers. The registered deaths from bowel complaints (23,206) are below the average. From violent causes the following deaths were registered:—Suicides, 1,924; wounds, 1,117; accidents, 7,192; snake bite 2,154; killed by wild beasts, 212. Under the heading 'all other causes,' there were 196,754 deaths. These numbers are below the average."—Madras Times.

MUNICIPALITIES IN FRENCH INDIA.—M. Jauréguiberry, who is the French Minister of the colonies of France, has issued a document giving his ideas as to what should be the administration and constitution of these colonies. In the official paper of French India he refers to the decree of January, 1879, which modified the composition and extended the powers of the Conseils Générals, assimilating them to similar bodies in other French colonies. He says that, as a sequel, the establishment of municipalities in French India is necessary. French territory in India is to be divided into six communal divisions—viz., Pondicherry, Oulyaret, Villanour, Bahour, Karikal, la Grande Aldee, Nedoucadou, Chandernagore, Mahe, and Yanoon. The municipal councillors are to be elected for six years and are always re-eligible. The mayors of towns will be elected from among the municipal councillors. The municipal councils will assemble four times every year, but an extraordinary meeting may be held with the sanction of the Government. In the village municipalities debates take place in the vernacular, but a translation of the same will be submitted to Government. In Pondicherry, Karikal, Mahe, and Chandernagore, French is insisted on as the language in which the members of the municipal councils should speak. It is hoped by the Colonial Minister that the efforts now being made by the Minister of Instruction to spread a knowledge of the French language among natives will result in these debates being everywhere carried on in that language. The séances of the councils are not open to the public. No discussion is allowed on religious subjects or matters appertaining to public charities, for on these points the French Government has wisely assumed a neutral attitude. As to the revenue of these municipalities it is said that, besides certain local taxes, there will be a proportionate distribution of the yield of the sea customs dues, but the latter bring in little. It is intended, for the sake of economy, that municipal budgets should, for the present, be retrenched. It is indispensable, says the Colonial Minister, that an increase of local taxes should not be imposed, for fear of shaking the confidence of the people in the benefits of municipal institutions. M. Jauréguiberry concludes his despatch as follows :—"I have full confidence that the institutions we are about to give our establishment in French India will rivet the bonds that unite the population to France, and contribute powerfully to cause them to love the generous Government which, in this matter, has taken the initiative."—Madras Times.

AGRICULTURE AND TOBACCO GROWING.—The experiments made with the growing and curing of Lunka and Madura tobacco at the Saidapet Experimental Farm during 1878-79 were very favourable, as also were those with an Italian variety, but the most successful of all was the Maryland tobacco, which yielded the largest return and finest leaf. Nothing, however, is said of the market value of the different kinds experimented on. In a paper entitled "Our Food Supply," the greater portion of which was laid before the Famine Commission, Mr. Benson, M.R.A.C., acting superintendent of Government farms, Madras, says that the consumption of food in that presidency is probably not much less than 1·4lb. a head per diem, the population of the Government lands, that is of all the country excepting the zemindaries, being about 24,000,000. The amount of seed used per acre of arable land and sown with food grains is probably not less than 56lb., or 5 cwt., thus causing a demand on the Government lands of 10,000,000 cwt. The annual exports and imports nearly balance each other, so that the total demand from the soil for the support of the population is about 130,000,000 cwt. In the land belonging to Government there are annually about 5,000,000 acres under irrigated paddy, 13,000,000 acres under unirrigated cereals, and 2,000,000 acres under pulses. Mr. Benson says it is a common mistake to suppose that India, or at least Southern India, supports a teeming population, or a population even in numbers alone in excess of that supported in some European countries. In only one district of the Madras Presidency (Tanjore) is the population per square mile of Belgium exceeded, whilst in thirteen it does not reach that of Italy.—Times of India.

MYSOR.—The revenue of Mysor for 1878-79 is stated in the official report to have amounted to the unprecedented sum of 121 lakhs; but the expenditure exceeded it by upwards of 7 lakhs; and to meet the deficit the loan from the Government of India, which in 1877-78 had amounted to 50 lakhs, was increased by 30 more. A lakh and a-quarter was spent on the Maharaja's wedding alone; but the necessity for retaining famine relief during three parts of the year, for keeping open famine relief works, without reference to the Budget forecast, and the expenditure incurred on the Mysor Railway, for which no Budget provision had been made, combined to swell the disbursements to nearly 128½ lakhs.—Times of India.

FORWARDING INDIAN CATTLE TO LONDON.—On May 6 two Mysor bulls and two cows were put on board the s.s. Dorunda proceeding to England. It is said that Col. Magrath is forwarding these to Lady Howard.—Madras Mail.

ORDER OF BRITISH INDIA.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to admit the undermentioned native officers to the Order of British India :—To the 1st class, with the title of Sirdar Bahadur —Subadar Major Hyath Khan, Bahadur, 24th Regiment, Madras Native Infantry. To the second class, with the title of Bahadur— Subadar Syed Emam, 27th Regiment, Madras Native Infantry.

A HIGHWAY ROBBER SHOT.—A telegram from Bellary to a Madras paper says that the murderer and highway robber, Bareega Mareegadoo, after whom Inspector Hartnett went, has been shot dead by the town police, and the corpse has been taken to Bellary. —Times of India.

BOMBAY.

MAHOMEDAN EDUCATION.—A special meeting of the Anjuman-i-Islam of Bombay was held on May 5, when it was resolved that subscription lists should be at once opened in aid of Mahomedan education. A committee of the leading members of each Mussulman community in Bombay was appointed for the purpose of raising funds, headed by Kazee Abdool Luteef Saheb Londay. It was also resolved that the managing committee of the Anjuman should be authorised and empowered to appoint a special committee for the purpose of organising the proposed school, managing the funds, giving effect to the terms of the Government resolution, and generally to do everything that may be necessary or expedient to advance the cause of Mahomedan education in Bombay.—Times of India.

A WELL-EARNED HONOUR.—Major Portman, inspector general of registration, recently performed a very interesting ceremony in presenting to Mr. Byramjee Dadabhoy, the registrar of Bombay, the sanad of the Viceroy of India conferring upon him as a personal distinction the title of Khan Bahadur. The distinction is with many a coveted one, and in the case of Mr. Byramjee has been acknowledged to be well deserved. Twenty-seven years of honest, meritorious service are said to have gained for him the good opinion of all his official superiors and the respect and esteem of members of the general public who have had to transact business with him in his official capacity. Commencing life as a confidential clerk in the Political and Secret Departments of the secretariat, he was specially selected for high posts in the Police Department; and in 1865, on the organisation of the Registration Department, Bombay, was appointed deputy registrar, Fort of Calaba, being subsequently promoted to the office of registrar of Bombay, in which latter position he is acknowledged to have done good service to the State from 1866 up to the present time, in the course of which period successive inspectors general of registration had (as Major Portman justly remarked) testified to the honesty and integrity of his character, and the ability with which he has performed his duties. The newly-created Khan Bahadur is also registrar of joint-stock companies and registrar of marriages under the Parsee Marriage and Divorce Act, being also a delegate of the Parsee Chief Matrimonial Court, a justice of the peace, and a member of the Municipal Corporation, elected by her Majesty's justices of the peace.—Bombay Gazette.

NOTES FROM DHARWAR.—From the 1st of June the Cotton Department in this South Mahratta Country will be a thing of the past, and the cotton inspector and his subordinates will no longer be objects of terror to the fraudulent adulterator of the staple. But in this part of the Bombay Presidency the cotton inspector has, besides looking after cotton, to look after the machines used in cleaning it. All over the Dharwar district are Government factories for repairing and putting into proper order the saw-gins belonging to cotton owners and others, and I and many others are wondering what will be done with them. Will some enterprising private company step in and buy up the whole lot, and do for the cotton saw-gin owners what the cotton inspector, or superintendent of these factories, has been doing for many years past. So far as I can learn, these factories are supported by yearly subscriptions from the gin owners, who, however, pay besides, I believe, for the actual labour and material used in the repairs of these saw-gins. These factories are thus, so to speak, self-supporting institutions, though only so far as the actual working establishment and material are concerned. The superintendent's pay is included in that of the cotton inspector, and no pecuniary provision is thus allowed for superintendence. After reading in one of your late issues the result of some careful experiments carried out a few years ago in the cleaning of a good many varieties of cotton grown in this Presidency I came to the conclusion that the Dharwar cotton saw-gin was not the machine best adapted for its work here, but it was probably just a question of the right kind of saw that should be used, and this experience would, no doubt, soon point out. However, as regards these saw-gin factories we are all wondering what will be done with them after the 1st proximo; whether the present cotton inspector will be deputed still to supervise their working, or whether they will be advertised for sale or hire to any private company that might feel inclined to risk capital in working them.—Bombay Gazette.

THE CURRENCY AT GOA.—A convention which has received the sanction of the Viceroy of India and the Governor General of Goa will come into force from Nov. 1 next equalising in almost every respect the Goa currency of silver and copper with that of British India, except that the effigy which the coins will bear will be of the King of Portugal. The new coin will be a legal tender throughout British India. The Bombay Mint will coin without any charge any amount of silver and copper for a period of three and five years respectively. Besides, the British Government agree to advance for every eighteen months ten lakhs of rupees, which are to be repaid within two months.—Bombay Gazette.

INFANTILE MARRIAGES.—A certain caste of Hindus in Gujerat believe in the custom of celebrating marriages at a particular season which occurs once only in every twelve years. They are going through the season now, and it is believed that some bridegrooms only a few days old will carry to the hymeneal altar brides younger still, it possible. It is reported that a granddaughter of Rao Bahadur Becherdas Ambaidas was married last week to a bridegroom so small that he had to be carried by a person in a palanquin when he went to fetch his bride. If we mistake not, the Rao Bahadur is an ex-member of the local Legislative Council, to which and other distinctions he is said to have been nominated for his advanced and enlightened views.—Bombay Gazette.

THE HOLKAR AND SINDIA-NEEMUCH STATE RAILWAYS. —The statement for the month of March shows that there has been an increase in the receipts from cotton, cocoanuts, seeds, and tobacco during the month, but a decrease in those from fruits, ghee, and oil, piece goods, rice (husked), salt, ganja, and general goods, which is due to the Hindu New Year falling in March last year and April this year, during which period the demands are greater owing to marriage ceremonies, &c. The decrease in firewood is due to the supply for Mhow depot this year being smaller than that of last year. Iron, &c.: The decrease in this traffic is owing to the large consignments of machinery conveyed last year for the Indore mills. Opium: The crops this year are below the average, and hence the falling off in this traffic. The month's operations show a net decrease of 2,355 tons in the quantity carried and Rs.21,065 in the receipts.—Ibid.

THE VOLUNTEERS.—Major Fraser Hore has withdrawn the resignation of his commission in the Bombay Volunteer Corps. We hear that the Bombay Government, after considering the proceedings of the court of inquiry, have ordered the name of Sergeant Herbert to be struck off the rolls of the Bombay Volunteer Corps.—Times of India.

THE GOVERNOR'S MOVEMENTS.—We understand that after the Puna season Government House, Parell, will be again occupied by the Governor of Bombay. Sir James Fergusson has given Rs.1,000 for a "Governor's cup" to be competed for at Puna races on Sept. 18.—Ibid.

TRADE IN MAHI KANTA.—From a report presented to the Bombay Government by the political agent, Mahi Kanta, it appears that at the recent Khèd-Brahma fair goods to the value of Rs.47,867 only changed hands, as compared with Rs.86,621 worth sold in 1879. In a resolution, dated May 7, his Excellency the Governor in Council expresses regret at the paucity of traders at the fair and the large falling off in business.—Times of India.

PASSENGER TRAFFIC.—We learn from the half-yearly statement of the chief auditor and accountant, Mr. J. O'Connell, that the total number of passengers conveyed by the B.B. and C.I. Railway during the half-year ending December 31 last was 4,681,006, the amount realised being Rs.19,24,746. The larger number of passengers travelled from, or stopped at, the Grant-road station. The cost of working of this station was more than that of any other on the line. The total revenue of the railway amounted to Rs.49,54,426, which shows a decrease in comparison with the corresponding period of the preceding year.—Times of India.

TREACHER AND CO. (LIMITED).—At the sixteenth general meeting, held on May 13, a dividend of 15½ per cent. was declared. As it was considered that the Byculla and Puna properties were overvalued in the company's books it was agreed to write off the profits Rs.20,000 in the Byculla and Rs.10,000 in the Puna establishment. The profits of the past year amounted to nearly 22 per cent.—Times of India.

SERIOUS BOILER EXPLOSION AT PARELL.—A boiler explosion involving the death of three men, and serious injury to six others, took place May 12 at the Prince of Wales spinning and weaving mill at Parell.—Times of India.

MAJOR HENRY DANIELL.—Major Daniell is at last obliged to take leave to England on medical certificate. He has had a great deal of exposure lately in hunting down the dacoits, and we do not wonder that he finds the need of rest now. We hardly understand the fact that Major Daniell has had no honour or reward conferred upon him for the gallantry displayed by him in the capture of Wassudeo and several other leaders of the dacoits. Men who have not done a tenth part of his service have been loaded with honours, while he seems likely to be left out in the cold.—Deccan Herald.

CONSULS AT ADEN.—The appointment of Mr. J. S. Williams to be consular agent for the United States of America at Aden has been recognised by the Viceroy. The appointment of Mr. J. Woodtli to be acting consul for Germany at the same place has also been recognised, subject to the confirmation of the home Government.—Times of India.

CEYLON.

WE take the following from the Ceylon Times of May 1:—

WEATHER AND CROPS.—The weather has continued a source of extreme anxiety to everyone, for on it we all feel depends the extent of the coffee crop. It was known beyond doubt that, owing to an unusual abundance of electricity in the atmosphere, and perhaps to some other cause, leaf disease has all but disappeared; the trees have had a respite from the lowering effects of the pest, and are all in the finest possible condition for bearing. There is no doubt that estates as a rule were never in better bearing condition than at the present time; the trees are full of good healthy wood, which requires but proper weather to put forward an abundance of blossom. The needful weather has, however, not come, and the wood, instead of ripening into blossom, has put forward a continued growth of leaf. Until the present time we had hoped that a few weeks of hot, dry weather would have accomplished what was desired, but a continuance of moist, showery weather compels us to give up all hopes of any further blossom, beyond an occasional show of flower, for it is now too late to calculate on a May blossom, which has been known at very rare intervals and under very exceptional circumstances.

EXPORTS OF COFFEE.—To date the exports of coffee amount to 471,875 cwt., as against 643,183 cwt. at the same period of last year.

THE PEARL FISHERY.—Private letters from Silavatorrai speak of the fishing operations being entirely suspended by the strong southerly winds prevailing, which prevented the boats going out to the banks. Since that date, however, the unusually strong sea breezes have taken their departure, and we expect to hear very shortly of fishing being resumed with continued good results. There is no reason whatever why the total yield to the colonial revenue should not come up to Rs.250,000 going a good way to compensate for the deficiency in railway receipts, though we do not forget that the working expenses of the fishing have to be deducted from the gross receipts. We believe the native traders will make considerable sums by pearls, of which there is every reason to rejoice, as it will be the means of attracting a large attendance at next day's fishing.

THE Ceylon Times of May 7 states that the prospects of the crops are much improved. The pearl fishery has been brought to a close by the weather. The amount realised is Rs.200,000. Up to date the exports of coffee amount to 473,790 cwts., as against 643,183 cwts. last year.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 2, 1880.

THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF AND THE ARMY COMMISSION.

IN a necessarily brief notice of the elaborate minute fulminated by H.E. the Commander in Chief in India against the report of the Army Commission we stated that, to use his own words, "he is opposed to most of the general principles advocated in the report." It may be added that the reasons of his opposition are set forth in a carefully-reasoned document, which requires close and attentive perusal, and which must exercise great, if not decisive, weight. There is a soldier-like frankness in the introductory remarks. Sir F. P. Haines says plainly that he opposed the assembly of the Commission on grounds which subsequent events fully justified. The removal of Generals Roberts and Macpherson, and Colonels Baker and M'Gregor, commenced the disintegration of the original body as constituted by the Government of India. The fact that the strong body of military opinion which was originally intended to be brought to bear upon the subjects considered by the Commission was not available, or only available in a fitful manner, is prominently brought out by the Commander in Chief, who is sure that if the full Commission could have revised the report in detail the result would have been very different. He is evidently of opinion that the opportunity was seized for carrying through a report which the consensus of the experienced military authorities would have condemned, and which he both personally and officially considers not only erroneous, but injurious to "the competent officers capable of understanding the requirements of military position in India, who have been at the head of our armies." He indignantly declares that it is implied that none such have existed, and sarcastically predicts many failures under the army corps commanders of the future for whom the assertion of thorough competence is reserved. We have to refer to the paragraphs headed "Staff" to discover a key to the evident bitterness with which the Commander in Chief writes of those whose opinions he dissents from. The Commission, deprived of its ablest military members, continued its sittings contrary to his advice. But that was not all. In discussing the question of an amalgamated staff, from which no possible advantage is, in his opinion, to be derived, Sir F. P. Haines takes occasion to remark "that it never occurred to him that the operations of the first Afghan war could be brought to a close without the Commander in Chief taking the field." And it was as a provision for such a contingency that he recommended the appointment of General Lumsden as chief of the staff, which appointment was refused by the Government of India. We are far from saying that personal motives actuated the opposition of the Commander in Chief to the military changes recommended by the Commission, but the introduction of the words quoted into a State paper shows that he has not only felt, but desires to make it public, that he has felt his exclusion from any active share in the campaign. He is most careful, however, when dealing with the future position and functions of the Commander in Chief in India under the proposed regime, to point out that the objectionable changes are not likely to take effect during his own term of office. Therefore he cannot be considered as regarding from a selfish standpoint the proposed changes. If the armies of India be organised on the basis of four army corps, commanded by four lieutenant generals, to them must be delegated full power to dispose of all possible details connected with their forces; then, says the present holder of that high office, "the commander in chief in reality ceases to exist." He becomes a commander without an army, an imposing personage withdrawn from the field and relegated to the bureau. He is to confine his visits of inspection to the large military centres of India and to camps of exercise. The Commander in Chief cuttingly remarks that at present he does not, as represented, expend his energies on the annual inspection of troops, and that camps of exercise are events of rare occurrence. In Madras during five years, he saw one. Since 1876 there has been no such thing in Bengal. The Chief is careful to uphold as useful the present custom of inspection, whenever the cold weather tour brings him to military stations, although it is not "an annual official inspection;" these visits identify the Chief with the army and furnish him with a knowledge of it the privilege of obtaining which no commander in chief would forego. If Sir Paul Haines is indignant at being misrepresented as to these visits of inspection, which are not an official employment, but a privilege of which the official head of the Indian army ought not to be deprived, he vents his bitterest scorn on the disclaimer by the Commission of any attempt to diminish his substantive power and authority. The Commission puts forth a statement of duties reserved for him which are in reality delegated to the lieutenant generals. Nay, more; H.E. charges this carefully-detailed statement with being drawn up in such a manner as to mislead the casual reader and make him imagine they have been hitherto neglected. He vindicates himself and his staff from the accusation which is implied, that they had systematically neglected the equipment, training, and discipline of the army in time of peace. Another cause of quarrel is that the report infers that the questions connected with field equipment, transport, and general mobilisation have not been studied, and emergencies have not been duly provided for. The report urges their importance; the Chief retorts that "under the present unregenerate system of army administration" all has been as well and promptly done as it could possibly be under the proposed system. Again, the minute contains the most determined opposition offered to the recommendation that the Commander in Chief should cease to be a member of the Legislative Council. In the relations which have existed hitherto, Sir F. P. Haines avers that there has been but little room for the exercise of recriminations and bitter discussion. His experience at least can furnish him with no such instance. It is, however, plain, from the comparisons instituted between the methods of transacting military business in Madras and Bombay, and that of the Government of India, that the Commander in Chief finds a cause of friction arising out of the existence of the Military Member of Council. This, however, is only suggested, and the possible anomaly which may occur of the Commander in Chief in India superseding the presidential Commander in Chief is declared to be one that may occur, but which the mutual courtesy and good feeling prevalent among the officers of the British and Indian armies reduce to the lowest degree of probability. It affords no reason in his mind for even weakening his strongly pronounced determination to uphold the presidential system of army administration as it exists at present. In his opinion "the existence of three separate governments, and of three separate armies under them, is a distinct source of safety and power to the State, which a mere army corps, lightly connected with the local power and reporting to a distinct, unseen, and somewhat mythical superior could not give." The Commander in Chief expresses thus his absolute dissent from the conclusions of the Army Commission. He seems also to imply dissatisfaction with things as they are. But that change and so-called improvement should have as its outcome the perfect realisation of the "War Lord," whom Sir Ali Baba so epigrammatically describes, is to him intolerable, and though the existing regime may have furnished some lines for the caricaturist to construct his laughable sketch upon, the carrying into effect of the report of the Commission, if we accept the arguments (and they are able and clear) and the conclusions of Sir F. P. Haines, would, in effect, make the office of the Commander in Chief a nullity and his Excellency an ornamental lay figure.

PUNJAB SANITARY ADMINISTRATION.—In his review on the sanitary administration report of the Punjab during 1878 his Honour the Lieutenant Governor says that Dr. Bellew considers that if what is recommended for the safety and well-being of the community be carried out by municipalities it is safe to predict that the individual will quickly follow suit in adopting what is required by his personal interest. This remark appears to the Lieutenant Governor to postulate a great deal too much, and to lose sight altogether of the point in social development at which the towns and villages of the province stand. His Honour says the Government must wait for an improvement in general intelligence before the people can carry out the necessary sanitary improvements inside their dwelling-houses. —Times of India.

THE CASE OF TUNKU ALLUM.—The charge against Iuche Awang Ibrahim, private secretary to Tunku Allum, son of the late Sultan Ali of Johore, of waging war against H.H. the Maharaja of Johore, the ally of her Majesty the Queen, for the possession of Muar territory, is still in course of investigation, and the prisoner is in gaol, bail being sternly refused for such a dangerous character. The general impression is that the authorities are in a quandary what to do in the matter, and that the Attorney General is at his wit's end how to get them out of the scrape, as it is feared, if the case goes before the Supreme Court, they may get no jury to convict, and that the result will be a ridiculous fiasco, of small credit to the British Government and no good to its pet, the Maharaja of Johore.—Straits Times.

HOME NEWS.

WANDERERS' CLUB.—The annual general meeting of the members of the Wanderers' Club, Pall-mall, took place on Monday, the 24th ult. The report was read by the secretary, Mr. C. W. E. Pineo, stating that the number of members was 1,575 for the year ending April 30, of whom 450 were members of her Majesty's services at home and abroad. The president, Lord Headley, moved, and Lieut. Gen. Raines, C.B., seconded, the adoption of the report. Mr. W. R. Benson, late of the Indian Civil Service, Major Gen. Manning, and Mr. Stacpoole were elected on the committee, and the proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the president and committee.

THE INSTITUTION OF CIVIL ENGINEERS.—At the concluding meeting of this society for the session 1879-80, held on Tuesday, May 25—Mr. W. H. Barlow, F.R.S., president, in the chair—it was announced that the last ballot for the session resulted in the election of six members, among whom were:—Robert Allen Cordner, executive engineer, P.W.D., India; James Thornloe Smith, engineer in charge of railway surveys, Toowoomba, Queensland; of eleven associate members, including:—Henry James Oddie, Stud. Inst. C.E., assistant engineer, P.W.D., India; and of Lieut. Col. George Edward Langham Somerset Sanford, R.E., Calcutta, as an associate. During the session there had been an effective increase of seventy-eight members, eighty associate members, one associate, one honorary member, and seventy-nine students; bringing up the numbers of those several classes to 1,218, 1,301, 583, eighteen, and 663 respectively, or a gross total of 3,783, and representing an increase in the past twelve months at the rate of 5 per cent.

EASTERN BENGAL RAILWAY COMPANY.—The report of the directors for the half-year ending Dec. 31 last states that the gross earnings from the railway and steamer traffic were £243,963, as compared with £231,128, and the net earnings £146,233, as compared with £140,551. The number of passengers carried by the railway, exclusive of steamers, was 913,370, as against 995,723, and the quantity of goods carried by the railway, exclusive of steamers and of revenue stores carried free, was 206,706 tons, as compared with 168,876 tons. The net earnings were larger than those of any other previous half-year except the corresponding half-year of 1877; and the profits in excess of guaranteed interest, after deducting £2,230, the contribution to the provident fund, amounted to £66,998. The Government consulting engineer made his certificate as to the proper maintenance of the line dependent on the requirements of Government in respect of relaying a portion with steel rails being duly carried out with the concurrence of the board. The portion referred to was that between Sealdah and Barrackpore, a distance of fourteen miles, where the traffic was exceptionally heavy. The total cost of relaying this portion was estimated at £16,700, and, deducting the value of the rails taken up, the net cost to be borne by revenue would be £9,100. They recommended that £6,000 of the present surplus should be set aside towards meeting this expenditure, which would still allow, at the present rate of exchange, a surplus dividend to be paid to the shareholders on June 30 equal to that paid at the corresponding date of last year—£1 5s. per cent., in addition to the guaranteed interest, making with it a total of £3 15s. per cent. for the half-year. The traffic with the Northeren Bengal State Railway continued to increase. During the first sixteen weeks of the current half-year the gross earnings of the company amounted to £113,593, as compared with £105,375. The total expenditure on capital account to Dec. 31, including £92,257 for stores, was £3,234,990, leaving a credit balance of £9,860. At the meeting on Monday the report was adopted.

INDIAN RELIEFS.—We announced some months ago that the infantry battalions likely to proceed to India in the season 1880-81 would be the 1st Battalion 23rd Fusiliers, 77th, 1st Battalion Rifle Brigade, 38th, and 41st. The official programme is now completed, and the first four are under orders of readiness for the East. The departure of the 41st is, however, left somewhat uncertain, and will depend upon the number of battalions brought home from India. Those whose return may be looked upon as officially settled are the 2nd Battalion Royal Scots, 1st Battalion 5th Fusiliers, 59th, 73rd (all of which would have come home last season but for the hostilities in Afghanistan) the 1st Battalion 6th from Aden, the 83rd, 2nd Battalion 60th Rifles, 92nd, and 85th, with probably, but not certainly, the 48th. When these reliefs shall have taken place the British infantry in India will be at its normal establishment of fifty battalions. But in the event of the report of the Indian Army Commission being adopted that establishment would be further reduced by seven battalions, or to forty-three in all. After the 48th the seven battalions standing next for return home are the 62nd, 1st Battalion 21st, 39th, 1st Battalion 17th, 66th, 81st, and 89th. These regiments, except the 83rd, 85th, 39th, 66th, and 81st, have their linked battalions also abroad, thus in each particular instance marring the working of the new system under which, in a pair of linked battalions, one should be at home when the other is upon foreign service. In the cavalry the only regiment actually ordered home is the 15th Hussars, which, on arrival, will be quartered at Shorncliffe, but it is understood that the 10th Hussars may also possibly come to England. The relieving regiment may be either the King's Dragoon Guards from South Africa or the Inniskilling Dragoons now at Norwich. In the artillery, one battery of Horse Artillery, the D Battery, C Brigade, will go out, relieving the I Battery, C Brigade, and eight batteries of artillery will take the place of twelve batteries now on the Indian establishment. Those going out are the B and G Batteries of the 1st Brigade, the K, L, M, N, and O Batteries of the 3rd Brigade, and No. 4 Battery 9th Brigade, while those returning to England are the A, B, C, D, E, F, G, and H Batteries 3rd Brigade, 9, 10, and 14 Batteries of the 8th Brigade, and No. 2 Battery 9th Brigade, Royal Artillery. The 4th Dragoon Guards, from York, and the 4th Hussars from Shorncliffe will, with the 7th Dragoon Guards, form the cavalry brigade at Aldershot next winter, the 11th Hussars being moved to Hounslow and the 5th Dragoon Guards to a southern station. The cavalry regiments to assemble at Aldershot for the summer drill season will include the 1st Life Guards from Windsor, the 5th Lancers from Woolwich, and the 18th Hussars, from Hounslow.—Times.

LIEUT. COL. J. F. BETTY, Royal Artillery, of the 1st Brigade at Kirkee, has been ordered home on appointment as chief instructor at the School of Gunnery, Shoeburyness, in succession to Lieut. Col. and Brevet Col. R. Curtis, Royal Artillery, promoted.

INVALIDS AT WOOLWICH.—Several batches of invalids have recently arrived at Woolwich, chiefly from India, many of whom have served in the Afghan campaign, and have been either wounded or invalided. There are at the present time more sick and wounded men in the garrison than has been the case since the Crimean war.—Times.

DOST ALI KHAN.—In this probate case, the particulars of which we published in our last, Sir James Hannen on Tuesday last said that the competent tribunals in Persia had declared that the applicant was entitled to certain moneys belonging to his father, which were in the Bank of England, and he therefore ordered that direct administration be granted to the applicant, limited, however, to the property strictly referred to and specified in the decree of the Persian judge, assuming the translation of that decree which he had before him to be a correct one.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION.—The directors report that the new vessels ordered are making satisfactory progress. The loss of the Hindostan and Travancore within a very short time of each other, and before any of the new steamers which were then being built could be put into active service, caused very considerable inconvenience to the company, though, owing to the measures at once taken to fill up the gaps made on the respective lines on which these vessels were employed, not an hour's interruption occurred in any part of the mail service. The company's new mail contracts for Italy, India, China, and Australia commenced on the 1st February. The contract with the Government of Italy for the service between Venice and Brindisi received the formal sanction of the Italian Parliament in December last. The amount of debentures which have still to be paid off is now only £28,500, and as the bonds fall due repayment will be made. In their reports for the four half-years previous to the present one the directors had always to repeat the same remark, namely, that a continuance of bad trade lowered freights so much that the company's revenue continued steadily to decline—a result which culminated in a diminution of £240,000 in the income of the last financial year, ending September 30, 1879, as compared with the revenue two years previously. The directors are, however, glad to report a change for the better, and they trust that the result of the whole year's operations may manifest a considerable improvement compared with the downward tendency of freights against which the company, in common with all shipowners, have had to contend. Looking to the operations of the half-year the directors recommend a dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, the warrants for which will be payable, free of income-tax, on and after the 24th instant.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—On Wednesday, May 26, tenders were received at the Bank of England for Rs.35,00,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, Rs.25,15,000; to Bombay, Rs.97,300; and to Madras, Rs.12,000. Tenders on all Presidencies at 1s. 8d. received about 81 per cent. compared with the previous week. This price showed no change. The same amount was tendered for to-day (Wednesday).

INDIA IN PARLIAMENT.

PETITIONS.

The Earl of GALLOWAY presented a petition from persons in Somersetshire complaining of the appointment of the Marquis of Ripon as Viceroy of India and of the Earl of Kenmare as Lord Chamberlain. The noble earl said he merely presented this petition as one of their lordships, believing that it was his duty as a member of the House to do so; but within the last twenty-four hours he had refused to be chairman of a meeting that was called to protest against these appointments.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY.

PETITIONS.

Petitions against appointments of Roman Catholics to high offices of State were presented by Mr. Torrens from Wem Union, also from Cheltenham, Worcester, Norrington, Ufford, Watford, Stamford (4), Loose, Ventry, and Ashbourne; by Mr. G. W. E. Russell, from Baptist Church of Dinton; by Mr. Long, from Trowbridge; by Mr. Childers, from Ferrybridge; and by Sir J. R. Bailey, from Bodenham.

THE VICEROY AND THE JESUITS.

In a reply to Mr. Macartney, who asked what truth there was in the rumour that Lord Ripon was a member of the Order of Jesuits, Mr. GLADSTONE remarked that mere rumour was hardly sufficient basis for such a question, but as a matter of fact he understood that Lord Ripon was not a Jesuit, and did not possess the requisite qualifications of membership.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—FRIDAY.

PETITIONS.

Lord ORANMORE and BROWNE presented petitions from the inhabitants of Salperton, Cheltenham, All Saints, Newmarket, Steeple Gidding, Maida-hill, Westleigh, near Bideford, Yeovil, Somerby, near Halifax, Lambeth, Leamington, and Doncaster, also from gentlemen holding official positions in connection with religious societies, against the appointment of a Roman Catholic Viceroy of India, &c.

THE APPOINTMENT OF THE VICEROY.

Lord ORANMORE and BROWNE, in bringing under the notice of the House the appointment of Lord Ripon, a Roman Catholic, as Governor General of India, said he feared, from the course taken by certain members of the House in repudiating sympathy in petitions presented by them against the appointment, that the subject was not a very palatable one in that assembly. The reason it was not palatable was that both parties in the State felt it necessary to court the Roman Catholic vote, which was somewhat divided, and that Roman Catholicism and Ritualism had made great social and political advances. He did not regard the answer given by Mr. Gladstone to a protest sent to him against this appointment as at all satisfactory. The Governor General of India had a great deal to do with the appointment of chaplains in that Empire, and the present Pope, who was supposed to be more Liberal than his predecessor, had refused to hold communication with the Italian Government because it allowed liberty of worship. It was remarkable that no single constituency in Great Britain had returned a Roman Catholic as its representative in the other House. He relied on Mr. Gladstone's authority, as appearing in his pamphlets, to show that the Irish Roman Catholic bishops exercised an undue influence in the public affairs of this country, and that they did so in obedience to the behests of the Pope. In conclusion, the noble lord asked whether the Prime Minister adhered to the statements in his pamphlets, or meant to apologise to the Roman Catholics; or, if he adhered to those statements, how he would explain the appointment of Lord Ripon, who, "if any conflict arise between the Pope and the Queen, intends to follow the Pope, and let the Queen shift for herself."

Lord GRANVILLE thought that, holding the opinions he had professed, Lord Oranmore could not be blamed for having brought forward this subject; but he did complain of the mode in which the noble lord had submitted it to the House. The noble lord had read disjointed sentences from Mr. Gladstone's pamphlets, and on those had sought to found arguments against the appointment. Again, the noble lord spoke as if the Catholic Emancipation Act had never been passed. All offices, with infinitesimal exceptions, were now open to Roman Catholics; and the appointment of a Roman Catholic to the Viceroyalty of India was no violation of either the letter or the spirit of the law. The Queen had 300,000,000 of subjects in India. Out of these only 2,000,000 were Christians, and the great majority of these were professing Roman Catholics. Lord Ripon's neighbours in this country, who ought to know him best, had presented an address, congratulating him on his appointment, and among those who joined in the address were Protestant clergymen. In his staff appointments Lord Ripon had not favoured the members of his own Church, and, even if he were inclined to do so, he could not make use of his position to the injury of the Protestant religion. Lord Granville, in conclusion, expressed his opinion that the spirit which had actuated the Prime Minister in discarding considerations of religious differences would do much more for the maintenance of the religion which this country professes than a policy such as that which would be adopted by those who in this matter acted with Lord Oranmore.

Lord NAPIER and ETTRICK did not doubt that Lord Ripon would act with perfect impartiality, but as some might think differently, he affirmed, even if the noble marquis had a very different disposition and intentions, he still could do no harm to the Protestant interest in India. For that belief he would give a few reasons. Protestant interests in India consisted, first, of an official establishment paid for out of the Indian revenues for the religious worship of the military and civil services in India; and of the Protestant missions, subsidised and supported by the Government, as educational and philanthropic agencies. The relations of the Governor General towards the Protestant establishment were altogether partial and exceptional. As to the mission establishments, it was rather the local Governments of Madras, Bombay, and the North West Provinces that had to deal with them. Whatever relations there were with the Governor General they were strictly governed by regulations which he had no power to alter. All changes must come before the local Governments and also before his Council, which was substantially Protestant. If these were overruled, anything that was done would be subject to correction by the Secretary of State; and therefore it was almost impossible that the Governor General could, in any circumstances, carry out a change to the prejudice of Protestant interests in India. Suppose that by some artifice or audacity he succeeded, how little he could effect in five years, at the expiration of which time any prejudicial change could be abrogated by his successor. Indeed, there was not so much to fear from the action of a Roman Catholic Viceroy as in some circumstances there might be to fear from a Protestant Viceroy. The Viceroy who acted with the greatest severity towards Protestant establishments was Lord Mayo, who had very decided Protestant sympathies, and whose character was distinguished by Christian charity in the broadest sense. He was able to act towards the Protestant establishments in India in a manner a Roman Catholic Viceroy would have had difficulty in doing. A Roman Catholic Viceroy must necessarily be in favour of religious agencies for secular instruction and of necessary establishments. It was natural he should be peculiarly favourable to the establishments of his own religion, but if he desired to act justly and liberally by Roman Catholic missions—which had a very high claim in India to our sympathy—he must be prepared to act with equal liberality and justice to Protestant missions. It was impossible that a Viceroy could set up one standard for one branch and another for another branch, or that he should be able to give an advantage to Catholics over Protestants. If it were said that Protestant missions, while spared from direct attack, might be doomed to languish for five years, he did not believe that could be; for the Viceroy had nothing to do with them officially except as educational and philanthropic instruments. In that sense he believed the present Viceroy would take a deep and keen interest equally in Roman Catholic and Protestant missions.

Lord NORTHBROOK, as the result of his experience while filling the office of Viceroy, expressed his concurrence in what had been said by Lord Napier. Among the Christians of India there was general harmony; and, if the appointment of a Roman Catholic to the office of Viceroy had any effect at all, it would have an advantageous one. He commended the policy of appointing the best man irrespective of religion, and regretted those small sectarian differences which would interfere with a career which he trusted and believed would be of substantial benefit, not only to this country, but to the natives of India.

Lord STANLEY of ALDERLEY asked the Secretary of State for the colonies for explanations as to the domiciliary visit recently made in the house of Tunku Alum of Muar at Singapore and the circumstances connected with that subject.

The Earl of KIMBERLEY said that the information received at the Colonial-office was that the Colonial Government at Singapore had thought it necessary to take proceedings against the secretary of Tunku Alum, and he concluded that this domiciliary visit was connected with these proceedings. Upon the despatch containing that information being received his predecessor at the Colonial-office telegraphed to the Governor of the colony to send over particulars. These particulars had not yet arrived, and, therefore, he could not give any information on the question. The same despatch mentioned that disturbances had occurred, but no details had arrived, and they were waiting to receive them. With regard to Mr. Reed, the Government highly appreciated the services of that gentleman, who was well known at the Straits Settlements and occupied an important position there, and he would be very glad to hear that Mr. Reed found it possible to return to the service of the Government. He would take care, when the papers were before him, if there was any ground for inquiry, that it should be made.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FRIDAY

PETITIONS.

Petitions against the recent appointments of Lord Chamberlain and Governor General of India were presented by Mr. A. Armitstead, from the Dundee Protestant Association; by Sir E. Wilmot, from Leamington; by Sir R. A. Cross, from Astley; and by Sir H. Drummond Wolff, from Bournemouth. Petitions were also presented by Lord Elcho, from Major General C. H. Cookes, retired Royal (late Bengal) Artillery, Major General H. V. Timbrell, retired Royal (late Bengal) Artillery, and Major General G. R. Brown, retired Royal (late Bengal) Artillery, complaining of the awards of the Army Purchase Commissioners as not being in accordance with the ruling of the Act, and praying for inquiry.

HOUSE OF LORDS.—MONDAY.

Lord ORANMORE and BROWNE presented petitions, condemning the appointment of the Marquis of Ripon, from Edinburgh Working Men's Association; from the parish and neighbourhood of Walmsey, Warwickshire; and from the Working Men's Protestant League, Aldermanbury.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

PERSIA AND HERAT.

In answer to Mr. A. Arnold, who asked for information with respect to the Shah's obligation under Article 6 of the Treaty of 1857 to relinquish his claim to Herat, Sir C. DILKE said that her Majesty's Government has had under their consideration the communications between her Majesty's late advisers and the Government of Persia. Those communications did not lead to any practical result, and her Majesty's Government were not disposed to revive them; although they would gladly see the city of Herat and the neighbouring territory under a more settled form of government. The communications with the Persian Government have been of a confidential character, and her Majesty's Government doubted whether any of the papers could be presented to Parliament at present.

CHAPLAINS IN INDIA.

Replying to Mr. Baxter, the Marquis of HARTINGTON said that the annual ecclesiastical expenditure of the Indian Government was £180,131, which was expected to be reduced this year. He also said—There are a few stations to which chaplains were allotted where, according to the return, "few or no officials" attend church, but such chaplains are charged with "out stations" requiring periodical visits, and have other duties to perform which are mentioned by the Bishop and by the Archdeacon of Calcutta in his "General Remarks" contained on pages fifty-four and fifty-five of the return. I am not aware that there has been any complaint that her Majesty's subjects in India who are not Christians are taxed to provide clergymen for European or Eurasian residents. Undoubtedly it is the case that at some stations persons altogether unconnected with the Government avail themselves of the ministrations of the Government chaplains. I do not think it would be possible or desirable, however, that these chaplains should be precluded from attending to the spiritual wants of other persons than those employed by Government, although of course they are primarily intended to minister to the spiritual wants of officers in the service of the Government. I am quite willing to make inquiry as to whether chaplains are appointed where they are not really required.

SALARIES OF INDIAN OFFICIALS.

Sir D. WEDDERBURN asked the Secretary of State for India whether he could state the probable date at which certain returns as to the salaries of Indian officials, covenanted and uncovenanted, European and native, would be laid upon the table of the House.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said that the orders of the House of Commons were forwarded on July 17, with a despatch inquiring as to probable money and time involved. On Jan. 2 a return prepared in the India-office was sent to be filled up, and no replies to inquiries as to probable date of returns had been received.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

MILITARY DISTINCTIONS.

Lord WAVENEY asked the Under Secretary of State for War

whether the details of the death of Lieut. Thurlow, of the 51st Regiment, had been correctly reported in the public press, and whether it was proposed to recommend that any special mark of her Majesty's favour be conferred upon his surviving comrade, Lieut. Reid, of the same regiment. The noble lord expressed his opinion that few more gallant deeds than that reported of Lieut. Reid had ever been done even by British officers.

The Earl of MORLEY, in reply to the question, said that the noble lord had given a substantially accurate account of the circumstances of Lieut. Thurlow's murder and of the behaviour of Lieut. Reid on that occasion. Lieut. Reid behaved admirably, and gave proof of that courage and presence of mind in which British officers were rarely found wanting. (Hear, hear.) The Commander in Chief in India, in forwarding the despatches which described this sad event, noted Lieut. Reid's gallant conduct, but made no special recommendation on his behalf, and his Royal Highness the Field Marshal Commanding in Chief did not consider that any particular mark of her Majesty's favour was called for by the circumstances reported.

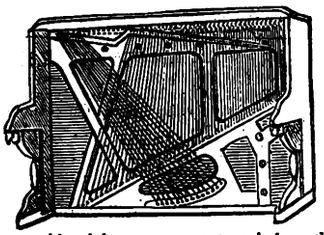
PATENT STEEL FRAME

SHORT GRAND PIANOS,

SIX FEET LONG, IN ELEGANT ROSEWOOD OR WALNUT CASES,



Are considered by all who have heard them to combine a greater amount and resonance of tone, consistent with adaptability of size, shape, and elegance of appearance than those of any other manufacturer.

KIRKMAN AND SON'S

OVERSTRUNG

GRAND AND COTTAGE PIANOS.

Is being considered by some competent judges that the German method of over or cross-stringing Pianos is attended with great advantage, Messrs. Kirkman and Son are now manufacturing both Grand and Cottage Pianos on this principle, the latter having the plain Sticker Action, which is not the case with Pianos of this class manufactured by other makers; in fact, the extreme simplicity of the action used by Messrs. Kirkman and Son in all their Pianos render them eminently suitable for exportation to the Colonies, where skilled workmen are few and far between All useless checks and complications are carefully avoided, thus enabling any tuner, with however superficial a knowledge of the business, to regulate them or repair any damage they may sustain.

KIRKMAN AND SON

Have a reputation extending over nearly a Century and a-Half.

There are now in the possession of the house Harpsichords and Virginals dated 1758 and 1778, manufactured by Jacobus and Abraham Kirckman.

The present members of the firm beg to call the attention of shipppers and exporters to the fact that in ordering of this house they are dealing with a firm who manufacture on principles derived from experience of this almost unprecedented length.

KIRKMAN AND SON

Have at present a Fine Selection at their Extensive Show Rooms in Soho-square.

Says page 18 :—" Two pairs of boots lined with fur were also taken; and for physic—with which it is as well to be supplied when travelling in out-of-the-way places—some quinine and Cockle's Pills, the latter a most invaluable medicine, and one which I have used on the natives of Central Africa with the greatest possible success. In fact, the marvellous effects produced upon the mind and body of an Arab Sheik, who was impervious to all native medicines, when I administered to him five

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

FRIDAY, JUNE 11, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, May 22; Madras and Allahabad, May 20; Calcutta, May 19.

THE following is the report on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending May 11:—General remarks—Rain has fallen in Assam, Bengal, British Burma, and Madras; it was heavy in parts of Central and Eastern Bengal and in Sylhet. In Mysor, the North Western Provinces and Oudh, Rajputana, and the Punjab, the rain was slight and partial. In Bombay (with the exception of a fall of about one-third of an inch in Kanara), Berar, and Hyderabad, the Central Provinces and Central India States, there was no rain. Agricultural operations are proceeding satisfactorily. Agricultural prospects and public health remain good on the whole.

THE health reports for the same week are:—Bombay: Public health good, except in Sind, where fever and small-pox are prevalent; also fever in Surat districts. Bengal: Small-pox, cholera, and fever still in some places (Busseerhat and Baraset, Moorshedabad, Burdwan, and Cuttack), public health generally good. North West Provinces and Oudh: Cholera decreasing in Benares, Gorakhpur, Fyzabad, and Partabgarh, but still prevalent in Allahabad and Lucknow; some fever in Meerut and Lucknow; small-pox in Meerut district. Punjab: A little fever in Delhi, otherwise health good. Central Provinces: Small-pox continuing. British Burma: Small-pox prevalent in Pegu and Toungoo (twenty-one deaths in Rangoon), and some cholera and fever. Mysor and Coorg: Fever prevalent in parts. Central India States: Fever prevailing in Morar and Manpur; cholera in Rewah; otherwise good. Rajputana: Reports good. Katmandu: Cholera decreasing.

ACCORDING to a Reuter's telegram, dated Simla, June 10, General Donald Stewart has received orders to withdraw his forces with the least possible delay compatible with the health of the troops. It is desirable that Cabul should be evacuated not later than Oct. 31. Orders have also been given for the return to India of the surplus staff and the stores and ammunition which may not be required. It is believed that Gandamak and the Shaturgurdan Pass will be the extreme points remaining in British occupation.

THE Daily News Cabul correspondent says that Abdul Rahman has proclaimed Mazari Sharif the capital of Afghanistan for the time being. He still continues oppressing the people to raise money. The Uzbeg and Cabul troops are quarrelling. Turkestan is terrorised by the soldiery.

THE state of Afghanistan is described in the following telegram from the Cabul correspondent:—

"The state of Afghanistan generally is unusually tranquil. In no direction are there any serious disturbances. In Kohistan only has there been any excitement, and this has been due to the quarrels of the chiefs among themselves. The notorious chief, Mir Butcha, has increased his already infamous reputation by the murder of three of his cousins. Two were children, who belonged to the party opposed to him. From Ghazni, Wardak, Logar, and along the whole line of communications there has been no trouble reported. An expedition on June 6 crossed the Cabul river into Lughman to punish the raiders who carried off the Government cattle from Jellalabad last month. Another force has entered Kama, opposite Jellalabad, and is there restoring order, which had been disturbed by the Mollah Khaleel, who with his followers has fled the district. The southern portion of the Jellalabad district, in which the Mollah Fakeer has been giving trouble, is now quieter, and the people are growing tired of his exactions. In Tirah, the summer residence of the Afridi tribes, there is some commotion, which may result in trouble. In Khyber some robberies have already been committed on the road, and while I write news is received of an attack on the Lundi Kotal. The Ghilzai chiefs have been dismissed from Cabul, their land revenue assignments on the Cabul Government having been arranged. Padshah Khan, chief of the Ahmadzai Western Ghilzais, whose towers were lately destroyed, has offered an unconditional surrender."

A LETTER has been received by Col. St. John from Ibrahim Khan, the powerful and independent chief of Chaknasur, on the Persian frontier, tendering his allegiance and offering to send his son to Kandahar. He has hitherto been considered as our bitter enemy.

THE Marquis of Ripon arrived at Simla on Tuesday, and experienced a most cordial reception. Major White, military secretary, is officiating as private secretary.

THE monsoon burst at Bombay on Monday.

LIEUT. DIVE, 2-7th Fusiliers, was drowned whilst bathing at Kohundelani, in the Bolan, on the 1st inst.

IT is announced that Lieut. Cazalet, who commanded at Chappri when Lieut. Wood was killed by raiders, is under arrest.

SURG. D. J. MACDONALD, Indian Medical Department, has been dismissed the service for drunkenness at Fort Jumrood.

THERE is a want of news from Burma, but it seems certain that the rising headed by the Nyoungoke Prince has failed. The accounts, however, seem contradictory. A Rangoon letter, dated May 14, confirms the reports of human sacrifices and additional massacres of royal children. The population of Mandalay is asserted to have diminished by one-half. The Phoonghyees no longer abound in the streets.

A CABUL telegram reports the arrival of a number of Khokandis bearing letters inviting the late Ameer Khudayar Khan to return and head a revolt against the Russians. In the words of the author of "Central Asian Portraits," when describing his career," "It is impossible to say whether he has seen the last of his strange vicissitudes."

NOT content with the honour of the little war in Rampa, Madras seems to wish to imitate the financial difficulty also, as a deficit amounting to some thousands of rupees is announced to have been discovered in the accounts for the "Rampa rebellion." Apropos of this the Bombay Gazette thinks that, as orders have been issued to begin executing the rebels, the sedition will die out of itself. We hope it will be settled before the Duke of Buckingham carries out his expressed intention to resign by the end of the year, not the end of October.

IT is the intention of the Marquis of Ripon to offer an appointment under Government to Sir Andrew Clarke, R.E., in recognition of his services in India.

WE regret to learn that Lady Fergusson suffered seriously from the effects of the voyage to Bombay. By the latest accounts she was progressing favourably.

MR. CHARLES E. DRUMMOND BLACK, of the India-office, has been appointed assistant private secretary to the Secretary of State for the Home Department.

THE surprise felt at Col. Gordon's resignation of his post as private secretary has almost equalled that originally caused by his acceptance of the office. We feel bound to record in extenso his most remarkable letter of explanation:—

"Men at times, owing to the mysteries of Providence, form judgments which they afterwards repent of. This is my case in accepting the appointment which the Marquis of Ripon honoured me in offering me. I repented of my act as soon as I had accepted the appointment, and I deeply regret that I had not the moral courage to say so at the time. Nothing could have exceeded the kindness and consideration with which the Marquis of Ripon has treated me. I have never met any one with whom I could have felt greater sympathy in the arduous task he has undertaken. God has blessed India and England in giving the Marquis of Ripon the Viceroyalty. He will succeed in spite of all obstacles, for God is with him, and who shall stand against Him? I might have gone up to Simla; I might have quietly pleaded all sorts of excuses for my return; but they would have been false, and would have been unfair to the Marquis of Ripon. I have preferred to state at once publicly what I have done; to take the entire blame, which I rightly deserve, on myself; and to my critics I reply by this question—Have they never themselves realised what it is to have made a mistake? If so, let them cast the stone. Depend upon it that this vast country will find, in spite of all obstacles, that the rule of the Marquis of Ripon will be blessed, for he will rule in the strength of the Lord, not of man."

Col. Gordon was to have left Bombay by Saturday's mail steamer. It was reported that he would go from Aden to Zanzibar to join the Belgian Exploring Expedition, but a Bombay telegram of yesterday states that he will proceed to China.

THIS week's telegrams announce the death of H.H. the Maharaja of Travancore. His family name was Tripathathu Sivarupam. His official name with titles was Shri Pathmanabha Dansa Vanji Bala Rama Varma Kulashagara Kiritapati Manne Sultan Maharaj Raja Rama Raja Bahadur Shamshirjang, G.C.S.I. An accomplished linguist, and learned in Sanskrit, he possessed a mastery of English, and was a proficient in music. Aided by his able advice he made his State, with its two and a half millions of subjects, the most prosperous and best governed native State in India. His brother, who succeeds him, will maintain the hereditary character of the family for loyalty, culture, and wise government.

IT is stated that Sir Richard Temple intends to contest the borough of Evesham.

THE Pioneer says that "signs are not wanting that an effort will be made before long to withdraw the troops from Cabul. We heard the other day that all heavy baggage was being sent from Sherpur to India; and to day's telegram informs us that the Royal Engineer officers have been ordered to prepare estimates and plans for the destruction of the various forts and blockhouses which we have built for the defence of our positions. All expenditure, also, on roads and defences has been stopped; one would like to know how much has been spent already."

UNDER instructions from the Secretary of State for India the Governor General in Council announces that the Jowaki medal and clasp will be given to those troops who were engaged in active operations in the field against the Jowaki-Afridis between Nov. 9, 1877, and Jan. 19, 1878, inclusive.

LAHORE society is said to be highly amused by a lady, whose husband is high in office, having given out that she and her husband would in future only visit at the judges of the High Court, the Commissioners, and Government House. She found she "really must draw the line somewhere."

THE Ceylon Observer reports that Mr. Charles Hay Cameron, a veteran Anglo-Indian civilian, who has been connected with Ceylon, officially and through his family, for more than half-a-century, died on the 9th May, at Nuwara Eliya, aged eighty-five years. His death was universally regretted in Ceylon.

THE calculation that the number of native Protestant Christians in India is about 100,000 has been upset by the Secretary of the Church Missionary Society, who points out that in 1872 there were 286,987 native converts; allowing, accordingly, for the rate of increase which obtained in the previous decade, there should be now at least 400,000 Protestant converts in India. Tinnevelly alone contains 100,000 Christians; but surely the Indian Government ought to furnish accurate statistics on this head.

DURING the week ending May 8 there were 179 deaths in Calcutta, being a rate of 21·7 per 1,000 per annum. In the same week in Madras the deaths numbered 274, giving a death rate of 35·8 per 1,000 per annum. In the week ending May 11 the deaths in Bombay numbered 440, giving a rate of 33·48 per 1,000 per annum.

AN opportunity will be given next week of testing the results attained by the German system of instructing deaf mutes. The Bishop of London has permitted a meeting to be held on Thursday next at 3 p.m., at London House, St. James's-square, when the method of teaching will be explained, and the pupils now in course of instruction at Ealing will be examined. Dr. Buxton, 298, Regent-street, will gladly furnish further details.

A TREATISE on "The Personal Law of the Mahommedan," by Syed Ameer Ali, Moulvi, LL.B., will shortly be published by Messrs. W. H. Allen and Co.

CABUL FIELD FORCE.—The following non-commissioned officers and men have been awarded medals for distinguished conduct in the field:—"67th Foot—Colour Sergeant Whelan, Corporal W. Heath, Corporal Woolley; 72nd Highlanders—Colour Sergeant Jacobs, Lance Corporal Clunas, Private Gillan; 92nd Highlanders—Sergeant M'Laren and Lance Corporal M'Kay. Sergeant Instructor of Musketry Salmond, and Sergeant Cox, 72nd Highlanders, receive the annuity of £20 per annum and medal for gallantry shown in the actions about Cabul in December last.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT KANDAHAR.—A correspondent of the Agra paper states that as twelve men of the Royal Artillery were marching into the city of Kandahar recently the rifle of one of them went off; the ball, a Henry-Martini, passed through his arm, then through another comrade's heart, and through another comrade's brain. The death of the last two was instantaneous. —Times of India.

THE FIGHT AT BASUD.

FURTHER particulars of the fight at Basud show that General Doran arranged his ambush by sending 600 infantry, a squadron of Central India Horse, and two guns across the river, where they concealed themselves behind the low hills. The Safis, seeing no force, advanced boldly with thirteen standards flying into the open plain. The cavalry cut off the retreat to Jangi, while the infantry attacked the enemy, who broke and fled, the cavalry making several dashing charges and killing twenty-five. The Safis escaped through Takch-i-Jangi along the right bank of the Kunar River, leaving fifty bodies, and were seen to carry off many other dead and wounded. Seventeen Ghazis shut themselves up in the bastion of an old fort, which was carried in splendid style by Capt. Kilgour, of the 5th Fusiliers, with a few men of his own regiment and the 12th Foot. All the Ghazis were killed after a desperate resistance.—Times of India.

THE CHARGE OF THE GHAZIS AT AHMED KHEYL.

SUDDENLY a commotion was observed in the most advanced lines of the opposing army, the mollahs could be seen haranguing the irregular host with frantic energy, the beating of the tomtoms was redoubled, and then, as if by magic, a wave of men—Ghazis of the most desperate type—poured down upon the plain and rushed upon General Stewart's force. The main body of the Afghan army remained upon the hill to watch the Ghazis in their reckless onslaught and to take advantage of any success they might gain. The fanaticism of the 3,000 or 4,000 men who made this desperate charge has perhaps never been equalled; they had 500 or 600 yards to cover before they could come to close quarters with our infantry, and yet they made nothing of the distance. They advanced, or rather rushed forward, in three lines; many of the men were on horseback, and nearly all well armed with tulwars, knives, and pistols. Some carried rifles and matchlocks, while a few—and these must, indeed, have been resolute fanatics—had simply pikes made of bayonets or pieces of sharpened iron fastened upon long sticks. The ground to right and left of our troops was more open and level than immediately in front, and consequently the Ghazis' attack broke with greater violence upon our flanks. On our left flank the two squadrons of the 19th Bengal Lancers were still at the trot moving into position when the Ghazis rushed among them. Lancers are always at a disadvantage when infantry have broken their ranks, and the 19th were no exception to the rule. In an instant they were lost to sight in the cloud of dust and smoke caused by the fight and in the confusion. Owing, perhaps to some misunderstood order, or to the men losing their heads, a troop charged to the right in rear of the infantry line and came smashing into the 19th Punjab Native Infantry, in rear of the Lieut. General and his staff. All was confusion for a moment; the ammunition mules were stampeded, and, with the riderless horses of lancers killed or wounded in the mêlée, dashed into the headquarters staff. The Ghazis had continued their onward rush, and were engaged in hand-to-hand fighting with our infantry. Some penetrated to within twenty yards of the spot upon which the staff were watching the action, and so critical was the moment that Sir Donald Stewart and every man of his staff drew their swords and prepared for self-defence. The impetuosity of the Ghazis on the left carried them right in the rear of our infantry, and, but for the cool promptitude of Col. Lyster, V.C., commanding the 3rd Goorkhas, this rush might have had terrible results. Col. Lyster formed his men into company squares, and poured volley after volley into the fanatics as they surged onwards. In the meantime the attack had also burst all along the line, and in the hurry and confusion some of our men did not fix bayonets. There was also a tendency to collect in groups for mutual protection—a fatal course when a general rush has to be checked; but Gen. Hughes, by his example and energy, checked this in time, and, after a few minutes excitement—an excitement quite pardonable under the circumstances—our men settled down and began a steady and continuous fire from their breech-loaders, which swept away the Ghazis and covered the plain with bodies. But there had been persistent hand-to-hand fighting before this fire began to take effect, for the Ghazis fought with a bravery never excelled, and sold their lives as dearly as only fanatics can sell them. But the three regiments—British, Sikh, and Goorkha—to whom they were exposed, held their own, the Sikhs, in particular, attracting the general's notice for their splendid steadiness in rolling back the attack—and the main body of Afghans holding aloof the Ghazis could not hope to break our line. But with what grand disregard for their lives they must have fought is shown by their charging to within thirty yards of the muzzles of Major Warter's guns, and facing case and reversed shrapnel, which at close quarters must mow men down.

THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.

ON Wednesday, June 2, an influential deputation waited upon Lord Hartington, to call his lordship's attention to the grievances of the service generally, and more particularly to those created by the recent orders of the Government of India. The time for the deputation having been fixed rather earlier than was anticipated, it was not nearly so numerous as it would otherwise have been; but, in addition to the committee of the Indian Medical Defence Fund, and several retired officers of the service, a large number of members of Parliament were present. The Secretary of State was accompanied by General Sir Henry Norman; Surgeon General Sir Joseph Fayrer; and Colonel F. F. Wilson, C.B. The deputation consisted of James Cowan, Esq., M.P. for Edinburgh, president of the committee; Sir Trevor Lawrence, M.P.; Surgeon General J. W. Mackenzie, C.B., C.S.I. (retired); Surgeon General R. Cockburn (retired); Deputy Surgeon General Ewart (retired); Surgeon Major Partridge (retired); Surgeon Major Heffernan (retired); and Alexander Lawrie, Esq., late treasurer to the committee. It was introduced by Dr Lyon Playfair, M.P., and accompanied by Dr. Lyons, M.P. (Dublin); Messrs. A. J. Campbell, M.P. (Glasgow, &c., University); D. T. Gabbett, M.P. (Limerick); J. E. Gorst, M.P., Chatham; R. Farquharson, M.D., M.P., Aberdeenshire; P. M'Lagan, M.P., Linlithgow; E. J. Synan, M.P., Limerick County; and Mr. Ernest Hart, of the British Medical Association. Dr. Lyon Playfair, M.P., very briefly indicating the nature of the grievances complained of, said that Deputy Surgeon General Ewart (Bengal Retired List) would explain them more fully. This Dr. Ewart did, referring in detail to the more prominent grievances, which have been already mentioned in our columns, explaining more particularly that, while there was no feeling of jealousy between the Indian Medical Service and their brethren of the Army Medical Department, he did think it hard that the former service, which was exclusively devoted to the interests of India, should even in India be so completely subordinated to the British Medical Department, and he pointed out a number of instances in which this was done. Dr. Lyons, M.P., Mr. Synan, M.P., and Mr. Ernest Hart, of the British Medical Association, also addressed his lordship to a similar effect; and, after a few words by Mr. Cowan, M.P. for Edinburgh, president of the committee, Dr. Ewart, in reply to a question by Lord Hartington, explained that although certain of the higher civil appointments were open to the Indian Medical Service, that service was properly a military one, and these appointments practically excluded large numbers of Indian medical officers from the nobler service in the field, with its accompanying opportunities for distinction and honourable decorations, and he thought it was only fair that the highest medical appointment of all should be allotted at least alternately to each service. In reply, Lord Hartington said: I am quite aware of the high distinction of the Indian Medical Service, a distinction which it had well earned in the past, and fully maintained in the present; and I am quite sure neither the Government in India nor the Government at home desire to do anything which would ower the status of that service. The grievances spoken of are brought before me now for the first time, and it is, I fear, impossible for me to refer to them in detail. I have, however, listened with great attention to the remarks that have been made; and the point that seems chiefly to interest the deputation is the new arrangement that has been made for the reorganisation of the Medical Service in India. It was admitted that reorganisation was necessary, and it is the object of Government to effect that reorganisation in the interest of the service. The matter was decided upon by my predecessor last autumn, after what appeared to him very full consideration. I do not say that mistakes might not have been made, but I can hardly imagine that any apparent neglect or injury had been otherwise than unintentional on the part of the Government of India. I understand a number of memorials have been presented by officers in the service, and these will receive full consideration at the hands of the new Governor, Lord Ripon. I think it impossible for me to take any steps in this matter until I am in possession of the views of Lord Ripon. I shall bring to his knowledge the facts that I have received a very importatnt and influential deputation, and that great interest is taken in the question by retired officers and the medical profession generally. When I have had some communication with Lord Ripon, I shall be very glad to confer with Dr. Playfair and Mr. Cowan and other gentlemen who can give me assistance in the matter. In the meantime it shall have my most careful consideration. On which courteous and satisfactory assurance the deputation withdrew.

THE AUXILIARY ARMY AND NAVY STORES.

WE are glad to hear that the new company, "auxiliary" to, and under the same direction, as the Army and Navy Co-operative Society, is rapidly accumulating funds, a large proportion of the share capital of £50,000, now being called up, having been subscribed for in the few days since the prospectus was issued. The temporary offices in St. Margaret's-house, Victoria-street, will hereafter be transferred to a new structure, to be immediately commenced, as near as may be to the existing stores, and there can be no doubt that the success of the project is to a great extent guaranteed by its harmonious alliance with the older establishment, although each company is separate and distinct as regards its capital and liabilities.

THE INDIAN ASSOCIATION.—A public meeting of the inhabitants of Calcutta and its neighbourhood was held on May 19, in the Town-hall, for the purpose of expressing the rejoicings of the Indian community at the overthrow of the Conservative Ministry at the recent elections in England, and to adopt a petition to Parliament for the repeal of several measures. The Town-hall was crowded with influential natives and others, amongst whom was a small sprinkling of the European element. Rev. Dr. K. M. Bannerjia was elected to fill the chair. Babu Amarendo Chatterjia opened the proceedings by moving "that the meeting desires to place on record its heartfelt satisfaction and thankfulness at the result of the recent general election in England, which has ended in the overthrow of a Ministry whose Indian policy has been associated with measures of a repressive and retrograde nature, opposed to the traditions of British rule and to the enlightened statesmanship which has marked the course of English administration in the East." The resolution having been carried, Mr. Wyman moved: "That this meeting, bearing in mind the many declarations of the illustrious leaders of the Liberal party, now appeal to them for justice to India, and for the repeal of the repressive measures and the removal of the grievances that affect the people of this country, and in that view this meeting adopts a memorial to Parliament." Babu Kalli Charan Bannerjia seconded the motion of the last speaker, and in the course of his speech detailed the four principal items which would be embodied in the petition, viz.:—1. The repeal of the Arms Act. 2. That the cost of the Afghan war be equally proportioned between England and India. 3. That the maximum age for native candidates for the Civil Service be raised to 25 years. 4. That the competitive examination in which natives compete be held in India at the same time as that held in England, and in the most central and convenient spot. In conclusion, the speaker stated that India had "groaned" under the Conservative yoke, but the Liberals would not give her cause to weep; on the other hand, the land would resound with rejoicings. The second resolution was carried amidst loud applause.

THE EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT.—The directory of the Bombay Educational Department published annually is of some interest. From the last we see that there are fourteen professors at the Medical College whose average pay is Rs.954 and average service only 6½ years, while in the graded list there are eighteen men whose average pay is Rs.1,032 and service about fifteen years (nearly three times as long as the doctors). If others with equal claims were allowed to retire on the difference between this and their present salaries justice would be done and not otherwise. It would also benefit Government to let those go who are sick of India and teaching, through want of proper encouragement.—Bombay Gazette.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

IRWIN'S GARDEN OF INDIA.*

THIS is a valuable and interesting work. If we hesitate to predict for it a wide popularity, our distrust is not in the merits of the volume, but in the patience of a public increasingly averse to the exercise of thought. Those, however, who feel the vast importance of modern Indian problems will, we are sure, peruse Mr. Irwin's pages with eagerness, with great confidence in his facts, and a sincere respect for his opinions, which need not, of course on all points, carry with it acquiescence. The style is sufficiently lucid and forcible; and a fondness for quotations which later taste will probably correct, since they are intended to enliven, need not be seriously accused of producing an irritating effect. An excellent arrangement of the matter gives the volume a workmanlike shape, and chapters taken in succession completely present the idea of the author, so that what he has to advance can be understood without reference to other books, or, indeed, without previous knowledge of the subject. The first chapter, "A Bird's Eye View," introduces the reader to the scene as well as to the principal classes that people it; whilst the second, "A Few Facts and Figures," supplies those statistics which are to many minds the only satisfactory data upon which to found reliable conclusions. The heading of the third chapter, "Early Oudh History and Legend," explains itself, and tends naturally to an account of the Nawabi held by that dynasty, which it was our strange lot to strengthen, elevate, exhaust, emasculate, and destroy. The destruction took the name of annexation, and was carried into execution, be it remembered, professedly, and no doubt sincerely, in the interests of the people of Oudh. The writer has next to describe that remarkable period of fifteen months during which, with the best intentions, but with a feverish haste and an injudicious intensity, productive of the worst consequences, the Zemindari policy was carried out. Then came the Mutiny, ending in virtual reconquest, the astounding proclamation of Lord Canning, and the political necessity of conciliating the Talukdars. The chapter entitled "Ten Years of Taluqdari Policy" deserves the most careful attention; and were it merely for the lesson of how one able and somewhat unscrupulous man can, by reiterating his fixed idea, without faltering or hesitation, carry out his views even in the teeth of a Government that did not entirely approve of them, is pregnant with instruction and warning. But the last chapter, headed "Conclusions," is, after all, the pith of the book. We are most of us disposed to think that what was called the Strachey compromise ended the discussion as to the relative positions and rights of those who are interested in and supported by, or directly employed in connection with, the soil. But the study of Indian history, and the experience engendered by observation of the people, alike warn us against relying upon that apparent quiet beneath which the elements of ruin and confusion are often actively at work. We make room for a remarkable passage on "tenants without proprietary right":—"Here is the field which is still open to us if we have a sincere desire to elevate the condition of the rural masses. Something like six millions of cultivators—men, women, and children—are material sufficient for the widest philanthropy to operate on. The evils which afflict this 'dim common population' are poverty and ignorance, both of a more intense type than prevails among the peasant proprietors and under proprietors. Of their mode of life some account has been attempted in Chapter II. Here let it suffice to say that they are often underfed, generally underclothed, and have, as a rule, scarcely anything that they can call their own beyond a pair of lean little oxen, half-a-dozen pots and pans, a few rude agricultural implements, and, perhaps, a little silver jewellery. Are they ever to rise above their present condition? That is the biggest question which the future of Oudh has to solve." Though Mr. Irwin fully allows that if the class does rise, it must be by its own exertions, still he adds:—"But free play is not allowed at present, owing to the tenure under which they cultivate their fields. The one great boon we can bestow upon them is perfect security of tenure, at a rent either fixed in perpetuity, or, at least, not liable to be enhanced by the caprice or greed of an interested individual." Any detailed discussion of this weighty matter is altogether out of the question, as want of space forbids the idea. We will merely add that we are fully alive to the evils apparently inse parable from a revision of the rent roll. The annals of the North West Provinces supply sad instances of the tedious delays, exorbitant charges, and general confusion and disturbance connected with such operations. And then, again, there is the old saw, so ready for iteration, "Let sleeping dogs lie;" the problem is not pressing; let its consideration be postponed. But of this one fact there can be no question, that the annexation of Oudh was only justifiable on the plea put forward in its support—viz., the necessity of securing the happiness of the people. And if the great masses of the agricultural population are not better off now than they were under the Nawabi, then the British Government has failed, at least, in part of the task it voluntarily undertook. All honour to well-principled men like Mr. Irwin who come forward, by no means necessarily to their own official advantage, to inquire how things are!

* "The Garden of India; or, Chapters on Oudh History and Affairs." By H. C. IRWIN, B.C.S. London: W. H. Allen and Co.

HISTORY OF INDIA.*

SOME time ago we had occasion to notice a "History of India" by Mr. Pope, which was cast in a form intended to make it a useful means of instructing candidates for examination. At the same time we found it then, and have further proved it by experience, to be a handy work of reference. The short history of India which the ripe experience of Mr. Talboys Wheeler has given to the public is a work of a different class. Short though it be, it has not suffered from conciseness in the way of mutilation of its narrative. As a matter of course, the earlier periods of the history which are included in Part I., entitled "Hindu India," are treated with scholarly clearness and power of condensation. The ancient legends, and the uncertain history which wavers between fact and myth, are well summarised, and, though the author admits it to be difficult to realise the actual condition of India under the ancient Hindu Rajas out of the disjointed and inconsistent materials, yet he has succeeded in making this proemium of Indian history readable and instructive. Mr. Wheeler endeavours, in the after history, which divides itself in his classification into Muhammadan and British India, to display the results as well as the growth of the successively paramount Powers, and to show how much remains to be effected before the people of India can expect to take their place amongst the independent empires of the world. The successive changes in the political divisions of India, and the wars and rebellions which accomplished them, are clearly narrated, with the purpose, strongly evidenced in the style, of presenting them distinctly to the reader's comprehension. This is aided by the maps, which in turn show the panoramic changes in the general boundaries of the principal territories. The state of the people is, as Mr. Wheeler remarks, hard to gather from the historical records, but he has pressed into his service such aids as travellers could give, and his readers can, without travelling beyond his pages, profit by the experiences of such men as Fryer and Tavernier. We have not space to criticise Mr. Wheeler's views on certain moot points in the history of British India; but he places clearly before the student the irresistible force of events which led to the establishment of the Empire of India. In his own words, "The so-called Moghul Empire had reached a crisis, and its conquest was inevitable, and, as no Asiatic Power was able to effect it, and no European Power would accept the responsibility, the conquest was forced on a company of English traders, a contingency which alone saved the people of India from becoming alternately the prey of Mahrattas and Afghans." We must observe that, in Mr. Wheeler's comments on the earlier phases of the Company's rule in Bengal, he seems to waver between the greatness of the founders and first rulers and the inherent difficulties which beset them. He is clear and determined enough in his condemnation of the mercenary factors who sold Bengal and Behar to fill their own pockets, but he cannot apparently make up his mind about the blame attaching to the failure of Lord Clyde's plan of double government. In one page it is "introduced," in another it is "created" by him, and in a third the anomaly was "forced upon him," partly by the force of public opinion in England, which insisted on leaving native officials alone. He reserves his fullest praise for Warren Hastings, unquestionably the ablest and most successful administrator that ever governed Bengal. The failure of native officials, or at least their shortcomings, when compared with a European standard, are carefully brought out by Mr. Wheeler, as in the case of Purneah, and the policy of non-intervention is equally credited with its full share of injurious consequences. He does not in so many words laboriously tell his readers how they can apply the lessons of the past to present problems, but he manages often in a few pregnant words to suggest a deduction which leads to a whole train of assenting or polemic thought. We cannot leave the consideration of this vigorous work without noting that the pages devoted to the history of Burma and Nipal are not the least among those worth referring to for present useful guidance. As a matter of course also, we note the excellent chronological tables and index which crown the work.

THE UNION JACK.*

THE change that has recently been made in the editorial direction of this promising periodical must, in our judgment, be attended with excellent results. Mr. Henty, whose tale of the "Coal Mines" and story of the Indian Mutiny have been among the best serials in the pages of the Union Jack, starts with good ideas of the needful improvements. He knows that boys are no mean judges either of matter or illustrations, and will not make allowance for shortcomings. The high and healthful tone which has distinguished the periodical from its outset will be more than maintained.

CORRESPONDENCE.

THE LUCKNOW DINNER.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—The Calcutta Official Gazette of Dec. 12, 1857, contained these stirring words from the gifted pen of the late Lord Canning :—"The Governor General in Council believes that never has a tale been told which will so stir the hearts of Englishmen and Englishwomen as the simple, earnest narrative of Brigadier Inglis. There does not stand recorded in the annals of war an achievement more truly heroic than the defence of the Residency at Lucknow." Space does not admit of adding the graphic eulogium which vividly sets forth the danger of the siege, but we are reminded of those impassioned sentences by a dinner which took place at the Criterion on the evening of the 2nd inst., when the surviving "heroes of Lucknow" met and dined together. Many will remember how, throughout the summer of 1857, public attention was rivetted on Lucknow, and with what anxiety we heard that the small garrison still held out. As time elapsed we learnt, with a sickening fear, of the gallant Havelock's two unsuccessful attempts to succour them, followed by news that spies reported that the constant boom of cannon and the never ceasing rattle of musketry evidenced that the unequal combat continued. Then came the intelligence that Outram and Havelock had made good their entrance into Lucknow, only to be themselves shut in; and summer and autumn had passed away when the joyful tidings arrived that Inglis and the remnants of his gallant comrades had been rescued by the army under the command of the veteran Clyde.

It must have hence been an interesting event this gathering together of old comrades who had for months together carried their lives in their hands, and been closely banded together in one of the most desperate struggles on record. Amongst those, present was General Gray, with his well-nigh seventy years' service; the burly Scotchman Aitken, whose anxieties for his beautiful bride did not prevent his performing the five separate acts of valour which gained him the Victoria Cross. Colonel Lowe, C.B., who commanded the 32nd Foot throughout the defence; Colonel Innes, V.C., who earned a prominent place in the despatches; Colonel Wilson, C.B., of whom Inglis recorded that "he was ever to be found where shot was flying thickest;" Colonel Macfarlane, R.A., severely wounded; and Sir Joseph Fayrer, K.C.S.I., the skilful surgeon who accompanied the Prince of Wales to India, and many others equally distinguished. Nor was the Civil Service unrepresented—Mr. Cappers and Mr. George Laurence were both present, of whom the former was severely, and the latter dangerously, wounded. This unostentatious gathering of brave men, if it answered no other purpose, at least recalls one of the brightest pages of our own military history. X.

THE CARWAR RAILWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Dacosta's letter in your paper of June 2, I desire nothing more than a public discussion on the value of a railway from Carwar to Hoobli. At this present moment we would not have had a decent road from Karachi to Mooltan had not the question been publicly discussed by scientific men and political economists in London in the presence of two high officials from the India-office. I beg to refer you to my letter in your paper of Oct. 18, 1873, more than six years ago, in which I pointed out the value of the opinions of Hawksley, Hawkshaw, General Sir Lintorn Simmons, Capt. Galton, the Astronomer Royal, Capt. Tyler, Col. Yolland, and nine other gentlemen, whose arguments could not be answered by the Indian Government, who now ventures to doubt that the non-officials were right and the India-office wrong? That railway through Sindh has already saved the whole cost of its construction. This Afghan war, which has caused the death of 60,000 camels, would have paralysed us but for the assistance given to transport officers by the Karachi-Sukkur Railway. In your paper of April 1, 1873, your correspondent in Calcutta wrote as follows :—

"I agree in all that your correspondent 'T.' says in your paper of January 27 with reference to my letter published in your previous number. Let us by all means have railways where they are needed for the protection of our Indian Empire; but let us not on merely general grounds, and without having in each case clearly established the plea of necessity for protection, involve the country in debt."

I demand a public discussion in London on three questions. 1. Is it desirable, and will it be economical, to construct a railway from Carwar to Hoobli for the purpose of preventing future famines? On this question I refer to the history of the famine in 1877 in Bellary and Kaladgi. 2. Will such a railway be profitable as a commercial speculation, provided that equal facilities be given to Carwar as to Bombay for the importation of Manchester, Sheffield, and other English goods? 3. Is a railway from Carwar and Bellary needed for the protection of our India Empire? As for the rail from Guduk and Sholapoor, its history is an instructive one, for it proves the absolute necessity of bringing English public opinion to bear upon Indian projects. Lastly, Mr. Dacosta appears to fancy that I am a speculator; I hope that you will undeceive him. Your obedient servant, T.

[We are sure that our esteemed correspondent need be under no apprehension on the latter score; everyone knows his zeal for the interests of the peninsula.—ED.]

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE PROSPECTS OF TEA PLANTERS.

THERE seems but too much reason to fear that we are approaching a critical period in the fortunes of tea-planting in India. The margin of profit is rapidly and surely nearing the vanishing point; and, though planters may still do something to improve the quality and diminish the cost of production of their outturn, there is every prospect of the result of their best efforts in this direction being more than neutralised by the growth of competition among producers. It is not only that the outturn of the Indian gardens is steadily increasing, but new competitors are entering the field on all sides, and, with demand lagging behind supply, the low cost of production in China is beginning to tell on prices in a way which it never did before, when there was room for all in the market. At such a juncture it tells cruelly against the ability of the Indian planter to hold his own that he is heavily handicapped by restrictions from which his rivals are free. Indian labour is usually regarded as cheap labour, and the time is within memory when the Indian tea-planter looked to its cheapness as a guarantee against the competition of countries which have now established themselves in the field. No doubt Indian labour, when left to the operation of natural laws, is still cheap labour; but this cannot be said of Indian labour in Assam. There, after making every allowance for the remoteness of the province from its recruiting grounds, and for the disamenities of the climate, both of which, under any circumstances, would add materially to its cost, it is extravagantly dear. For this extravagant dearness the Government alone is responsible, and it has now become a grave question for the Government whether, for the sake of all concerned, of the coolie as well as of the planter, of the public revenue as well as of private interests, it will, by a revision of its labour regulations, give the tea enterprise a new lease of life, or whether, from a one-sided view of its duty, it will elect to hold its hand and see the industry die out. We trust that it is in an opportune moment that the Indian Tea Districts Association has come forward with their strong memorial to the Viceroy on this important question.—Englishman.

THE WASTE OF MONEY.

IT is well known that for months the Government have been spending money at the rate of £1,000,000 sterling per mensem upon supplies and transport, and the expenditure under these heads previous to last December was necessarily very heavy. The impossibility of hiring sufficient transport naturally necessitated its purchase, and one of the inevitable results of an increased demand was, of course, a rise in prices. When it is recollected that the controller of transport and supply had on three different occasions, at intervals of some weeks between each, to comply with the urgent requisitions of the Commander in Chief for extra transport and for six months' supplies; that animals could not be hired, and that the services of men to attend them became daily more and more difficult to procure, inasmuch as service beyond the frontier became daily more and more unpopular amongst those classes from which muleteers and camel drivers are drawn, it is not surprising that the expenses have so alarmingly mounted up. Had the required transport not been supplied, the army in Afghanistan would probably have been so crippled as to have had its efficiency impaired. The purchase of six months' supplies was demanded by the military authorities in the field and had to be procured at whatever cost. These, as the Government memorandum points out, also went up rapidly, and, such being the case, the cost of grain became considerably greater. But, although the charges under the head of transport are very great, it should be remembered not only that the Government own all the animals paid for by these charges; they are not merely hired animals. Such being the case, the capital laid out is represented by mules, camels, &c., which, after the campaign is over, will bring in some return on being sold. Apart from this, should the recommendations of the Indian Army Commissioners be adopted, it would have been necessary to have purchased mules, &c., to complete that standing complement of transport which the commissioners have recommended should be maintained at certain fixed depots throughout the country for service whenever required. These proposals, it is generally believed, will be accepted. The Commander in Chief has signified his hearty concurrence in their wisdom, and the highest military authorities have held that it is absolutely necessary for the efficiency of the Indian army to have always ready a sufficient supply of transport to send at any moment into the field in army corps fully equipped. To provide this establishment would have necessitated, and will necessitate, the purchase of the required stock. This will now be unnecessary, for the animals returned to India after the present Afghan war is over will be available. Under these circumstances a portion of the present outlay under the head of transport should be spread over several years. The charge, it is true, is a present one; but its effects and the benefits to be derived by the money expended will be felt for many years to come, as no further expenditure will probably be necessary. It is a comfort to know that, after all, things are not quite as bad as they look. Of course it is useless to attempt to conceal from ourselves that there had been waste of money in many instances. There undoubtedly has been a great waste of money. Nor could it well be otherwise. District officers in the Punjab and North West Provinces were given carte blanche to purchase baggage animals. Scratch committees were doubtless formed to examine and pass animals to be purchased, and to value the animals so passed. In many cases these committees consisted of officials who were as innocent of knowledge of cattle as the new-born babe, and consequently large numbers of ponies and mules were purchased by them that were utterly unfit for service, and had only to be sent to the front or to be inspected by competent authorities to be condemned as unserviceable and to be sold at a price about 85 per cent. less than they cost. By this means alone vast sums of money must have been lost to the Government. Then, again, there does not appear to have been any proper check on casualties amongst transport animals, especially upon the line of march. The transport system at the outset was on a happy-go-lucky principle, and naturally a great deal of money was wasted and transport power unnecessarily sacrificed. All this will in future be remedied, and organisation now has been introduced where confusion reigned supreme before.—Bombay Gazette.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

EXPORT OF TEA.—The quantity of tea exported from Calcutta in April last was 223,490lb., as compared with 301,033lb. exported in April, 1879.—Englishman.

MULE BREEDING.—The attention of Government has been recently turned to the subject of mule breeding in the tracts of country adjoining the hills and in other places in India where the scheme is likely to prove a success. It has been pronounced, as the result of experience, that mules are the best description of transport animals for India, and the demand for them, when their capabilities are thoroughly understood, is likely to be very great, both on the part of Government and the public. In furtherance of these views, inquiries have been made by his Honour the Lieutenant Governor as to the likelihood of any co-operation being afforded by planters, chiefs, or village headmen in the hill tracts of Chittagong and the Darjiling district. Government is prepared to provide donkey stallions gratis, and all that is required of private individuals is to keep pony mares for the purposes of breeding. Government will hold no lien on the mule produce, the object at present being merely to encourage as widely as possible the production of a class of animals likely to be useful alike to the Government and the public.—Darjiling News.

TRADE OF BRITISH BURMA 1878-79.—The gross revenue for the year amounted to Rs.1,88,56,244, and as the returns for 1877-78 were Rs.1,79,59,150, this shows an increase of Rs.8,97,094. The year was all round favourable for agricultural operations. In particular, there were no very heavy floods, such as are usually experienced, and there was accordingly a great increase in the land under cultivation. The acreage under rice alone has increased by something like 200,000 acres as compared with 1877-78. The land under garden and orchard cultivation has also increased greatly.—Englishman.

MEETINGS OF COMPANIES.—At an extraordinary general meeting of the Oriental Jute Manufacturing Company, held May 8, the resolutions passed at the meeting held April 10, and the scheme of reconstruction by the incorporation of the new Oriental Jute Mills Company, capital Rs.6,65,000, were confirmed.—At a meeting of the Raneegunge Coal Association Company, held May 10, a dividend of 5 per cent., making 10 per cent. for the year, was declared.—Englishman.

DECLARATION OF WEIGHT AND VALUE OF TEA BY EXPORTERS.—A notification from the collector of the Customs, Calcutta, published in the Calcutta Gazette, states "that on and after June 1 exporters of tea will be required to make on their shipping bills a declaration to the effect that the weight therein stated is correct, in addition to the declaration as to value now required." This new form of declaration has, we understand, been adopted at the request of the Chamber of Commerce, in consequence of the great discrepancies which have hitherto prevailed between the figures in the returns of export from here and those of the import returns in England.—Englishman.

RAILWAY BETWEEN RAWUL PINDI AND PESHAWUR SECTION OF P.N.S. RAILWAY.—It is stated that the Government of India have issued orders for the immediate laying down of the permanent line between Rawul Pindi and the junction of the Kohat and the Peshawur section of the Punjab Northern State Railway. Also that orders have been given that the line must be opened for traffic to Rawul Pindi by June 1 next, to Attock by Nov. 1, and to Peshawur by Jan. 1, 1881.—Englishman.

PUNJAB SANITARY ADMINISTRATION.—In his review on the Sanitary Administration Report of the Punjab during 1878 his Honour the Lieutenant Governor says that Dr. Bellew considers that if what is recommended for the safety and well-being of the community be carried out by municipalities it is safe to predict that the individual will quickly follow suit in adopting what is required by his personal interest. This remark appears to the Lieutenant Governor to postulate a great deal too much, and to lose sight altogether of the point in social development at which the towns and villages of the province stand. His Honour says the Government must wait for an improvement in general intelligence before the people can carry out the necessary sanitary improvements inside their dwelling-houses.—Times of India.

NATIVE PUBLIC SPIRIT.—A large masonry bridge over the River Sowrah, connecting the old city of Purneah with the civil station at Purneah, has been constructed by two native residents of the city at a cost of Rs.50,000. The bridge is 324ft. long and 18ft. broad, and has approaches north and south, 74ft. and 70ft. long, with 25ft. and 30ft. openings. The bridge itself rests upon seventeen piers, each of which is 25ft. broad and 5ft. 6in. thick. There are sixteen arches, each of 16ft. span. The cost of this bridge was borne in half shares by Baboo Mohesh Lal, Agarwallah, and Nukched Lal, Kalwar, and the former, in addition, personally supervised the work whilst under construction. In acknowledging the report on this work the Lieutenant Governor conveys the thanks of his Government "to those gentlemen for their liberality and public spirit," and directs the papers to be published in the supplement to the Calcutta Gazette.—Indian Daily News.

INDIGO PROSPECTS.—Advices from the indigo districts are, on the whole, of a favourable nature. "There have been further falls of rain over most of the Lower Bengal districts, and we only hear complaints of want of rain from parts of Kishnaghur, where there is still some land unsown. In Behar the crop is generally looking well, but a little rain would now be of service."—Bombay Gazette.

HORSE BREEDING.—In a review of the horse-breeding operations for 1878-79 by the Government of India, it is said that those operations show a satisfactory progress, but that considerable time must necessarily elapse before the benefits of the system become conspicuous. The department has a total of 324 stallions, of which 274 are available for stud work. At the end of the year 1877-78 the number of mares approved of and branded as fit for brood in the Punjab and N.W.P. was 5,354. Of this number the N.W.P. mares accounted for 3,456. At the end of 1878-79 the total number of mares had increased to 7,377, nearly equally divided between the two provinces. Thus, N.W.P., 3,763; Punjab, 3,614. The number of mares covered during the year was 4,260, as against 4,056 in the previous year. During the year no less than 2,606 country-bred horses were purchased by the Army Remount Department and for the Bengal Cavalry and the police. After three years it would seem that horse-breeding operations have begun to grow in the favour of the people; and there are signs that, having the assistance of the Government stud horses, some natives, both in the N.W.P. and the Punjab, will take up horse breeding as a regular industry. The operations of the department are, however, very far indeed below the requirements of the country or the wants of the army. They are still in the experimental stage, but it is hoped that the Government, having had the question of the want of transport animals so severely pressed upon its attention, will take steps to extend the operations of the department beyond the Punjab and the N.W.P.—Indian Daily News.

A SATISFACTORY SETTLEMENT.—In these days of discontent it is gratifying to find that the settlement of a Government estate in the Sonthal Pergunnahs has caused almost universal satisfaction. The settlement, we are told, is generally and cheerfully accepted by the people; it has been completed speedily, cheaply, and successfully; the result means a substantial increase of revenue to Government; and the careful report submitted by commissioner has been read by Sir Ashley Eden with great satisfaction. The estate of Damin-i-Koh forms the central tract of the Sonthal Pergunnahs; the inhabitants are mostly Sonthals, but the people dwelling in the inner hills are Pahariahs—a tribe of Kolarian aborigines. Some of the lower slopes have been occupied by Bengali immigrants, who have also settled in the bazaars on the outskirts of the estate. There is an order, however, forbidding the settlement of outsiders in the Damin-i-Koh, and this has been the subject of a correspondence between the Bengal Government and the agent to the East Indian Railway. The reason for the prohibition is that the Government wishes to reserve the Damin-i-Koh for the settlement of hillmen and Sonthals. The railway authorities, on the other hand, wish to obtain accommodation for their subordinates. The revenue settlement that has just been made in the Damin-i-Koh includes over 1,700 villages and thirty-three bazaars. The revenue assessed amourts to some Rs.1,77,500, and the increase in the land revenue alone is nearly 80 per cent. This large increase is wholly due, it would seem, to the extension of cultivation. The settlement has been approved and confirmed by the Lieutenant Governor for a period of ten years.—Pioneer.

SIAM SAPPHIRE MINES.—The Government of British Burma has published some information about the sapphire mines of Siam. Some very valuable mines were discovered last year in the provinces of Chantaboon and Battambong. The news brought a great number of fortune seekers from British and Upper Burma, and even from Calcutta. Throughout the year 1879 thousands of British subjects went from Burma to the mines. A great many died, but others were lucky enough to make large profits. One sapphire was offered for sale at Chantanboon for Rs.1,000. The owner afterwards refused Rs.1,500 in Rangoon, and finally sold it in Calcutta for Rs.3,000. The largest sapphire which the Government has yet heard of weighed 370 carats in the rough and 111 carats when cut. The mines are said to be very unhealthy.—Pioneer.

THE NAGA HILLS.—The following notice appears in the Assam Gazette of the 8th inst.:—'The Chief Commissioner is pleased to sanction the formation of a new executive division of public works, to be called the Naga Hills Division, from April 1, 1880. This division will include all Public Works Department works, Imperial and Provincial, south of the Dhodar Alli road (not including the station of Golaghat), in connection with the Naga Hills, and also the river Dhansiri, from Golaghat to the Brahmaputra, so far as any measures necessary for its navigation are concerned. The headquarters of the division will be at Kohima, and for the present it will consist of two subdivisions, with headquarters at Kohima and Dimapur. The permanent establishment will for the present consist of one executive engineer, two upper and two lower subordinates."

THE MAHARAJA OF KISHENGURH.—In acknowledging the Government of India's despatch regarding the demise of his Highness the Maharaja Perthi Singh of Kishengurh, and the recognition by the Government of his eldest son, the Maharaja Sadul Singh, as his successor, the late Secretary of State expressed his deep regret at the news of the decease of the late chief, and approves of the proceedings of the Government with regard to the succession of the Maharaja Sadul Singh, who is characterised as being well qualified to conduct the administration of the State.—Press Commissioner.

UPPER BURMA.—A telegram from Rangoon says that a Greek trader, named Hendreicks, is reported to have been murdered in the Chindwin district, Upper Burma. The deceased held the indiarubber monopoly, and had money with him which tempted the murderers. The Ministers say the Kachins were the perpetrators, whom they are endeavouring to arrest for punishment.—Englishman.

ICE MANUFACTURE.—The prospectus of the North West Provinces and Oudh Ice Factory Company (Limited), which is to be started with a capital of £150,000, in 30,000 shares, has been issued. A contract has been entered into with the General Ice Factory Company (Limited), of London, for a grant of the sole right to use, sell, lease, or license within the N.W.P. and Oudh their patented machinery and process for the manufacture of ice, &c. A factory at Allahabad is complete and will start ice-making in a few days. The factory is situated on the banks of the River Jumna, and an enormous well some forty feet below the bed of the river has been constructed at considerable expense, from which a continuous supply of water will be raised by large powerful pumping engines, and will then undergo careful filtration for ice-making. The Lucknow factory, with its two five-ton engines and machinery, will be completed next month, and the Agra factory about the same time. It is proposed to erect three new ten-ton factories at Cawnpore, Benares, and Delhi next cold weather.—Times of India.

ILLNESS AMONG TROOPS.—It is reported from Delhi that upwards of seventy men of the 54th Regiment are in hospital, most of the cases being typhoid fever, happily of a mild type, which has suddenly made its appearance in the fort. There are one or two isolated cases of the kind in the civil station also, but the natives are entirely free.—Times of India.

VOLUNTEERS.—The Viceroy has sanctioned the formation of a Volunteer Artillery Corps at Rangoon, to be attached to the Rangoon Volunteer Rifles. Lieutenant W. P. Arnot, port officer of Rangoon, is appointed lieutenant commandant.—Times of India.

CENTRAL PROVINCES.—The Judicial (Civil) Administration Report of the Central Provinces for the past year shows that there was an increase in litigation which is attributed to the return of better times, consequent on revival of trade and to diminished pressure on the people. The law libraries attached to the courts are said to be well supplied, but many officers complain of the delay in receiving translations of new Acts. The difficulty does not even end with translations, for not unfrequently complaints are received that the translation is inaccurate and misleading. The Commissioner, Nagpur Division, inquires if it might not be possible for the Legislative Council of the Government of India to cause the translation into the principal vernacular languages of India of every Act, and to publish the translation simultaneously with the Act. The Chief Commissioner promises to inquire whether a plan of this kind could be entertained. The local bar, which in the year previous consisted of two barristers, two attorneys, and sixty-six pleaders, had been augmented by the addition of two barristers and three pleaders. Many officers testify to the utility of these gentlemen, and to the growth among them of a higher standard of attainments. The desire to take advantage of the Oaths Act does not appear to be very great, and the Chief Commissioner believes that such special oaths are generally proposed when the plaintiff either has no evidence to adduce or loses his temper and agrees to forego his claim should his defendant make some special form of asseveration. The Chief Commissioner quite agrees that native judges are able to propose the oath with very much greater prospect of its being accepted than European judges; but at the same time, looking to the numerous castes and religions in India, it is difficult for even an experienced native judge to know what oaths different castes consider specially binding.—Times of India.

EURASIAN EDUCATION.—At a recent sitting of the Calcutta Missionary Conference it was resolved to submit a memorial to the Government pointing out that the scheme of Eurasian education recommended by Archdeacon Baly is too denominational. The memorial is to be signed not by the Conference as a whole, but by the members of it who approve the resolution.—Indian Mirror.

MR. BUCKLAND, officiating Press Commissioner, has been appointed superintendent of stamps and stationery, but he will not take up that duty at present, having also been appointed officiating magistrate of Howrah.—Times of India.

PALI.—Mr. H. St. Barbe, of the Bengal Civil Service, has passed the prescribed examination in Pali, and received the authorised reward of Rs.1,500. Mr. St. Barbe is said to be the only officer who has ever attempted this language; besides being one of the three officers who have passed in Shau, and one of the half-dozen who have succeeded in the high proficiency test in Burmese.—Ibid.

EDUCATION OF NATIVE GIRLS.—The annual distribution of prizes to the pupils of the Bethune girls' school was held on May 15; Lady Garth in the chair. Some English songs were sung by the senior pupils. Sir Richard Garth, president of the schools, said that he was very much disappointed that the school had not secured a larger number of pupils, and, considering the interest the Government had taken in it, the increased grant that had been made to it during the last two years, he was in hopes that the school would have had a larger increase in the number of its pupils. This, he trusted, would only be a question of time, and he hoped that those interested in the school, and his other native friends, would strive to do their utmost to appreciate its advantages in sending their daughters there. He concluded by expressing the hope that, in the course of a short time, they would have the increase which they all so much desired, and which, in the interests of the native society, was so highly to be wished for.—Times of India.

ELEPHANT HUNTING.—From further accounts regarding the kheddah operations for the season which has recently closed we learn that the result has been highly satisfactory, and that the total number of captures made is upwards of 200, including those made at the zemindaree kheddahs in which Government has a share. After the close of the operations, Mr. Sanderson the superintendent of the kheddahs, is said to have arrived at Chittagong, where he is probably collecting all the elephants, and where the animals are to halt for some time for the purpose of grazing, after which they are to be sent off to Dacca.—Ibid.

THE COMMISSARIAT FRAUDS.—The Rangoon Commissariat case ended in the committal of Sergeant M'Dermott for trial on thirteen counts involving Rs.740. He reserved his defence, and was admitted to bail.—Ibid.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—The disengaged tonnage at date of mail stood at 20,172 tons. London, vid Canal: £3 5s. for wheat, £3 7s. 6d. for linseed, and £2 17s. 6d. for hides, &c. The above were the closing rates. For London, vid Cape: The market closed firm at £2 10s. for rice or wheat, £2 12s. 6d. for linseed, £2 17s. 6d. for rape, £2 17s. 6d. to £3 for poppy, £2 11s. 3d. for jute, and £2 12s. 6d. to £2 15s. for cotton, hides, &c. For Liverpool, vid Canal: Rice or wheat at £3 2s. 6d. to £3 5s. nominal, castor oil £3 5s. nominal, measurement £3 nominal. THE MONEGAR CHOULTRY.—In reviewing the annual report and accounts of the Monegar Choultry submitted by the directors of the institution for the year 1879 the Government observe:—The accounts show that the receipts, including the balance brought over, aggregated Rs.24,938-9-6 and the charges Rs.24,146-1-2, leaving a balance of Rs.792-8-4. Compared with 1878 the receipts during 1879 were less by Rs 26,115-10-10, the charges by Rs.20,365-13-5, and the balance by Rs.5.759-13-5. No investment was made during 1879. The amount of capital in the Government Treasury at the close of the year aggregated Rs.66,887-13-5, and the amount of Government securities in the custody of the collector of Madras Rs.21,000. It is observed that the committee of management of the institution were compelled during the year to make large reductions in the expenditure, and thereby restrict the usefulness of the institution, consequent on an urgent appeal made to the public for funds not having been responded to. The reductions effected, however, have enabled the committee to clear off a debt of Rs.1,000, to equalise income and expenditure, and close the year with a small credit balance of Rs.792-8-4. In the Venkatagiri Raja's Choultry the average number of out-door and in-door paupers who received relief during the year 1879 was 37,868 and 15,327 respectively. The receipts of the institution aggregated Rs.4,716-12-3 and the charges Rs.4,028-15-6, leaving a balance to credit of Rs.687-12-9. The report is satisfactory. The thanks of Government will be conveyed to the committee for their services.—Madras Times.

PATENTS.—Notice is hereby given that there have been received in the office of the chief secretary to Government, where any of them may be inspected at all reasonable times, on payment of a fee of one rupee, copies of the specifications of the inventions of which the following are brief descriptions :—Mr. William Chance, superintending engineer, Watson's Patent Press, Bang Bazaar, Calcutta—"Improvements in feed water heaters." Mr. Thomas Alva Edison, Menlo Park, New Jersey, United States, America—"Improvements in Telephones." M. Paul Gustave Louis Gabriel Designolle, Paris, France—"Improvements in extracting gold and other precious metal from ores and other substances, and in the apparatus employed therein." Mr. Eugene Charles Shrottky, agricultural chemist, of Calcutta—"For the extraction and manufacture of a yellow dye from the leaves and twigs of Mangifera Indica, the Mango tree, and the dyeing therewith of animal or vegetable fibres in their raw or manufactured state."—Madras Times.

A NATIVE GENERAL COURT-MARTIAL CENSURED.—At a general court-martial held at Rangoon, on Feb. 6 last, Jemadar Sheikh Madar, 23rd Regiment Madras Native Infantry, was arraigned on the following charge :—"Being in a state of intoxication when on duty in command of a detachment of his regiment about to proceed to the Nicobars on board the s.s. Satara, in Port Blair Harbour, on Sept. 5, 1879. The court found the prisoner guilty of the charge and sentenced him to be placed four steps lower in the list of his rank. On a revision of this sentence the court sentenced the prisoner to be suspended from rank, pay, and allowances for six months." His Excellency the Commander in Chief disapproved of this sentence, and remarked as follows :—"The court found the prisoner guilty of a most grave military crime, in defence of which no mitigating circumstances could be urged—and yet, in the first instance, it only sentenced the jemadar to be placed four steps lower in the list of his rank." The proceedings were returned to the court for a revision of sentence, with a letter containing the following remarks :—"Considering the native officer was on board on most important duty in command of a detachment, his Excellency does not think the court have performed their duty in awarding so lenient a punishment; and further his Excellency observes that after finding the jemadar guilty, without any mitigating circumstances, the court, passing over two degrees of punishment—dismissal and suspension—have awarded almost the least possible to award, and which might practically result in no punishment at all, as promotion does not always go by seniority. The Commander in Chief fails to see how the character and discipline of the Madras Army can be maintained if native officers judge so grave an offence so leniently and thus bring discredit on their character as members of a native general court-martial. His Excellency considers that a native officer in the position of Jemadar Sheikh Madar, found drunk and appearing before his commanding officer, when summoned, in flannel drawers and night cap, should have been sentenced to dismissal, and then any recommendation for mercy would have received due consideration. The Commander in Chief therefore calls upon the court to do their duty, and to leave the exercise of clemency to the confirming authority. Notwithstanding this decided expression of my opinion, the court has, in its revised sentence, only awarded a punishment of six months' suspension from rank, pay, and allowances. This sentence, if carried into effect, is practically to restore the jemadar six months hence to a position of responsibility and trust which he has proved himself unworthy to hold. The jemadar was about to proceed to the Nicobar Islands in command of a detachment of his regiment. There he would have become his own commanding officer, and as such would have devolved upon him the maintenance of discipline and of the character of the army he represented. He became incapacitated for the performance of his duties before the ship left harbour, and when summoned on deck by the commandant of his regiment he appeared in a state of intoxication and in his night dress. The court has failed to discharge its duty by awarding a punishment altogether incommensurate with the offence committed, and by so doing it has acted in a manner injurious to discipline and to the future efficiency and character of the native army. I censure the court for its dereliction of duty. As the court has failed to fulfil its obligations, I have no alternative left but to exercise the authority vested in me as Commander in Chief, and I hereby dismiss Jemadar Sheikh Madar of the 23rd Native Infantry from the service. It cannot go forth to the native army that an officer can so grossly misconduct himself, and prove himself unworthy of the trust, and still be considered qualified to hold a commission—nor can it go forth to the army that when a native general court-martial fails to do its duty, no means exist whereby offences can be punished and the discipline of the army be maintained. From the evidence adduced at the trial it appears that the prisoner did not accompany his detachment to the ship, but went on board afterwards. The commandant of the 23rd Regiment Native Infantry will explain why this irregularity took place. My remarks on this trial are to be communicated to the native officers of the several regiments who sat on the court-martial."—Madras Times.

GOLD DEPOSITS IN THE WYNAAD.—The revised edition of the volume of standing information regarding the Madras Presidency, which has just been issued, contains an interesting section on the gold deposits. The Wynaad furore which has arisen among English speculators gives a special interest to this matter. The more important districts or localities in the Madras Presidency where auriferous quartz veins occur, or where there are abandoned gold workings, or where gold-mining operations are now carried on, are as follow :—Devalah, Pandi River, Nelliallum, Choladi, Charambadi, Moopenard Vytheri, Karambaut, Kellakumpoya and Caracoorpoya, Eddacurra, Nellumboor, Nanjanad Valley, Sispara, Coonoor and near Wellington, Prighat Valley, Toodakull River, Arliparambur Rivulet, Arnakyem River, Carcatode Stream, Sea-beach from Parparangady to Caraloondy and thence to Beypore, Kutchambara on the bank of the Coodarapoya, Carumpoya and Poonapoya, Mijar and Karkal in South Canara, Tamrapurni, Godavari.—Times of India.

THE CIVIL ENGINEERING COLLEGE.—A correspondence between the principal and the director of public instruction has been published, referring to the rumour that the reduction in the P.W.D. would lessen the chance of employment for the pupils and their effect on the entrance. A Government order admits the probability of temporary diminution of entrances, but adds :—"It appears desirable to place on record that the Government have every desire to foster the interests of the Civil Engineering College to the extent that may be compatible with the demands for professionally trained men; to do more would only be productive of useless outlay on the part of the State and of discontent on the part of passed candidates for whom no employment can be found."

A COLLECTOR OF PORT DUES AT THE OUTPORTS.—Capt. J. H. Taylor, R.N.R., recently made a long tour to the several ports on the western coasts, and the result of his inspection was that he urged on the Local Government the appointment of a collector of port dues at those ports. Several dhonies and country crafts were for many years not charged with port dues, although the traffic they brought in and took back was equivalent, if not more, than that of an English vessel. Capt. Taylor in his report gave it as his opinion that if such an officer be appointed, a considerable amount of customs revenue will accrue to the Marine Department.—Madras Athenæum.

NILGIRI RAILWAY—GOVERNMENT ORDER.—The Government will be prepared to concede to the company, when established, and when the land of other proprietors has been purchased, upon conditions to be specified hereafter, so much of the land required for the way and works of the proposed railway as is unoccupied waste belonging to the State. They also consider that conditions may be framed under which the company may be allowed to lay down and use rails on the road between Mettupalaiyam and Kullar. With regard to such portion of the land required for the way and works as belongs to private proprietors, the Government will be prepared to assist the company by putting in force the provisions of Act X. of 1870, but the purchase of private lands must be effected by the company.—Madras Times.

BELLARY-HOSPETT RAILWAY.—The chairman of the Madras Chamber of Commerce wrote to the joint secretary to Government, Public Works Department, on the 5th ult., as follows :—"The chamber are glad to learn from the proceedings of the Government of Madras, Public Works Department, Feb. 25, that the Government consider it is desirable to accept the offer of the Madras Railway board to raise the funds requisite for completing the Bellary and Hospett Railway, and they have desired me to convey an expression of their hope that the Government of India will be pleased to afford the board the facilities they desire. The chamber do not forget the emphatic statements that were made by the Viceroy and the Finance Minister in the Viceregal Legislative Council some time ago with reference to the great importance of railways as affording means for protecting the people of this country from the consequences of drought, and they hope that the great importance of opening out the Bellary District by the proposed railway to Hospett will commend itself to the approval of the Supreme Government." This letter has been forwarded to the Government of India by the Local Government.—Madras Times.

THE MADRAS EQUITABLE ASSURANCE SOCIETY.—We quote as follows from the report of the directors of the Madras Equitable Assurance Society for 1879, being the thirty-eighth year from the foundation of the society :—During the year the society received proposals for assurance amounting in the aggregate to Rs.2,93,500 of which amount Rs.2,50,000 has been accepted, and in respect of which forty-seven policies were issued. The annual premium income derivable from this fresh business amounts to Rs.12,511,12. Of the new policies forty-three are for the "whole term of life," and assure in the aggregate Rs.241,500, while the remaining four are for various terms of years, and cover risks to the extent of Rs.8,500. Claims by death, during the year, have aggregated Rs.98,200, the number of policies covering the risk was nine, and the number of lives assured thereunder nine. The above amount of Rs.98,200 is exclusive of the sums payable in respect of the assurances from the society's guarantee fund. The ratio of mortality to the total number of lives covered during any portion of the year is 17·64 per 1,000. Term policies amounting to Rs.4,500 have become voided by expiry of periods of risk. The voidances of "whole term" policies amount to Rs.69,000. Of these, policies amounting to Rs.49,500 were purchased by the society, the remainder having been allowed by the holders to become extinct. The risks subsisting on Dec. 31 amounted in the aggregate to Rs.3,671,570. On Dec. 31, the general fund stood at Rs.12,39,094-2-8; the proportion of this fund to liabilities on that date being 33·75 per cent. After conversion of the Indian Government Five and a-Half per Cent. Loan into the Four and a-Half per Cent. Transfer Loan of 1879 it became necessary to alter the method suggested by the actuary in valuing yearly the securities held by the society. The directors, therefore, deeming it expedient to have all the society's funds invested solely in Four per Cent. paper decided upon selling the society's holdings in Four and a-Half per Cents. and investing the proceeds in India Four per Cents. The Four and a-Quarter per Cents., amounting to Rs.2,91,200, were accordingly sold, realising on an average 98·31 per cent., and in lieu Four per Cents. for Rs.2,99,100 were purchased at an average rate of about 93·78 per cent. The Government Securities account appended to the report shows particulars of the sales and purchases made during the year. The total securities held by the society on Dec. 31 were for Rs.14,91,800 nominal, their value in the society's books being Rs.14,18,583,15-4. The whole of the securities stand, in accordance with the regulations of the society, in the joint names of three of the directors.—Madras Times.

THE RAMPA REBELLION.—A special meeting of Council was held at Ootacamund on May 13 to consider what was best to be done. Col. Bach has been directed to send troops at once into the Malkarjûh taluk to follow up the insurgents, and the Raja of Jeypore has been requested to supply the force with provisions. If more troops are wanted Col. Bach is to apply for them with the least possible delay.—Madras Mail.

MADRAS MEDICAL STUDENTS.—Mr. J. H. Peck and Mr. Adolphus Passanha, late students of the Madras Medical College, have passed the final examination for the L.R.C.P. and L.M., Edinburgh, and the L.F.P.S. and L.M., Glasgow. The former is now the acting resident assistant surgeon at the Glasgow Royal Infirmary.

GORED TO DEATH BY AN ELEPHANT.—Recently as some of the elephants that were taken to the Erinjalakode Oolsavom were returning to their stations, one of them, a tusker, the property of Kodungaloor Devasom, killed one of its keepers under the following circumstances:—The elephant in question had two keepers to look after it by turns. The unhappy man that fell its victim was not, it seems, much liked by his charge, whom he treated with somewhat severe discipline—ill treating the animal with starvation for some disobedience shown to his commands during the festival. It is said that he bound the animal by its leg to a tree and allowed boys to molest it by pelting stones at it while he had some drink in him. After enforcing the strictest discipline for three days he acted kindly to the animal and thought it was reconciled. Not feeling confident of its good graces he, however, sought the help of other elephant keepers to accompany him and his elephant to the station that he might have the assistance of these animals in case his own should turn unruly on the way. The three elephants went quietly on their way till they reached a spot two miles from Karupadana, when the elephant in question moved with some speed in advance of its companions, and, shaking the keeper out of its back, it thrust him down and pierced him with its tusk most horribly in several parts of the man's body. He fell dead, but the animal satiated its fury and vengeance by disfiguring him.—Western Star.

THE BOMBAY CIVIL COURTS ACT.—The Bombay Civil Courts Act, 1880, received the assent of the Governor General on April 30, and has been promulgated in the usual way for general information. The Act empowers the Governor in Council by notification in the official gazette to fix, and from time to time alter, the local limits of the ordinary jurisdiction of the subordinate judges.—Times of India.

PRIMARY EDUCATION.—In reference to primary education in India, a correspondent draws attention to the fact that the children of low caste men—Mahars, Mangs, and others—are almost entirely excluded from most village schools; perhaps they may, in a few instances, be permitted, as a favour, to sit outside in the verandah, not in the school. As it is probable that a certain proportion of low caste men own land and pay local fund cess, education ought to be extended so as to include the children of all natives.—Bombay Gazette.

STATISTICS OF CRIME.—The statistics of the past year's crime in Bombay, showing an increase of nearly 7,000 in the number of reported offences, cannot be deemed satisfactory, even though that increase is stated to be chiefly under the heads of drunkenness among natives, nuisance and disorderly behaviour, offences of a "not very heinous nature," and seems to indicate an "increase in the activity of the police rather than in the misdemeanours actually committed." It appears that under the head of thefts alone there was an increase of nearly 550 cases, and, although the property stolen was in most cases small in amount, the police confess that the percentage of the property recovered was much smaller than usual—47 per cent., as compared with 51 per cent. in 1878, and 55 per cent. in 1877. It seems that whilst the amount of stolen property has been annually growing larger the success of the police in recovering it has diminished, and the Government think that an explanation should be given of what, without such explanation, "appears a very unsatisfactory feature in the working of the police." Altogether the police, as well as the magistracy and municipality, are declared to have been fairly successful in the detection and prevention of crime. If nearly 2,000 offences remained undetected at the end of the year it should be stated that the percentage of convictions was much larger than in 1878—94 per cent., as against 88 per cent.—a result which the Government properly allow is very creditable to the discrimination of the force. No satisfactory cause seems to be assigned for the general increase of crime, for the Government dismiss as insufficient the reason alleged by Mr. Cooper—namely, the existence in the city of a remnant of famine refugees. It is satisfactory that a class of cases of which we heard so much of two years ago has very largely decreased. We refer to cases of merchant seamen who are charged with refusal of duty on board ship, &c. The number of these cases fell from 762 in 1878 to 453 in 1879, which is attributed to a revival in the shipping trade. The number of juvenile offenders has more than doubled in a couple of years, but there is a large decrease in the number of persons proceeded against by the municipal authorities, and Government gladly endorse the remarks made by the chief presidency magistrate regarding "the efficient yet considerate way in which the officers of the municipality discharge this portion of their duty."—Times of India.

ENCROACHMENTS OF THE NERBUDDA.—A Guzerat paper mentions that the river Nerbudda, near Broach, is making gradual inroads upon the limits of the village of Sukerpore, one of the best revenue-paying villages in the Broach district. Five years ago the river was a long way off the village, but it is encroaching so rapidly that the villagers stand in dread of being overwhelmned by the flood one of these days should the river rise above its ordinary level. They have, it seems, brought the matter several times to the notice of Government. What they ask is the allotment of another site out of the several that are available and could be bestowed by Government, and to which the people would remove on leaving the present site. The villagers ought certainly to be protected from the possibility of a deluge, and it is not yet too late to ascertain how far their fears are well founded. The Nerbudda has often proved treacherous, as witness the case of the numerous bridges over the river at Broach which have had to be constructed by the Baroda Railway Company. The matter is one certainly deserving the attention of the revenue commissioner of the Northern Division and of the Government of Bombay.—Times of India.

RETIREMENT OF DR. WYLLIE.—In noticing the retirement of Dr. Wyllie, civil surgeon, Ahmedabad, the Indian Spectator says that "he will be long missed by the people. He not only treated his poorer patients with extreme care and kindness during office hours, but attended their bedside whenever required; and not only gave the community the benefit of his noble art free of every charge, but oftentimes provided the patients with medicine and nourishment. Dr. Wyllie is said to have some hundred poor pensioners living on his bounty, for whom he made provision before leaving Ahmedabad. It is quite natural that the people should express lively regret at parting with such a friend. We wonder if Dr. Wyllie is a relative of the gifted young civilian who died in the prime of manhood, but whose intense solicitude for the welfare of this country is among the proudest boasts of the Englishman." Dr. Wyllie's many friends in India will be glad to read this pleasant little tribute of the worth of a man who should undoubtedly have been at the head of his department.—Times of India.

DACOITS.—Mr. Keyser has committed ten persons to the Criminal Sessions for dacoities committed in the months of March and April last in the villages of Naneghat and Ootur. The prisoners belonged to one gang, and are alleged to have succeeded in wounding four men, two of whom were police sepoys. The culprits ran away but were caught in the Joonere taluka through the exertions of the police.—Deccan Herald.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

FRIDAY, JUNE 11, 1880.

THE MINISTERIAL MEMORANDUM.

THERE was a strong spice of rebuke, as administered to indiscreet, or of deprecation as displayed towards hostile, querists in the terms of the memorandum which the Secretary of State for India read on Monday night. Disparaging contrasts between the attitude of those who administer and those who criticise the Administration are ready to be drawn any time within the session, or, for that matter, several sessions following, a change of Administration. It is easy to make superficial attacks and obvious retorts upon the men who, having arraigned the policy and found fault with each step in the past, find themselves entrusted with the duty and embarrassed by the difficulty of accomplishing such a settlement of Afghanistan as shall not impair the honour, while it conduces to the peace, of our Indian Empire. In the memorandum which Lord Hartington read on Monday night there were two unexpressed purposes: one was to rebuke the pertinacious assaults of minor querists, who seem animated by the same juvenile restlessness that prompts the young gardener to pull up the plants in order to measure their growth; another may be surmised to have been to appeal to the generosity of those who know too well the secret causes that compelled the inception of the task that the Ministry finds it necessary to carry out to its fullest accomplishment We have always contended that, whatever party or men had been in power, the settlement of Afghanistan would have been forced upon them by circumstances. It must have been patent to every one who weighs the words of those who are directing our public policy that there is an avoidance of reference to the past such as is natural indeed, but none the less creditable, to those who formerly opposed any interference in Afghan affairs. The reference to the extraordinary rapidity with which "flying words" reach Afghanistan and "find marks the speaker little meant," inflaming the Afghan suspicion and wounding Afghan susceptibilities, does, indeed, recall former utterances, which might seem to have embarrassed present action. The Secretary of State must have the hearty and unanimous support of every one who regards the interests of India as superior to the claims of party, or the impracticable fancies of those who import too much of feeling into political measures, when he urges the necessity of a cautious respect for the secrecy of the negotiations which have been, or will shortly be, entrusted to Lord Ripon. The allusion to these negotiations necessarily, however, sets us conjecturing with whom the new Viceroy is about to be instructed to negotiate. The satisfactory assurance that it is the fixed object of the Government of India to establish something like a prospect of a settled Government, instead of leaving the Sirdars to fight it out among themselves, has produced a good effect in India as well as at home. A settled Government requires a head, and the selection of that head, and the conditions on which the selected ruler is to govern, and what the delimitation of his Government may be, are indeed matters requiring the most careful combination of the unprejudiced diplomacy of the Marquis of Ripon and the most matured knowledge and experience that the officials of the North West can place at his service. The telegrams tell us that the notion is revived of restoring ex-Ameer Yakoob, inasmuch as the ablest member of the Ameer family, Abdul Rahman, is more than suspected to be simply a tool in Russian hands. That the conviction of the innocence of the ex-Ameer is by no means as common as the Times' correspondent would have us believe, is shown by the recent article in Blackwood, in which a "Staff Officer" endeavours to prove Yakoob's complicity in the massacre of the Embassy. If not guilty, the ex-Ameer distinctly can be adjudged to have been weak and wavering. Abdul Rahman, like all other Afghans, will adhere to the side to which fear and profit attach him. But it is plain that, in racing parlance, he has receded in the betting.

With regard to the territorial delimitation the important question, whether it will be thought desirable to conjoin—we cannot say reunite—Northern and Southern Afghanistan into one State, the declarations of the Government are oracular. And as oracular they have been variously interpreted. There is, however, nothing oracular about the declaration which comes with its fullest force from the heir of the Cavendishes, that "engagements which have been entered into, and to which the honour of the country is pledged, must be respected." What the precise effect of the terms "permanent occupation" and "large British force" may be we shall learn later on. We maintain the opinion, and we confidently expect that it will prevail, that Southern Afghanistan will be permitted to reap all the advantages of the state of peace and prosperity which the strong hand and wise head of Donald Stewart inaugurated. There is such a thing as creating a prosperity by avowed protection, and that prosperity can afford to pay for it. We are sure that Bombay, at least, will not grudge the maintenance of a force sufficient to secure the development of the trade that security from Cabuli oppression will foster in the State of Kandahar. Nor is it of light moment that at this juncture the possibility of extending that State to the Persian border should be broached. "There is no doubt now that if Ayoob and his Cabulis could be got rid of, the whole Herat province would spontaneously cast in its lot with Kandahar;" so says the Kandahar correspondent of the journal which has been to all appearances unsuccessfully endeavouring to persuade itself that Kandahar ought to be abandoned and the Wali Shere Ali thrown over, formal investiture and assurances of support notwithstanding. The maintenance of our tenure of the positions occupied under the Treaty of Gandamak appears to be more dubious than that of the independent State of Kandahar. There seems to be looked for in this particular a compromise between the declarations in the debates of the last Parliament and the actual necessities imposed by office. The best military advice on the military question will, doubtless, not omit the acknowledged advantage which has been secured of dominating the country beyond the passes. It is of no consequence whether the Treaty of Gandamak be considered technically as inoperative, and it is of no consequence whether the motives which the Daily News repudiates, or those which it accepts, as possibly influencing the same or similar policy, prevail, if only the posts which secure either attack or defence be retained, and the Afghan tribes be allowed no opportunity for concluding that we are afraid or unable to keep the strongholds that we deemed it necessary to occupy. To the Afghans and to the frontier tribes treaties are of little importance—the strong hand, which can strike or spare, as justice demands, is more than signatures. To haul down the British flag where it has been hoisted as a symbol of permanent occupation, and to treat as exuberant follies proclamations of future rule, will be explained by the experienced advisers of the Viceroy as blunders fertile in future troubles. Whether to control or support the Cabul of the future, the hold of the passes that have been slowly but surely converted into secure highways cannot be relaxed, at all events without causing grave anxiety. The hoped-for withdrawal in the autumn of the forces now occupying Cabul is desired by all, and has been the receding object of the late, as well as the present, Government. The implied censure on some of the operations of these forces may be taken as meant to pacify malcontents who have conjured up visions of innocent tribesmen suffering the horrors of war. But, as measures needful to secure supplies and communications must be taken, it is pretty certain that robbers must be repressed by the only means of holding them in check which have as yet been discovered. We do not recollect any instance where the commanders have gone out of their way to punish unoffending tribesmen, or to seek collisions with tribes which have not, by overt acts, manifested their determination to attack our troops. Lord Ripon will, however, "restrict the area and scope of these operations as much as possible," and in this, it is to be hoped, he will have the co-operation of the Mollahs, Mahomed Jan, and Mir Butcha. Seriously speaking, it is to be regretted that the opportunity was taken to cast a shade of reproach on our generals and troops, who have endured hardships and danger in repressing brigandage and teaching the predatory savages, for they are little better, the dangers attendant on their habits of cowardly plunder as a first step to raising them from the condition of caterans to civilised cultivators or traders.

HOME NEWS.

THE OPIUM TRADE.—A deputation from the Society of Friends waited upon the Marquis of Hartington at the India-office, on Friday, to press upon him the desirability of abolishing the opium trade with China. The deputation was introduced by Mr. J. W. Pease, M.P., who said that since the first Chinese war the policy of England, dictated by the financial necessities of India, had been to force opium upon the Chinese whether they would or not. Referring to the treaty of Chefoo, he complained that the article in it by which the traffic would have been done away with had not been ratified by the English Government. The Marquis of Salisbury had explained that the article had not been ratified because it would have reversed the policy of England towards China in relation to the trade. Several members of the deputation having spoken, and a memorial having been presented, Lord Hartington said he would lay before the Government the views expressed in the memorial and by the gentlemen who had spoken. At the same time, it was not possible for him to enter fully into the views of the Government on the question. He had not been in his office very long, and, as they would readily understand, his time had been occupied with the consideration of some very important and pressing matters. When the matter came before the House of Commons it would be his duty to give some expression of his views and this he did not wish to anticipate. The Government would be ready to give fair consideration to the arguments which had been brought before him, but he must guard himself from any expression of opinion that would in the slightest degree commit him to a surrender of the important branch of revenue derived by India from the sale of opium. No doubt considerations of morality could not be discarded, but at the same time he thought it was very necessary that they should look at the matter, not merely from the point of view of morality as they felt it in England, but from the point of view from which it was looked at in India. The sacrifice which the deputation asked for was one which India, and not this country, was asked to make. No one, he imagined, would propose that if this tariff were stopped this country should be asked to make up to India the great loss of revenue which would ensue. They must look at the matter, therefore, from an Indian point of view. He did not mean to say that India should discard the question of morality, but all the circumstances must be weighed in the balance before a conclusion was come to. The importation of opium was prohibited at the time of the Chinese wars, but nevertheless it was introduced into the country in an illicit manner; and, if they adopted prohibitive measures, the question was whether they would not be involved in similar difficulties to those which led to these wars. The Government had the article of the Chefoo Convention referred to still under their consideration. All he could do at present was to ask the Government of India to favour him with their opinion on the question of the Convention. He was aware of the importance of this question and the strong feeling it excited in this country; but injurious consequences might result to the enormous population of India through a sudden reduction of the revenue. His hearers must not be surprised if the Government could not be guided by considerations upon which they would mould their conduct if they had only themselves to consider. The deputation then retired.

OBITUARY.—The late Commander John Bruce, of the Coastguard, who was recently drowned on the Northumbrian coast while attempting to cross to Holy Island in a punt, entered the navy on July 15, 1852. In 1871 he received his commander's commission, and in 1874 was appointed to her Majesty's ship Fly. In her he was present at Santander during the Carlist disturbances, and afterwards was ordered to China, when the Fly was the first gunboat on the spot during the outbreak at Perak. By taking possession of the forks of the river at Darien Sabatan he saved the Residency and prevented the retreat of the troops, for which he was thanked by Sir William Jervois on the quarter-deck of his ship. He was afterwards present at the capture of Passah Saleh, and subsequently was employed in blockading the north side of the Perak River. He received the approval of the Admiralty and of the Secretary of State for the Colonies for his services during the expedition. On Dec. 8 last he was appointed inspecting commander of the Berwick Division of the Coastguard, and was engaged in a tour of inspection at the time of his death. He had the Baltic medal, the Crimean and Turkish medal with Sebastopol clasp, and the China medal.—General Philip Kearney M'Gregor Skinner, C.B., whose death happened at the close of last week at his residence in Cheltenham, in the 75th year of his age, was the youngest son of the late Capt. Cortland M'Gregor Skinner, of the 70th Regiment of Foot, by his marriage with Isabella, daughter of the late Capt. John Macartney, R.N. He was born in the year 1805, and entered the Hon. East India Company's service at an early age. He served in command of a detachment of the Puna Auxiliary Horse with the field force in the Mahic Kanta and Edur districts in the winter of 1835-36, and also on the staff with the Bombay column in the Punjab campaign of 1848-49, including the siege of Mooltan, the battle of Goojerat, and the pursuit and surrender of the Sikh army, for which he received the medal with two clasps and a brevet majority. He became general in 1877.—Times.

THE STRANGERS' HOME FOR ASIATICS.—The annual meeting of the Strangers' Home for Asiatics, Polynesians, &c., was held on Wednesday afternoon, May 26, in the large hall of the institution at Limehouse. There was a very fair attendance; and, after the reading of the report by the acting hon. secretary, J. H. Fergusson, Esq., interesting addresses were delivered by Sir Wm. Ross Robinson, the Rev. Messrs. Bardsley and Billing, H. Morris, Esq., and by the chairman, Col. Yule, C.B., &c. It was stated in the report that during the year 1879 there had been 540 natives of the East admitted into the home, making, with thirty remaining at the beginning of the year, a total of 570 inmates. Of these about eighty had been destitute cases, about forty had been sent from continental ports, and thirty-two were shipwrecked mariners. Nearly the whole of these had had employment found for them (chiefly as seamen) or been otherwise provided for, leaving thirty-three in the home at the beginning of this year. £2,414 had been deposited by 124 individuals, taken care of, and returned to the depositors on their leaving the home. The total receipts of the year had been £2,959 (including a loan of £300, and about £890 from inmates for board and lodging), and the total expenditure £2,847, leaving not enough in hand to meet outstanding liabilities.

INDIA AND THE AFGHAN WAR EXPENSES.—The Bombay branch of the East India Association have just presented to the House of Commons, through Sir David Wedderburn, M.P., a petition praying that the cost of the Afghan war shall not be imposed upon the Indian people. The signataries urge that such imposition is unconstitutional; that it overrides the terms and drift of the statute of 1858, corroborated as the letter of that statute is by the expressed declaration of British statesmen of the period on both sides of the Houses; that the infliction of the heavy charges of this trans-frontier war on India will check the industrial progress of the Empire and tend to deepen the poverty of its people; also that the precedent threatened to be created, of impressing her Majesty's forces in India, in furtherance of diplomatic or other political policy arising out of party exigencies in England or the complication of European politics must prove disastrous, if not ruinous, to the interests of her Majesty's Empire in India. The petitioners, therefore, pray that as this foreign war was not undertaken for the purpose of "preventing or repelling actual invasion of her Majesty's Indian possessions" (as provided by the Act of 1858), the House of Commons will adopt such steps as may ensure that an exact account shall be taken of all costs of the operations in Afghanistan since November 21, 1878, as was done in the cases of the Abyssinian campaign and the Malta expedition, and that such costs be charged to the British Treasury, and not in any way imposed on the revenues, people, or resources of India.

HER MAJESTY'S INDIAN TROOPSHIPS.—The five Indian troopships are being rapidly pushed forward at Portsmouth for the ensuing trooping season. But while it has been determined to do nothing more than is absolutely necessary to the Malabar, Euphrates, and Jumna, the other two—the Serapis and Crocodile—are undergoing so thorough a repair as to practically amount to a reconstruction of the entire ships. About 500 artificers are employed upon each, as well as a large relay of labourers who enter after the rest have left the ships for the purpose of scraping the iron and in other ways preparing for the next day's work. Overtime is also being worked on board to the extent of three-eighths of a day per day, and every effort is being made to complete the refits by the end of September. The cost will inevitably be very great, as, after thirteen years of constant service, new decks and machinery are required, and a large number of small repairs are urgently called for. The new engines, which are by Messrs. Humphrys and Tennant, of Deptford, will cost £32,000 each, exclusive of the boilers, which are being repaired by the factory department of the dockyard; while upon each of the hulls the repairs and alterations will amount to £20,000. There is also another charge of between £7,000 and £8,000 for shipwright work connected with the engines.—Times.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—HANDEL FESTIVAL.—The Seventh Triennial Handel Festival, which will be celebrated at the Crystal Palace on June 21, 23, and 25, with the public rehearsal on the 18th, promises to be as successful as the Festivals which have previously taken place. The directors of the Crystal Palace and the committee of the Sacred Harmonic Society are working most heartily and cordially together, and it is their earnest endeavour to do all in their power to obtain success. Sir Michael Costa, who has never been absent from a Handel Festival, will conduct; and never has a stronger, never has a more varied list of solo artists been brought together than for the coming Festival, as the following list will show:—Madame Adelina Patti and Madame Albani, Madame Lemmens-Sherrington and Mrs. Osgood, Mrs

Suter and Miss Anna Williams, Madame Trebelli and Madame Patey, Mr. Vernon Rigby and Mr. Barton M'Guckin, Mr. J. Maas and Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Santley and Mr. F. King, Mr. Bridson and Signor Foli. There is every reason to hope that their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales will honour the Festival with their presence. Most of the leading musical composers of Germany, France, and Belgium, and the lords lieutenant of counties have been invited. The Lord Mayor of London, the Lord Mayor of Dublin, the Lord Provost of Glasgow, and most of the mayors of England have accepted invitations to the Festival.

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—In the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, on Thursday, the case of Belchambers v. Aushootosh Dhur was decided. This was an appeal from a decree of a Divisional Bench of the High Court of Calcutta of the 25th of April, 1878, reversing that of the subordinate judge of the Twenty-four Pergunnahs, in the Bengal Presidency. Mr. Leith, Q.C., and Mr. Doyne were counsel for the appellant; Mr. Graham, Q.C., was for the respondent. The litigation was as to the ownership of 8,050 begahs of waste soonderbun or low-lying lands at the mouth of the river Hooghly, and it turned upon an intricate question of boundary, and particularly as to the true position of a water-course, called Kankria Donia, which separated the property of the respondent from that in which the appellant was interested as the executor of the late proprietor, Mr. Lewis Tiery, who was an official in the service of the Nawab Nazim of Bengal. But, besides the issues of fact, there arose a point whether or not the land in question was included in a previous decision of the Judicial Committee in November, 1873, and, if so, whether the respondent's claim to it was not therefore barred. The local tribunal decided against the respondent, but the High Court, consisting of Chief Justice Sir Richard Garth and Mr. Justice M'Donell, reversed that judgment. Hence the present appeal. Their lordships, at the close of the arguments, reversed the decree of the High Court and allowed the appeal, with costs.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—The tenders received at the Bank of England on Wednesday for the Rs.35,00,000 of India Council drafts resulted in the whole amount being allotted to Calcutta at 1s. 8 1/16d. per rupee. Applicants at that price will get about 50 per cent., against 13 per cent. last week, when the minimum was 1s. 8d. On Wednesday next tenders will be received for a similar sum. The result of the allotment caused the silver market to assume a much firmer tone, and the price of bars was immediately advanced to 52 5-16d., or 1/16d. higher.

PENINSULAR AND ORIENTAL STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY.—The half-yearly meeting was held on Friday last, at the offices, 122, Leadenhall-street; Mr. W. F. De Salis, the chairman, presiding.—The report was taken as read.—The Chairman, in opening the proceedings, said that as this was the half-yearly meeting no accounts were presented, their consideration being reserved for the annual meeting in December. The directors, however, gladly availed themselves of the present opportunity of putting the shareholders in possession of the latest information regarding the position of their affairs. They would note from the report that the mail service under the new contract had commenced on Feb. 1, and it was gratifying to be able to add that it had been performed with accustomed punctuality, to the satisfaction of the Post-office authorities and the public. When they last met their new ships—the Ravenna, Rohilla, and Rosetta—were reported as building. Two of them had been completed, and the third, the Rosetta, had been launched, and would be finished at an early date. These three ships were all of the same type and size, viz., 3,500 tons, with 700 horse power, and endowed with high postal speed as well as large carrying capacity. They would be valuable additions to their fleet, more particularly owing to the loss of the Hindostan and the Travancore, and notwithstanding that their resources had been somewhat taxed by these losses their communications had not been interrupted for one single hour. In addition to the ships which he had already named, it had been found necessary to order the construction of three more new vessels, one of which, the Brindisi, was being built by Messrs. Doxford and Co., of Sunderland, and would be a large carrying useful ship of 3,600 tons and 560 horse power. The other two vessels had been placed in the hands of Messrs. Caird and Co., of Greenock, who had given the lowest tenders, and would possess the high speed of nearly eighteen statute miles per hour, and would be the largest yet built by the company. Hitherto it had been the custom to devote the after part of the deck to the accommodation of first-class passengers, but in the present instance accommodation would be afforded for them in the middle of the vessel, and thereby the tendency to discomfort and sea sickness would be materially diminished. The new Governor General of India had paid the company the compliment of selecting their steam line for his transit to India, and his Excellency had highly praised the service and the arrangements which had been made for his accommodation. He regretted that they were not able to pay a larger dividend; of late there had been a depression in the shipping interest, but the prospects for the coming half-year were more favourable. There was no probability of any further decline in Eastern freights, and the receipts on their Australian line would increase under the influence of the opening of the Melbourne Exhibition and the arrangements which they had made for facilitating traffic with that colony. The success which had attended the import of refrigerated meat by the steamship Strathleven promised to call a new trade into existence with Australia, and when the results of meat refrigeration were somewhat further tested they would not be slow to fit their direct ships with accommodation for that trade. There was another favourable feature in the coming half-year, and that was that the combination of the Australian collieries, under which coal had been maintained at a high price, had been thoroughly broken up, and in consequence coal in Australia had been reduced nearly one-third in price, with every prospect of a further reduction. This would effect a considerable saving in the working expenses, and altogether the prospects of the coming half-year appeared better than those of the past, and should admit of the payment of a better dividend. The Chairman concluded by moving the adoption of the report which recommended the payment of a dividend at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum.—Mr. E. Thornton, C.B., seconded the motion, and after a discussion, in which Captain Nelson, Mr. Ward, and others took part, the report was unanimously adopted. The proceedings were brought to a close by the passing of the usual vote of thanks to the chairman.

MADRAS RAILWAY.—The report of the directors for the half-year ended Dec. 31 states that the gross receipts for that period were £299,030, as compared with £293,738 for the corresponding period of 1878; the expenses of working and maintenance amounted to £203,374, as against £226,099; and the net revenue was £95,636, as compared with £67,639. The receipts for the year from coaching were £117,832; from goods and materials, £166,977; and from telegraph and sundries, £14,221. The number of train miles run was 1,028,505. The agent and manager reported that the receipts from passenger traffic (exclusive of troops and police) were £96,507, a decrease of £1,773, equal to 1·8 per cent., and the number of passengers carried was 1,797,039, an increase of 485,963, equal to 37 per cent. This increase was owing to the recent introduction of the two pice third class fare. The diminution in the passenger receipts was owing to the reductions in first and second class traffic. The total expenditure on capital account to Dec. 31 had been £10,137,925, and there was a credit balance of £532,477. The estimated further expenditure was £229,350.

SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY.—The annual report of the directors states that the length of line open for traffic had been increased to 634 miles by the opening, in July last, of the five miles, between Chidambaram and the Coleroon River, effecting unbroken connection between the northern and southern portion of the company's system, and by the opening last December of the branch (seventeen miles) from Villupuram to the Gingee River, where it joined the line of the Pondicherry Railway Company. The opening of the Pondicherry Railway, from the River Gingee to the town of Pondicherry, seven and a-half miles long, was effected simultaneously with that of the branch last mentioned. The whole of the company's railway was now of one uniform metre, or 3ft. 3 3/8in. gauge. The gross traffic receipts for the year amounted to £322,198, and the expenditure to £220,303, or 68·37 per cent., leaving as net profit £101,895, representing a return of £2 12s. per cent. per annum on the total capital expenditure at Dec. 31 of £3,920,479. But for the exceptional item of £20,818 written off for depreciation of a portion of the broad-gauge carriage and wagon stock, the earnings for the twelve months would have been equal to £3 2s. 6d. per cent. The average rate of interest paid on the total capital of the company raised was £4 14s. 6d. per cent., the rate which would have to be earned before surplus profits were divided. The loss on exchange—a new charge—amounted during the year to £8,332. The passenger fares remained at 1d., 3/8d., and 1/4d. per mile for the three classes. The number of passengers carried in the year was 5,107,667, against 5,030,071 in the previous year. The increase in the coaching receipts amounted to £9,289. Excluding stores carried free for revenue, about 455,000 tons of goods were carried in 1879, being an increase of 70,000 tons over the previous year, the increase in the receipts being £7,963. The balance to the credit of capital account was £396,675. The estimated further expenditure was £402,821, to meet which there were capital and other powers amounting to £984,098.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The half-yearly report states that the gross receipts were £231,571, or a decrease, as compared with the six months to December, 1878, of £19,227; and the net earnings £93,692, or a decrease of £9,940. The net profit of the half-year was equal to £1 3s. 1d. per cent. on the interest-bearing capital of the company, making, with the net profit of the previous half of the year, a return of £4 5s. 7d. per cent. for the whole year 1879, which compares with £4 3s. 2d. per cent. for 1878, and with £5 2s. 1d. per cent. for 1877. During the half-year under notice progress was, at the close of the rains, resumed with the works of the new bridge over the Nerbudda River, and has since steadily continued. At the date of the last report received by the directors, all the twenty-six piers, each of two columns, were in various stages of progress, and twelve plans of superstructure erected. The total expenditure incurred and charged to capital up to the end of 1879 on account of the bridge amounted to £202,448, of which £151,000 was contributed by revenue from surplus net earnings over the guarantee. The contribution towards its cost to be made from the fire insurance fund—viz., £25,000, has been realised and paid over to capital within the current year.

INDIA IN PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY, JUNE 3.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.

In reply to Mr. O'Donnell, the Marquis of HARTINGTON said that there was no reason to believe that there were any financial irregularities on the receipt side of the Indian Budget. Page 85 of the papers recently presented to Parliament regarding the estimates for the war in Afghanistan contains a table showing that the revenue for the year ended on March 31 last was now believed to be less by about £82,000 than estimated in February. The increase of opium revenue in 1879-80, above the Budget estimate, was taken at £1,900,000, but was believed to have been about £1,800,000, of which perhaps about £300,000 might be attributed to the sale of an unusual number of chests of opium in Calcutta. The policy of the Government had been for several years to accumulate a reserve which should enable them to depend on a regular stock for sale, irrespective of the fluctuations in the crop. At the beginning of the year 1879 it was determined to sell 60,000 chests during the calendar year, but it was announced that, from January 1, only 4,700 chests a month, or 56,400 in the year, would be sold, and that no alteration of the monthly amount sold would be made without a twelvemonth's notice. The sales in the official year 1879-80 were 59,100 chests, or 2,700 above the amount now fixed. This slight reduction of the stock in hand, which, on Jan. 1, was 81,583 chests, would not cause any loss of revenue in succeeding years.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—FRIDAY.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL OF INDIA.

In answer to Sir G. Balfour, the Marquis of HARTINGTON said that the proceedings of the Legislative Council of India of March 2, 1880, including the addresses of the several members on the general and military expenditure, would be laid upon the table of the House if the hon. and gallant gentleman would move for them. There would be no objection to follow the same course in regard to the instruction from the India-office ordering the charges for frontier railways to be charged under "Army."

THE OPIUM DUTY.

Mr. PEASE called attention to the revenue of India derived from the cultivation of the poppy and the traffic in opium, and to their bearing on the relations between this country and China. The British Government, he argued, while asking for admission into China of all our exports on the "most favoured nation" terms, should not insist upon terms facilitating the introduction of opium against the desire of the Chinese Government. He urged also on the Government to take steps for gradually withdrawing from the traffic and for making Indian finance independent of the revenue.

Mr. M. STEWART made some remarks on the aspects of the opium traffic in Burma, and, condemning it both on commercial and moral grounds, urged a gradual discontinuance of the monopoly.

Sir G. CAMPBELL, while admitting all the objections to the traffic, asserted, amid many expressions of dissent, that if the Chinese were to be poisoned by opium he would rather it was for the benefit of the Indian than the Chinese revenue. To prohibit the cultivation in India would undoubtedly lead to its increase in other countries; and, while he deprecated the direct connection of the Government with it, any change must be gradual.

Mr. Alderman FOWLER explained the difference between spirits and opium, and charged the English with having introduced the taste for the latter in China. He might quote the opinion of Sir William Muir, who had said that the country should cease to cultivate and manufacture opium. We were trustees for the people of India, who were unrepresented in that House. The Indian revenue in times of peace was derived mainly from three sources, none of which to his mind were altogether satisfactory—namely, from the land, which yielded a high revenue; from salt, which was one of the necessities of life; and from opium. This opium revenue was the most objectionable of all.

Sir CHARLES DILKE denied that we had refused to ratify the Cheefoo Convention. There had been delay, for which Lord Salisbury had truly stated that the disputed article would prevent the importation of opium. The negotiations on this point were still going on. Conferences were being held at Pekin every week. The Government had full information of what had passed, but not up to the latest date. The proposals which had passed between the Chinese Government and Sir T. Wade had almost been agreed upon. But further intelligence would reach the Government by the French mail which left Shanghai on May 19, and on its arrival they would learn the terms of the compromise agreement. The House would see that it was unlikely that there would be a refusal to ratify the opium clause of the Chefoo Convention on the part of the Chinese Government. As to the fresh proposal made by Sir T. Wade, he could not say what would be the conclusions of the Government until they had come under the consideration of the Secretary of State for India.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON, while not professing to have mastered all the details of this complicated question, intimated his intention not to say anything on this occasion which would endanger or diminish so important a branch of Indian revenue. As to the ground of morality—"cheap morality," he styled it—on which the question had been argued, he protested against it being decided on any but Indian considerations, and insisted that before the revenue was surrendered the Indian Government was bound to consider whether it ought not first to remove taxes which weighed oppressively on the Indian people. As to prohibiting exportation, when it had been tried it had stimulated illicit traffic and had resulted in the demoralisation of all concerned, and until it could be shown that opium was more injurious than spirits it could not be contended that the Indian Government were called on absolutely to prohibit the cultivation. If export were prohibited it did not follow that the consumption of opium in China would diminish, because a large proportion was grown in China, to say nothing of Persia and other countries. The monopoly of cultivation, he believed, was necessary to prevent abuses, and to abolish it would not accomplish the object in view.

Dr. CAMERON strongly condemned the low moral tone of this reply, and in order to give the House an opportunity of expressing its opinion on it he moved the adjournment of the debate, at the same time arguing earnestly against the opium traffic.

Mr. E. STANHOPE could not think that any advantage could possibly be gained by the adjournment. As he understood the mover and those who supported him in this debate, their object was to press on the Secretary for India this subject as requiring his care and attention during the next year. The noble lord might have sheltered himself with simply saying that he would give the subject that attention; but, instead of doing so, he told the House that after three or four weeks' experience he could not say that he was prepared to give up altogether, or take steps little by little to abandon, the opium revenue. It involved no less than seven or eight millions sterling. It was a source of revenue which was not felt by the people of India, and if they abandoned it they must either be prepared to impose other taxes on the people of India or, which would, perhaps, be more just, require the people of England to assume that charge. But perhaps he was addressing those who were prepared to take up the Fiat justitia, ruat cælum principle, and who said the opium traffic was demoralising and must be abolished. But if they were to consider that point, should they not also consider the question of alcohol in this country. What must be the effect of abolishing the cultivation of the poppy in India? The Chinese would continue to grow it. Its cultivation would be increased in Persia. If they adopted that extreme step, which would deprive the people of India of that important branch of revenue, they would not be abolishing the traffic. This was a subject which had to be referred to India and China, and required much consideration. He thought the noble lord had been well advised not to abandon that source of income or pledge himself to take any step towards its abandonment. He had told them he would look into the subject with the utmost care and that he would enter upon the question without prejudice. It therefore seemed to him that the central object put forward by the hon. mover had been gained; the noble lord had undertaken to look into the matter in the course of next year, and therefore he did not think anything would be gained by the adjournment of this debate.

Mr. FAWCETT, on the other side, defended the Indian Secretary, and challenged his critics to suggest some mode of supplying the deficiency which would be caused by the abandonment of the opium revenue.—Mr. PEASE having expressed his disappointment, Mr. GLADSTONE, who remarked that this was not the first time this session he had noticed a tendency to allow feeling to run away with reason, referred at length to the history of the traffic and the Chinese wars, with a view of showing that public opinion had never been decisively pronounced against the policy of former Governments. He himself adhered to all he had ever said against the traffic, and Lord Hartington's speech, he pointed out, merely amounted to a refusal to give promises which at present he could not possibly see his way to carrying out.—Sir J. M'KENNA having made some observations, the motion for adjournment was withdrawn, and the subject dropped.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.

Replying to Mr. Pugh, the Marquis of HARTINGTON said he was not aware that there was any uncertainty with respect to the figures of the last Indian Budget save in so far as related to the expenses of the Afghan war.

AFGHANISTAN.

Replying to several members, Lord HARTINGTON read the following memorandum to the House:—"Instructions as full as the case admitted of have been sent to Lord Ripon. I wish that it were possible to lay this despatch upon the table. I am fully sensible of the forbearance of the House in not pressing for complete information upon the state of affairs in Afghanistan and the measures which the Government propose to take, and I am most anxious to give the House all possible information at the earliest date. But the instructions necessarily relate in great part to negotiations of a very difficult and delicate character, which have now been or will shortly be entrusted to Lord Ripon. Information as to what is said here reaches Afghanistan with extraordinary rapidity, and the jealous and suspicious character of the Afghan chiefs renders it very necessary that no premature or incomplete disclosure of the intentions and proposals of the Government should be made which might tend to embarrass Lord Ripon in the exercise of the discretion which must necessarily be left to him. But I may state that the objects of the Government are mainly two. The first is to bring the actual military operations to a close. The House will have seen with a regret which is fully shared by her Majesty's Government that from time to time expeditions are still undertaken from headquarters with the object of reducing to submission or of punishing tribes who have assumed a hostile attitude or have attacked or threatened our communications. So long as our troops remain in the country their supplies and communications must be secured, and whatever measures may be necessary for this purpose must be taken. But it will be Lord Ripon's first object to restrict the area and scope of these operations as much as possible, and to avoid any further collisions with tribes beyond the limits of the positions which we occupy. The next object will be to leave behind us, when the main body of the troops retires, as we hope it may in the autumn, something like a prospect of a settled government. It is to this object that the negotiations to which I have referred and the instructions to Lord Ripon principally relate, and matters have not yet sufficiently advanced to enable me to give to the House any detailed information. With regard to this future settlement, the House is aware that the late Government and Lord Lytton considered that the separation of Kandahar from Afghanistan and the establishment of an independent Government there under British protection was a settled and desirable policy. I have said on a previous occasion that engagements which have been entered into and to which the honour of the country is pledged must be respected; and I am not at present prepared to say that any other arrangement is now possible, even if it were found to be desirable. But the Government certainly does not view with favour or look upon as advantageous any arrangement which would make the permanent occupation of Kandahar by a large British force a necessity. Lord Ripon will examine the question from this point of view. He will form his own judgment as to what is honourably binding on us and politically expedient, but he will not approach the question with any preconceived opinion in favour of a policy which would require a permanent extension of our military liabilities. The same observations apply to the positions on the frontier occupied under the Treaty of Gandamak. The Government are not satisfied that they add anything to the strength of the frontier; they appear to involve a very considerable addition to the frontier force, which we should regret. Lord Ripon will obtain the best military advice at his disposal on the military question, and on this advice he will act independently. He will consider the question of their retention or abandonment on its merits, political and military, and will not be influenced by the mere fact of their having been acquired and occupied under the Treaty of Gandamak, which must be considered to have ceased to exist."

CASUALTIES.

Mairi Bhan, M'Intyre, from Calcutta, arrived in the river, reports that on midnight on May 12, in lat. 38 N., long. 28 W., without any warning, she was struck by what appeared to be a sort of whirlwind, which blew with fearful fury from W.S.W., carrying away crossjack-yard and two topsail yards while going dead before it. Mainsail was blown clean out of gear, maintopsail split, and fore and main topgallant sails blown to shreds. After continuing about ten minutes, the wind began travelling right round the compass, and when it got to N.N.W. blew a terrific gale. The gale gradually veered to N.W. and then to northward, blowing out with great fury when it reached there; vessel then was in lat. 38 N., long. 18.34 W. During the gale lost fore lowertopsail and foresail. Lowest glass on May 15, 29.28; wind at the time N.N.W.

THE INDIAN ASSOCIATION.—Baboo Ram Chandra Palit, of the Indian Association, applied on May 10 to Mr. Lambert, the Deputy Commissioner of Police, for permission to post placards on the walls of the buildings facing the public streets of the city, notifying that a meeting would be held at the Town-hall on the 12th "to adopt a memorial to Parliament for the removal of the repressive and retrograde measures of the late Ministry." Mr. Lambert declined to grant permission, whereupon the secretary to the association wrote to Mr. Lambert but received no answer to his letter. Baboo Surendranath Bannerjee then personally applied to the Commissioner of Police, who granted the required permission on the understanding that the wording of the bill should be altered thus: "to express the feeling of the native community at the result of the late general election in England."—Statesman.

PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators; also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,

This Company is established as a necessary supplement to the Army and Navy Co-operative Society (Limited), for the purpose of supplying fresh provisions and other articles of domestic use not supplied by that Society.

The following may be specially mentioned:—Fish, Meat, Game, Poultry, Fruit, Flowers, Vegetables, Ice, General Dairy Produce, Forage, &c.

The expediency of this undertaking has been forcibly brought by many Shareholders to the notice of the Directors of the Army and Navy Co-operative Society, and they have in consequence consented to form its Board of Direction, and have subscribed the Memorandum of Association for 1,400 Shares.

The Directors have secured on reasonable terms the offer of an eligible plot of ground adjoining the present Stores in Victoria-street, on which site it is intended to erect forthwith a building containing facilities for the sale and delivery of the above-mentioned products.

C. H. SHARP AND COMPANY, PATENT INLET

PURE AIR VENTILATING WALL FILTER.

C. H. SHARP and COMPANY call special attention to their new Wall Inlet, which is admirably adapted for the Ventilation of Private Dwellings, Churches, Schools, Public Buildings, Hospitals, Stables, &c.

It is constructed upon sound scientific principles, and is superior to any other ventilator yet introduced.

ADVANTAGES.

1. It is simple in its construction.
2. It is sensitive in its operation.
3. It is not liable to get out of repair.
4. The air being pure the atmosphere is more healthy and agreeable, as all fog, smoke, dust, and other foreign particles in which the atmosphere of towns abound, are kept back by the Filter, which allows only a supply of pure air to pass through the regulating spaces in an upward direction into the room without causing a draught.

The supply of air can be regulated by partially opening or closing the valve. When closed it is flush with the inside wall, and can be papered or coloured to match the same, which renders it scarcely noticeable. Fixed at 6ft. 6in. from the floor, with an ordinary air brick on the outside use of filter.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, May 20; Madras and Allahabad, May 27; Calcutta, May 26.

THE reports on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending May 18 state that the rainfall of the week presents no new features either in distribution or amount, except that in Mysor it was heavier, and that from Bombay, the Central Provinces, and Central India States, where, with the single exception of the Kanara district, there was no rain in the previous week, slight showers are reported. Cultivation is progressing satisfactorily. Agricultural prospects and public health remain generally good.

WE have received the following telegram from the India-office :—

"FROM VICEROY, JUNE 10.—All quiet in Cabul and immediate neighbourhood, though there have been rumours of excitement in Kohistan stirred up by Mahomed Jan; expedition from Jellalabad into Kamar successful, inhabitants having given security not to encourage Mollahs, nor to attack convoys on our road by Cabul river. Troops have returned safely across river. Some petty raids have occurred near Lundi Kotal, and discontented branches of some tribes have attacked travellers in Khyber. Mollahs have caused ferment among Afridis. Tribal levies are being employed to punish offenders. At Kandahar, and on Beluchistan frontier, all quiet."

THIS week's telegrams state that Northern Afghanistan is disquieted in consequence of the letters circulated by Abdul Rahman, about whom the following news has just been issued through the Press Commissioner :—

"Abdul Rahman appears to be hesitating and temporising about entering into the arrangements proposed to him by the British authorities from Cabul for assuming the government of Northern Afghanistan. He tries to drive bargains and discuss terms, whereas the British do not care to enter into any formal negotiations with him, though they are willing to support him in restoring order and establishing his authority if he meets them on a basis of friendly understanding. His troops are ill-paid and in a bad state, though among the tribes his influence is extending."

The following has been received from General Hill's camp in the Logar Valley, dated June 10 :—

"The people are restless and expectant. Our pickets are constantly fired into at night. The insurgent bodies in Zurmat and Kharwar still hold together. The insincerity of the Sirdar Abdul Rahman in treating with us is clear from the following circumstances. Letters and presents are constantly arriving from him for the tribal chiefs; he has appointed our great enemy, Mahomed Jan, to be Commander in Chief throughout Afghanistan. Sirdar Alam Khan, our Governor at Ghazni, while here, on his way back to Ghazni, received an autograph letter asking his assistance; lastly, he proclaims that he is ready to fight for the restoration of Yakoob Khan in order to conciliate that faction. The harvest commences in three weeks; after the completion of it the people will be ready for mischief. Our supplies ample. The heat is moderate, and the health of the troops is good. The troops occupy a strong position in two camps connected by telegraph. We can heliograph to Cabul."

A CABUL telegram, dated June 16, says that friendly letters, dated Khanabad, the 9th inst., which have been received by Mr. Lepel Griffin from the Sirdar Abdurrahman announce his attention of proceeding to Charikar in acceptance of the invitation of the British Government. The sirdar before starting will probably await the arrival of letters from Cabul containing the orders of the Government on certain points on which he desired to have information, and which should reach him on the 20th inst.

THE Daily News correspondent telegraphs as follows:—

"A messenger carrying the final terms started for Khanabad on the 15th inst. Abdul Rahman is moving towards Cabul, avowedly with a friendly intent, with two thousand men and twelve guns. His letters to Mr. Griffin are cordial. He encloses a letter to the tribal chiefs, warning them to rely on his coming. Great excitement has been caused by this letter, which is misunderstood as ordering a Jehad."

THE Bombay correspondent of the Standard telegraphs the following statement from Col. Gordon, who has been invited to China by Li-hung Chang :—

"My fixed desire is to persaude the Chinese not to go to war with Russia, both in their own interests and for the sake of those of the world, especially those of England. In the event of war breaking out I cannot answer how I should act for the present, but I should ardently desire a speedy peace."

As Col. Gordon was refused leave to proceed to China, he resigned his commission before leaving India.

THE appointment of military secretary to General Warre, Commander in Chief of the Bombay Army, has been conferred upon Major Rivett-Carnac, who was recently employed as secretary to Sir Richard Temple, Governor of Bombay.

GENERAL STEWART'S despatches describing the action at Ahmed Kheyl and Ghazni have been published in the Gazette of India. He describes the conduct of the troops as beyond praise, and specially mentions Brigadiers Hughes and Palliser, Colonels Johnson, Kennedy, and Lyster, Major Euan Smith, and several other officers. The gallantry of Lieutenant Watson and Sub Lieutenant Troynam, of the 59th Foot, is brought to special notice.

LORD WESTBURY, late lieutenant Scots Guards, has been appointed private secretary and aide de camp to Sir George F. Bowen, G.C.M.G., Governor and Commander in Chief of the Mauritius.

MR. H. W. PRIMROSE has been appointed private secretary to the Marquis of Ripon. He is now acting as one of Mr. Gladstone's private secretaries.

THE Standard announces that Sir Frederick Haines has no intention of resigning the command of the Indian army, as has been stated, but will remain in India until early next year.

SURGEON GENERAL WILLIAM GUYER HUNTER, M.D., Bombay Medical Department, has been appointed an honorary surgeon to the Queen, in the vacancy caused by the death of Dr. F. S. Arnott, C.B. Dr. Hunter entered the Bombay Army as an assistant surgeon, Feb. 21, 1850, and served on board the East India Company's steamship Moozuffer in the Burmese war of 1852-53 (medal). He was promoted surgeon major Feb. 21, 1870; deputy surgeon general Sept. 29, 1876; and surgeon-general of the Bombay Medical Department, Sept. 15, 1877. Dr. Hunter was for some years principal of the Grant Medical College, physician to the Jamsetjee Jejeebhoy Hospital, and professor of physiology at the Grant Medical College.

THE Standard is enabled to confirm the report that the Duke of Buckingham and Chandos will vacate the Governorship of Madras, his Grace having expressed his wish to return to England before the end of the present year.

LORD LYTTON presided over a meeting of the Viceregal Legislative Council at Simla on May 22, when the new member, Mr. Gibbs, took his seat at the Council table for the first time. The most important business was the introduction by Mr. Grant of a bill to amend the revenue tenancy laws of the Central Provinces, explaining fully their objects, and also a bill exempting military officers, soldiers, and public property from certain forms of municipal taxation in municipalities not municipal cantonments. The Mooltan Districts Jurisdiction Bill, which provides for the legal exercise of jurisdiction over the lands of the Indus Valley State Railway, was passed.

RAJAH SHEORAJ SINGH, C.S.I., of Kasheepore, accompanied by his eldest son, had arrived at Simla to take his farewell of Lord Lytton. Rao Karan Singh, of Alighur, and the Hon. Syad Ahmed Khan, C.S.I., were also at Simla. Report says that quite a number of the native nobility of Hindostan are expected to visit Simla before Earl Lytton leaves the country.

THE Rev. Father Patrick has been posted to Simla as Roman Catholic chaplain.

THE Calcutta correspondent of the Times telegraphs that nothing is known of the Nyoungoke prince's whereabouts. The Burmese Envoy at Thayetmyo has at last left, in compliance with the very strong hints received from the local authorities. The Indian Government held firm to the view that until some substantial basis of negotiation had been settled, and until he specified distinctly the points which he was prepared to discuss, it was useless for him to proceed further on a mission merely charged with expressions of a desire for friendship and with some vaguely drafted propositions, most of which were primâ facie inadmissible. The future position of the British Resident at Mandalay appeared to be one essential preliminary point for determination before the question of diplomatic relations could be effectively entered upon, and on that point he had no satisfactory proposals to make.

THE Secretary of State for India has notified in reference to the new Rupee Loan to be tendered for next week that those who prefer them to the usual promissory notes may have loan certificates with coupons attached, payable to bearer. The exact date, however, of their issue in exchange for the scrip cannot at present be fixed.

TELEGRAMS from Calcutta announce that the exact price at which the new Indian loan of 313 lakhs was allotted was 103 3-16 per cent. It is understood that the entire loan was tendered for at this quotation in full by each of two French syndicates, represented respectively by the Comptoir d'Escompte and Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, and that the allotment was in the proportion of one-half to each group, all other tenders having been below the above figure. It was stated, moreover, that the new issue was dealt in subsequently at 107, the quotation afterwards receding, according to the latest advices, to 105. The Standard is informed that the Government has been memorialised by holders of the old loan to make the bonds uniform with the new issue as regards the attachment of coupons, and that it is not improbable their petition will be favourably responded to.

THE command of the Indian troopship Euphrates, vacant by the appointment of Capt. C. J. Brownrigg to the London, has been conferred on Capt. Henry Hand (1877).

THE Anglo-Indian Guardian is informed that the Cape Government has, through the Secretary of State for India, applied for the services of officers and surveyors of the Survey of India, who, under the orders of Government for the reduction of the Survey Department, are likely to be placed on the retired list.

THE passengers who arrived in Bombay by the steamer Zambesi have addressed a letter to the President of the Council of Administration of Egyptian Railways complaining of the unsatisfactory nature of the arrangements made by the Egyptian railway officials for the transit from Alexandria to Suez.

THE first prize in the Umballa Derby sweepstakes was upwards of £10,000. Two Government clerks at Simla, who drew Bend Or, sold their chance for £4,000.

IT is stated by the Times of India that there is a feeling in some native circles that the License Act as now enforced should be left untouched. It has just been decided by the Governor General in Council that any person who is engaged in any trades, dealings, industries, or callings in more than one of the local areas, to which the several License Acts apply, shall be charged under the Acts under which he is liable with respect to his principal place of business, the amount of his fee being calculated as if he were carrying on all such trades within the one local area.

WE learn from a Bombay journal that there is every probability of a lower standard examination in Persian being established. This examination has been deemed advisable for a long time, but the first steps have only just been taken for its actual establishment.

IN the administration report of the Central India Agency Sir H. Daly remarks that ten years ago, with the exception of the Maharaja's school in Indore city and the Sehore High School, there were hardly any institutions worthy of the name. Ten years ago it was the exception to find any person young or old who could converse with intelligence on general topics; indolence and opium had taken firm hold of the youths of native States, the people were apathetic and self-contented. Now the tide has fairly turned. "A spirit of emulation has prompted the boys who attend our schools to take the good held out to them, and the results of their training are evidenced by the intelligent interest which all evince in the topics of the day, and by the desire which many have shown to improve themselves by travelling and by seeing places and people their forefathers knew nothing of." On the subject of the education of the native chiefs, Sir H. Daly is able to give most encouraging reports. The want of education among the rulers of the country has, he says, in past times been a crying evil; the reproach has to some extent, at least, been removed from Central India.

THE assimilation of clocks all over India is advocated by the Calcutta Statesman. The difference from Karachi to Pegu is 29 deg., which gives a difference of time of one hour fifty-eight minutes. Allahabad boasts the equidistant longitude of 81¾ deg., and is practically the railway centre; therefore, should be the centre of Indian time. No part would be fifty-nine minutes out of true time and the great bulk of the country would be within thirty to forty minutes of sun time.

A CORRESPONDENT of the leading journal recently asserted that from 15 to 25 per cent. of the whole revenue of Cashmere is derived from immoral licenses. The amount so paid was said to be a fixed proportion of the disreputable gains of the persons who pay it; "and this," it was added, "is allowed by the Government of India. It is now stated, says a Bombay contemporary, that the Government of India read the statement in question with much surprise, inquired into its foundation, and ascertained that it was false to all intents and purposes."

THE fact that the decree for providing a site for the Indian Institute was only carried in Convocation by a single vote is explained as not showing any hostility to the Institute; an overwhelming majority were prepared to accept the Institute and give it a site, but the site proposed was strongly objected to by many. Both questions, the acceptance of the Institute by the University, and that of the site recommended by the Council, being linked together, the opponents of the latter seem to have thought themselves bound to object to the former also, although agreeing to it. The Oxford correspondent of the Athenæum says that this illustrates "the defectiveness of the forms of procedure." Others will accept it as a proof of "defectiveness" of another sort.

AT the anniversary meeting to be held to-morrow, a life-sized portrait of Major General Boileau will be presented by his friends and fellow committeemen to the Soldiers Daughters' Home, to be placed in the dining hall.

AN interesting exhibition of photographs of the Waverley tableaux vivants at Cromwell House, taken by the Vander Wey de process, is now open at 182, Regent-street.

DURING the week ending May 15 the deaths in Calcutta numbered 164, being a death rate of 19·9 per 1,000 per annum. The same week in Madras there were 235 deaths, a death rate of 30·7 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay, during the week ending May 18, the deaths numbered 433, a rate of 34·05 per 1,000 per annum.

THE Times of India supplies the following:—

OBITUARY OF THE WEEK.—Lieut. G. E. A. Woods, R.A.; Mr. E. A. Boyd; Mr. W. H. Trotter.

Digitized by Google

A CALCUTTA telegram of 13th inst. says that news has been received from Bokhara that the Russian troops from Samarcand and Khokand were going eastward towards Kashgar, that the Chinese had attacked the Russian outposts on the Kuldja frontier, and much uneasiness prevailed in Russian Turkestan. And a telegram from Cabul states that the news forwarded last week of the Chinese forces having entered various points of the Russian territory has been confirmed. It is added that the Russian troops have been withdrawn from Katakargan, Samarcand, and Khokand towards the frontier, and that there is a general feeling of agitation in Central Asia, especially in Bokhara and Khokand, where the people would willingly rise against the Russians had they a leader. The Khokandis who first brought this news left for Peshawur last week, but were attacked by thieves near Seh Baba and robbed of all the valuables they had been able to save in their flight from Khokand, chiefly gold, valued at 60,000 rupees. As the village where the thieves are believed to have taken refuge is known, an attempt will be made to capture them.

THE HIGHWAY FROM THE INDUS TO KANDAHAR.

AT a meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, held at the London University on Monday, Sir Richard Temple, Bart., G.C.S.I., delivered a lecture upon the subject of the highway from the Indus to Kandahar.—The president of the society, Lord Aberdare, took the chair, and there was a good attendance of members, including Lord Northbrook and Sir Henry Rawlinson.—The Chairman, in introducing the lecturer, said that Sir Richard Temple, whose name was now a household word in connection with that country which had produced so many eminent administrators, began his career in the school of the late Lord Lawrence, and had raised himself step by step to the position of Governor of Bombay, in which capacity he had undertaken the gigantic work of which he was about to give an account. Sir Richard Temple, who on opening his remarks was warmly received, proceeded to give a detailed description of the railway which was constructed under his supervision last October over part of the distance from the Indus to Kandahar, and to demonstrate the practicability of completing the line along the whole route. That portion of Afghanistan which lies between the two points he divided into four parts—viz., the country below the hills, the country within the hills, the Valley of Pishin and the Khawaja Amran range, and finally the country between Khawaja and Kandahar. The railway, which had already been constructed as far as Sibi, about 140 miles from the Indus, was to be extended through the Hurnai Valley, through Gwal, Khawaja Amran, and Khojuk Gwaja to Kandahar. The engineering obstacles and geological formations along this line of country, measuring about 450 miles, were described by the lecturer, partly in connection with recent events, with the vividness of personal knowledge, and compared in the same way with those which presented themselves along the old military road through the Bolan Pass, by Quetta. The eminence of the many plateaux in this country made the construction of a railway extremely difficult, although along the line suggested and partly constructed the steepest gradient was not more than one in forty. The concluding portion of the line, from Gwaja by the Mel Pass to Kandahar, would have to be constructed on the right bank of the Dori across several tributaries of that river, in order to pass round the great Afghan desert on the left bank, which could not be traversed by any body of men, and which thus gave peculiar strategic importance to the town of Kandahar. In conclusion, the lecturer warmly praised the British and native soldiers and officials who continued to maintain the reputation of England in the East, and praised the fidelity and patience of the camp followers, who earned little wages. Sir W. Merewether being called upon, contrasted the tedious marches of the past wars with the rapid communications now possible and took occasion to pay a tribute of praise to Gen. Jacob.

PAPER MANUFACTURE IN INDIA.

A PROPOSAL has been made to the Secretary of State for India by Messrs. M'Corquodale and Co. to erect a mill in India for the manufacture of paper made from jute, and to contract for the supply and printing of the same in such forms, &c., as may be required, provided a sufficient inducement be offered to them to undertake its manufacture in India. This paper Messrs. M'Corquodale and Co. state to have been used for many years in connection with some of the principal railways, and it was, some three years ago, through the influence of Mr. Rowland Winn, M.P., adopted by her Majesty's Stationery-office, thus effecting a considerable annual saving by the change. They add that the mill which they would erect could also produce other descriptions of paper now purchased in England for use in India. After due inquiry of experts and officials, the Secretary of State informed Messrs. M'Corquodale and Co. that the attention of the Government of India has recently been directed to the importance of obtaining, if possible, in India paper of local manufacture for official use. In the event, therefore, of additional paper mills being established in India by any competent manufacturers, he said that the Government of India would no doubt be prepared to extend their local purchases of such paper, provided that in quality and price it did not compare unfavourably with imported supplies. The Secretary of State added that if Messrs. M'Corquodale and Co. were desirous of prosecuting the matter further it would be more convenient that they should address the Government of India direct, by whom all contracts for local supply are arranged, and it would assist in the consideration of their proposal if they were able to state—at least, approximately—the weight, quality, and probable price of the paper they would propose to supply.

BENGAL NATIVE OPINION.

THE Amrita Bazar Patrika says the Indian Association has taken the imprudent step of throwing itself into the arms of the Liberals. This the associatton had every right to do, but it was a grievous blunder to drag the country behind it. The speeches delivered at the meeting, and the memorial which is proposed to be submitted, will provoke the hostility of the entire body of Conservatives. The memorial may or may not be presented; but if it be presented, the Tories, even who are moderate and inclined to be more considerate towards India, will rise as one man to do all the mischief that they can do. In a memorial to Parliament composed of two parties it simply betrayed a want of taste, nay of good sense, to belaud one party and abuse the other. Such a memorial may do well for a Liberal demonstration, but will never do for supplicants on favour. We think the Liberals even would not like the tone of the memorial, especially that of the speeches. They might have urged their prayers without offending any party. It is true the Liberals have the majority, but no Government will venture to take any step in the teeth of the unanimous protest of the Opposition in matters which relate only to India. As to the prayer of an equitable distribution of costs of the Afghan war, we have already given our opinion. The memorialists only take the needless trouble of preferring a request which has already been granted. The memorialists, besides, argue the question in a queer fashion. They say that under the terms of the 55th section of the Government of India Act the British Exchequer should bear the whole cost of the Afghan war. After proving this they then pray that the costs might be equally apportioned!

POSTAGE STAMPS.

THE Press Commissioner informs us that since the abolition of the Southampton route and the reduction of the rate of postage for overland letters from 5 to 4½ annas, the Government of India have had under their consideration the question of introducing some new values for the payment of the minimum postage and of procuring separate stamps for all or for any of the new values required under the present system. But as the introduction of new stamps for each of the required values would result in the complication of the stamp store accounts and seriously increase the cost of producing the labels, it was considered whether it would not suffice to have distinct labels of the values most in use—viz., 1½, 3, and 4½ annas. The postal authorities are of opinion that it is not advisable to issue separate stamps for the 1½ and 3 anna values, for the reasons that the first rate applies only to news papers, books, and patterns sent by special train viâ Brindisi to the United Kingdom, and countries served through it, and the second to letters despatched to any Union Country (except Persia) not served by the special train service of the Continent; and both of these correspondences they consider are not of sufficient magnitude to warrant the manufacture of any special stamps. As to the question of introducing a single stamp for the initial Brindisi letter rate, the postal authorities consider that, should the value of silver rise so as to make 1s. 8d. a safe average of exchange, the 4½ annas stamp would not be required, as it would then be necessary to alter the rate of 4½ annas to a rate of 4 annas only; and, as there may be some chance of an improvement in the exchange rate, they do not think it advisable at present to provide a single stamp of 4½ annas. The further consideration of the question is therefore held in abeyance.—Times of India.

THE Bombay Gazette says that the World is not quite correct in its statement that the late Sir Louis Cavagnari was troubled with sore misgivings on the subject of his return from Cabul. That he did not consider he was in danger, and that he trusted implicitly in Yakoob Khan and his ability to protect him and his suite, is certain. The following facts prove this:—Poor Sir Louis told our informant, for whom we can vouch, that he fully hoped at the end of 1879 or early in 1880 to get short leave to Europe; that he would then bring out Lady Cavagnari, who, he hoped, would be able to accompany him back to Cabul, if the Government of India would permit of it. Both he and his assistant, Mr. Jenkins, spoke most hopefully of the Embassy's success, stated that they hoped to accompany Yakoob Khan on his trip to Turkestan, and though admitting that was of course on the cards that they might possibly be selected as victims for the fanatic's knife—as indeed might be the case with any European visiting or staying in Cabul—they both were quite certain of the Ameer's ability to protect them from any other contingency than sudden assassination. It is quite certain that no idea of such an emeute happening as that of Sept. 4, 1879, ever entered the late Envoy's mind. Across the frontier it is well known that no one is free from risk of life. The very Afghan nobles, Ghilzai chiefs, and heads of clans are never for a moment absolutely safe from the hand of the assassin, moved either by hereditary hatred to prosecute a long-standing blood feud or to exact reparation for some real injury or fancied slight. Such being the case, the members of the lamented Envoy's suite were naturally aware that these risks were to be run; but they were cheerfully prepared to accept them without hesitation, and we have every reason to believe that up to the very last no misgivings troubled any of them. This is clearly shown by the letters from Mr. Jenkins and Dr. Kelly, which have been published from time to time by their relations at home. They all indicate a sense of security up to within a very few days of the now historic outrage and massacre. The sensational statement, then, that the World is responsible for, touching the burning of Lady Cavagnari's papers by the India-office or Lord Salisbury, is probably an absolute fiction.

TRADE OF INDIA.—From the return of the trade and navigation of British India for the financial year ending March 31 we learn that thirty-three millions of lbs., valued at 274½ lakhs of rupees, were reported during the year. The imports of cotton piece goods reached the value of 1,671½ lakhs of rupees; raw silk of the value of 68½ lakhs was imported, and manufactured silk of the value of 84 lakhs. Paper was imported to the value of 31½ lakhs, whilst, strange to say, sugar was exported to the amuunt of 107 lakhs. It also appears somewhat astonishing that last year's imports of tea amounted to over 2½ million lbs., valued at 21 1-5 lakhs of rupees. Tobacco, chiefly manufactured, was imported to the value of 6⅔ lakhs. The imports of wool were—raw wool, 8¾ lakhs; piece goods, 74¾. It really seems a pity that a country with resources like those possessed by India should import some of these articles to such a large extent. As to the exports, coffee was exported to the value of 162⅔ lakhs of rupees, as against 154⅓ lakhs in the previous year; the cotton exports amounted to 1,115 lakhs, being a considerable increase on the preceding year. Twenty-two million cwts. of rice were exported, valued at 834 lakhs of rupees, as against 20½ million cwts., value 881 lakhs the previous year. Two and one-fifth million cwts. of wheat were exported. The year before the export of wheat was one million cwts. The export of vegetable oil was 4 1·6 million gallons; and the export of cake 161,000 cwts. The export of raw silk was only half a million lbs; the previous year it was 1-3 million lbs. The export of sugar was 45 cwts. Two years before it was 477 cwts. Of tobacco 10,874,623 lbs. were exported, of the value of Rs.11,67,025. The previous year 13,279,158 lbs. were exported, of the value of Rs.11,11,260.—Bombay Gazette.

PERSIAN OPIUM.—In an elaborate series of reports on the trade and commerce of the Persian Gulf in recent years, which he has sent home from Bushire, Mr. Consul General Ross furnishes some information in regard to the cultivation and export of opium in Persia, which is interesting on many grounds. Opium, we learn, is cultivated principally in Yezd and Ispahan, and partly in the districts of Khorasan, Kerman, Fars, and Shuster. That grown in Yezd is considered to be better than that produced in Ispahan and elsewhere, owing to the climate and soil of that place being better adapted for the growth of the drug. But the Yezd district is not capable of any considerable extension of opium cultivation, owing to the deficiency of the means, both natural and artificial, of irrigation. Ispahan, however, differs from Yezd in this respect, as it abounds in streams and rivers, and is capable of greater extension of the cultivation of the drug. But the cultivation of cotton and cereals takes up a great part of those resources, and tends in no small degree to reduce the production of opium. A few years ago the profits of the opium trade, having attracted the attention of the Persians, almost all available or suitable ground in Yezd, Ispahan, and elsewhere was utilised for the cultivation of opium, to the exclusion of all cereals and other produce. The consequent neglect to provide for the necessaries of life, combined with drought and other circumstances, resulted in the famine of 1871-2. The costly experience thus gained has made the Persians more careful and provident, and only a limited space has since been devoted to opium cultivation. The shipping ports are Bushire and Bunder Abbass. The whole of the produce of Ispahan and Fars goes to the former port, while that of Khorasan and Kerman is taken to the Yezd market, and, together with that of Yezd itself, is sent to both ports.—Colonies and India.

THE INDIAN SWASTIKA AND ITS WESTERN COUNTERPARTS.*

MR. E. THOMAS has just written an interesting paper on the "Indian Swastika and its Western Counterparts." The purport of the paper is to suggest that this puzzling symbol is simply a conventional representation of the sun in motion, and that it, therefore, may be taken as a relic of sun worship adopted by the later Buddhists. Mr. E. Thomas, from the full stores of his knowledge, cannot help being instructive whenever he writes, and the view which he now puts forth is ably supported by illustrations from Chaldean, Assyrian, and Egyptian sources, as well as by the recent discoveries of Dr. Schliemann at Troy. Some of the examples are remarkably similar to the Swastika emblem of India, and some of them were undoubtedly intended to represent the sun. Mr. Thomas follows the Rev. S. Beal in thinking that the Buddhistic Trisul emblem represents the rising sun, and he adds that the wheel by which it is sometimes surmounted depicts the sun at its meridian. Fire-worship has certainly become mixed with modern Buddhism; but these symbols belong to the early days of the religion. That the Swastika was at one time intended to symbolise the sun in motion, which is Mr. Thomas's main thesis, is decidedly probable. It may, however, be pointed out that the ancient forms of the letters composing sustaka (a common way of spelling the word), when superposed, produce a symbol exactly like that called Swastika, and hence it may be simply a monogram expressing "benediction." The same remark applies to the Trisul, which is exactly the shape of the old Indian letter Y, and this would be the first letter of the Buddhist creed "Ye dharmâ," &c. The Buddhists were apt at reducing idea to their vîja or germ, and this vîja was always the first letter of the word expressing the idea; thus the vîja of "water" was V (= vâri), the vîja of "fire" was R (= ravi), and so on. Thus the vîja of the "law" might have been Y (= Ye dharmâ), and that of "benediction" S (swastika). Although we state with frankness some reasons which tell against the conclusion at which Mr. Thomas arrives, we are anxious to add that his paper is of considerable value and interest, and may really lead to a solution of the difficult problem.

INDIAN REMINISCENCES.*

THE career of an officer who sailed from England as a cadet in the Company's service in the year 1844, and turned his back on the shores of India for the rest of his life in 1873, might be expected to furnish information and amusement. If the veteran in his retirement applies himself to collating his diaries or recalling the main incidents or most memorable events in which he has borne the part of actor and spectator he can hardly fail to produce a volume, an he be not too ambitious, that will tell his readers something, if not quite novel, yet made to look new by its associations. He may not add much to his readers' knowledge of history, but he can hardly fail to illustrate, by his personal experiences or observations, the facts that the historian presents grouped and correlated. The changes that have taken place, social, military, and political, can be vividly brought before us by one who has helped in the wars and works which have resulted in them. The personal disposition and the good or bad luck experienced by one who tells the story of his life will lend their own colour to the events seen through the refracting medium of memory. Sometimes the author of such a work may amuse by his complaints, when he wants us to be indignant, sometimes may bore when he thinks to amuse. We do not look for much style and finish, or powers of construction, and we are prepared to feel compelled to throw down the book at one time, to take it up another. Still, to strangers, as well as to old friends, it will be not unwelcome, and may expect a good-natured reception, even if laughed at a little by the critics. A handsome and well got up volume, which, as we turn the pages, reveal suns pictures of Simla, Calcutta, &c., contains Col. Dewe White's reminiscences, which are made up, as we are enabled to judge, from diaries, and which include personal service in the Sikh campaign of 1845-46, and during the Mutiny, the latter fact furnishing Col. White with an opportunity for introducing a short "outline of the leading events of that momentous time." His own personal experiences were confined to Agra and the operations of the column under Col. Riddell, but by the help of all the histories (at least he quotes five and ends with &c.) he has presented us with a sketch of 120 pages, a proportion of his work which at first sight seems unfair to the rest of the thirty years of his career. These, however, are dealt with in some chapters mainly devoted to himself, which to a pyschologist are of extreme interest, while to his personal enemies, if there are any (of which, for reasons frequently stated in this book, we feel doubtful) surviving, they must afford a malicious pleasure. For Col. White seems throughout his career to have possessed, in an unusually developed degree, the power not of being disagreeable, but of making his fellows disagreeable to him. He had a fine sense of his rights and a keen scent for his wrongs. He was perpetually in and out of regimental squabbles, and with a sort of proud humility he quotes his commanding officer's description of him as most litigious, as well as the decision of a medical board that he was of a sound state of mind. We need not refer to the general feeling that when an officer is generally unpopular there must have been some cause for it. Ensign White, for whatever reason, was unpopular, but he was unjustly treated on more than one occasion, and thoroughly illustrated by his perseverance in fighting his own cause the truth of the saying—"It's dogged as does it." The story of his many conflicts with comrades and authorities is writ large, and a little of it goes a great way. It gains, however, a serious interest from the fact that Col. White, almost throughout his whole career, was a man of decided religious views, and he makes it appear that as such he was systematically persecuted. He managed, however, according to his own showing, to make up for the persecutions by a series of special providences, sometimes operating for his benefit and protection, and sometimes for the confusion and damage of his enemies. He hopes in one place that his book may be useful to the cause of religion, and, to do him fullest justice, he has evidently been throughout his life thoroughly in earnest; but a mode of piety which is consistent with looking back over thirty years, and attributing the deaths of brave men to their having taken part against himself in some petty quarrel, and having been punished for it by his presiding Providence, seems more like fetichism than anything else. Col. White is perhaps doing himself an injustice by his way of putting things, as we observe that in one page he calls the Ghazees mad dogs, and in another says they are to other Mahomedans what martyrs are to Protestants. We may charitably hope, therefore, that, as he seems to misrepresent martyrs as mad dogs, he may only seem also to hold such very curious opinions as to his fellow men, even though they were his brother officers. We should naturally expect that an earnest Christian would furnish some account of the attempts made by himself or others to evangelise the natives. He most candidly records his utter failure in this respect; he could never succeed in doing more than giving his head bearer instruction in Bible truths, although he often "used to hire a congregation" to listen to him. Col. White certainly contrives to demonstrate that a sincere Christian may be intensely uncharitable and unforgiving, just as he makes it clear that an officer may be very unpopular, and treated as in the wrong, while technically and actually in the right, but we could heartily wish that there was more trace throughout his reminiscences of the effect of time, as described by himself in the narration of the death of the princes. "Though I saw nothing at the time objectionable in Hodson's killing these princes, yet now, after the lapse of so many years, when time has removed those prejudicial heats which so blind the judgment at such times of excitement, I cannot but think, on cooler reflection, that the conduct of that gallant officer was very blamable."

INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE DEFENCE FUND.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I am directed by the committee of this fund to request that you will give publicity to the fact that certain advertisements purporting to have been inserted by them in certain newspapers in India are not only without their knowledge or authority, but are also considered by them very objectionable, and that they have taken immediate steps to have them stopped and disclaimers similar to this inserted instead.—Yours truly,

THE CARWAR RAILWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—Your correspondent "T." desires a public discussion on the question whether it would be advisable for the Indian Government to construct a railway from Carwar to Hubli. The question was carefully examined in 1872 by the Secretary of State for India, who, I am informed, disallowed the scheme upon the advice of two officials who are still in the India-office. The scheme had previously been submitted to Lord Mayo's Government, who were not satisfied with its soundness, and it was carried through the Council in India only during the short interregnum which followed Lord Mayo's death. A discussion of the scheme, without the papers relating to it, would, I fear, lead to no definite result. The cost of the line and its probable traffic are important elements to be considered, and without precise data on these points discussion must necessarily be vague. I am glad that you undeceived your correspondent as to my taking him for a speculator. I am well aware of the disinterested motives which have for many years prompted him to take up Indian questions, and I sincerely hope that he will long be spared to afford his advocacy for the protection of Indian interests.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

June 15. J. DACOSTA.

THE INDIAN MARINE.

IN view of the conclusion reached by the new authorities of the India-office, that it is unnecessary to have anybody in particular to look after the few odds and ends of ships in the possession of the Government of India, it is interesting to inquire what kind of property the Indian Marine really is. First of all, we find that the Indian Government possesses five sea-going vessels, varying from 1,000 to 2,000 tons burthen. Two of these, the Abyssinia and the Magdala, are armour-plated turret-ships for the defence of Bombay harbour. Another, the Dalhousie, is an iron screw-steamer employed for general transport duty. Another, the Patrick Stewart, is a similar vessel employed on telegraph duty. The fifth, the Tenasserim, is another transport steamer. Besides these large ships, the Indian Government Marine includes eleven other sea-going vessels of smaller tonnage, i.e., from 300 to 800 tons, seven river steamers, sixteen small steamers and launches, and sundry flats and hulks. Then there are two dockyards—one at Calcutta and one at Bombay—in which extensive repairing operations are carried on.

Up to a recent date all this naval property was divided up among the various local Governments, and its consolidation under one control for the service of the country at large was the first organic reform carried out in connection with the appointment of a naval officer to look after the whole department. The advantage obtained by consolidation was that all the vessels thus became available for service wherever they were most wanted, whereas formerly they were kept to their respective provinces. If transport work had to be performed within the limits of the Madras Presidency, for instance, the Madras Government could not indent on Bengal ships to carry out the duty. If a Bombay ship happened to be at Calcutta when troops were to be sent to Burma the Bengal Government would have to take up contract transport, while the Bombay ship would sail away to her own Presidency, to be left, perhaps, inactively at anchor. Since the whole marine has been under one control, we believe that the old system of hiring private transport for the ordinary conveyance of troops about India has been entirely done away with. The Government Marine is now found adequate to the performance of all this work. A very large part of the saving that has been effected has sprung from this change. Another large part has been due to the fact that the dockyards and vessels of the Marine have been supervised by an officer who is professionally competent for the task. Waste has thus been prevented in many different ways. But, it appears, concurrently with the abolition of the appointment to which these reforms have been due, a scheme has been set on foot for reviving the provincial system in reference to the Indian Marine. It would be impossible to take a more glaringly retrogressive step as regards economy, and the true interest of the public service; but the restoration of the provincial system would mean the resumption by provincial governors of that comfortable and convenient control over the ships that might be attached to their provinces, which had been lost under the system of amalgamation. Let us consider the case which is suggestive of the strongest arguments, at the first glance, for the provincial system—that of Burma. In Burma, the Chief Commissioner is the most amphibious of all Indian rulers, and has the best claim of any to be provided with ships. But, first of all, there is a very efficient line of passenger steamers at work in Burma waters, and the Chief Commissioner would never be at any loss for means of going wherever he wanted to go, even if Government of India vessels were put altogether out of the calculation. Secondly, there is no proposal on anybody's part that they should be so put out of the calculation. The Chief Commissioner has only to give a little notice of his wish to be conveyed by Government vessel to such and such places at such and such a time, and, as a matter of course, the vessel will be provided. But, then, the argument of the amalgamation system is that, when she may have completed the duty for which the Chief Commissioner may have required her, she should be at liberty to go elsewhere for the performance of other duty. And it must be remembered that the maintenance of the important annual saving which has been effected in the Marine Department by the amalgamated system depends entirely on the thorough utilisation of the ships in this way. Keep a vessel like the Enterprise, for instance, which has been a good deal employed on that sort of work, lying all the year in the harbour of Rangoon, in order that the Chief Commissioner may have the satisfaction of feeling that he has a ship always at his command, whether he wants it or not, and cost to the country is, perhaps, a lakh a year. At the first glance one is inclined to say that the state and dignity of an officer entrusted with the government of a province should be kept up, even at some cost to the revenue. But when we find that the saving for all India of the amalgamated system, as compared with the provincial, has actually amounted to five lakhs a year, it must be acknowledged that state and dignity, when it takes the form of yachting at Government expense, does certainly come to a good deal of money. Nor is this always the end of the story. From time to time bits of news have appeared in the papers concerning the neglect of the lights on the Burman coast. Not long ago one of these lights—a very important one—was observed to have gone out. The shoal to which it belonged was visited by a pilot boat, and it was found that the men in charge were seriously ill—one of them dead. Left without proper visitation by the Government vessel that should have performed this duty, they had been reduced to the necessity of putting out their light on the land side in order to attract attention. One would like to know how far this incident could be shown to have been the consequence of the unnecessary retention of Government vessels for ornamental duty connected with the service of the Chief Commissioner.—Pioneer.

IS INDIA INSOLVENT?

SPEAKING of the Puna Sarvajanik Sabha suggests the propriety of asking that public-spirited body why it despairs of India? The finances of this unfortunate country are, according to the Puna Sarvajanik Sabha, in a state of "hopeless insolvency." The agricultural population of the unhappy land is in the same plight as the country at large—"hopelessly insolvent." To be insolvent is bad enough, but to be hopelessly insolvent is indeed terrible. We do not believe in the insolvency either of the country or of the ryots taken as a whole. The latter are in a state of indebtedness, but are not insolvent. A few good harvests and the operation of the Deccan Ryots Act will re-establish everything, unless unthrift proves inveterate, and baffles the efforts for the welfare of the Deccan population of official hirelings and disinterested Sabhaites alike. And the insolvency of the country is a figment of the patriotic imagination. We do not mean to insult the Sarvajanik Sabha by asserting that the country is not ruined; we only state a melancholy fact. Not even the emission of a three-crore loan for productive public works to make up for the deficit of four crores in the muddled war estimates will make us believe that India is insolvent—hopelessly insolvent. When a country is in this bad way it does not raise loans, for no one would lend it money. Turkey is insolvent, whether hopelessly so or not, and it would not be easy for the Porte to raise three millions sterling between this and June 14, although the want of money is more sharply felt in Constantinople than it is in Calcutta. Is India in the financial mess which cost the ex-Khèdive of Egypt his likeness of a throne? Or in that of Peru? Or can our pecuniary position be compared with the state of chronic impecuniosity which makes the proud Spaniard blush for his country? No; India is hard put to it to keep her financial equilibrium, and not a rupee of her revenues should be wasted, but she is not either insolvent or hopeless, and it is mere nonsense to assert that she is the one or the other.—Bombay Gazette.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

THE SEIZURE OF THE S.S. "YUNNAN."—Full particulars have now been received of the recent seizure of the British mail steamer Yunnan by the Burmese. It appears that, as the steamer was approaching Sillehmyo on the morning of the 26th ult., her commander saw a number of baskets piled on the bank and a flag flying to indicate that cargo was awaiting. This induced him to anchor; hardly had he done so when armed messengers boarded the steamer and told him that he was wanted in the governor's court, owing to the company's pilots being confined for misconduct. He went to the court, and there found that this pretext was untrue and that the baskets were empty, and there was no cargo. The governor said that he must detain the steamer, as the English and Burmese were at war. When the commander went on board again, the vessel was in the possession of twenty armed men, and the starting gear had been taken ashore. The steamer was detained for thirty-six hours, when the guard was withdrawn and the starting gear was returned. This affair will doubtless still further strain the relations between the Indian and Burmese Goverments. If it stood alone, it might be set down to the stupid blundering of a petty official, but this is the second time within the last few months that the Burmese have offered violence to British subjects on the Irrawaddy, and these outrages, coupled with the fact that the behaviour of the Mandalay Court has already compelled us to withdraw our Resident, would seem to indicate a deliberate intention to try our patience to the utmost. Representations have been made to the Mandalay Ministry, but what will be their result remains to be seen. It is quite time to point out to Theebaw the absolute necessity of protecting British subjects and the valuable commerce of the Irrawaddy, and to show him that such treatment of British vessels must be stopped. The Burmese Government should be pressed to a distinct issue on the question of affording redress and satisfaction, and it should be pointed out that it will be impossible for us long to continue treaties which were framed so as to be specially advantageous to the Burmese trade and customs revenue if these treaties are thus openly disregarded. A firm representation to this effect would probably place the relations between the two countries on a more satisfactory footing.—Times Telegram.

THE TRADE OF CALCUTTA.—The recently-published statistics of the foreign commerce of Calcutta show that for the last few years the proportion of the whole trade absorbed by England has been slowly decreasing, while that of America and China is increasing. The share of France has also fallen off, while that of Italy remains almost unchanged. The president of the Chamber of Commerce, addressing a meeting of that body the other day, took a very desponding view of the future of the Indian export trade. In his opinion, opium, rice, cotton, indigo, and jute have attained their highest limit; tea has decreased in value, and seeds, he thought, could not be relied on. He feared that India could not compete with America in wheat. These views may, perhaps, be too alarmist, but it cannot be doubted that there is much in the present state of trade to justify them. The tea trade especially is now in a very depressed condition, and the impression is widely prevalent that a crisis is close at hand, which may have a most disastrous effect on many of the companies and planters of Assam and other tea-producing districts.—Ibid.

THE INDIAN ASSOCIATION, CALCUTTA.—The report read at the annual meeting of this association in the Albert Hall, Calcutta, on May 15, stated that the accounts of the general fund for the past four years were—receipts, Rs.4,512-15, and disbursements, Rs.4,475-10. The civil service and special fund receipts were Rs.9,922-12, and expenditure Rs.7,309-8. The Press Act receipts were Rs.141-13, and the disbursements Rs.1,240-7-3. There was a balance in hand of over Rs.1,500. It was proposed to publish a list of the donors to the funds. Maharanee Surnomoyee gave Rs2,000. For the past two months the association had worked energetically in raising funds. Delegates were sent to the Mofussil, and several missionaries throughout the Punjab and Oudh, and they had received promises of obtaining about Rs.10,000, so that, making a margin, the association might fairly expect Rs.8,000.—Indian Daily News.

THE NAGA HILLS FORCE.—It seems to have now been finally decided that, after the breaking up of the camp on the Naga Hills, some 800 regular troops, with as many camp followers and coolies, are to remain in the hills, making a total of about 1,600 men. Lieut. Wingate, as principal commissariat officer, and Major Chambers, as commandant of the Transport Corps, are also to remain there for some time.—Ibid.

CATHEDRAL MISSION COLLEGE, CALCUTTA.—We learn that the parent committee of the Church Missionary Society have directed that steps be taken to close this college, owing to the extreme difficulty of obtaining men suitable for high educational work, and the failure to obtain an adequate supply of such men from the British universities. The present staff of teachers or professors are, we learn, the Revs. Rudolf Hoernle and Charles Baumann, both Doctors in Divinity, and the Rev. Robert J. Bell. —Ibid.

THE HEALTH OF THE PORT OF CALCUTTA.—The report of the health officer of the port of Calcutta for the year 1879 shows that during the year there was not a single fatal case of sunstroke in the harbour, whilst only three cases of heat apoplexy amongst sailors on shore were admitted to hospital, two of which were fatal. In the previous year, however, there were ten fatal cases in the harbour, and ten out of forty-two admissions to hospital. The health officer attributes this decrease to the coolness of the season, but the Lieutenant Governor thinks that it is in some measure due to the rules for guarding against sunstroke and for its treatment on board, which were drawn up by Dr. French, when health officer of the port, and circulated by the committee of the Sailor's Home. The committee recommended that, during the hot months, European sailors should not be required to work in the open air between the hours of 8 a.m. and 4 p.m. The Lieutenant Governor would be glad if this recommendation could be enforced by the passing of a port rule to prohibit such work; but thinks it doubtful whether the wording of the law would admit of this. The question is, however, still under the consideration of the Government. The subject of the death rate amongst native seamen as compared with European seamen also received the special attention of the health officer. Though his information is as yet insufficient to form any definite opinion upon, he found that, so far as it went, the mortality among lascars at sea is not greater than among European sailors, and that their sojourn on board ship tends to improve their health, which is too often impaired on shore by habits of dissipation. On the other hand, the trying work of native firemen and trimmers on board steamers appears to tell severely on their constitutions. Deaths among them and lascars are said to be rare at sea, but the injurious effects of a voyage probably develop themselves after their return to their homes, and it is, unfortunately, extremely difficult to obtain satisfactory information on this point. The improved scale of diet for these crews when proceeding beyond the tropics, which was recently recommended by the health officer, has been submitted to the Government of India for approval.—Englishman.

INVESTITURE.—The Lieutenant Governor of the Punjab, Sir R. E. Egerton, has been invested with the Insignia of the Star of India by Earl Lytton at Simla. At the same time Mr. A. C. Lyall received the Insignia of the Companionship of the Bath.—Times of India.

SUICIDE.—At Calcutta, on the 23rd, Mr. W. H. Trotter, an English trader, poisoned himself with laudanum. Business losses caused him to commit the act.—Ibid.

NAGA HILLS EXPEDITION.—It is said that Capt. Williamson, inspector general of police, Assam, will be made a Companion of the Indian Empire for his services in connection with the Naga Hills Expedition.—Ibid.

COTTON CULTIVATION IN THE PUNJAB.—It appears that the area of country under cotton cultivation in the Punjab during the twelve months ending June 30 last was much larger than usual, while the quantity exported viâ Karachi was the smallest known for many years. The exports in other directions were in excess of previous seasons, especially those by railway through the North Western Provinces. The falling off with regard to Karachi does not, however, seem to be due so much to the deficiencies of that route as to the comparative failure of crops in the districts near the Indus and to the west of the Punjab. Our pushing friends at Karachi will not be disheartened by these facts, for the Punjab authorities hold out the hope that when the Indus line has come to be more fully developed the trade will largely increase, provided, of course, there is a favourable outturn in the districts along the Indus route. One other fact of interest is mentioned in the "Report on Cotton Cultivation in the Punjab" just issued—viz., that the check cotton-cloths made in the district of Loodiana are beginning to attract attention, and that the patterns sent to Australia have been greatly approved of.—Ibid.

SIAM.—The Chief Commissioner, British Burma, has lately received a communication from H.B.M.'s Agency, Bangkok, to the effect that in the future every British subject leaving Government territories for those of the King of Siam should be furnished with an individual and separate passport or legal certificate of nationality, containing such description of the person of the holder as shall enable identification possible and prevent any fraudulent transfer of the document, and that any person travelling or residing in Siam without such passport or certificate of nationality shall have no claim under ordinary circumstances to the protection of the British Agency at Siam.—Ibid.

THE LATE DR. NEIL.—We understand that a sum of Rs.1,200 has been subscribed by the assistant surgeons who had been pupils of the late Dr. Neil, Lahore Medical College, for two medals to be given annually to the students who stand first in the subjects he taught. All his old students have subscribed. This speaks volumes for his popularity as a teacher. A memorial stone is also to be erected by a subscription from Dr. Neil's numerous friends; and a considerable portion of the requisite sum has already been received by Dr. Brown, principal of the college.—Civil and Military Gazette.

DROWNED.—Mr. Seagor, second steward of the Eldorado, is reported to have been drowned in the Hooghley while going on board in a state of intoxication.—Statesman.

CALCUTTA POLICE FORCE.—Mr. J. A. Fleming, late inspector, Calcutta police, who was charged at the instance of Messrs. Kerr, Dods, and Co. with fabricating false evidence, &c., has been dismissed the force with effect from March 25 last for "misconduct."—Ibid.

CULTIVABLE LAND.—It is estimated that 818,500 acres have been added to the cultivated area of the Punjab during the last five years. Considering the increase of population, and other conditions, this enlargement in the area seems fairly satisfactory. Nearly 3,664,000 acres, formerly classed as uncultivable, are now entered as cultivable.—Times of India.

BREAKING OUT OF GAOL.—About twenty Bheel dacoits recently broke out of the Jubbulpore gaol, but most of them had been recaptured.—Ibid.

THE ENGLISH CHURCH AT MANDALAY.—The English church at Mandalay is said to be rapidly falling into decay, and a portion of the font, the gift of the Queen, has been removed.—Ibid.

MR. CHARLES E. SUNDER, of the St. Xavier's College, and Babu Kumar Basu, of the Medical College, have been elected Gilchrist scholars for 1880.

A NEW MISSIONARY JOURNAL.—Under the title of the Star in the East it is proposed to start in Calcutta, in July next, a new weekly paper, to be conducted by the Rev. Robinson and the Rev. W. Norris, which has already received fair promises of support. Should the paper carry out fully the unsectarian views set out in the prospectus it will certainly well deserve support, and this is a difficulty which no missionary paper has hitherto been able to overcome. However, the prospectus tells us that the Star in the East will be "conducted on an undenominational basis, which will chronicle all the intelligence that is to be had relating to missionary labour in India, carried on by whatever agency, and encourage Christian thought on all topics of the day bearing on the prosperity of the land and the advancement in it of our Lord's Kingdom."—Pioneer.

THE UMBALLA-KALKA RAILWAY.—Further inquiry on the subject of the proposed railway from Umballa to Kalka shows that the work is to be carried out at the pecuniary responsibility of the Punjab Government, but it is so likely to pay that the risk of loss for that province cannot be very great. The mere service of Simla, apart from all possibilities of internal traffic, should suffice to ensure that result. The figures first mentioned as covering the estimate of expenses are indeed far within the probable cost. £30,000 could not provide for a railway which must be from thirty-five to forty miles in length. It is more likely to cost five times that sum.—Pioneer.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—The disengaged tonnage at date of mail stood at 28,157 tons. For London viâ Canal: Wheat tonnage offering freely at £3; linseed £3 5s., hardly obtainable; hides, &c., scarce at £2 17s. 6d.; market closes decidedly weaker. For London viâ Cape: The market closes weak, at £2 7s. 6d. to £2 8s. for wheat; £2 10s. for linseed; £2 15s. for rape and poppy; and £2 11s. 6d. for jute. For Liverpool viâ Canal: But little cargo offering; rates nominal at £3 2s. 6d. to £3 5s.; castor oil, £3 5s.; measurement, £3. Liverpool viâ Cape: Fair amount of business; rates maintained; £2 2s. 6d. for wheat; £2 5s. for linseed; and £2 7s. 6d. to £2 10s. for castor oil, gunnies, and cotton.

MADRAS.

THE FUTURE OF CANNANORE.—Cannanore has shrunk considerably in military importance during the last fifteen years, and the threatened withdrawal of the European regiment has filled its native inhabitants with dismay. The owners of house property are in despair; battery, arsenal, native regiment, have successively gone; and the people dependent on the troops are full of melancholy forebodings of entire desolation. But it seems probable that the very measure which threatens the station with collapse will, in reality, be of the greatest benefit to it. For some years there was an inflation of, not exactly trade, but prosperity; public buildings were erected, and there was a good deal of employment. But now there is little or no work for artisans or labourers, and there is no likelihood of any revival of it under military auspices. Yet, if Government decided on withdrawing the European troops, and reducing the garrison to one or two native infantry regiments, the European regimental lines would become vacant, and there would be room for commercial enterprise. The coffee trade of Wynaad and Coorg requires free exit, and the liberation of a part of Cannanore from military occupation would render a great deal of land available for coffee cleaning works, and enable the bay to become a shipping port for coffee and other coast produce.—Madras Times.

JUSTICE IN COCHIN.—The administration of justice in the year 1054 (i.e., 1878-9) proceeded with greater rapidity than in the previous year, except in the case of contested suits, which in the Zillah Courts occupied an average of twelve months and seven days each, a duration that is actually longer than the year itself. Litigation seems so much on the decrease there that the court fees show a deficit of nearly three thousand rupees as compared with the previous year. Out of so small a population there are, of course, but few prisoners in the gaols, there being a daily average of 158 only. Yet the cost of the maintenance of the gaols is over twenty-four thousand rupees, from which we gather that each prisoner costs the Cochin State more than ten rupees per mensem. Food alone costs about five rupees per head, and repairs about the same or rather more. Why, with a new gaol in building, the repairs of the old one for a single year should cost nearly twelve thousand rupees is not clear. Nevertheless, the cost for the year 1054 is more than ten thousand rupees less than in the previous year, when there were fewer prisoners. It does not sound satisfactory to hear that out of five hundred persons taken up by the police for robbery four hundred and nineteen were discharged; and out of nearly six hundred persons similarly taken up for theft four hundred and thirty-eight were acquitted.—Ibid.

RAILWAYS.—The cost of the southern extension of the South Indian Railway was estimated at Rs.1,15,86,847. From a statement just submitted to Government it appears that the total expenditure, up to 31st December, 1878, reached Rs.1,13,07,744, which for a length of 215¼ miles gives a rate of Rs.52,533 per mile.—Ibid.

GORED TO DEATH BY AN ELEPHANT.—As some of the elephants that were taken to the Erinjalakode Oolsavom, were returning to their stations, one of them, a tusker, the property of Kodungaloor Devasom, killed one of its keepers under the following circumstances. The elephant in question had two keepers to look after it by turns. The unhappy man that fell its victim was not, it seems, much liked by his charge whom he treated with somewhat severe discipline—ill-treating the animal with starvation for some disobedience shown to his commands during the festival. It is said that he bound the animal by its leg to a tree and allowed boys to molest it by pelting stones at it while he had some drink in him. After enforcing the strictest discipline for three days, he acted kindly to the animal and thought it was reconciled. Not feeling confident of its good graces he, however, sought the help of other elephant-keepers to accompany him and his elephant to the station that he might have the assistance of these animals in case his own should turn unruly on the way. The three elephants went quietly on their way till they reached a spot two miles from Karupadana, when the elephant in question moved with some speed in advance of its companions and shaking the keeper out of its back, it thrust him down and pierced him with its tusk most horribly in several parts of the man's body. He fell dead but the animal satiated its fury and vengeance by disfiguring him. The other animals came too late to the rescue and dared not approach it in its frantic moments. Leaving the victim aside, the animal betook to a garden close by and satisfied its hunger. On the news reaching the other keeper, he came to the animal which quietly submitted to him. It is said that this very animal had on more than three occasions attempted on the life of persons but without success. We wonder why the sircar keeps such animals under its protection, when their murderous propensities are known. If they are not docile they should be despatched by a bullet, rather than innocent persons should be sacrificed to them. In a similar case the owners of an elephant in Erinjalakode Devasom put out one of the eyes of the animal when it began to evince a savage disposition.—Western Star (Cochin).

MYSOR GOLD MINING.—We have received a copy of the report of the Madras Gold Mining Company, situate in the Berthamungalum Taluk, Mysor Territory, by Mr. John Harris, mining engineer, Bombay, which has just been published. It is dated May 10, and was prepared at the request of Messrs. Arbuthnot and Co. The report is, to a great extent, satisfactory, and gives promise of a rich realisation of the expectations at present formed by the Madras Gold Mining Company. In the general remarks which conclude the report it is stated that from several samples of quartz taken from the reefs at haphazard, crushed and washed, all gave a good show of gold. Although Mr. Harris does not look upon these results of themselves as definite proof that the reefs will pay to work, yet there are other circumstances which have led him to conclude that the reefs, "by being vigorously and properly worked, will yield up sufficient gold to pay good satisfactory dividends to any bona fide, well conducted enterprise. Mr. Harris suggests that the work be taken in hand at once and prosecuted with vigour, in which case he has hopes of a good golden harvest. There is plenty of road metal all along the line of road, and the water supply that can be had would be sufficient for all requirements; then there is plenty of wood and building material, and any amount of labour can be obtained; the climate, also, is so good that Europeans can work all the year round.—Bombay Gazette.

THE RAMPA REBELLION.—We learn that, at the engagement at the Poreh police station with the rebels, six out of the twelve police constables managed to effect their escape, while the remaining number, together with an inspector of police, were killed during the encounter. Col. Buck, on being informed of this, lost no time in despatching a company of the 29th N.I. to Nursapatam, and in the meantime called on the Jeypore authorities for assistance, as further troops were not available, the 5th and 10th Regiments having been rendered hors de combat through the effects of the Rampa fever. Col. Macquoid, of the 3rd Infantry, Hyderabad Contingent, had a narrow escape, for, while attacking the insurgents at Kurti, a village in Mulkangiri, this officer's charger was shot under him. Col. Macquoid's syce was short and his orderly badly wounded. Circumstances would appear to have been rather critical at the time with the gallant colonel, who was induced to fall back with his party for awhile, and, after having obtained the necessary supplies, advanced on Kurti, but the rebels foreseeing danger made their escape to Bustar by crossing the Saveri River. The Central Provinces authorities would do well under such circumstances to have their weather eye open along the Saveri River, as the insurgents are likely to incite the inhabitants in the country round about to follow their footsteps.—Madras Times.

THE GOLD MINING INDUSTRY.—A correspondence of great importance to all interested in the prospects of the gold mining industry in the Wynaad is published in the Gazette of India. In a letter dated September 1, 1879, the Government of India, after taking legal advice, decided:—First, that the Crown has in British India no special prerogative over gold and silver mines outside the presidency towns; and grantees of waste lands are entitled to all the gold and silver thereunder unless specially stipulated in the grant. Secondly, that the right to minerals found in proprietary lands will be settled by the laws in force locally, and that where no custom has had time to grow up the State should take the first favourable opportunity to declare by legislation that the mines are State property. Thirdly, that the mineral resources of temporarily settled lands may be assessed at any resettlement. This is a very rough summary of a long legal document to which all who are interested as shareholders or speculators in the Indian gold mines should refer direct. The Secretary of State for India, in a letter dated March 20 last, agrees generally with the decision of the Government of India, and especially approves of their intention to encourage gold mining by granting very liberal terms so as to attract capital to the Wynaad districts. These liberal terms will enable the Madras Government to grant gold mining leases of Government lands in lots of from one to thirty acres for terms of ten or twenty years, at a rent of five rupees per acre, on the express condition that not less than five labourers per acre are "regularly employed on bonâ fide operations." This stipulation has been borrowed from Australia, where it has been found that so long as a certain quantity of labour is employed per acre, on bonâ fide mining operations, the largest indirect advantage to the State is secured by making the mining leases simple and liberal. Beyond any necessary taxation for police, roads, water supply, and so forth, it is to be clearly understood that there will be no liability to any further royalty in addition to the rent; and leases will be renewed as they expire on such terms as the Government may then settle. This liberality seems well timed, if it only puts an end to the efforts that are now being made to transfer any quantity of privately held land on the Nilghirries, whether suitable or unsuitable, to unsuspecting shareholders anxious to possess an interest in a gold mine.—Times of India.

TRIAL OF RAMPA REBELS.—At the sessions held in the district of Godavery, Karnakula Papaiya and Adabala Venkaiya were put upon their trial, charged with abetting the waging of war against the Queen by delivering gunpowder to a notorious rebel, heading a party in insurrection against the State, and with belonging to an unlawful assembly gathered for the purpose of attacking the police, committing dacoities, and other offences. The prosecution was sanctioned by Government. The evidence of the witnesses clearly established the fact that the prisoners were present with the dacoits when the police were fired at by them, and it was also proved that they supplied gunpowder and lead to the rebels. The prisoners pleaded not guilty, and the first stated he had purchased some tamarind trees, which the rebels would not allow him to cut unless a quantity of gunpowder was given. This prisoner endeavoured to make out that it was the second accused alone who procured the powder. The court convicted the prisoners of the offences charged, and sentenced them to transportation for life. The prisoners appealed to the High Court against the sentence, but their appeal was dismissed.—Times of India.

LOSS OF THE SS. "AMELIA."—A court of inquiry held at Cochin has decided that the master, Capt. THE NEW COINAGE FOR GOA.—The convention between his Majesty the King of Portugal and her Majesty the Empress of India, for establishing, between their respective systems of moneys, weights, and measures, the harmony desirable for the development of commercial relations between their respective dominions, is published in the last Gazette of India. Under this convention it is agreed that the Governor General of Portuguese India shall adopt, in the Portuguese possessions in India, the monetary system of British India for the time being in force, provided that the coins shall have on one side the effigy of the King of Portugal, with the legend Ludovicus I., Portugaliæ et Algarbiorum Rex around it, or such other effigy and legend as the said Governor General may, from time to time, desire, and on the other side the value of each coin, the year of the Christian era, and the words India Portugueza. The new coins are to be issued by the authority of the Government of Portuguese India, and coined on behalf of the said Government by the Government of British India, and by no other agency whatever.—Englishman.

THACKER AND CO. (LIMITED).—This well-known bookselling and publishing company have declared a dividend of 12 per cent. on the last year's business. The prosperity and permanent success of this well-managed company may now be considered assured. The dividend paid on the first year's business was 10 per cent., without counting a considerable sum carried forward to next year's account.—Bombay Gazette.

AN AWKWARD ARRANGEMENT.—All the native spirits at Goa in excess of a gallon were ordered, in obedience to the new treaty, to be deposited in the Government warehouse with a promise that either the Abkari contractor or Government will purchase them, but now the wines are cheap and both parties decline to buy. The depositor finds it to his disadvantage to claim the wine, the cost of whose removal, after paying duty and stamp tax, is more than what one actually has to pay to make a fresh purchase.—Ibid.

Mr. Rogers arrived at half-past five o'clock, and was received by Sir Jamsetjee and others. The visitors then congregated in the front hall of the building, where Sir Jamsetjee read an address bidding adieu to Mr. Rogers. In reply to the address, Mr. Rogers assured the assembly that he had the interest of the natives of this country at heart, and that he should be glad at all times to render them such service as it was in his power to render them.—Ibid.

REWARDS TO THE POLICE.—The Government of India have sanctioned a reward of Rs.5,000 to be divided between Mr. R. H. Vincent, the deputy commissioner of police, now on leave, and Khan Bahadur Meer Akbar Ali, the chief of the Bombay detective police, for detecting and bringing to justice several of the culprits connected with the notorious forgery cases at Ahmedabad and other places.—Ibid.

SUBORDINATE DISTRICT COURTS.—A notification published in a Government Gazette Extraordinary states that in exercise of the powers conferred in this behalf by the Bombay Civil Courts Acts, 1869 and 1880, and in supersession of all previous orders on the same subject, the Governor in Council is pleased to direct that from the 1st day of June next there shall be in the district of Puna fourteen, in the district of Ahmednagar eleven, and in the district of Satara eleven civil courts subordinate to the district courts of those districts respectively, and that the subordinate judges of the said courts shall hold their courts at the places and shall exercise ordinary jurisdiction over the villages in the talukas respectively named.—Times of India.

MALWA OPIUM.—The agent to the Governor General in Central India makes some remarks about the trade in Malwa opium, the revenue from which forms so important a factor in Imperial receipts :—"For the ten years ending 31st March, 1869, the total number of chests passing the scales was 341,412, the duty realised being Rs.20,11,04,500. For the ten years ending 31st March, 1879, the books show a total export from Malwa of 405,094 chests, representing in duty paid to Government Rs.24,57,82,725. The improvement, therefore, over the previous decade is 68,682 chests, and a revenue of Rs.4,46,78,225—in other words the increase in export is more, on an average, than 500 chests a month, and the yearly revenue to the Government has improved by upwards of forty-four lakhs of rupees. Among the causes of improvement in this important trade I would mention the security of the country and a decrease in highway robbery and violence; inducements held out by chiefs, to whom land under opium is the chief sources of income, improvements in communication, and particularly the facilities which the railway from Indore Ujjain affords. The establishment of scales at Ujjain, Jaora, and Udepur has been the means of drawing the produce of each district to pay export duty to the Government of India without being harassed by the levy of dues by each State through which the opium passed, as was the case when Indore was the only place in Malwa where Government duty could be paid. The importance of the opium cultivation to the chiefs of Malwa can hardly be over-estimated—it gives a value to land which no other crop can afford. Wheat and other cereals in the best soil pay from As.12 to Rs.3 per beegah ; opium yields Rs.10, Rs.20, and Rs.40 for the same measure of land, and in some districts where the advantages of soil and water are great and the opium crop heavy, as much as Rs.60 per beegah is paid for land under the poppy. The principal gainers by the growth of opium are the Maharajas Sindia and Holkar. In Indore territory especially, advantage has been taken of the profits which the trade in opium holds out to increase the assessment on irrigated lands, and Holkar's revenue has, chiefly by this means, steadily increased. Enhanced collections may fairly be estimated at 40 per cent. over those of 1868."

THE BOMBAY GRAIN TRADE.—From the weekly returns of the imports by sea and from the Mofussil we learn that our grain market is overstocked with large supplies of grain of all descriptions, and the grain trade between Calcutta, Rangoon, and Moulmein is not so brisk as it was some months back. The only shipments of grain received during the past fortnight are by the s.s. Chindwara from Calcutta, 930 bags, and the Chinsura from Rangoon, on Thursday, 1,700 bags. The price of food grain has consequently greatly fallen ; first sort rice, nine measures, second sort, ten measures, broken rice, twelve measures. Paddy, seventeen measures per rupee.—Bombay Gazette.

CEYLON.

THE following items are from the Ceylon Times of May 15 :—

OUR EXPORTS.—According to published manifests there have been exported of our chief staple 492,781 cwt., as compared with 680,058 cwt. at the corresponding period of last year. Of cinchona the shipments amount to 377,182lb., as against 132,307lb. at the same time last year.

LAND SALE.—There was a well attended land sale at the Kandy Kachcheri on the 12th, realising over Rs.180,000, and averaging Rs.60 per acre. The Rappahannock estate has lately changed hands at £25,000.

GERMAN CONSUL.—His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to recognise Mr. Theodore Plate, provisionally, pending reference to her Majesty's Government, as acting consul at Colombo for the German Empire, during the absence of Mr. P. Freudenberg, from the island, and to appoint Mr. Plate a justice of the peace for the island.

NETHERLANDS CONSUL.—His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to recognise Mr. William Lorentzen, pending reference to her Majesty's Government, as acting consul in Colombo for the Netherlands, during the absence of Mr. P. Daendelieker, and to appoint Mr. Lorentzen a justice of the peace for the island.

THE PEARL FISHERIES.—What the revenue derived from these fisheries amounted to in remote times, or even in the Portuguese period, there are no records extant, but we are told that the total realised by the Dutch, during their occupancy of the island, amounted to about £200,000, which is remarkably small considering the price of pearls at that time. During the British period the amounts have fluctuated considerably. In 1797 and 1798 the privilege of fishing the beds were sold by auction, and realised £123,982 and £142,781 respectively. The total realised between 1766 and 1837 was £828,381, but there was gaps when no fishing took place, between 1833 and 1854, and again between 1864 and 1873. The following are some of the amounts realised :—1857, £20,309 ; 1858, £24,120 ; 1859, £48,216 ; 1860, £37,512 ; 1863, £51,010 ; 1864, £51,017 ; 1873, £46,000 ; 1874, £73,200.

S.S. "VEGA."—The s.s. Vega left yesterday with the following passengers :—Miss Moore, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Lawrence, and child, Mr. and Mrs. M'Laren, three children, and European servant, Mrs. W. K. and Miss Campbell, Mrs. Saunders, and two children, Rev. J. and Mrs. Brown, three children, and ayah, Miss Robertson, Miss Prime, Mr. N. G. Campbell and daughter, Messrs. Laurie, Hornby, Lansdowne, Andree, Bligh, Hurst, Renton, Strenger, Bruce, Don, Watson, and Cummings.

THE Ceylon Times of May 21 states that the south-west monsoon has now extended throughout the whole of the planting districts to the north of Nuwera Eliya, though hitherto very mildly. Even in Colombo it has not made itself severely felt. Coffee prospects are not satisfactory, as there is now no further hope of blossom ; salaries and coolie pay are being reduced very generally, and there is much depression and gloom abroad. We hear especially bad accounts from the southern districts. The exports of cinchona amount to 377,182lb., as compared with 132,307lb. at the corresponding period of last year.

THE SINGAPORE GAOL.—The inhabitants of Singapore have been for some time past much exercised in their minds about an outbreak of beri beri in the gaol of that settlement. A commission is to be appointed to inquire into the circumstances.

A GANG of some adventurers under the name of Kabulese have been extorting money from the people and traders of Pernem and Sattary (Goa). A detachment of infantry has been sent against the miscreants. The British authorities on the frontiers have promised co-operation to put down the pretended Afghans.

SURVEYS IN BADAKSHAN.—We understand that the native surveyor, who is generally known by the name of the Munshi, and who did such good work exploring Pamir and Northern Badakshan, has started to examine the country between Jellalabad and Faizabad, the latter being the point particularly aimed at. The Munshi intends following either the Alishang or the Kunar Valley, and passing through Kafiristan to the foot of Hindu Kush ; and there he will take one of the many passes between the Khak and Naksan Passes and enter Southern Badakshan. He will explore the country carefully to Faizabad, noting particularly its fertility or otherwise, and will make estimates of the capacity of Faizabad for supporting large bodies of men beyond its usual population. Faizabad is a great entrepot for the produce of all the petty States south and west of Kashgar, and is said to be notable for its mild climate and beautiful surroundings. It is particularly healthy ; and this, coupled with its trade in corn and local produce, would make it of great importance to, say, any force moving upon Afghan-Turkistan from Eastern Bokhara.—Pioneer.

THURSDAY, JUNE 17, 1880.

THE SUKKUR-KANDAHAR RAILWAY.

OUR Allahabad contemporary recently stated that the question of extending the frontier railway from Sibi to Quetta and Kandahar is one that will shortly come before the Home Government for consideration. The Pioneer proceeds to attack the advisability of the construction of this line from an economical and a utilitarian point of view. It is predicted that the expenditure must be heavy, and must entail—indeed has already entailed—the stoppage of many useful public works in the province. The physical obstacles which have to be surmounted in the Nari Pass are made as much of as possible, though we cannot say that they are exaggerated. The consequent expenditure of time must, it is declared, considerably exceed the calculation made by Sir R. Temple, who foretold that the line could be opened next May as far as Quetta. The middle of 1882 is pronounced to be the earliest date at which it may be expected that Quetta and Sukkur will be connected by railway. The ultimate profit of the railway from Quetta to Kandahar is discussed with a distinct result of condemnation on the the score of want of traffic to pay the expenses. Trade between Afghanistan and India is relatively insignificant, nor is it likely to increase, as the country is essentially poor by reason of want of rain and scarcity of water for irrigation. Looked at from a military and political point of view, the projected railway is thought by many to offer no advantages, corresponding to its great and recurring expenditure, over a good cart road supplemented by the present telegraph line. Even if we do permanently station a division of troops at Kandahar the ordinary supply could probably be managed with a daily convoy of fifty country carts, which is about equivalent to one-eighth the net capacity of an ordinary goods train. This may be taken as suggested, we do not feel sufficiently sure to write inspired as a preliminary apology for stopping short the railway begun with so much determination to take time by the forelock, and pushed on for some time at least with so much energy. The Pioneer alternates between information and criticism, but it is very apt to predict, or at least to cry in the wilderness of uncertainty and prepare the way for changes. It may be that there was some sense of that present in the minds of some at least of the Sagamores of the Royal Geographical Society on Monday night, at the audience which a fairly numerous assemblage gave to the late Governor of Bombay, as, in his own clear and forcible manner, he expounded to them what had been accomplished, and how, of the Sukkur-Kandahar Railway. Russia has ever pursued a method worthy of imitation in sending an avant garde of scientific expeditionaries to survey the ground before despatching troops to avenge imaginary grievances or annex coveted territory in Central Asia. The English method has generally been much more of the cart-before-the-horse fashion. Our troops have made the preliminary expeditions, and have been followed by our savants and our road builders, whose projects and works have been as often as not left half completed and thereby useless. But then we are a practical nation. A proof of this was certainly given when Sir Richard Temple explained to an attentive audience how he, the Governor of Bombay, had himself not only organised the marvellously expeditious preparations for, and construction of, the first portion of the railway to Southern Afghanistan, but had previously pioneered the iron way over heights and through deserts. We failed to discern any doubt in his mind that the enterprise so gallantly inaugurated would meet with a premature check. There was no indication of want of confidence in the future of that rich country, with its own capabilities of development and its possibilties of being a future entrepot of trade, as, notwithstanding the pessimism of the Pioneer we believe Kandahar to be. When we have authoritative telegrams from Simla scouted as untrustworthy, and are waiting to see the result of delicate negotiations, it may well be that so far-seeing and daring a project, no longer upheld by the master hand and the indomitable will that could energise every one within its inspiriting influence, should seem too great, its returns too remote. There were present in the theatre of the London University many men whose experience had taught them what were the difficulties, what might be the advantages, of carrying out the communications which might be the path of war, but would surely be the thoroughfares of peace and the highway of commerce. It would have been well if something more than platitudes of compliment and eulogies on deceased leaders could have been given forth with authority that some silent voices might have spoken with. Was it the daring innovation of a vivacious and graphic extempore address, or the numbing influence of a dread lest politics (as if politics could interfere in the substantially business question of a railway) might creep in, or a nervousness about committing the society to an ultra-scientific utterance? We know not, but something sealed the lips of the Council and the wise men of Punjab and Sind experiences, who listened and applauded the ever-new tale of British leaders and native followers, as Sir Richard Temple conducted his audience from the Indus, first through the swamp to Jacobabad, then across the waterless Kachi desert to Sibi, then through the Chapar rift, cleft by the Nari river as though to mark the railway's course to the Pishin plateau, then, doubling back, up the old Bolan road to the plain of Dusht and Quetta, and so to Pishin by the former route; thence by means of ocular as well as oral instruction made every one thoroughly acquainted with the route surveyed across the Khojak

Digitized by Google

Amran range, and thence across the bed of the old Indian sea to Kandahar, with a detour to the eastward to obtain a good foundation for crossing the Argandab and the Tarnak.

Two deductions followed in the minds of most from the facts recounted by Sir Richard Temple; one, that it would be a criminal blunder to surrender the Valley of Pishin and the command of the passes over the Khojak Amran range to any other keeping; the other is that the difficulties presenting themselves in the construction of a light railway were by no means so appalling as our Indian contemporary seems to wish us to believe. It is to be hoped that no premature economy or false policy may interfere to delay or prevent the completion of an undertaking that will be well worth the outlay, even in that impoverished country, where the new loan has been promptly subscribed. The railway to Kandahar may not be an enterprise to tempt promoters of a limited company, but it ought to be at least taken at par by those who earnestly seek to promote the substantial interests of South Western India.

The following order was published at Cabul on the departure of F-A, R.H.A., for India :—"Camp near Zahidabad, May 10.—The Lieutenant General Commanding Cabul Field Force has great pleasure in placing on record the valuable services rendered by F Battery A Brigade, R.H.A., during the time it has served under his command. Commencing the campaign in November, 1878, this battery has participated in every action in which the Cabul Field Force has been engaged, and has sustained the high reputation which the R.H.A. has earned for gallantry in the field and strict discipline in quarters. F-A, R.H.A., was the first wheeled artillery to cross the difficult pass of the Shutargardan, a feat which was accomplished without mishap of any sort, and one which reflected great credit on all ranks. Sir F. Roberts deeply regrets the loss in action on Dec. 11, 1879, of Lieut. E. Hardy, R.H.A., and the death from cholera at Shalozan in August, 1879, of Quartermaster Sergeant Marfield (then provost marshal to the force) and of the other gallant men of the battery. The Lieutenant General assures all ranks of this battery of the regret with which he parts from them, and of his best wishes for their future welfare."

IN connection with what is known as the Rangoon Commissariat scandal, two clerks in the Commissary General's office, Madras, have been arrested on a charge of having taken bribes.

HOME NEWS.

FAILURES.—The failure has been announced of Messrs. Horsley, Palmer, Stirling, and Co., East India agents and bankers, of 79½, Gracechurch-buildings. The senior partner retired some years ago. The liabilities are estimated at about £70,000, part of which are covered by securities.

THE OPIUM TRADE.—A numerous deputation from the Society for the Suppression of the Opium Trade has had an interview with Earl Granville on the subject of the Chefoo Convention between Great Britain and China. The noble earl, who was addressed by Lord Aberdeen, Mr. Richard, M.P., Mr. Storrs Turner, Mr. Birley, M.P., the Rev. J. M'Carthy, and Mr. Leone Levi, reserved his reply until he had received some important despatches from our Minister in China.

MR. FAWCETT'S ELECTION EXPENSES.—In Bombay the sum of £250 was collected from natives and remitted to London as a contribution in aid of Mr. Fawcett's election expenses. The following letter from the Postmaster General acknowledging this gift has been published in Bombay :—"London, April 16.—My dear Sirs, —I feel that I cannot sufficiently thank you and the other subscribers to the fund which has been raised by the native inhabitants of Bombay towards defraying the expenses of my recent election in Hackney. Your thoughtfulness in announcing the subscription by telegraph and authorising its immediate payment enabled the money to be received during the course of the election, and the amount was, therefore, at once devoted to the purpose for which it was raised. The value of your timely and generous gift is greatly enhanced by the kind expressions of confidence by which it is accompanied. I can only assure you that so long as I continue in Parliament I hope I shall never spare any effort to do all in my power to promote the welfare of the people of India. I have forwarded your letter to my committee, but I think they will not receive it in time to reply by this mail. Again most sincerely thanking you and the other subscribers to the fund, believe me, my dear Sirs, very truly yours, HENRY FAWCETT."

THE June number of "Dickens's Dictionary of Continental Railways" contains concise but sufficient information for intending visitors to Ober Ammergau during the summer season.

THE SOCIETY OF ARTS.—The Society of Arts had a conversazione in the South Kensington Museum last night. A large company was present, including Lord Alfred Churchill, Dr. Siemens, Sir P. Cunliffe Owen, Sir Charles Bright, Mr. Donald Currie, M.P., Mr. Robert Rawlinson, C.B., Mr. Hyde Clarke, Mr. J. A. Youl, C.M.G., and Mr. H. Trueman Wood, secretary. The galleries containing the Raphael cartoons, the Sheepshanks collection, the Smith collection of water colours, the Dyce and Forster pictures, the collections lent by Lord Spencer and Owen's trustees, the Chantry bequest, and the Schliemann collection of objects from Troy were open; and in the North Court a promenade concert was given by the band of the Royal Artillery. In the lecture theatre there was a vocal and instrumental concert by the Royal Criterion Handbell Ringers and Glee Singers.

COUNCIL DRAFTS.—Tenders were received yesterday at the Bank of England for Rs.35,00,000 in Government bills on India. The amounts allotted were :—To Calcutta, Rs.34,86,000, and to Madras Rs.1,40,000. Tenders on both Presidencies at 1s. 8⅛d. will receive about 28 per cent. Compared with last week this price shows no change. The amount to be tendered for next Wednesday will be reduced to Rs.30,00,000.

THE MONEY MARKET.—Though bar silver was quoted as previously, at 52½d. per ounce, a tendency to weakness was shown in this metal on the reduced proportion in the allotment of the Indian Council drafts. The successful competitors for the New Rupee Loan are apparently able at present to control the market as far as exchange operations with India are concerned. On the other hand, the resolution of the Government to reduce future weekly drawings to thirty lakhs can hardly fail ere long to impart firmness to prices. Mexican dollars received by the steamship Rhein from New York were bought at 51⅝d., making an advance of ⅛d. The exchanges from the East were unaltered, the rate from Bombay and Calcutta being 1s. 8⅜d., from Hong Kong 3s. 9⅞d., and from Shanghai at 5s. 2⅝d. It was reported that the quotation at which the New Rupee Issue had been dealt in receded to 103½. The old Four-and-a-Half per Cent. Issue was also ⅛ lower. The Rohilla left Southampton on Wednesday with £110,700 in silver bars and £8,900 in gold coin for Bombay.—Standard.

OUDH AND ROHILKUND RAILWAY.—The report of the directors for the half-year ending Dec. 31 last states that the gross receipts for the past year were £434,485, as compared with £462,204 in 1878; the expenses were £252,491, as compared with £250,657; and the profit was £181,994, as against £211,547. As compared with the corresponding period of 1878, there was a decrease in the number of passengers of 16,914, in tons of goods of 80,248, of £52,582 in gross receipts, of £52,786 in profit, and an increase of 18·91 in the percentage of expenses on the gross receipts. This falling off in the traffic might be stated as the result of a succession of bad seasons and bad harvests, followed by unprecedented sickness, which had prostrated all classes. The whole working staff deserved the greatest credit for their sustained exertions. The Secretary of State considered that the proposals made by the board with regard to the construction of the Northern extension from Moradabad to join the Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway at or near Saharanpore were such as could not be entertained by him, and they had been informed that it was not his intention at present to take any further step in the matter. The revenue account for the half-year showed that the total receipts for that period were £159.742, the expenditure was £121,269 (being 75·91 per cent. on the gross earnings), and the balance of net earnings was £38,473. The capital account showed that the total receipts had been £6,008,347, and the expenditure £5,648,660, leaving a balance in hand on Dec. 31 in cash and stores (less outstanding balances) of £359,686. The half-yearly general meeting was held yesterday at the City Terminus Hotel. Mr. Pender, M.P., the chairman, presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, he regretted that it was not so satisfactory as its predecessors. Hitherto they had invariably shown improving results, culminating on the last occasion in their presenting them with a net profit of 5 per cent. for the half-year, after their completed system had been open only five years. For the year 1879 the net profit had been 3 per cent., which, in the adverse circumstances they had had to face, must be considered favourable. He must not omit, with regard to the next half-year, to tell them that sickness was still rife throughout the provinces of Oudh and Rohilkund, and fever had given place to cholera to such an extent that Government had interfered to prevent the usual large gatherings at the annual fairs and festivals at different towns on their lines. The new bridge over the Ganges at Benares had absorbed the largest share of attention during the last six months both in India and at home, and it was a source of regret that he was unable to announce that greater progress had been made. The requisite land had not been made over by Government, which had only recently sanctioned the general design of the bridge. Until the land had been obtained no progress could be made with the approaches or the erection of the necessary workshops and quarters for the staff. The question of the proposed northern extension of their system from Moradabad to join the Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway at Saharunpore or some adjacent point remained in statu quo. The increase in the lower class fare from two to two and a-half pice had, so far as could be judged from the limited period the change had been in operation, worked satisfactorily, and promised, as anticipated, to prove a step in the right direction. They were sanguine that when prosperous times returned it would prove a great success. They had increased the number of native drivers and firemen in their employment. The rolling-stock had been increased by the addition of over 800 covered goods wagons, and they had strengthened their engine stock by thirty new locomotives of a heavier and more powerful type, only four of which remained to be sent out. Advantage had been taken of the slack time to make good all defects in the rolling-stock, and their workshops had lately been further employed in erecting rolling-stock for the State railways. In the certificate of the Government consulting engineers it was stated that certain iron bridges required strengthening. The work was neither expensive nor difficult, and was one more of precaution than absolute necessity. They still adhered to the opinion that it was unnecessary to fill up the vacancy in the audit caused by the death of Mr. Maxwell. He concluded by eulogising the services of the staff in India. Major General Beadle seconded the motion, and it was carried unanimously. The retiring directors and auditors were afterwards re-elected.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.—The report of the directors for the half-year ending the 31st of December last states that the gross revenue for that period amounted to £864,060, and the expenditure to £616,182, or 71·31 per cent. of the receipts, leaving a net profit of £247,848. Compared with the corresponding period of 1878, the ratio of expenditure to receipts was higher by 9·42 per cent., owing, however, not to increased expenditure, but diminished earnings, the receipts having fallen off to the extent of £181,557, or 17·36 per cent., while the expenditure was less by £30,901, or 4·78 per cent. The expenditure iucluded £15,964 loss by exchange, which did not appear in the corresponding period, so there had really been a saving of £46,866 in working expenditure, equal to 7·24 per cent. The general traffic manager pointed out that the prolongation of the war in Afghanistan had considerably affected them, and that the figures contained in the auditor's report showed that the decrease in the earnings was almost entirely owing to the falling off in the food grain traffic. The number of passengers carried in the half-year was 2,128,243, as against 2,163,741, and the goods carried had been 480,373 tons (including 99,732 revenue stores, carried free), as against 601,503 (including 155,222 tons revenue stores). On capital account £18 was received on shares in the half-year, completing the total receipt of £20,000,000 share capital. The total receipts on capital account had been £23,632,838. The classified expenditure during the half-year amounted to £48,640, and the total expenditure to the date of the account (exclusive of the stores account) had been £22,786,815. The expenditure at the debit of stores account was £680,983. The cash balance at the close of the half-year was £165,034.

MADRAS RAILWAY.—The half-yearly general meeting was held on Monday at the City Terminus Hotel. Col. J. T. Smith, the chairman, presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, said that during the half-year the efforts of their officers had been mainly occupied in endeavours to reduce expenses, and, at the same time, to add to the efficiency of their service. The report went to the close of their half-year on December 31 last, and it was his pleasure now to announce the completion and opening to the public of that magnificent work, on which they had been engaged so long, and on which so much money had been expended—he referred to the Cheyair Bridge. It was officially inspected by the Government consulting engineer and opened to the public on the 1st ult. They had received no answer to their application to raise the capital necessary to extend their Bellary branch in the direction of Dharwar. It was thought that the delay was owing to a rival project to carry a line from Bellary to Goa—a distance of about 200 miles—in Portuguese territory. He was informed that a concession had either been given or promised to a highly influential syndicate in London to carry this scheme out. He referred with satisfaction to the reduction of nearly £23,000 in their expenses, and said the Government had shown the most earnest desire to give them all the assistance they could to improve their dividend. They had decided not to abolish night trains or to reduce the speed of the mail trains, but other alterations had been considered and sanctioned by the Government, which would save between 300,000 and 400,000 train miles per annum, and the saving would be effected without placing the inhabitants of Madras in any materially worse position. Perhaps the greatest and most important change they had made since their last meeting was the reduction of the third-class fares to two pies, or ¼d. per mile. As far as it had gone it had been very satisfactory, and they had determined to extend the reduction to the mail trains. He had no doubt that the discoveries of gold deposits in various parts of the Presidency would quicken trade there. Mr. W. H. Crake, in seconding the motion, referred to the success of the reduction of the third-class fare. He believed the returns for the past half-year of other Indian railway companies—excepting, perhaps, the South Indian—would show a decrease in their passenger traffic, while they showed the enormous increase of half-a-million in a total of £1,800,000. Although they had reduced the fare by nearly 30 per cent., there had been, instead of a loss, a gain. In many respects he believed the report was the most promising they had ever presented. In reply to a question, the chairman said they were not yet earning 2 per cent. The report was unanimously adopted, and the retiring directors and auditor were re-elected.

SOUTH INDIAN RAILWAY.—The annual general meeting was held on Tuesday at the offices, Leadenhall-street; Mr. John Chapman, the chairman, presided, and, in moving the adoption of the report, said that the length of their line open had increased from 612 miles in 1878 to 634 in 1879, leaving to be completed the section between Conjeeveram and Chingleput, a distance of twenty-one miles, when they would have a total mileage of 655, all on the narrow or metre gauge of 3ft. 3in. The total cost, actual and estimated, including rolling-stock, was £4,323,000, or £6,600 per mile—as cheap as any railway in England. The gross receipts in 1879 were £322,198, as compared with £309,142 in 1878. In both years some exceptional items were debited to revenue, amounting in 1878 to £13,200, and in 1879 to £29,150, including loss by exchange, which, though not exceptional, might, for the purpose of comparison with the previous year, when it did not occur, be so considered. Deducting these amounts from the working expenses for the two years, the total would be, in 1878, £193,324, or 62-4 per cent.; and in 1879, £191,153, or 59-3 per cent. During 1878 they carried 5,030,071 passengers, and in 1879 the number was 5,107,677, and the fares during 1879 remained at 8, 3, and 2 pies (or 1d., ⅜d., and ¼d.) per mile for the three classes. Up to May 1 of the current year the result, as regarded third-class traffic, was that they had carried 1,413,786 passengers, the receipts being Rs.606,366, as against, in the corresponding period of 1879, 1,630,011 passengers, giving a total receipt of Rs.571,196. The total receipts up to the same date had been Rs.1,151,254, against Rs.1,017,269 in the corresponding period of 1879, showing an increase in the eighteen weeks of Rs.133,985, equal in the twelve months to Rs.387,000, should the average be maintained. It was very satisfactory for him to be able to state that they had had no accident. He thought they had every reason to congratulate themselves on the increasing prosperity of a line which promised to be one of the most important in India. They had reason to anticipate an increase of traffic from the completion of the Pondicherry Railway—a small line, but connecting with other French settlements. He then read a letter from the Bishop of Madras, who requested that his appeal for assistance for the church there might be laid before the proprietors. Sir R. Macdonald Stephenson, the deputy-chairman, reminded them that, although the line might be considered virtually complete, still it would take some time yet before it was possible for it to show its full earning powers, and meantime the exceptional items debited to revenue kept down the profits and increased the proportion of the working expenses. In reply to a question, Mr. Notman, the managing director, said the contract of the companies with the Secretary of State did not compel him to provide funds in this country for revenue stores, although previously to 1878 the Government did so, and the companies themselves now had to bear the loss by exchange. The report was unanimously adopted and the retiring directors and auditor were re-elected.

A COURT OF APPEAL FOR INDIA.

YESTERDAY afternoon at a meeting of the East India Association—Mr. Stewart Erskine Rolland in the chair—Lord Stanley of Alderley read a paper on "A Court of Appeal for Indian Grievances." His lordship in the commencement said that he did not mean to deal in any way with the appeals which came before the Judicial Committtee of the Privy Council, as these only concerned cases of property, none others having for some years been allowed to reach the committee. It has been apparent for some years that there is a necessity for some court to which her Majesty's Indian subjects could appeal against the acts of the Indian Government; and this want has become more evident and more pressing since last year, when the Secretary of State, Lord Cranbrook, declared that he could not enter into a subject because it had not been remitted to him by the Indian Government, and that a rule or order to that effect has been laid down by the Indian Government. Formerly many cases were brought before Parliament, and before the abolition of the East India Company it was possible for them to obtain a partial hearing; but since the separate government of India has been abolished, and merged in the government of the rest of her Majesty's dominions, no case can be brought before Parliament for redress without its appearing to be of a party nature, or an attack upon the Minister. In continuation, his lordship said that he thought a court or commission of appeal should be appointed in India consisting of five members, some of whom should be judges. The unsatisfactory nature of the present course of procedure on cases of disputed succession, or of charges against Indian princes, might be inferred from the fact that in the case of the Gaikwar of Baroda it was felt that the procedure in the case of the Nawab of Tonk was a precedent to be avoided. Lord Napier and Ettrick had stated that he had more than once felt in the course of his official experience that it was unseemly and unjust that the Government should be the interested party and the judge. He considered that some impartial and arbitral authority should exist which might advise or decide in cases of disputed boundary, or of claims of Indians against the Government. Such a court of arbitration established in India might also, he thought, be charged with the duty of deciding disputes between native States and questions of succession to native States. He thought it would command great respect from the native community and relieve the Government of some obnoxious duties which were likely to entail charges of partiality. His lordship then cited several cases illustrating the mode in which mistakes may be made from matters having been in the first instance decided by some inexperienced official, whose decision had been afterwards upheld, sometimes on grounds of little less importance than the desire to sustain him in his position. In conclusion, Lord Stanley said that some words which he had read of Warren Hastings were out of date, partly from the usurpations of Residents, and partly owing to the proclamation of the Queen as Empress of India, which had led Residents to look upon the subjects of independent States as British subjects; but the change brought about by the change of title made it the more necessary that the Secretary of State for India should reverse what had been done wrongfully, and that he should be easily accessible, for, by the custom of the whole of Asia, every subject of the Empress had a right to present petitions to her Majesty or to the Ministers.

INDIA IN PARLIAMENT.

THE INDIAN BUDGET.

In reply to Mr. Baxter, the Marquis of HARTINGTON said that the despatch expected by the Government could not arrive before the 20th inst. He would not make any statement on the subject of the finances of India before its receipt.

AFGHANISTAN.

Mr. ASHMEAD BARTLETT asked the Secretary of State for India whether it was true that an immediate evacuation of Cabul had been ordered; and, if so, what steps had been taken by her Majesty's Government to secure Northern Afghanistan from anarchy and ruin and to protect those Afghans who had favoured the British cause.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said he had stated on Monday last as fully as he was able the general drift of the instructions which had been given to Lord Ripon on the subject of Afghanistan and the termination of the war there. Lord Ripon would, no doubt, lose no time in acting as far as possible on those instructions, but he had received no communication on the matter from him since his arrival at Simla. He had not, he might add, heard anything to confirm the statement which had appeared in some newspapers the day before to the effect that the immediate evacuation or the evacuation by a certain day of Cabul had been ordered, and he did not think it likely that any order of the sort had been given irrespective of the progress of events or the position of affairs at the time.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

THE ARCHIVES OF THE INDIA-OFFICE.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON stated, in answer to Sir E. Wilmot, that the memorial presented in 1868 to the Secretary of State for India by Mr. W. Tayler, formerly Commissioner of Patna, was missing from the India-office. He believed, however, that a copy of the memorial had been printed with the papers lately presented to the House. Four or five letters relating to the memorial were also missing from the India-office, but a copy of the printed pamphlet forming an appendix to the memorial was at present in the library of the House for the use of hon. members who took an interest in this case.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

THE INDIA, CHINA, AND AUSTRALIAN MAILS.

In reply to Mr. Baxter,

Mr. FAWCETT said the annual loss in the revenue of the United Kingdom on the contract of 1874, for carrying mails between this country and India, China, and Australia, was, in 1876, £216,000; in 1877-78, £239,000; and the estimated loss in 1878-79 was £246,000. The estimate that had been given to him of the loss that would have been incurred if the postage had been reduced to a half—viz., 2½d.—would have been no more than £26,000 in addition to the loss which was actually incurred. He believed his right hon. friend was correct in stating that the contract speed of the Peninsular and Oriental Company for carrying mails vid Brindisi to India, China, and Australia was 11 1-3 knots an hour. He might be permitted to remark that he was by no means responsible for this contract, which was entered into before he came into office, and he was one of those who had voted against it. The average time taken by the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamers between London and Melbourne vid Brindisi in the transmission of mails was not, as his right hon. friend said, forty-eight days, but the contract period was thirty-nine and a-half days, and that time, he believed, had been in only one instance exceeded. It was true that the average rate of passage in the vessels of the unsubsidised Orient Company was considerably faster than that of the subsidised line of the Peninsular and Oriental Company. The average rate of speed of the former was between fourteen and fifteen knots an hour, and from information sent to the Post-office he believed the length of the passage from Plymouth to Adelaide, the first port at which they stopped, was a few hours under forty days. In one instance the passage was completed in thirty-five days.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE,

THE ORIGINAL AND ONLY GENUINE.

CHLORODYNE is admitted by the Profession to be the most wonderful and valuable remedy ever discovered.
CHLORODYNE is the best remedy known for Coughs, Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma.
CHLORODYNE effectually checks and arrests those too often fatal diseases—Diphtheria, Fever, Croup, Ague.
CHLORODYNE acts like a charm in Diarrhœa, and is the only specific in Cholera and Dysentery.
CHLORODYNE effectually cuts short all attacks of Epilepsy, Hysteria, Palpitation, and Spasms.
CHLORODYNE is the only palliative in Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Gout, Cancer, Toothache, Meningitis, &c.

Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians that he had received a despatch from her Majesty's Consul at Manilla, to the effect that Cholera has been raging fearfully, and that the ONLY remedy of any service was CHLORODYNE.—See Lancet, 1st Dec., 1864.

CAUTION.—BEWARE OF PIRACY AND IMITATIONS.

CAUTION.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. PAGE WOOD stated that Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE was, undoubtedly, the Inventor of CHLORODYNE; that the story of the Defendant, Freeman, was deliberately untrue, which, he regretted to say had been sworn to.—See Times, 13th July, 1864.

Sold in bottles at 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. each. None is genuine without the words "Dr. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE" on the Government Stamp. Overwhelming Medical Testimony accompanied each bottle.

Is being considered by some competent judges that the German method of over or cross-stringing Pianos is attended with great advantage, Messrs. Kirkman and Son in all their Pianos render them eminently suitable for exportation to the Colonies, where skilled workmen are few and far between All useless checks and complications are carefully avoided, thus enabling any tuner, with however superficial a knowledge of the business, to regulate them or repair any damage they may sustain.

ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL.

SATURDAY, JUNE 26, 1880.

SUMMARY AND REVIEW.

OUR advices by the overland mail are, from Bombay, June 5; Madras and Allahabad, June 3; Calcutta, June 2.

THE following is the report on the state of the season and prospects of the crops for the week ending May 25:—General rain has fallen in British Burma, Assam, Bengal, Madras, and Mysor and Coorg. In Bombay, Central India, Rajputana, and the North Western Provinces and Oudh slight showers fell in a few districts and States. In the Central Provinces and the Punjab the rain was very partial. Autumn sowings are being pushed on actively. General prospects and the public health continue good.

THE health reports for the same week are as follow:—Bombay: Karachi; small-pox and fever in two taluks. Hyderabad: Fever and small-pox. Dharwar: Slight fever, otherwise health good. Bengal: Fever very prevalent in Chittagong Hill Tracts, and small-pox and cholera still in some places; otherwise public health good. North West Provinces and Oudh: Cholera continues in Benares, but is decreasing in Gorakhpur, Lucknow, and Fyzabad, and spreading in Allahabad; fever prevalent in Jhanzi and Agra, and decreasing in Lucknow. Punjab: Delhi, fever increasing. Dera Ismail Khan: Small-pox prevailing, otherwise health fair. Central Provinces: Small-pox continuing in Saugor and Hoshangabad. British Burma: Small-pox somewhat prevalent in Pegu division. A few cases in Akyab and Toungoo; otherwise general health good. Mysor and Coorg: Fever prevalent in parts. Berar: Hyderabad, fever and small-pox. Central India States: Generally good. Rajputana: Health good.

"FROM VICEROY, JUNE 17.—Reported from Cabul that rumours anticipating arrival of Abdul Rahman, who is still at Khanabad, cause excitement; his soldiers reported discontented, bad feeling existing between Usbegs and Cabulis. General Ross gone to Lughman and Kohmaman. Ghazni field force drawn nearer to Cabul. The regiments which reinforced line of communications during General Arbuthnot's absence in Lughman have returned, Cabul troops having returned to Jellalabad, where all is quiet. Large gathering of Ghazis, Toraki, Tok, Kharoti, and Andari tribes reported at Ghazni. In Maidan, Wardaks and Tajiks assembling, but numbers much exaggerated; no doubt, however, opposition leaders trying to gather men in Zurmah and Maidan. Herat news through Kandahar says no fresh symptoms of move; leaders of troops dispute about Ayoob accompanying. All continues quiet Kandahar and Beluchistan frontier. Some disquietude still among tribes of Khyber and neighbourhood."

"FROM VICEROY, JUNE 21.—Gathering at Maidan not yet formidable. British field force from Ghazni has come to Charasia. Convoy was attacked morning 19th, between Pezwan and Jugdulluck Kotal, assailants beaten off. A reconnoitring party reported engaged with the enemy towards Arganden yesterday. No news of importance from Herat. Kandahar: Wali at Ghirish receives promises of support from chiefs towards Herat. From Quetta, some raiding reported on railway line, but several robbers secured by military."

THE Calcutta telegrams published on Monday state that the Mollah Mushki Alam upholds the claims of Musa Khan, and that Sirdar Alam Khan, our titular governor of Ghazni, had returned to Cabul. Different opinions prevailed as to Abdul Rahman's intentions, but the opposition party regard him as a leader against the English, while many of the sirdars in Cabul were preparing to leave. The cattle raiders in the Lughman district have been punished and fined Rs.100,000. Revenue has been collected in Logar by Major Ewan Smith.

A REUTER'S telegram, dated Simla, June 23, says that the inhabitants of the Upper Logar and Maidan have resisted tha invasion of those districts by the Ghazis, who have, consequently, been thwarted in their intention of collecting large gatherings of natives hostile to the British. General Gough, with the force under his command, is moving to Kohdaman owing to the failure of supplies. The Ghazni force will probably return lo the Logar valley for the same reason.

THE question of the continued occupation of Kandahar is discussed by a local correspondent, who holds very different views as to the potential supplies to be obtained in Pishin from those of other experienced observers. In the meantime we are told that a suitable site for a semi-permanent camp has been surveyed at Maiwand, half way to Girishk. The present cantonment is far from healthy.

THE reports received from Cashmere continue to be very satisfactory. Abundant rain has fallen, the prospects of crops have much improved, the emigrants are returning, and altogether the affairs of that unfortunate State have a greatly improved appearance. It would seem that the Maharaja has profited by the criticism to which he has lately been subjected, and rumours of great projects are afloat. To carry out the numerous schemes referred to, it is said that his Highness is organising a Public Works Department. He will leave shortly for Srinagar. A Jummoo correspondent informs us that on May 29 Mr. Henvey, the political officer at Srinagar, at the request of the Maharaja, gave a grand banquet on his Highness's behalf to all the European visitors at Cashmere in honour of the Queen's birthday. An Imperial salute was also fired at Jummoo. His Highness invited all the Europeans in Jummoo on the following night to a banquet in commemoration of the same event.

THE week's news from Burma is ominous of a civil war. The rebels have defeated a detachment of Royalist troops and are advancing, with apparently well founded hopes that the standard of a Nyoungoke prince will attract many deserters. The ambassadors returning to Mandalay took with them the Governor of Sillehmyo in irons. A royal order has been issued to the Woons not to summon the captains of the Irrawaddy steamers ashore, and to go on board with only five unarmed attendants.

THE Bombay papers contain full accounts of the landing and reception of Lord Ripon, the chief novelty in which was the commendable brevity of the municipal address. The arrangements for the reception of the Viceroy were unostentatious and simple. The streets and ships were barren of bunting or decorations, but the crowds of spectators were obviously gratified at the hearty and unaffected manner in which their loyal salutations were returned. We give elsewhere the full text of H.E's. first public speech in India, which the telegrams summarised some weeks ago.

THE Times of India says that the new Viceroy created a very favourable impression during his stay in Bombay. By no section, European or native, is any objection expressed or felt to his appointment on the ground of his present religious belief.

THE Secretary for India informs us that Major Evelyn Baring, who has recently been in the employment of the Egyptian Government, has been appointed financial member of council to the Viceroy of India, in the place of Sir John Strachey, who has resigned.

SIR ANDREW CLARKE resumed his seat in the Council on the 8th inst. His term of office has now expired, and it is unknown whether he is to be allowed an extension.

MR. RIVERS THOMPSON, a member of the Supreme Council, goes home at once on sick leave. Mr. Aitchison, chief commissioner of British Burma, succeeds him. Mr. Bernard, secretary of the Home Department, will act for Mr. Aitchison, and Mr. Charles Grant for Mr. Bernard.

CAPT. ROBSON, Royal Artillery, who had left with Col. Smith to join Col. Phayre at Pishin, died on May 27, at Sibi, of sunstroke.

IT is said that Lord William Beresford was the purchaser for Rs.40,000 of the first prize in the Umballa lottery.

THE Government of his Highness the Nizam have appointed Mr. R. S. Dobbs, C.E., late of the India Public Works Department, to the post of conservator of forests in his Highness's dominions in Hyderabad, Deccan.

MR. NEY ELIAS, the frontier political officer, who visited Yarkand last year in an unofficial capacity, is again in Kashgaria, his object being to ascertain the exact state of affairs there for the information of the Indian Government, and to provide increased facilities for trade.

THE Government of India received intimation that there would this year be no issue of a gazette of nominations to the Star of India on the occasion of the Queen's birthday.

THE thanks of her Majesty's Government have been conveyed to Sir Michael Kennedy for his energy, ability, and administrative capacity, and his promptness of action as comptroller general of transport.

THE Raja of Jheend has been appointed a member of the Viceregal Legislative Council.

THE Maharaja of Kooch Behar gave a ball in honour of the Queen's birthday.

VACCINATION has been made compulsory in Bengal.

THE Northbrook Hall at Dacca was opened on the 24th ultimo.

A METHODIST minister, Mr. Peters, has been committed to prison for seven days in default of paying a fine of £10 for preaching in the street at Bangalore.

A NEW loan will be immediately issued by the Bombay Port Trust for four lakhs of rupees, to be expended in erecting new cranes and carrying out new works.

IT is said that the Court party at Mandalay are much exercised at the return of Mr. Gladstone to power, in consequence of his views about the Bulgarian massacres!

THE Pioneer commences a short article on the relations between tea planters and coolies by saying that the home papers have published a memorial said to have been addressed to the Government of India by the tea planters of Assam. Possibly this document may have been laid before Lord Ripon in London; but we cannot find that anything is known of it, otherwise, in this country. What says the Tea Planters' Association to this assertion?

MAJOR GENERAL ANSON, Lieutenant Governor of Prince of Wales's Island, is, the Standard hears, about to resign his appointment, and the duties of Lieutenant Governor will then be provided for by the substitution of a resident councillor.

THE Persian Consul General at Smyrna has left for Jedda to act as commissioner upon a joint Anglo-Persian inquiry into the conduct of the Persian Consul at Jedda. The English commissioner who will sit on this inquiry will probably be the senior naval officer at the port.

IN order to fill vacancies existing in the Indian Staff Corps subalterns of the Royal Marines have been again invited to volunteer for these appointments, and a further number of ten will be permitted to resign their commissions in the Marines for this purpose.

THE Government of India, at the suggestion of Archdeacon Baly, has called on the local Governments for the names of European and Eurasian boys engaged in Government service during the last five years. The Archdeacon is also endeavouring, through superintendents and masters of schools, to ascertain how many European and Eurasian lads are in private employ. The information is being collected to ascertain the want of industrial provision for this class.

THE usual statement of the trade of British India with British possessions and foreign countries for the five years 1874-75 to 1878-79 has been issued. The figures recording the trade of the year 1878-79 exhibit a reduction of considerable importance in the extent of the trade as compared with the two years immediately preceding. Though not equal to the trade of these two years, the value was greater than that recorded in any previous year, excepting the years of the cotton famine, when Indian cotton realised four times as much as it does now. Much of the decrease in the trade of the year is due to an enormous diminution in the imports of silver, for though the imports and exports of merchandise also fell, the decline under both these heads was not equal to the diminution under the head of treasure. We shall recur to this topic next week.

THE Bombay Gazette quotes a statement that the Chinese Government has preferred a claim on Siam for the tribute which the latter country is nominally supposed to pay, but which has not been paid for the last thirty or fifty years. The tribute was of the annual value of between five to ten thousand dollars. A similar claim was made in 1870 but no action was taken in the matter. It is, however, feared that the warlike attitude of China may lead in the present instance to more serious consequences.

WHILE in London we have been indulged with oral and written demonstrations of the bankruptcy of India, the Parisian capitalists have secured the new Four per Cent. Rupee Loan at a premium. One Calcutta native secured Rs 500 at Rs.110. What does he expect besides? The Government gains ten lakhs.

THE following notification respecting the new loan appears in the Gazette of India:—"It having been represented to the Government of India that some subscribers to the loan advertised on May 14 may prefer that their promissory notes should bear interest from March 15, it is hereby notified that, on payment of the interest accrued from March 15 to the date on which this tender is paid, promissory notes will be isued to any subscriber at his option, dated March 15, and bearing interest from that date instead of from Sept. 15, as stated in the form of promissory note published with the Notification No. 461, dated May 14.

INTELLIGENCE has reached Aberdeen that a grant of £1,000 has been made from the Indian Exchequer to the relatives of the late Mr. Jenkyns. Mr. Jenkyns, who was a native of Aberdeen, was, it will be remembered, secretary to the Cavagnari Embassy, and shared the fate of his comrades at Cabul.

CHAN PHYA BHANUWONGSE, Siamese Ambassador Extraordinary and suite, arrived in London on Monday. His Excellency was received at Dover by Mr. H. A. Cockerell, of the Foreign-office.

IN consequence of the mass of materials which have been accumulated for Mr. Wollaston's English Persian Dictionary the author has enlarged the plan and scope of his work and postponed its completion. In the meanwhile he has placed in the hands of Messrs. Wm. H. Allen for immediate publication a pocket dictionary, based on a manuscript work of Mr. R. B. Binning, compiled by him during his residence in Persia.

DURING the week ending the 22nd May there were 150 deaths in Calcutta, giving a death-rate of 18·2 per 1,000 per annum. During the same week in Madras the deaths numbered 284, being a rate of 37·1 per 1,000 per annum. In Bombay for the week ending the 25th May the deaths reached 442, giving a death-rate of 34·05 per 1,000 per annum.

THE Times of India gives the following obituary of the week:—The Maharaja of Travancore; Capt. Robson, R.A.; Mr. B. W. Coombes; Mr. Colesworth Grant.

WILLIAM THOMAS THORNTON, C.B.

ON Wednesday, the 16th instant, Mr. William Thomas Thornton passed away, after a comparatively short illness, at his residence in Cadogan-place. The youngest son of Mr. Thomas Thornton, president of the Levant Company's establishment at Constantinople, and younger brother of the late Edward Thornton, of the East India Company's Home Service, and author of Thornton's Gazetteer of India, William Thomas Thornton was born on Feb. 14, 1813, and passed his early training at the Moravian establishment at Ockbrook, near Derby. Subsequently he spent some years at Malta and also at Constantinople, and in 1836 he obtained an appointment on the home establishment of the East India Company. For some years Mr. Thornton was attached to the Marine Department, but, on the transfer of the Government to the Crown, he was, at the instance of the late John Stuart Mill, whose firm friend and disciple he had long been, transferred to the important post of secretary in the Public Works Department, which appointment he held to the day of his death; he was also Government director of the Madras Irrigation and Canal Company. Mr. Thornton was a good representative of the higher official class, and with zeal and industry in his official duties he combined a high standard of education and ability. He was also not unknown in the literary world, having published two or three volumes of poems, and, more recently, a translation of Horace into English verse. It was, however, in connection with his treatises on economical and philosophical subjects that he was best known. Of these may be mentioned the work "On Labour," "A Plea for Peasant Proprietors," and "Old Fashioned Ethics and Common Sense Metaphysics." Mr. Thornton was a distinguished member amongst political economists, and, on the death of John Stuart Mill, may be said to have been looked upon as the leader of those who belonged to his particular school of thought. Upon the adoption of the narrow gauge for railways in India Mr. Thornton endeavoured to persuade some one having practical experience on the subject to defend the decision of the then Secretary of State in a paper to be read at the Institution of Civil Engineers, but, failing in this, he undertook the work himself, and succeeded in raising one of the most important and lengthy discussions that had ever before taken place within the walls of 25, Great George-street. He also read a paper before the Society of Arts on "Irrigation Works in India." On account of his distinguished official services the Duke of Argyll recommended him in 1873 for a Companionship of the Bath. Mr. William Thomas Thornton died at the age of 67; and on Monday, June 21, at a meeting of the Irish Home Rule Party, on the motion of Mr. T. P. O'Connor, seconded by the Rev. J. Nelson, a vote of condolence was passed in reference to his death, on the grounds that he had so long and ably advocated a system of peasant proprietorship. By his death the Government have lost an able and zealous servant, and the more advanced political economists a friend who, if they did not invariably agree with his views, always commanded respect for his opinions and a careful consideration of the arguments by which he supported them.

LIFE IN KANDAHAR.

WE are in a state here which is not at all pleasant. We are ordered never to leave our lines without a revolver and sword. I use my old thirty-nine sword as a walking stick, no scabbard, and as sharp as a knife. Three other fellows and I were out for an evening ride last week, and got potted at by nine Ghazis. They fired through a wall, and so close were they to one of my companions that his coat was burned by the powder. His arm was smashed to bits just above the elbow. How they all escaped I cannot understand. In the bazaar a few evenings ago I saw a man clean shaved and dressed in a clean garment. Why I observed him more than any one else I know not, but I did, and at once took my revolver out of the case, and walked close up to the brute, keeping my eye on him. He had a long Afghan knife up his arm, naked, and as formidable a weapon as I ever saw. He passed on with a shy smile, as much as to say, "Lucky you saw me, sahib." The fact is we hold our lives in our hands every day of our life. The knowledge of this spoils Kandahar.—Correspondent of Times of India.

THE REPLY OF LORD RIPON TO THE BOMBAY CORPORATION.

MR. CHAIRMAN AND GENTLEMEN OF THE CORPORATION OF BOMBAY, I am very grateful to you for the address which you have just been good enough to deliver. I have observed with great satisfaction the assurances which you give in that address of your loyalty and devotion to the Queen-Empress of India; but I can assure you that it is altogether unnecessary that you should give those assurances to me in words. I am very well aware of the feelings of loyalty and devotion to our gracious Sovereign by which you are actuated: loyalty and devotion which is due, indeed, to the Royal Lady who has always taken, as you are all well aware, a very deep interest in all that concerns the welfare of her Indian subjects. For myself, gentlemen, I can assure you that I am deeply sensible of the great responsibility which devolves upon me in respect to the great office which her Majesty has been pleased to entrust to me. We are told that it does not become him who putteth on his armour to boast himself as the man who takes it off; and, therefore, I am not at all inclined upon this occasion to make to you, and through you to the community of India, any large promises, or to lay before you any extensive programme. I should prefer that your judgment should be pronounced, as I am sure it will be, intelligently and fairly upon my conduct, when you have been able to judge of me by my acts. I will only say this, that it will be my constant endeavour to devote earnestly and assiduously any powers which I may possess, faithfully to the discharge of my duty to my Sovereign and to the people of India. You, gentlemen, have alluded to that grievous affliction of famine, which, during many recent years, has from time to time been productive of so great suffering and misery to many portions of the population of this great empire. I trust that it may please God in His providence to grant us now a circle of more prosperous years; but I hope also that the lessons which, hard though they may have seemed, have been for the best, and will not be lost upon the Government of India, and that we shall profit by the experience which has been gained during those years of suffering, both in preparing such measures as may be calculated to guard against a recurrence of the evil and also by alleviating in the most effectual manner the miseries entailed by famine, if ever called upon. Gentlemen, you have spoken also of the war which has been in progress almost without intermission for the last two years on our North Western frontier. No one can think of that contest without feeling his heart beat quicker with an honourable and just pride at the recollections of the gallant deeds which in this war, as on so many previous occasions, have been performed for our Queen, our Empress, and our country, by her Majesty's troops, European and native alike; and we are proud to recollect that in these later times both these services have shown themselves fully able to maintain the great and glorious reputation which the armies of England have won—which the soldiers of England have won for her in every quarter of the globe. But, gentlemen, it will be my most earnest endeavour to bring that war, so far as lies in my power, to an early and to an honourable conclusion, in the hope that with returning peace the Government of India may again be able to devote its attention to those works of internal improvement to which you have so lightly and wisely alluded. And I can assure you that if it should be my lot during my tenure of office to contribute in any degree to the development of the resources of this great country—agricultural and industrial—and to promote to any extent the happiness and the welfare of the people of India, of all races and creeds, and classes, and especially the prosperity of the mass of the people, I shall esteem it the greatest honour of my political life. Gentlemen, I thank you heartily for giving me this opportunity of meeting you—the representatives of the great and progressive community of Bombay. Through the kindness of Sir James Fergusson I have already this morning had one opportunity of seeing something of this important city, and I need not tell you how greatly I have been struck alike at the beauty of the public buildings which have been recently erected here, and which certainly put to shame some of those which I have seen in great towns in England; and yet more, I may say, as the proof that you are engaged in other works not above ground, but under ground, which are calculated to confer great benefits upon the community over which you rule, I am rejoiced to find that you are fully awake to the importance of sanitary improvements: of sanitary improvements which are of the greatest value to every country, and of the importance of which men are becoming more and more convinced in the present day, and which, I venture to think, are of as great importance, in India at all events, as in any other part of the world. Gentlemen, I have mentioned the name of your governor, Sir James Fergusson. I hope he will permit me to take this opportunity of expressing the great satisfaction I feel at finding that I should have him during my tenure of office as Governor-General as one of my colleagues in the administration of this country. Sir James Fergusson and myself sat for many years in that great school of public life—the House of Commons—and I know enough of him to be aware of the zeal and earnestness with which he will devote himself to the discharge of the great duties which will fall to his lot as Governor of Bombay; and I know also that I may rely with the most undoubted confidence in his zeal on all occasions, and on every possible co-operation from him. Gentlemen, it only remains for me to say how heartily I wish you, as well as the community over which you rule, every possible prosperity. The kindness of your welcome to-day will be a great encouragement to me in the work which has been entrusted to me, which it will be my earnest endeavour, with God's assistance, to faithfully discharge.

THE EGYPTIAN RAILWAY.

"H. P. Le Mesurier, Esq., C.S.I., President of the Council of Administration of Egyptian Railways, Cairo.

"Sir,—We, the undersigned passengers by the mail which left London on the 7th inst. for India, Australia, &c., have the honour to bring under your notice the very unsatisfactory nature of the arrangements made by the Egyptian Railway officials for the transit from Alexandria to Suez. In the first place, the accommodation for passengers, particularly for English ladies, is squalid to a degree, the waiting-rooms are dirty and unfurnished, and the retiring-rooms are disgusting; in short, quite unfit for the use of first-class passengers. Secondly, the unpunctuality of the special train was excessive. Without any apparent reason, we were, on the 13th inst., twelve and a half hours doing a journey which, according to the time-table, ought to have been accomplished in ten, so that, instead of reaching our destination at 11 p.m., we did not do so until nearly two o'clock a.m., a most harassing prolongation of what must necessarily be a tiring journey, more especially to ladies. We would mention particularly the apparently useless delay of twenty-five minutes at Suez station before proceeding to the pier. The lighting of the train was very defective; the lamps in nearly all the carriages had to be relit at every station we stopped at, and even then the greater part of the journey after nightfall was performed in darkness. The arrangements for refreshments are disgraceful along the whole line, and the charges are extravagant. It is scarcely too much to characterise the so-called 'dinner' at Zagazig as a swindle. We were called on to pay five francs a head for some rice, potatoes, and a very small fragment of tough meat, of which there was not a sufficient supply to go round the party. There was little or no attendance, and it was clear that no attempt had been made to meet the bare wants, much less the comforts, of the passengers. You are aware that the fare by the train is excessively high, more than one and a-half times as much as that on any railway we know in Europe or India. The absence, therefore, of all attempt to study our comfort is a justifiable cause of complaint, and we fail to see why there should be any greater difficulty in treating passengers decently in Egypt than there is in India. The evils of which we complain are such as could be remedied with little or no expenditure, merely requiring better supervision and management on the part of the administration. And, therefore, as the English member of the Railway Council, and as having yourself ably managed a great railway in India, we confidently appeal to you to put an end to the state of things we have described. We feel sure you will sympathise with your countrymen who pass through Egypt in large numbers, week by week, and especially with the ladies and inalvids."

THE GERMAN SYSTEM OF TEACHING THE DEAF AND DUMB TO TALK.

No one who has been brought into contact with the deaf—and who does not number many so afflicted among their acquaintance?—can have anything but feelings of sympathy for those who are thus penalised in their intercourse with their fellows. How much greater is the penalty in the cases of those persons who have the misfortune either to be born deaf or to lose their sense of hearing at an early age will be generally evident. For many centuries there is every reason to suppose that such a one was an outcast from society—fortunate if tolerated in the bosom of the family. Set down as an imbecile, or, at the best, a useless member, the afflicted is treated with all the refined cruelty which is often the expression of a feeling of helplessness to remove or alleviate suffering. As civilisation advanced efforts were made to bring these outcasts within the fold of humanity, and among the systems adopted was that of signs and a finger alphabet. This became known as the French method, and, while it undoubtedly conferred some advant ages on the afflicted, it still left him practically an outcast from society, for the very simple reason that it was not worth anyone's while to become proficient in "the new tongue." While making him less of a dead weight in the family it brought him little nearer to the rest of mankind. The ideas and the thought of the surrounding world remain as much a blank as before. The French system was, therefore, palpably a very partial success. It was a step in advance out of the darkness of utter barbarism—that was all. The German system, which has only been introduced into this country within the last two years, aspires to, and can fairly claim, a higher success. It rests satisfied with nothing short of substituting equivalent powers for the loss of hearing, and thus making the child born deaf as good a man or woman eventually as if there were no affliction. This is no idle boast, as those who were present last Thursday at the influential meeting which was held at the Bishop of London's House in St. James's-square, can testify. On this occasion Major General Cotton, chairman of the committee, set forth the scope and purpose of the society, and after his address several practical illustrations were given of what had been accomplished. Mr. Kinsey, the principal of the Training College at Ealing, examined four of his young pupils in the presence of the meeting. He prefaced his remarks by saying that most children who are regarded as deaf mutes are really deaf only—in other words, they may be said to be dumb because they are deaf. A girl, aged six, was the first child examined. She had been born with her hearing in a normal state, but lost it entirely at the age of two, owing to the maltreatment of an Indian nurse. She had been in Mr. Kinsey's hands for six months only, yet she was able to repeat the alphabet and a good many words as well as any other child of her age. Another girl, aged 7½, who had been two years in training, was able to understand with ease all that was said and to answer every question put to her. Two boys about the same age were equally intelligent and advanced in their training; one of them, who had a delicate chest, is already benefited physically owing to his vocal organs being brought into play. It was clear from the examples given that the education of deaf and dumb children, through the medium of the lips rather than of the fingers, is thoroughly feasible and successful. The Bishop of London, who presided towards the close, was cordially thanked for having given his aid to the society, and intimated his surprise as well as pleasure at what he had witnessed. Indeed, the general feeling, to which expression was given by several speakers, was that the movement had a national character and ought to be encouraged in every way. Meantime, the society urgently requires funds to prosecute the work undertaken and to start the projected school for the poor, which was the main object put before this meeting, it being strongly contended that to bring the German system within the reach of the 30,000 deaf mutes in the country is a national duty. The expenditure last year having been about £1,500 and the receipts were short of this by £500.

THE INDIAN EXCHANGES.—Yesterday (Friday) the Indian exchanges were quoted 1s. 8½d. to 9-16d. for Bombay, and 1s. 8 9-16d. to ⅝d. for Calcutta.

INDIAN GLENROCK GOLD MINING COMPANY.—At an extraordinary meeting held yesterday, Mr. S. L. Howard in the chair, the resolution passed at the meeting on May 27, amending the articles of association by substituting seven days' notice of meeting for twenty-one days, was unanimously confirmed.

NEW POSTAL REGULATIONS.—It should be stated that the reduction in the rates of postage to India and other Eastern places is confined to correspondence forwarded by French or Netherlands packets. It is important that this restriction should be made clear to prevent the public from posting cards or printed papers intended to go by other routes with the lower rates of postage only.—Times.

THE INDIAN MEDICAL SERVICE.—We understand that, in addition to the compensation claimed by the medical officers of the late Honourable East India Company's service for the loss of administrative appointments which were guaranteed to them by Parliament when their services were transferred to the Crown, the retired medical officers of the Indian army, whose period of service extends over a quarter of a century, now find their prospects of obtaining retiring annuities (for which they were compelled to subscribe from the date of their entry to the service) retarded for an indefinite period, through the sudden and large influx of unemployed senior officers to the retired list, which must necessarily follow from the carrying out of the recent orders of Government reorganising the Indian medical service; they have, therefore, requested that these annuities may be guaranteed to them by Government at the average period which prevailed prior to the changes made in the administrative grade of the Indian medical service.

THE SOLDIERS DAUGHTERS' HOME.—Last Friday afternoon Gen. Sir William J. Codrington, G.C.B., presided at the annual festival of the Soldiers' Daughters' Home at Rosslyn-hill, Hampstead. Among the company present were Lord Shaftesbury, Sir Daniel Lysons, Sir Henry Lupton, &c. From the report it appears that the number of girls in the school had increased from 186 in March, 1879, to 194 in March last. Of the girls admitted during the past twelve months fifteen were the daughters of soldiers who were killed or died in the Zulu war. A new play-room is in the course of erection, at the cost of £3,280, under the architects, Messrs. Edmeston, and enlarged infirmary accommodation will be soon required. More than 800 girls have now been reared within the walls of the home, and out of these about 350 have been placed out as governesses and pupil teachers, or else in domestic service. The adoption of the report was duly moved and seconded, and carried unanimously. The chairman next briefly addressed the assemblage, descanting upon the great need and also the merits of such an institution as the home, and recommending it to the support of the public on the ground of its own merits. The company then adjourned to the great dining-hall, where a fine portrait of Gen. Boileau, the chairman of the committee of the home, lately painted, by a subscription among the friends and supporters of the institution, by Mr. Sydney Hodges, was unveiled amid the loud and hearty cheers of the children. A handsomely illuminated testimonial on vellum was also presented to Gen. Boileau, who said he could receive no more welcome reward for his sixteen years of service than these two presents, the one of which would long hang, he trusted, on the walls of the home, while the other would be handed down as an heirloom in his family. The proceedings were brought to a close by the singing of "God Save the Queen" by the children, who were regaled with cake and buns and tea on the lawn. The band of the Duke of York's School attended in the grounds. The High-street of Hampstead and Rosslyn-hill were gaily adorned with streamers and bunting in honour of the occasion.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

A TRAGEDY OF EARLY INDIAN HISTORY.*

THERE is a common error among poetic authors, that it is the same thing to compose a dramatic poem or a cabinet play and an acting play. The author of "Constance" has added another to the long list of the victims of this delusion. He has selected a strong character in the person of "Allaooddeen," the fearless adventurer and ruthlessly vigorous king who ruled as third Sultan of Delhi at the opening of the fourteenth century. The first Mahomedan sovereign who carried his victorious arms into the Deccan and the Peninsula, he stands out distinguished alike by his ferocity, his bravery, and his administrative vigour. Readers of Indian history know the romantic episodes of his conquest of Guzerat and marriage to its captive queen, of her little daughter, Dewal Devi, and her marriage to the son of Ala-ud-din, to use Mr. Wheeler's more accurate nomenclature. The troubles arising out of the rebellion of his nephew and the mutinous Moghols, the invasion of Rajputana, and the intrigues of Malik Kafoor, resulting in the death of the Sultan, furnish the mise en scène and the action of the play, in whch the faithful and loving Kowilde, the passionate and changeable Goolzar, and the young Dewilde, present various types of female character. The cast is considerably strong. We have a chief and second hero, and a faithful brother who is killed, besides a first and second villain, viz., Malik Kafoor, and a mysterious Kiramoodeen, who appears to be the chief of the Thugs of that period. There are a series of exciting scenes and some love-making, and a superfluity of battle, murder, and sudden death, and all through there are fine passages and poetic sentiments clothed in fitting and exact blank verse, and decked with wealth of imagery. There is one very beautiful scene where the young Dewilde learns that her captured mother has married and fondly loves her Moslem captor; the alternating changes of horror and pity as the maid recounts the story are admirably depicted, and would tax all the powers of an actress young enough to present the youthful princess. But we must say that it is impossible to regard the play, as the author evidently does, as one fit to be acted. In one scene we have a State elephant introduced, apparently for no purpose save to take the fortress keys from the "richly apparelled warder" and hand them to the princess. The author is, however, merciful enough to point out to elephantless managers that a palanquin may be substituted for the State elephant. We fear, however, that no substitution would enable any audience to view with respectful silence the last scene, when Allaooddeen contrives to simultaneously die and drop his mace with fatal effect on the head of the villanous and mocking Tchoustie. It is pleasant to turn to the "Legend of Raniwan," which tells the same story as that old-world tale which haunts Loch Maree, although the description of the mountains, crouching and kneeling, is almost too bold and might recall Lamb's idea that Helvellyn came down and looked at him. There are also some minor poems, of which the "Desert Child" is an exquisite little picture of a deserted gazelle.

RECONNOITRING.*

WE have received from Messrs. Richardson, of 13, Pall-mall, a copy of "The Scout's Guide and Field Book." In this portable pocket-book Capt. Delavoye has compiled notes for the assistance of officers in reconnoitring, which include, we should think, all the information and direction that can be required. Suggestions for their improvement will be, says the author, very acceptable.

CORRESPONDENCE.

WE have received a letter from Col. Dewe White anent the review of his "Reminiscences," which appeared in our last issue. We have not space for it this week, but the colonel's appeal for its publication is not disregarded, though it is somewhat lengthy.

THE CARWAR RAILWAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF "ALLEN'S INDIAN MAIL."

SIR,—I solicit Mr. Dacosta to refer to page 57 of the annual statement of the "Moral and Material Progress of India for 1877-78," published by the India-office in April last.

The Government of India informs us that the survey of the Carwar and Hoobli Railway was completed two years ago; if, therefore, in 1872 the Government disallowed and abandoned the scheme of a Carwar railroad, why did it subsequently undertake an expensive survey, and why did it boast this year of having completed that survey? Upon what principle did it abandon the project in 1872 before it had made a survey?

Without pressure in England the Government is not likely to undertake the work of constructing the railway or of improving the harbour of Carwar as long as powerful influences in Bombay raise objections. Karachi, another valuable harbour on the western coast, has had similar difficulties to contend against. It may be natural that Bombay should wish to engross the trade, but when rebels shall have interrupted the line of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway in the Puna and Sholapur districts, as they probably would have done last year but for the courage and activity of Major Daniell and the loyalty and wisdom of Sir Salar Jung, our means of protecting the magnificent bridge across the Krishna River (of thirty-six openings, each of 107ft. span) will be seriously impaired.

The question might be submitted to Colonel Yule, a very able member of the Council; but I protest against civilians, unacquainted with war, being permitted to pooh-pooh a line of railroad on which the existence of our Indian Empire may hereafter depend. Let me remind my fellow-countrymen that the ladies and children at Cawnpore would, I firmly believe, have been saved if the railway had been opened in 1857 to that station from Allahabad. This might have been easily accomplished. Englishwomen weep over the description of the slaughter of delicate women and feeble infants, but when will they urge their husbands to prevent calamities which thousands of clever writers will pretend hereafter that they foresaw?

The distance from Khaga, through Futtehpore and Cawnpore, is less than that from Carwar to Hoobli, and in 1857 rails might in one month have been laid on the perfectly level metalled road; but in a national death struggle the natives of India will not co-operate with us to protect the workmen or keep the rails clear. The difficulties of making a railroad of forty-three miles from Carwar to Yellapoor can be more easily surmounted in a time of peace than when rebels swarm around us and our peaceable subjects are paralysed by terrible forebodings of ruin.—Your obedient servant, T.

SPIRIT OF THE INDIAN PRESS.

THE NECESSITY FOR DECENTRALISATION.

COMMUNICATIONS from Mr. A. Rogers and Mr. W. Wedderburn, which have recently appeared, deserve more than passing attention. Mr. Rogers, who was recently a member of Council, is of opinion that the system of government needs reform, inasmuch as the degree of centralisation attained involves needless hardship by subjecting populations differing in circumstances and habits to a rigid scheme of taxation and administration which cannot possibly be equally adapted to the requirements of all of them. Mr. Wedderburn confines himself to the discussion of the condition of the agricultural population of the Deccan and of the relations of the ryot to the Government on the one hand and to the money lender on the other; but his very first contention is identical in effect with that of Mr. Rogers—viz., that the system in vogue is of necessity inapplicable to all the districts of the Presidency, seeing that they differ so widely in respect to soil and local peculiarities, and that great hardship is involved in applying a cast-iron system alike to those whom it suits fairly well and to those whom it slowly spells ruin. Mr. Rogers advocates a very thorough-going system of decentralisation under which the old village system would be revived and strengthened and the patel made the basis of the administrative hierarchy. As he shows, the people are quite ready to raise funds locally for their own purposes, and to form the machinery by which a great impulse could be given to local improvements which are very necessary for the general welfare, but are now neglected, save where the collector can find time from other multifarious duties to attend to them. Next above the village organisations would be the talookas, and there, "as well as in the district committees, in which those of the talookas should be amalgamated under the general control and direction of the commissioners of divisions, both entrusted with the expenditure of a certain proportion of the local fund, would be the sphere in which I would look for the extensive employment of natives of advanced education, and here alone would be the requisite room found for the numbers of university graduates, who now, as I said in my former letter, in their enforced idleness, think ill of, if they do not hatch treason against, the British rule." These men would find an outlet for their energies which they are at present denied, and the country would benefit from that habit of grumbling with everything which is so irritating to the officials, who are now the sole objects on which it can be vented. And, as Mr. Rogers points out, when the municipal system enables local needs to be supplied out of local resources "the people would soon learn to think and act for themselves, especially in such matters as the prevention of famines, by the construction of wells and tanks to be used in the case of the failure of the monsoon rains." And in this way famines would become less and less objects of terror alike to the population and to the Government. Local prevision would in time limit the area of droughts to a degree scarcely possible under the most energetic centralised administration.

The course which Mr. Wedderburn proposes to take to remedy the evils afflicting the ryots has this, in common with the policy recommended by Mr. Rogers, that it involves a reversion to native institutions. The particular institution which Mr. Wedderburn is desirous of reviving is that of the zemindar, and he speaks of his scheme as one for the creation of a "permanent settlement in the Deccan," showing that he has the existing zemindari of Bengal in his mind. The words "permanent settlement" are of ill augury, for if Lord Cornwallis's work has made a large class wealthy in Bengal it has left the ryots poor, and has defrauded the State of the "unearned increment" which ought to be the property of the whole community, and not of one selected and not very valuable section of the community. But we see that Mr. Wedderburn is by no means desirous of establishing in the Deccan a "permanent settlement" on the lines of that in Bengal. He seems to contemplate a system in which the ryot shall be still what he has been hitherto—the real holder of the land from the State, the assessment of such land being fixed anew every thirty years. The zemindar whom he is anxious to call into existence is to be the sowcar transformed, the money lender, who is in any case indispensable to the ryot, taken out of a false position and given a status and a recognised function. The ryot's assessment shall be a certain proportion of the crop he raises—one anna in the rupee—and not a fixed sum to be paid whether his crop is a bumper one or has been destroyed by drought. And as it would be impossible for the State to take over directly the part of the crop coming to it, the most respectable sowcar or other man of influence in the neighbourhood would take the one-sixteenth from the ryot, and, paying the Government its money value, recoup himself by selling the Government proportion for the best price he could get. As the larger the crop the greater would be his—that is, the Government sixteenth—it would of course be to his interest to enable the ryot to improve his land, and he would have a direct incentive to lend money for investment in high farming and see that it was turned to the best account. The advantage to the Government would be that it would get a share of the abundance with which the ryot is at times blest; at present the sirkar is affected only by bad seasons, when in spite of all its efforts a portion of the land tax is sure to remain unpaid. By frankly bargaining beforehand that when the ryot has a short crop there will be a proportionate diminution in the rent to be paid by him, but that when there is an unusually large crop he shall pay accordingly—not in money but in kind be it remembered—the State will in good years be much richer than it is now, and in bad years it will not be much poorer, though it will be much less harsh in its proceedings.—Bombay Gazette.

BENGAL, UPPER INDIA, &c.

PROGRESS IN CENTRAL INDIA.—Referring to the improvement of roads during the last ten years, Sir H. Daly says that it has been mainly owing to the liberal confidence with which the views of Government were met by the chiefs. "Maharaja Holkar was the first to tender a loan for railway construction through his territory. The million of money he placed at disposal, at 4½ per cent., is now represented by the Holkar State Railway, which connects Indore with the Great Indian Peninsula Railway at Khundwah. This line was difficult of construction, owing to the heavy work in alternately climbing and piercing the Vindhya range and in bridging the great Nerbudda near Barwai; but, the work completed, the line is now answering all purposes, and both bridge and ghat are monuments of engineering skill. Maharaja Sindia was not slow to follow the example set him. He placed at the disposal of Government together a million and a-half of money for railways in his territory; the broad-gauge line, connecting Gwalior with Agra, is now nearing completion, while the Sindia-Neemuch State Railway carries goods and passengers daily from Indore to the banks of the Sipra, and awaits but a bridge to penetrate Sindia's Malwa capital (Ujjain) and give forth its increase and through Fatehabad and Barnagar to Rutlam. The extension of the line to Neemuch is being rapidly pushed on, and in a few months will be ready for traffic. The opening of the line from Ajmere and Nazirabad to Neemuch will complete a chain of railway communication encircling the States of Central India and communicating with every part of Hindustan. Her Highness the Begum of Bhopal, an enlightened ruler, always anxious for the advancement of her State, seeing the advantages of the rail in her neighbours' territories, has been for the last three years in negotiation for the construction of a line to connect her capital with the system of railways. She has now concluded an agreement for a loan of fifty lakhs, and the survey of the line between Etarsi and Bhopal, crossing the Nerbudda at Hoshungabad, is being rapidly pushed forward. If, as her Highness urgently desires, the rail is continued from Bhopal to join the State railway at Ujjain, or, far better, is carried through the grain-producing districts of Bhila and skirting Bundelkhand to Gwalior, the railway communications of Central India will be complete and trade will have every opening. In Bundelkhand also, though railways are still wanting, much improvement in communications has been effected. The trunk road from Gwalior to Jhansi has been extended to Nowgong, and communication with the East Indian Railway at Sutna has been opened by a road passing by Panna and Nagode. The Bisramghat Road made by the Panna chief under Dr. Stretton's guidance is an example of the good work which native States can accomplish. From Sutna a road has been made for thirty miles to Bela, connecting Rewah, the capital of Baghelkhand, with the rail, and joining the trunk road which passes to Mirzapore. Of roads in Malwa the principal constructed during the last ten years are the Mhow and Neemuch Road, passing through Jaora and Rutlam, a branch from Ujjain to Dewas, made with a view to helping the opium trade prior to the opening of the railway, and an extension through Dewas, on the Agra and Bombay Road, to Sonkutch, and thence viâ Ashta to Sehore and Bhopal. The Maharaja of Dhar has made an excellent road of thirty miles connecting his capital with the Mhow and Neemuch Road at Ghata Bilode, where the Chambal is crossed by a good iron bridge, and to this point Maharaja Holkar has marked, though not completed, a road twenty-five miles from Indore. The road from Indore to Khandwah and the whole length of the Bombay and Agra Trunk Road are kept up and prove useful feeders to the railway.—Times of India.

THE BHOOTEA RAID.—We understand that the inquiry into what has been called the Bhootea raid into British territory at Choonbatty, near Buxa, has been completed by the local officers. The facts, so far as we can gather them, appear to be that a gang of about thirty Bhooteas crossed the frontier at midnight and entered some houses at Choonbatty, in which were residing some Bhooteas who had left Bhootan and settled in British territory. The raiders wounded some people who resisted, plundered some property, and took away six captives to Bhootan. We believe that the Government has promptly called upon the Bhootan Durbar to have the captives released at once and to arrest and deliver up for trial and punishment those who have been identified as chiefly concerned in the raid.—Darjiling News.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY BRIDGES.—The Indian Railway Service Gazette announces that it has been decided that the work of widening the bridges on the East Indian Railway from Buxar to Allahabad, for the second line of rails between these two points, shall be taken in hand forthwith. The only question to be settled is whether the cost of construction shall be charged to capital account or revenue; the consulting engineer recommends the latter.—Englishman.

PREVENTIVE SERVICE FRAUDS.—There are at present five preventive officers under suspension at Calcutta pending an investigation now being conducted by the revenue authorities of Bengal into a system of frauds, in which many other officers are said to be implicated, dating as far back as 1872, and which, though said to have been known to the authorities then in office, were not sifted with sufficient diligence to warrant the matter being brought officially to notice.—Bombay Gazette.

THE LATE MR. J. B. ROBERTS.—A meeting of the friends and admirers of the late Mr. J. B. Roberts was held lately at the Dalhousie Institute for the purpose of considering what steps should be taken for perpetuating his memory in some public mannner. The Hon. J. B. Knight was unanimously voted to the chair. It was proposed by Mr. R. S. T. M'Ewen, seconded by Mr. Manockjeee Rustomjee and resolved, "That this meeting desires to express its sense of the loss which the community of Calcutta has sustained by the death of the late Mr. John Blessington Roberts, and to record its high appreciation of his active and disinterested labours in promoting the wellbeing of his fellow-citizens." Mr. J. E. Caithness proposed, and Mr. J. Kimber seconded, "That subscriptions be raised for the purpose of providing some permanent memorial of Mr. Roberts's career in the form—firstly, of a portrait to be placed in the Town-hall; and secondly, of a contribution connecting his name with some public charitable object to be hereafter decided on." A subscription paper was then passed round and nearly Rs.800 were subscribed in the room.

DEATH FROM SNAKE BITE.—Recently Babu Kartick Chunder Ghose, son of Babu Kaly Podoy Ghose, of Kasundia, near Shibpur, went into his garden and was in the act of plucking some flowers when a cobra, which was hidden among the leaves of the plant, inflicted on him a bite which proved fatal.—Englishman.

MELANCHOLY ACCIDENT AT CACHAR.—A letter, dated May 23, states that "Messrs. Feltwell, Bickers, and Ravenshaw were coming from Julnacherra to Darriaghat by boat, when the latter got out to bathe, holding on to the gunwale and allowing himself to be dragged along. Mr. Bickers suddenly moved towards the stern, and the boat being very light capsized. Both Messrs. Feltwell and Ravenshaw were good swimmers, and supported Mr. Bickers between them till Mr. Ravenshaw suddenly left them and made for the shore. He was within a yard or two of it when he suddenly sank and was not seen again. In the meantime, Mr. Feltwell became exhausted, and was obliged to leave Mr. Bickers. Mr. Feltwell did not see Mr. Ravenshaw go down and he thought to have assistance from him, but when he reached the bank they were both out of sight. The river was searched during Monday for the bodies but without success, and it was not till twelve a.m. on May 23 that they were found in a whirlpool very near the scene of the catastrophe, about a mile above Darriaghat.—Englishman.

COOLIES IN SYLHET.—The number of coolies imported into the Sylhet district alone for the tea gardens last year is estimated at upwards of 3,000. Desertions largely decreased. Seventeen new gardens were registered during the year, so that the tea industry cannot be in a very bad way. Sir Steuart Bayley promises to again take up the question agitated by the planters for an extension of the term of contract for which an immigrant engages from three to five years.—Times of India.

CENTRAL PROVINCES POLICE.—The police and some of the district magistrates in the Central Provinces are severely taken to task by the Chief Commissioner in his report for the past year. Regarding prosecutions of alleged bad characters, he says the police have an undoubted inducement to resort to them, as relieving them to a greater or less degree of the heavier, but much more valuable, work of watching bad characters, and investigating and suppressing "bad crime." He would of course strongly deprecate the neglect of this important provision of the law, but he would even more emphatically condemn its abuse. It is, he says, discreditable to the police of the Nimar district that a band of dacoits who committed a murder are still at large; and he has good reason to believe that this discreditable result is probably due in a great measure to the inactivity of the officer who held charge of the police of that district, but also has since been removed to a lighter charge. The number of cases expunged as mythical was 4,319, and the Chief Commissioner remarks that he cannot avoid the conclusion that the power of expunging cases is abused; that police officers in some districts have made hasty recommendations; and that district magistrates have failed always to exercise that careful scrutiny which would have checked this tendency. It is only fair to say that the Inspector General of Police gives a favourable account of the police in the great majority of districts.—Ibid.

THE SIMLA UNITED SERVICE CLUB.—It appears that a proposal was made to abandon the special character of the Simla United Service Club, but it had to be withdrawn in consequence of the opposition manifested to the change by officers at the front.—Ibid.

INDIAN TEA.—During the past two years there has been a decrease in the amount of foreign, and an increase in the amount of Indian, tea exported to Cabul from the Punjab.—Ibid.

OPIUM IN ARAKAN.—The Commissioner of Arakan, in his report lately published, writes very strongly about the increased consumption of opium in the division. The value of opium consumed in 1873 was Rs.1¼ lakhs. In 1879 the value had risen to nearly Rs.4¾ lakhs. The development of the natural resources of the country and the growth of the population are checked by the demoralisation which goes on under our eyes, and which, if the Commissioner of Arakan is right, we could and ought to check. "The absolute necessity," he writes, "of dealing with this matter is admitted by every officer in the division and demanded by the people themselves. I am satisfied that until some stringent measures are taken to check the growth of an evil, the effects of which are shown to be already so appalling, Arakan and its people will go on from bad to worse." The Commissioner proposes four measures:—The prohibition of the sale of opium in the islands of the Kyouk-Phyoo district; the possession of opium, no matter in how small quantities, to be made penal throughout the division; shops to be opened at the headquarters of certain districts and townships for the sale of opium, which must be consumed on the premises only; and fourthly, to raise the selling price of the drug, which would be done in conjunction with the Bengal Government. —Pioneer.

SEAL FORGERY IN JEYPORE.—The Jeypore Gazette says:—"The great seal forgery case against some of the subordinates of the Municipal Committee, who forged the seal of the Royal Council, was disposed of last week, and we hear that the principal offender, Sheonarain, has been ordered to be imprisoned for life, and his son, who was an accomplice to his father's deed, to three years' imprisonment. The sentence, although a little too hard, will be sufficiently deterrent for men like Sheonarain in future. We also learn that all communications, documents, &c., issued from the Council, will in future bear the signature of the secretary, in addition to the Council seal. This is what it should be."—Ibid.

CALCUTTA FREIGHT MARKET.—The disengaged tonnage on June 2 stood at 22,981 tons. For London via Canal: The market closed weak at £2 15s. for rice or wheat, £2 17s. 6d. for linseed, £3 for rape or poppy, £2 15s. to £2 17s. 6d. for hides, tea, cotton, &c. London via Cape: The market closed weak at £2 5s. for rice or wheat, £2 7s. 6d. for linseed, £2 10s. for rape, £2 12s. 6d. for poppy, £2 5s. to £2 7s. 6d. for jute, £2 7s. 6d. for hides and light freight. For Liverpool via Suez Canal: Rates nominal at £2 15s. to £2 17s. 6d., for rice or wheat, £3 to £3 5s. for light measurement goods and castor oil. For Liverpool via Cape: The market closed quiet, but steady, at £2 2s. for rice or wheat, £2 5s. nominal for linseed, £2 7s. 6d. to £2 10s. for cotton gunnies and castor oil in cases.—Englishman.

THE SIND, PUNJAB, AND DELHI RAILWAY.—Among the passengers by the last mail steamer was Mr. David Ross, of the Sind, Punjab, and Delhi Railway, who is proceeding to England on short leave. Mr. Ross has distinguished himself, and has earned the thanks of the Government of India and the Commander in Chief, for the perfect nature of the arrangements instituted by him, whereby the immense extra military traffic resulting from the Afghan war has been carried over the Punjab railways system without hitch or without interfering for a day with the ordinary business of the lines. What that extra traffic was, and what the pressure must have been, may be gathered from the following figures. Up to March 9 there had been carried over the railways in question since the commencement of the war:—3,36,428 troops and followers; 80,702 horses, ponies, and mules; 11,816 bullocks; 9,577 camels; 414 guns, artillery and engineers' carriages; 27,49,605 commissariat, ordnance, and military stores; 6,81,653 maunds of railway material, requiring an estimated number of 1,500 trains, 525 of which were special troop, live stock, and material trains.—Bombay Gazette.

THE STATE OF REWAH.—Colonel Berkeley, the political agent in Baghelkhand, reports of Rewah that it "is a century behind every native State I have had to do with." He goes on to say that the people are marvellously ignorant and simple. Each petty thakur and jaghirdar sets himself up as independent on his own estate, will take orders from nobody, and ignores the obligations under which he holds his lands. Party feeling runs high, and has an evil influence in every department of the State. The police are described as worse than useless, the army is badly officered and without discipline, and it will not act against rebellious nobles, whom, says the political officer, it is consequently very difficult to get at. It is impossible to collect the revenue punctually; some of these noblemen are three years in arrears. The district officials are nearly all ignorant and corrupt, and the machinery of administration is cumbersome, unclean, and faulty. It is heartbreaking, says Colonel Berkeley, to see the tardy improvement towards better things, and he expresses his belief that with the existing arrangements further advance is not to be looked for.—Bombay Gazette.

THE TELEGRAPH DEPARTMENT.—The administration report for the last year states that the revenue of the department has exceeded the working expenses (excluding interest charges) by Rs.6,08,246; the surplus of the previous year, which, till now, was the highest on record, was Rs.1,82,128. The net capital expenditure during the year amounted to Rs.5,48,270, of which Rs.3,759 will be subsequently recovered. The capital account, which stood at the end of the year at Rs.3,35,61,872 (exclusive of Ceylon), is stated to include Rs.55,99,799 (or nearly one-sixth of the whole amount) for abandoned lines, buildings, and stores. The Government of India desires a report in explanation of the details of this latter sum. The capital account of the Ceylon telegraphs is shown separately, as the management of these telegraphs by the Indian Telegraph Department will cease in 1880. During the year 379 miles of line and 1,783 miles of wire were added to the system, bringing the totals up to 18,589 miles of line and 44,578 miles of wire (including cables), the property of Government. In addition to this, 6,723 miles of wire, the property of railway companies, were maintained by the Telegraph Department. The total net expenditure on revenue account was Rs.29,70,607; the revenue receipts (excluding Ceylon receipts) amounted to Rs.35,97,015. The foreign traffic, both "State" and "private," shows a small increase. There is a large increase in "State" inland traffic, attributable to the military operations in Afghanistan; but in "private" inland traffic there has been a large decrease, owing to the cessation of the activity in the grain trade which sprang up during the famine. This decrease is, however, not so large as was anticipated, and there appears to be reason to hope that some increase to the revenue will be maintained. There is, again, a decrease in the pro forma message revenue amounting to Rs.24,686. The average speed of transmission of messages on the main lines has practically been maintained notwithstanding the increased traffic; and in most cases it has been considerably increased. The interruptions to traffic have been also fewer and shorter than in previous years, and the returns on this head compare favourably with the results attained in European systems. Owing to the great depreciation in the value of silver the charge for messages to England was increased from Rs.2-8 to Rs.2-12 per word, with a corresponding increase in the rates to other countries. The figures which accompany the report do not agree exactly with those entered in the finance accounts. The former shows the entire earnings of the department during the year concerned, while the finance accounts include only the actual adjustments which have been made on account of those earnings. The administration report also includes the rent realised from telegraph buildings, and the cost of repairs to them by the Public Works Department. Neither of these items is included under this head in the finance accounts. The Government of India has much satisfaction in thinking that the results of the year's working show that the department possesses a very good staff, very ably directed, and that a comparison of the figures with those of previous years shows a gradual and steady reduction in cost of working combined with an equally steady growth of revenue, which testifies to the ability with which the department has been administered.

MADRAS.

HINDU LONGEVITY.—Mr. Mandam Ramalingah Chetty, senior partner of the late Oriental Press, has just died at his residence, Black Town, aged ninety-five years. Messrs. Ramalingah Chetty and Co. were for many years the printing contractors for the Madras Municipality and Madras Railway Company. The deceased some years ago undertook to do all the printing work for the Civil Orphan Asylums gratis, for which he received the thanks of the secretary, the late Rev. Dr. Sayers, and the members of the committee. Mr. Ramalingah Chetty, though so very old, enjoyed good eyesight, and moved about almost to within a week before his death.—Madras Athenæum.

THE ARMY FOR FRENCH INDIA.—In accordance with a decree issued by the Government of France, under date March 27 last, the sepoy corps in the French establishments in India will be assimilated with the l'infanterie de marine in France. The European officers will be drawn from the l'infanterie de marine, and will consist of one commandant, one captain, and four lieutenants. There will be two lieutenants and two sub lieutenants who will be natives, besides two sergeants major, ten sergeants, two colour sergeants, twenty-six corporals, forty soldiers of the first, and 232 of the second class, also four drummers and six orderlies. The army of the French establishments will consist of 322 men of all ranks.—Madras Standard.

EXPERIMENTS IN CINCHONA ALKALOIDS.—We have been favoured by Government with the first report of the surgeon general, Indian Medical Department, on the experimental trial of the following cinchona alkaloids in the treatment of malarious fevers—viz., sulphate of cinchonidine, sulphate of cinchonine, and sikkim cinchona febrituge. The reprort embraces the period from the beginning of the inquiry till Dec. 31, 1879. The relative curative merits of the three drugs may be illustrated as follows :—

Preparations.	Cured to treated.	Rate per cent. of Not cured to treated.	Deaths to treated.
Sikkim febrifu... ...	91·15	8·44	·40
Sulphate of cin...ine ...	87·78	11·88	·32
Sulphate of cinch...ine ...	87·52	12·47	—

This places the ... febrifuge first on the list as a febrifuge, cinchonine next, ... cinchonidine lowest. These results, says the surgeon ge... somewhat unexpected, and must not be regarded as final. ... experiments are in progress, and in due course the availab... will be sufficiently numerous to indicate authoritatively the ... ective merits of the three preparations. The unpleasant effects ... by the sikkim preparation were marked, and still form the chief obstacle to its more extended use.—Madras Times.

PATENTS.—There have been received in the office of the Chief Secretary to Government copies of the specifications of the inventions of which the following are brief descriptions :—Mr. J. H. Barry, merchant, 5, Lyon's Range, Calcutta—"An improved method of obtaining a hot gas or hot mixture of gas and air, and utilising the same for the purpose of drying tea, coffee, grain, or other vegetable substances." Mr. E. L. Cantwell, C.E., Calcutta—"An improved method of manufacturing boxes used for packing tea, indigo, shellac, and other merchandise." Mr. B. Latham, 7, Westminster Chambers, and Mr. J. T. Way, 9, Russell-road, Kensington—"Improved means and apparatus for regulating the temperature of water or other liquid." Mr. W. Martin, indigo planter, Etawa and Manipuri, N.W.P.—"Invention for a combined plough." Mr. J. Porter, Pullycoon, Tellicherry, Malabar Coast, India—"Improvements in apparatus for peeling coffee." Mr. F. Artimini, Florence, Italy—"Improvements in the preservation of raw meat and the preparation of an antiseptic for that purpose." Mr. J. Nelson, of Arcadia Tea Factory, Dehra Dun, and Mr. W. Bell, Dehra Dun, N.W.P.—"Invention of an improved apparatus for drying tea."—Ibid.

S.I. RAILWAY GOODS TRAFFIC.—From a statement, showing the fluctuations in the principal staples of goods traffic on the South Indian Railway for the month of April last, as compared with April, 1879, submitted by the consulting engineer for railways, we gather the following particulars :—In areca nuts there was an increase of 4,264 maunds, value Rs.961. The increase is said to be "due to same causes as reported last month." In cloths there was an increase of 7,045 maunds, value Rs.2,459. In cotton there was an incriase of 11,738 maunds, value Rs.3,979, which was due to the traffic from Panruti and Trichinopoly to Madras and from Tirumangalam, Kalligudi, and Virudupati to Tuticorin, and from Bellary and Tadputri to Pondicherry. In currey-stuffs there was a decrease of 1,079 maunds, though there was an increase in the value of Rs.748. The decrease is due to the falling off still of imports into Negapatam from local stations, while the increase in amount is due to the return of foreign line traffic from Palghat, Bangalore, and Vaniyambadi to Negapatam, Kumbakonam, Tanjore, and Trichinopoly. In fruits and vegetables there was an increase of 628 maunds, value Rs.2,271 ; due to large importations of plantains from Narasingapet, Tiruvadamarudur, and Pugalur to Madras. In grain of all kinds there was an increase of 29,582 maunds, but a decrease in the value of Rs.1,045 ; increase in weight being due to large importations into Nagapatam from Koradacheri, Nidamangalam, and Trivellur, and the decrease to falling off of imports into Trichinopoly Fort and also into Madura from local starions. In granite stones there was an increase of 190,298 maunds, value Rs.3,087 ; due to laterite trade between Tanjore and Nadamangalam, Cuddalore, and Pananti, and stone traffic from Kolatur to Tanjore, besides increase in Madras harbour works. In hides there was an increase of 4,031 maunds, value Rs.695 ; "due to same causes as reported last month." In oil and ghee there was a decrease of 2,460 maunds, value Rs.106, which is due to falling off of imports into Negapatam, Nidamangalam, and Kumbakonam from foreign lines, and into Negapatam, Madura, Tanjore, and Kambakonam from local stations. In oil-cakes there was an increase of 5,755 maunds, value Rs.822, which is due to imports by Tuticorin from Trichinopoly, Dindigul, Satur, and Virudupati, and by Madura from Trichinopoly, Dindigul, and Erode. In salt there was a decrease of 12,460 maunds, value Rs.556, which is due to falling off of exports from Negapatam to Dindigul, Karur, Trichinopoly, and from Cuddalore to Chilambaram and Kumbakonam. In seeds of all kinds there was a decrease of 2,670 maunds, value Rs.2,103, which is chiefly owing to falling off of importation of cotton seeds into Trichinopoly Fort, Kumbakonam, Madura, and Tinnevelly, from Satur and Virudupati, and of coffee from Ammayanayakanur to Tuticorin. In sundries there was an increase of 9,415 maunds, value Rs.1,537, which is due to large importations of iron from Madras into Trichinopoly, Negapatam, and Karur, and of ground-nuts, cocoanuts, and bark into Madras from Panruti, Madurantakam, Trichinopoly Fort, and Dindigul. In jaggery there was an increase of 12,122 maunds, value Rs.22,044, which is due to the large importations into Madras from Tinnevelly. In tobacco there was a decrease of 4,467 maunds, but an increase in value of Rs.220 ; the decrease in weight is due to the falling off of imports into Tinnevelly from Ammayanayakanur, and increase in amount to large exports from Trichinopoly to stations north of Raichore.—Ibid.

SOUTHERN INDIA RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—The council of this association have just issued their report on the twelfth annual meeting held in September last, from which we learn that his Excellency the Commander in Chief having intimated that, owing to financial pressure, he did not feel justified in applying to Government to defray the travelling expenses of competitors from out stations to Bangalore, the council deemed it advisable to present the prizes to be shot for on regimental ranges by all troops in the Madras Presidency, which was accordingly done, but, in a financial point of view, this indulgence on the part of the council was most unsatisfactory. At Bangalore there were but few competitors, the only representatives from out stations consisting of a few members of the G.I.P. Railway Volunteers and the Madras Volunteer Guards, who entered for almost every event. The total prize list was Rs.11,113,120 in specie, also ten medals, six tankards, five cups, and one silver salver, aggregate number of prizes 588. We are surprised to learn that only three corps contributed to the funds of the association—viz., the Madras Volunteer Guards, Q.O. Sappers and Miners, and the 6th Madras Native Infantry, and this paucity of donations necessitated the council deducting 20 per cent. from the prizes. A detailed list of winners and remarks on the various matches are given in the report, and are well worthy of perusal, there being some excellent scores amongst them. The council have paid all liabilities against the association, and at the close of their financial year have a net balance of Rs.398-5-10 to their credit ; this, in a great measure, is due to the energetic management of their honorary secretary, Major A. W. O. Saunders, assistant adjutant general for musketry, Royal Scots Fusiliers ; from the report now under review there appears no doubt as to the popularity of this association. We may add that the following resolution was passed at the last meeting of the council, viz. :—"The next prize meeting to take place at Bangalore at the usual time, and no local meetings in connection with the association to be held." We are glad to learn this, as the competitions will be more interesting when fired for on the same range, and from the interest evinced in rifle matches generally we may anticipate a fair meeting ; from the comparative return of shooting annexed to the report we find a great improvement in the averages towards last year, which plainly proves that our regulars and volunteers are improving in the use of their weapons.—Spectator.

CIVIL ENGINEERING COLLEGE.—We hear that the post of Mr. Hyde, one of the surveying masters who has been invalided to England, is to be absorbed. Six of those who pass out this year are, in consequence of the recent reductions in the Department of Public Works, to be provided with posts in the Hyderabad State, the Government of India having intimated to the principal of the college that that Government have some vacancies in the Public Works Department at present existing. The men who go are to be chiefly military students.—Madras Times.

THE RAMPA DISTURBANCE.—We learn that the Rampa taluk was completely cleared of all the so-called rebels more than six weeks ago. Unfortunately the most notorious man, Taman Dhora, escaped over the border into the Mulkangiri taluk (Jeypore territory), looted Poreh and Motu, and killed six policemen at Kondakomberu ; but this occupied him a good six weeks to accomplish, and meanwhile Mr. Gerstin had sent forward large bodies of police under his assistants ; the Jeypore Rajah came down with his "paiks" (foot soldiers), and Col. Macquoid with the 3rd Infantry, Hyderabad Contingent, advanced from the south, and, meeting a body of "rebels" at a place on the bank of the Sapri called Kurti, he killed ten and wounded more. The rest fled into Bustar territory and are gradually being arrested by villagers and delivered up. The difficulties every one has to contend with are very severe. The average height of the mountains (and all the disturbed district consists of nothing else) is 3,000 feet, densely covered with jungle, intersected at long intervals by cattle paths leading no one knows where. There are absolutely no roads anywhere, and guides are necessary to go to a village two miles off! Then the villagers never give information, and possess no stores of food available for our troops. The consequence is an interminable array of pack bullocks to carry provisions (ten miles in two days) and endless halting till information is screwed out of the inhabitants. Then there is fever that cripples all ranks, and also the bad water, slimy from passing through decayed vegetable matter, to say nothing of heat, mosquitos, and other pests. The only wonder is that anything has been done at all with such a combination of circumstances to contend with. The 10th N.I. is so completely paralysed by fever that the 36th N.I. has to replace it. The 5th N.I. is the only corps that has as yet stood the climate.—Madras Mail. Nothing worthy of note seems to have occurred since the appearance of the 36th Regt. N.I. in the Rajamundry district, beyond the fact that Zamman Dara, who was earning a notoriety, and for whom a reward of Rs.500 was offered, has been captured. The movements at present are being very cautiously carried out. The police are down with fever by the hundred, and "King Rampa" is said to have been playing terrible havoc with the troops, who are considerably reduced in numbers. The fever is said to be raging to such an extent that extra medical aid had to be applied for from Madras.—Madras Times.

FRENCH PAY.—The French Government has determined on raising the pay of some of its judicial officers in India. The justice of the peace and the assistant judge at Pondicherry are each to draw per annum 5,000fr., which comes to about £200; the president of the Court of Justice and the Procureur de la République at Karikal, 5,500fr. a piece, and the chief auditor, Pondicherry, 4,000fr. —Times of India.

GOLD MINING IN SOUTH KANARA.—Mr. Brough Smyth having examined the district between Tallar and Miar, says:—"The result of my examination of this area of country is that it is not likely to yield gold in such quantities as to induce Europeans to undertake mining enterprises; it is not intersected anywhere by quartz reefs in the places seen by me, and I cannot learn that quartz reefs have been found by any one. The alluviums during the monsoons will no doubt be worked by natives who are not able to obtain employment at ordinary wages; and they may, perhaps, occasionally find more than sufficient gold for their support, but few will abandon their ordinary occupations to follow gold-mining at Mijar." —Madras Times.

A CURIOUS advertisement appears in the Madras papers from the magistrate of Dharwar. The advertisement is headed, "Found —two White Children," and goes on to say that a little girl aged about six, with flaxen hair and brown eyes, and a little boy about four years old with flaxen hair and blue eyes, have been discovered in the camp of some gipsies at Dharwar, and are believed to be the children of European parents and to have been kidnapped at some past time, the magistrate supposes, from one of the military stations in Southern India. All communications to be addressed to the district magistrate, Dharwar.

BOMBAY.

KARACHI WATERWORKS.—Our waterworks are progressing as might be expected from the calibre of the contractors. I have my doubts yet, however, whether the works will eventually turn out all that has been predicted by the advocates of the scheme. The natives seem especially dubious, not so much as to the constancy of the supply (though that is very questionable in the opinion of many) as to the salubrity and quality of the water to be brought in thereby. Though eight gallons or so a day per head of population is not, as Sir Richard Temple pointed out, a thing to swear by, still it may (or might) be accepted as an amelioriation of a rather unsatisfactory state of things. There seems a general idea in the native mind that the introduction of "Mulleer water" implies "Mulleer fever." Some say that the immense abundance of the wild oleander and of different euphorbias, all over the collecting ground and watershed to be tapped, is the cause of this perennial type of disease. Already I learn that many of the workmen employed by the contractors have had to return to Karachi owing to febrile attacks. I am afraid, then, that the Mulleer Waterworks will prove to be a grand mistake; and may avail us hereafter merely for our gardens and bath tubs at a cost to the public, through the municipality, of £130,000 or £140,000. Twenty years ago £550,000 would have made a canal to the Indus navigable, irrigating some 350,000 acres in its passage, and bringing down abundance of the purest of water. The extreme estimate, £950,000, would have been a saving in full of the probable present waste.—Correspondent Times of India.

DHOND AND MANMAD RAILWAY.—A correspondent writes:—"This State Railway line will be completed about the first week in June, i.e., the permanent way. The four bridges have been completed and the rails are being laid. Ballast trains are being run. It is expected that through communication and a change in the time-table will be effected about the 15th proximo. Efforts are being made to erect permanent station-houses. With a paucity of assistant engineers and upper subordinates it will take some time before this line will be completed in all its detail. The major portion of the superintending staff has been transferred, some to Afghanistan and the others to Kattywar. Mr. Izat, engineer in chief, with his office establishment, left for Kattywar from Nuggur last month. Mr. Izat is to take charge of that line; he intends to take leave as soon as Mr. Rennie returns from furlough."—Madras Standard.

MR. C. D. DOUGLAS, of Messrs. Ritchie, Stewart, and Co., has been elected trustee of the port in place of Mr Mowat.

THE GRAND MASTER OF SCOTTISH MASONRY.—Mr. Mackintosh Balfour, secretary and treasurer of the Bank of Bombay, and grand master of Scottish Masonry in Western India, left Bombay for Brindisi by mail steamer of May 29. Some of the members of the craft and friends of Mr. Balfour assembled at the Apollo Bunder to wish him good-bye and a pleasant voyage to Europe. Amongst those who were present at the bunder were Surgeon General Beatty, Drs. Hojel, Hughes, Smith, and Waters, Capt. Morland, Messrs. R. Clarke, G. Smith, H. Maxwell, E. M. Fogo, H. R. Cormack, J. Yates, E. Freeborn, Ardaseer Hormusjee Wadia, and W. Hussey. When the steam launch conveying Mr. Balfour on board the mail steamer left the bunder the assemblage gave three cheers for him.

SUNSTROKE.—We greatly regret to hear of the severe illness of Col. Everard's eldest son, who is assistant superintendent of police at Karachi. He is reported very ill from a sunstroke received at a cricket match.—Deccan Herald.

REPORT OF THE BOMBAY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.—Among the points of interest in the recent report of the above body is the proceedings taken by the Chamber and the public in the matter of the gauge of the Rajputana Railway; this movement was unfortunately unsuccessful owing to the great influence of the Stracheys at the India-office at home, though to every unprejudiced person there, as far as we can learn, the Bombay public have the best of the argument far and away. The letters of Mr. Rathbone, the member for Liverpool, now published for the first time, and in whose hands the Chamber placed their case at home, shows the great interest he took in the matter, and we can only regret that his efforts were not more successful. We must be thankful for small mercies if large ones are denied us, and we can only rejoice that the long delayed Rajputana line which the Chamber has been pleading for many years, is at last near completion, and that the end of this current year will probably see passengers and goods passing to and from the North West by this line. The Cotton Frauds Act which has in one form or another occupied a good deal of the Chamber's reports for the past seventeen years, appears in the report under review, in the shape of the final and effectual protest which led to its abolition. Next year's report will refer to this abolition, and then we may hope that the name of this hated Act may disappear from the Chamber's yearly volumes. The subject which will recall the greatest dissatisfaction is that of the changes in the telegraph rules by the International Telegraph Conference; the Chamber could hardly have hoped that their protest would have availed anything, but they could do no less than send in a memorial asking Government to do all in their power to prevent the arbitrary, vexatious, and unnecessary changes being ratified. We have no space to refer at length to the other interesting subjects contained in this valuable report; the Octroi Taxation, the Customs Tariff, the Trade Marks Act, the Merchant Shipping Bill, and the Portuguese Treaty—all of them subjects of more or less interest. One important addition in the matter of subjects is the publication of a decision given by the First Judge of the Small Cause Court in the question of including wet and stormy monsoon days in the "working days" of a charter party. This decision is fitly published in the year's report of the mercantile transactions. —Bombay Gazette.

COMPENSATION FOR LOSSES.—The Government of India has sanctioned the payment to Sergeant Veal of Rs.699 as compensation for property lost in the wreck of the Vingorla. The following is appended to the sanction:—His Excellency in Council is not prepared to admit that a public officer is entitled to compensation for loss of property caused by an accident of this kind, because such accident may have happened to him while he was employed in the service of the State. The Government cannot guarantee its officers against every loss which they may suffer while in its service, and in future compensation should not be given to public officers for accidental losses of their property.—Ibid.

THE ANGLO-PORTUGUESE TREATY.—Senor Bernardo Lorena, the Treasurer General, has been deputed by the Goa Government to receive in Bombay from the British Government one lakh of rupees, being the payment of the first instalment promised by the Anglo Portuguese treaty. He has also been ordered to look after the new coinage. The time allowed for the withdrawal of the present currency is eighteen months for silver and thirty months for copper from Nov. 1 next, after which date the Goa treasury will not exchange the old coins.—Ibid.

RUSSIA AND CHINA.

IN face of the repeated telegrams it is impossible any longer to doubt that hostilities have actually begun between Russia and China in Central Asia. The reports brought from Khokand by the emissaries who recently arrived at Cabul may prove to have been exaggerated by either their hopes or their fears; but there remains the all-important substratum of fact that, whether wisely or foolishly, the Chinese, undeterred by Russian menace as by Russian promise, have assumed the offensive. Startling in its significance must appear the statement that China has embarked upon a war with a great European Power—a war the outcome of which no statesman either at St. Petersburg or at Pekin can see, and which must affect issues infinitely more important than the Kuldja Question, and not less the concern of this country than of the belligerents, before it has reached a close. It would not be saying too much to assert that the whole Central Asian Question depends upon the result; and that for the moment the future will be shaped more by the course of events around Kuldja than by any other circumstance. It is therefore very much to be hoped that the Government will see fit to publish without any delay, as it arrives, the information received from Mr. Ney Elias in Kashgaria. Since the return and prompt arrest of Chung How, the unfortunate ambassador to Russia, and the negotiator of the Treaty of Livadia, there have been many stories current as to what the Pekin Government would do, and the belief has been more general than there was any justification for that it would, despite much tall talk and vapouring, ultimately acquiesce in the withdrawal of its claims over Kuldja. In this it is true that people had to shut their eyes to the recent campaigns in Central Asia, and to believe, as we regret so intelligent a critic as Professor Vámbéry does or did, that the Chinese march to Kashgar was an "easy walk." Very few persons were disposed to admit the whole truth, that nothing short of the complete restoration of Kuldja would satisfy the Chinese Government and people; and in this instance half truths were quite as misleading as sweeping denials and false views. As fact is stranger than fiction, so has the policy of the Chinese Government confounded the anticipations of its "benevolent friends." Two years and a half have elapsed since Tso Tsung Tang entered Kashgar in triumph, and, during the interval, his army has been steadily increased both in numbers and efficiency. Not so many months ago it was reinforced by a most welcome contingent, a battery of Armstrong field pieces turned out from the arsenal at Kiangnan; and the most recent information led us to suppose that the Chinese encircled the Russians in Kuldja—on the north from Saissan, on the east from the Yuldus and Karashar, and on the south from Aksu and Kashgar, with an overpowering force of horse, foot, and artillery. There only remained the unknown factor of the generalship, and, as the opinion is prevalent in England that the Chinese cannot produce a great general, and are "destitute of all originality in conception," it has been, and is still, assumed that the chances of war are hopelessly against them. Yet, if prejudices are to be removed by facts, this one surely should give place to reason when we come to consider the tactics—nay, the strategy—which Tso Tsung Tang employed victoriously against the Tungani and the late Yakoob Beg, and which he seems disposed to use with similar effect against the Russians. During the last two years he has been actively engaged in disciplining and creating two armies—the one in Kashgaria, the other in the country erst held by the Tungan confederation. In his efforts he has received the stanch support, not of Li Hung Chang so much as of the Imperial Princes, and, reinforced in men, cavalry, and artillery, there is every reason to believe that he now has under his orders a total force considerably exceeding one hundred thousand men. Not only is this army better armed and trained than that with which his previous victories were obtained, but it is the stronger by reason of the confidence bred of uniform success. Its general has shown diplomatic skill not short of that as a tactician by winning over to his side the Kirghiz tribes—formidable as irregulars—if, indeed, his intrigues have not extended further than is supposed into the countries of Western Turkestan. We may feel sure that in many ways, which it is only given to those on the spot to see, he has turned the long interval to the best possible account, and that his measures have been those of one fully resolved to accomplish his ends.

And now the news come that, while we have been wondering what alternative course the Chinese meditated as being preferable to the acceptance of the Treaty of Livadia, and placing weak reliance on rumours to the effect that the Marquis Tseng was to try his fortune when Chung How had failed, Tso Tsung Tang, in perfect accord with the dominant party at Pekin, has taken the matter out of the hands of diplomatists by resorting to action of the most decided character. His military preparations completed, he notified the fact that he was ready to Pekin; and the signal was returned to him that the solution of the question was left in his hands. His first blow proves him to be a master of the art of war, for, disregarding Kuldja, the place in immediate dispute, he has struck home at Fort Naryn, the great stronghold of the Russians in this quarter. This is indeed the more important because Naryn is not within the disputed territory, and also because, having a large garrison, it would not have surrendered without some resistance. By the capture of this fort communication is cut off between Khokand and Kuldja, although the northern road to Kuldja through Vernoe presumably remains open—at the same time that the people of Central Asia are informed that the Chinese are not afraid to meet the Russians in fair fight. The promptness of this general has in this case proved too much for the Russian officers, and the much vaunted Russian march on Kashgar and Yarkand has already given place to the necessity of defending Andijan and Margilan. Nor can this war be restricted to Central Asia. Colonel Gordon (the "Chinese" Gordon of the ever-victorious army and the Taeping war) has been invited to, and has started for, China. It is no secret that he is to have the choice of a command on the Amour or on the coast; and, notwithstanding his love of peace, war being inevitable, he will scarcely let the sword lie idly in the scabbard when his old friends appeal to him for aid. The sooner it is realised that the war between China and Russia will be a great and probably a protracted one, the better it will be for our own interests. Russia has been the wilful aggressor, here as elsewhere; and the Chinese are but acting as becomes a great people in standing up for the letter of their rights.

HOME NEWS.

INDIAN TROOPSHIPS.—The following are the present dates fixed for the completion of the refits of the Indian troopships at Portsmouth:—Euphrates, Aug. 18; Malabar, Sept. 14; Jumna, Sept. 18; Serapis, Sept. 24; and Crocodile, Oct. 1. It is understood that the Euphrates will begin the autumn trooping season rather earlier than usual, as she will be required to call at the Cape for the purpose of embarking troops for Bombay. The Orontes is to be ready for service by Aug. 1.

DEJOO TEA COMPANY.—The report for the year ended Dec. 31 last shows a net profit of £586, and, including the surplus from the previous account, a net balance available of £610. From this a dividend of 2 per cent. is recommended. The directors add that the profit cannot be considered unsatisfactory considering the very trying season which the Indian tea industry has experienced.

COUNCIL DRAFTS ON INDIA.—Tenders for Rs.30,00,000 in bills on India were received on Wednesday at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were:—To Calcutta, Rs.28,13,000—average rate, 1s. 8·375d.; to Bombay, Rs.1,87,000—average rate, 1s. 8·375d. Tenders on both Presidencies at 1s. 8 3/8d. will receive about 37½ per cent. This price shows a rise of ¼d. compared with that obtained for the 35 lakhs offered last week, and the proportion allotted at the minimum was at the same time considerably smaller. The combined effects of the new rupee loan and the reduced amount offered for tender have reacted favourably on the price of silver. The purchase of the rupee loan by the French syndicate, promises, accordingly, to be a very successful financial operation. Next week the amount offered will again be 30 lakhs. With respect to the issue of the rupee loan, the Paris correspondent of the Railway News says:—"Your readers are already aware of the price at which the new Indian loan has been adjudged to the French group. The parties tendering comprised several groups, English and French, which have at last been reduced to two distinct groups—viz., the Comptoir d'Escompte with Messrs. C. J. Hambro and Sons of London, and the Bank of Paris and Pays Bas on the one side. These firms tendered for half the amount of the loan, the Comptoir d'Escompte and the Bank of Paris participating to one-fourth in the operation. On the other hand, a group comprising the Mercantile Bank, the Société Générale, Messrs. Samuel Montagu, and the Banque d'Escompte, also tendered for half the amount of the loan. Both groups tendered at the same price, viz., 103 3-16. As regards the realisation of the new loan, each group will dispose of its allotment according to its convenience. The fact that French bankers have participated in a loan which is of a purely English character is worth noticing, as it is the first time that it has occurred, and it is to be hoped that, through this loan being negotiated in our market, the relations of both the London and Paris markets will henceforth become more intimate."

ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.—At a meeting of the Royal Asiatic Society, held on Monday afternoon last, at the society's rooms, 22, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly—Sir Henry Rawlinson, president, in the chair—Mr. Robert N. Cust, honorary secretary, introduced a new translation made by Professor Henry Kern, of Leyden, of the two additional edicts of King Asoka, found on the tablets of Dhauli and Jaugada, on the western coast of India, by a general account of the far-famed Asoka inscriptions. He stated that thirteen rock inscriptions, seventeen cave inscriptions, and six pillar inscriptions were now known to exist at different points of Northern India, from Peshawur on the north west to Gujerat on the west, and Cuttack on the east coast. Their date was about B.C. 250. The character used was twofold—in one case the script known as the Aryan Asoka, and in the other the Indian Asoka, the two most ancient forms of writing found in India, and both clearly derived from the Phœnician alphabet. The language was one of the Prakrits, or Sanskrit in its first stage of degradation from its pure synthetic form. The contents of the edicts were moral precepts issued by a sovereign who was of the Buddhist religion. King Asoka, who styled himself Piyadasi, was the grandson of Chandragupta of the Shaunjan dynasty, who was identified with that Sandracottos, King of Palibothra, or Patna, on the Ganges, who received Megasthenes as Ambassador of Antiochus not many years after the invasion of India by Alexander the Great. These inscriptions were not only the earliest in date, but the most important from various other points of view which had ever been found in India. Remarks were made by Sir Walter Elliott, Professor Dowse, Sir Charles Bayley, Mr. Brandreth, and the president.

INDIAN APPEAL CASES.—In the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council on Tuesday, before Sir James Colville, Sir Barnes Peacock, Sir Montague Smith, and Sir Robert Collier, the case of Orde and another v. Skinner was heard. This was an appeal from a judgment of the High Court of the North West Provinces, sitting at Allahabad, of April 5, 1877, reversing a decree of the subordinate judge at Meerut. Mr. Leith, Q.C., Mr. Doyne, and Mr. Ingram were counsel for the appellants; Mr. Cowie, Q.C., and Mr. Graham, Q.C., for the respondents. The suit was instituted in the court at Meerut against the respondent, Mr. Alexander Skinner, to obtain from him an account of the management from 1863 to 1874 of the joint estate of the Skinner family, to which, like himself, the appellants belonged, and to enforce payment to the latter of their one-fifth share of the rents and profits. The estate in question belonged to the late Colonel James Skinner, and consisted, besides large landed property, of valuable indigo manufactories, and also a fortress in which all his trophies and presents were retained. The whole property was bequeathed to his family, which consisted of five sons; but he declared that none of them should have the power of selling or dividing it, and he directed that one of them should manage the whole concern, receiving 10 per cent of the income for his trouble, and "showing a faithful account-current yearly to his brothers." The local court at Meerut held that it had jurisdiction to try the suit, and, on doing so, decided in favour of the appellants, to whom it awarded Rs.92,250. The High Court on appeal held that no ground of jurisdiction existed in the local tribunal, and dismissed the suit. Their lordships, who last week reversed the decree of the High Court and decided that the Meerut court had jurisdiction to try the case, now allowed the appeal on the merits of the case, and declaring that the judgment of the subordinate court was right, affirmed it, and set aside the decree of the High Court. The respondent was ordered to pay the costs.—The case of Lulloobhoy Bapoobhoy and others v. Casibai and another. This was an appeal from a judgment of the High Court of Judicature at Bombay of April 29, 1876. Mr. Cowie, Q.C., and Mr. Graham, Q.C., were counsel for the appellants; Mr. Leith, Q.C., Mr. Scoble, Q.C., and Mr. J. D. Mayne for the respondents. The capacity of women to inherit property in Western India was the principal point raised in this appeal, which related to the succession to the estate of Mouljee Nundlull, a Hindoo inhabitant of Bombay, who died in 1840. His widow survived until 1862, but their only child, a daughter, had died without issue in her lifetime. The appellants now claim to succeed to the property as "the great, great, great grandsons of the great great grandfather" of M[illegible] the respondents were the executors and representatives of the widow of an heir in the third degree. She had died during the progress of the litigation, which had lasted eighteen years; but the question for decision was whether by the Hindoo law of inheritance prevailing in Western India she was entitled to succeed to the estate in preference to the appellants, who were only related in the very much more remote degree indicated. Mr. Justice Bayley, before whom the case originally came, at first decided in favour of the right of the widow, but afterwards, upon reconsideration, he reversed that judgment. The High Court of Bombay, on appeal, concurred in the judge's original finding, and from their decision the appellants now sought relief from her Majesty in Council. Their lordships, in giving judgment, said the law prevailing in Bengal and Southern India was opposed to the widow's claim, but the High Court had decided that a different interpretation of the law had been accepted in Western India. According to the doctrine of the Bengal and Madras schools, women were incompetent to inherit, unless distinctly named and specified as heirs; but that principle had not been adopted in Western India, and in this case the widow had simply to establish that she was a "gotraja aspinda" of her husband's family—namely, a kinswoman sprung from the same family with the deceased, and connected by funeral oblations. After referring in considerable detail to the very intricate law and facts with which the case was surrounded, their lordships said they found no satisfactory grounds to induce them to dissent from the conclusion of the High Court that the doctrine which had actually prevailed at Bombay was in favour of the right of the widow, nor any sufficient reason for holding that it should not have the force of law. They would therefore humbly advise her Majesty to affirm the judgment of the High Court, with costs. The appeal was consequently dismissed.

THE BLACK AND WHITE EXHIBITION, DUDLEY GALLERY.—All who take an interest in art will be well repaid by a visit to the Dudley Gallery. It is true that many of the best known masters of reproduction in black and white are conspicuous only by their absence, and that there is a great amount of amateur and young work of importance only as showing possible future development. The mere mention, however, of the names of Messrs. C. O. Murray, R. Macbeth, C. P. Slocombe, F. Slocombe, J. Whistler, G. du Maurier, Linley Sambourne, Walter Crane, Heywood Hardy, Léon Richton, C. N. Storm van Gravesande, Lowenstein, F. Seymour Haden, Hubert Herkomer, and Léon Lhermitte will show that there are many fine works to be studied both in etching, pen and ink, charcoal, pencil, and mezzotint. There are many contributions from French and Dutch artists, and several studies for or reproductions of pictures which are exhibited in this year's Academy. We have not space to enter into detailed criticism of separate works, but we may mention, in addition to those of the artists referred to above, the very finished charcoal drawing by Mr. James Aumonier (102) of Southwold, Suffolk.

LUCKIMPORE TEA COMPANY OF ASSAM.—The report states that the profit shown on the year's working is £1,928, which, added to the balance at credit of revenue, raises it to £5,154, from which the directors recommend a dividend being declared of 4 per cent., free of income-tax, leaving £2,205 to be carried forward.

GREAT INDIAN PENINSULA RAILWAY.—The half-yearly meeting of the proprietors of the above railway was held on Friday, June 18, at the Cannon-street Hotel; Colonel James Holland presiding. The chairman stated that there were in England and India 13,909 proprietors of the railway. The report was not satisfactory, but that was not surprising to those who had watched the condition of affairs in Europe, and especially in the East. The company's traffic had considerably fallen off in goods and railway material; but the carriage of passengers was satisfactory. The goods traffic receipts showed a decrease of about 15¼ lakhs of rupees. The prolongation of the war in Afghanistan had considerably affected the company. The movement of troops over the railway had been lighter than in the past few years. A reduction of merchandise receipts was due almost entirely to the falling off in the food-grain traffic, the receipt from which showed a decrease in the half-year of about 15 lakhs of rupees. The future prospects of the company, he thought, were favourable. He moved the adoption of the report. Mr. H. Wollaston Blake seconded the motion, which was carried. Major General H. Rivers and Mr. Watt, the retiring directors, were re-elected, and a vote of thanks passed to the chairman.

BOMBAY, BARODA, AND CENTRAL INDIA RAILWAY.—The half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the above railway was held on Friday, June 18, at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street; Lieut. Colonel P. T. French in the chair. The chairman explained that the report referred to the worst half of the year. Bad trade had contracted their traffic. A tentative reduction had been made in the first, second, and third class fares; and, notwithstanding the reduction, the returns of the first four months of the current half-year exceeded by £4,500 the amount received in the corresponding period of 1879. The works of the new bridge over the Nerbudda River had progressed so rapidly as to surprise the consulting engineer, Sir John Hawkshaw, who had, however, recommended additional strengthening at a cost of £20,000. The bridge would, doubtless, be opened early next year. The Western Rajputana State Railway would shortly be completed so as to afford connection with Delhi and Agra, which would give the company the shortest route, viâ Allahabad. The report was formally seconded and adopted, and the meeting closed with the usual compliment to the chairman.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY.—The sixty-seventh report of the directors, to be presented to the first general meeting of the deferred annuity holders, to whom the management of the affairs of the company is committed by the Purchase Act of 1879, states that the board refer with much satisfaction to the following testimony borne by the consulting engineer to the Government of India, who says:—"In confirming the above certificates (of the company's officers) on the occasion of the termination of the contract, I desire to place on record my opinion that the state of the works, way, and rolling-stock is in all essential particulars most creditable to the company's officers." Warrants for the guaranteed interest, at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, on the deferred annuity capital will be sent by post on the 3rd of July. Mr. James Beaumont having resigned his seat at the board on account of ill health, the vacancy has been filled by Mr. J. R. B. Smith, lately of Calcutta. With reference to this company the following communication has been received by Mr. Mihill Slaughter, of the Stock Exchange:—"The board of directors notify that, in consequence of the variety of details required to be arranged between the Government and the company upon the transfer of the East Indian Railway to the Government of India on Jan. 1 last, the issue of the warrants for the surplus profit accruing to the proprietors will necessarily be deferred for a short time beyond the customary date."

INDIA IN PARLIAMENT.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—THURSDAY, JUNE 17.

INDIAN DUTIES ON SALT.

Mr. W. EGERTON asked the Secretary for India whether his attention had been directed to the fact that differential duties of £1 a ton were now levied in Bengal on English salt as against the excise manufactured salt of the Bengal coast, and whether he would urge on the Indian Government the expediency of having the duties equalised.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said that some unofficial correspondence had passed between himself and the chairman of the Cheshire Chamber of Commerce on the subject, and that they had been asked to embody the grievances of which they complained in a formal memorial. After that document had been received the facts of the case would be laid before the Indian Government and they would be asked to take the matter into their serious consideration.

THE ARMY IN INDIA.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON stated, in answer to Mr. E. Noel, that the report of the special commission, presided over by Sir Ashley Eden, to inquire into the organisation and expenditure of the army in India had been received at the India-office. It was accompanied by a despatch from the Government of India, dated Feb. 4, 1880, in which they expressed a hope that they would shortly be able to state their conclusions on the report to the Home Government. That further explanation had not, however, been yet received, and until the views of the Government of India were in the possession of the Secretary of State for India, and until some decision had been formed, it would not be possible for him to lay the report on the table of the House.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—MONDAY.

INDIAN SERVICE PENSIONS.

In answer to Mr. Schrieber, the Marquis of HARTINGTON said that as far as he was able to ascertain there never had been any proposal to assimilate the pensions of the Indian Staff Corps to the special pensions granted under the warrant of September, 1878, to officers formerly in the Indian service, but now in the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers and in the new line regiments of infantry and cavalry.

THE FINANCES OF INDIA.

Mr. COURTNEY asked the First Lord of the Treasury whether it was intended to require from the Indian Government the repayment during the current financial year of the quota of the sum of two millions advanced in 1879 upon condition of repayment in seven annual instalments.

Mr. GLADSTONE: This inquiry raises part of a very important question which her Majesty's Government will have to consider. I believe I am correct in saying that the remission of the payment can only be effected by an Act of Parliament.

THE ATTOCK BRIDGE.

In reply to Mr. Onslow, who asked a question relative to the ironwork of the bridge across the river Attock, the Marquis of HARTINGTON said: The firms employed to make the ironwork of the Attock bridge were:—For the girders (steel and wrought iron), Messrs. Westwood, Baillie, and Co., of London; for the piers (wrought iron), Messrs. Handyside and Co., of Derby. These firms were not, it is believed, in any way concerned in supplying ironwork for the Tay bridge. All the materials of which the Attock bridge-work is constructed are carefully tested, in accordance with a strict specification based on the most recent experience, by Government inspectors. The bridge is being made of steel and wrought iron. No cast iron is employed.

OPIUM IN BRITISH BURMA.

In answer to Mr. Mark Stewart, who asked a question as to a petition stated to have been presented by the natives of British Burma for the closing of opium shops,

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said that no copy of the petition had been received or referred to in the proceedings of the administration of British Burma or of the Government of India. In the annual revenue report for British Burma, just received, two commissioners of Aracan and of Pegu referred to the great and injurious increase in the consumption of opium and said that both the officials and the people themselves demand measures to check it.

ABDUR RAHMAN.

Sir B. LEIGHTON asked the Secretary of State for India whether it was true, as reported, that Abdur Rahman was accompanied in Afghanistan by a Russian official.

The Marquis of HARTINGTON said that the first telegram, in March, stated that Abdur Rahman was accompanied by two Russian officers, but that information had never been confirmed since. He knew no reason to suppose that any Russian accompanied Abdur Rahman.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.—TUESDAY.

THE AFGHAN WAR EXPENSES.

In reply to Mr. Cross, Mr. GLADSTONE said the Government was not yet in possession of sufficient information to enable them to state the amount of the probable apportionment as between England and India of the expenses of the Afghan war.

LAMPLOUGH'S EFFERVESCING

PYRETIC SALINE.

USE NO SUBSTITUTE.—See perpetual injunction against imitators; also the unanimous judgment before the Lords Justices Bramwell, Brett, and Cotton, Jan. 22, 1878, in H. Lamplough's favour.

Important to all, more especially English Ministers, British Consuls, and Europeans seeking to reside in safety in Tropical and Foreign Climates

Her Majesty's Representative the Governor of Sierra Leone, in a letter of request for an additional supply of PYRETIC SALINE, states:—"It is of great value, and I shall rejoice to hear it is in the hands of all Europeans visiting the tropics."

SICKNESS, HEADACHE, and NAUSEA are in most cases immediately relieved by taking a teaspoonful in a tumbler of cold water. This can be repeated once or twice in two hours, if needful.

SEA VOYAGES.—It is a very valuable accompaniment, and should on no account be omitted. It instantly allays the sea or bilious sickness.

For BILIOUS CONSTITUTIONS, giving rise to vitiated secretions, Indigestion, and Eruptions on the Skin, a teaspoonful should be taken daily with the dinner in a tumbler of water, and the same quantity on going to bed. May be obtained of the Proprietor,
